(n) a redemption, an acquisition or a cancellation of a share or of a right to acquire a share (which share or which right, as the case may be, is referred to in this paragraph as the "security") of the capital stock of a corporation (referred to in this paragraph as the "issuing corporation") held by another corporation (referred to in this paragraph as the "disposing corporation") if

(i) the redemption, acquisition or cancellation occurs as part of a merger or combination of two or more corporations (including the issuing corporation and the disposing corporation) to form one corporate entity (referred to in this paragraph as the "new corporation"),

(ii) the merger or combination

(A) is an amalgamation (within the meaning assigned by subsection 87(1)) to which subsection 87(11) does not apply,

(B) is an amalgamation (within the meaning assigned by subsection 87(1)) to which subsection 87(11) applies, if the issuing corporation and the disposing corporation are described by subsection 87(11) as the parent and the subsidiary, respectively,

(C) is a foreign merger (within the meaning assigned by subsection 87(8.1)), or

(D) would be a foreign merger (within the meaning assigned by subsection 87(8.1)) if subparagraph 87(8.1)(c)(ii) were read without reference to the words "that was resident in a country other than Canada", and

(iii) either

(A) the disposing corporation receives no consideration for the security, or

(B) in the case where the merger or combination is described by clause (ii)(C) or (D), the disposing corporation receives no consideration for the security other than property that was, immediately before the merger or combination, owned by the issuing corporation and that, on the merger or combination, becomes property of the new corporation;

Application: Bill C-10 (Second Senate Reading Dec. 4, 2007; requires re-introduction) (2007, Part 2 — technical), subsec. 187(5), will add para. (n) to the definition "disposition" in subsec. 248(1), applicable on the same basis as the amendment to subpara. (b)(i) above.

Technical Notes: Second, paragraph (n) is added to the definition. New paragraph (n) provides that a redemption, an acquisition or a cancellation of a share, or of a right to be issued a share, (which share or which right, as the case may be, is referred to as the "security") of the capital stock of a corporation (the "issuing corporation") held by another corporation (the "disposing corporation") is considered not to be a "disposition" in the case where

- the redemption, acquisition or cancellation occurs as part of a particular merger or combination of two or more corporations (including the issuing corporation and the disposing corporation) to form one corporate entity (referred to as the "new corporation"),
- the particular merger or combination
  - is an amalgamation (within the meaning assigned by subsection 87(1)) to which subsection 87(11) does not apply,
  - is an amalgamation (within the meaning assigned by subsection 87(1)) to which subsection 87(11) applies, if the issuing corporation and the disposing corporation are described by subsection 87(11) as the parent and the subsidiary, respectively, or
  - is a merger or combination of non-resident corporations (referred to in these Notes as a "subject merger") that would be a foreign merger (within the meaning assigned by subsection 87(8.1)) if subparagraph 87(8.1)(c)(ii) were read without reference to the words "that was resident in a country other than Canada", and
- either
  - the disposing corporation receives no consideration for the security, or
  - in the case of where the particular merger or combination is a subject merger, the disposing corporation receives no consideration for the security other than property that was, immediately before the particular merger or combination, owned by the issuing corporation and that, on the foreign merger, becomes property of the new corporation.

In connection with redemptions, acquisitions and cancellations that occur before December 24, 1998, see the commentary to new subsection 248(1.1).

Letter from Dept. of Finance, April 12, 2002:

Dear [xxx]:

I am writing in reply to your faxed letter dated January 23, 2002 to Mr. Wally Conway in which you expressed concerns about the provisions in the Income Tax Act (the "Act") relating to the cancellation of shares of a predecessor corporation on an "amalgamation" (within the meaning of subsection 87(1) of the Act) or on a "foreign merger" (within the meaning of subsection 87(8.1)).

In your letter, you give the following example of a foreign merger:

1. A corporation ("Canco") resident in Canada owns all of the outstanding shares of a non-resident corporation ("Holdco").
2. Holdco owns all of the outstanding shares of another non-resident corporation ("Parentco").
3. Parentco owns all of the outstanding shares of another non-resident corporation ("Subco").
4. Under the foreign corporate law, Subco is merged into Parentco.

In your letter, you note that you would expect that the relevant foreign law would generally deem the shares of Subco held by Parentco to be cancelled for no consideration on the merger. However, you speculate that it is possible that the law in some foreign jurisdictions may deem the consideration for such shares to be the property of Subco that would, on the merger, be transferred or otherwise become property of the corporate entity formed on the merger.

Subsection 87(4) of the Act deals with the tax consequences, to a shareholder of a corporation, upon an amalgamation involving the corporation where the consideration received by that shareholder for the disposition of the shares held by that shareholder in the capital stock of the corporation consists only of shares of the capital stock of another corporation resulting from the merger. Paragraph 95(2)(d) ensures that subsection 87(4), with necessary changes to reflect a foreign merger, applies in the case of a foreign merger. However, as you note in your letter, subsection 87(4) does not apply to a shareholder where that shareholder is itself a corporation that is part of the amalgamation or foreign merger. Thus, referring to your example, subsection 87(4) would not apply to Parentco in its capacity as a shareholder of Subco.

In the context of foreign mergers involving foreign affiliates of a taxpayer, if the shares are not excluded property (within the meaning of subsection 95(1)), it is possible that foreign accrual property income of a foreign affiliate of the taxpayer could arise on the merger as a result of the non-applicability of subsection 87(4). Similarly, in the context of domestic amalgamations, capital gains or losses could arise on the amalgamation as a result of the non-applicability of subsection 87(4). In our view, these tax results are unintended.

We will, therefore, recommend to the Minister of Finance that the Act be amended so as to exclude from being a "disposition" for the purposes of the Act a cancellation of a share of the capital stock of a corporation (the "issuing corporation") held by another corporation (the "disposing corporation") where

- the cancellation occurred as part of a merger or combination of two or more corporations, that included the issuing corporation and the disposing corporation, to form one corporate entity (the "new corporation"),

- the merger or combination is an amalgamation to which subsection 87(11) did not apply, or is a foreign merger, and
- the disposing corporation received no consideration for the share or, in the case of a foreign merger, received no consideration for the share other than property that was, immediately before the foreign merger, owned by the issuing corporation and that, on the foreign merger, became property of the new corporation.

It will be recommended that this amendment apply to both past and future cancellations of shares.

Thank you for writing.

Yours sincerely,

Brian Ernewein, Director, Tax Legislation Division, Tax Policy Branch

Proposed Amendment — 248(1)"dividend rental arrangement"

"dividend rental arrangement", of a person or a partnership (each of which is referred to in this definition as the "person"),

(a) means any arrangement entered into by the person where it can reasonably be considered that

(i) the main reason for the person entering into the arrangement was to enable the person to receive a dividend on a share of the capital stock of a corporation, other than a dividend on a prescribed share or on a share described in paragraph (e) of the definition "term preferred share" in this subsection or an amount deemed by subsection 15(3) to be received as a dividend on a share of the capital stock of a corporation, and

(ii) under the arrangement someone other than that person bears the risk of loss or enjoys the opportunity for gain or profit with respect to the share in any material respect, and

(b) includes, for greater certainty, any arrangement under which

(i) a corporation at any time receives on a particular share a taxable dividend that would, if this Act were read without reference to subsection 112(2.3), be deductible in computing its taxable income or taxable income earned in Canada for the taxation year that includes that time, and

(ii) the corporation or a partnership of which the corporation is a member is obligated to pay to another person or partnership an amount

(A) that is compensation for

(I) the dividend described in subparagraph (i),

(II) a dividend on a share that is identical to the particular share, or

(III) a dividend on a share that, during the term of the arrangement, can reasonably be expected to provide to a holder of the share the same or substantially the same proportionate risk of loss or opportunity for gain as the particular share, and

(B) that, if paid, would be deemed by subsection 260(5.1) to have been received by that other person or partnership, as the case may be, as a taxable dividend;

Application: Bill C-10 (Second Senate Reading Dec. 4, 2007; requires re-introduction) (2007, Part 2 — technical), subsec. 187(2), will amend the definition "dividend rental arrangement" in subsec. 248(1) to read as above, applicable (per subsec. 187(25) of Bill C-10)

(a) to arrangements made after December 20, 2002; and

(b) to an arrangement made after November 2, 1998 and before December 21, 2002 if the parties to the arrangement jointly so elect in writing and file the election with the Minister of National Revenue within 90 days after Bill C-10 is assented to, except that the reference to "subsection 260(5.1)" in cl. (b)(ii)(B) of the definition, as amended, is to be, in the application of that definition to any of those arrangements made before 2002, read as "subsection 260(5)".

For arrangements made after 2001 and before December 21, 2002 other than an arrangement to which para. (b) above applies, the portion of para. (d) of the definition after subpara. (iii) is to be read as follows:

that, if paid, would be deemed by subsection 260(5.1) to have been received by that other person as a taxable dividend.

Technical Notes: A "dividend rental arrangement" is, in general terms, an arrangement under which one person receives a dividend on a share that has been borrowed from another person who retains the risk of loss or opportunity for gain from fluctuations in the share value. To clarify its application where a partnership is a party to the arrangement, the definition is restructured and amended; its language is also updated in certain respects.

Under the amended definition, the "person" who is the subject of the arrangement — that is, the person who enters into the arrangement in order to receive a dividend — may be a partnership or a person as otherwise defined.

Existing paragraph (c) of the definition ensures that the definition includes an arrangement under which a corporation receives a taxable dividend that would be deductible but for subsection 112(2.3), and is obligated to make dividend compensation payments. This paragraph is replaced by new paragraph (b), which adds to the arrangements described one in which it is not the corporation receiving the dividend that is obligated to make the compensation payment, but rather a partnership of which the corporation is a member.

At first reading, new paragraph (b) may seem asymmetrical, in that it expressly covers the case where a partnership is obligated to make the compensation payment, but not the case where a partnership receives the taxable dividend. In fact, the paragraph covers both: since in the latter case the corporate partner is itself already considered to receive the dividend, it is not necessary to add a reference to the partnership in that regard.

The reference to "subsection 260(5)" in this definition is replaced with "subsection 260(5.1)" consequential to the amendments to section 260. This amendment applies to paragraph (d) of the former definition and clause (b)(ii)(B) of the amended definition.

The amendment to paragraph (d) of the former definition applies between January 1, 2002 and December 20, 2002 unless an election noted below is filed.

The amended definition applies to arrangements made after December 20, 2002; it also applies to an arrangement made after November 2, 1998 and before the day after December 20, 2002, if the parties jointly elect in writing filed with the Minister of National Revenue within 90 days after this Act has been assented to, except that before 2002 the reference to "subsection 260(5.1)" in the amended definition should be read as "subsection 260(5)".

History: That portion of the definition "dividend rental arrangement" after para. (b) added by 1995, c. 21, subsec. 74(1), applicable to dividends received at any time by a corporation on shares acquired

(a) before that time and after April 1989, where the corporation so elects by notifying the Minister of National Revenue in writing before 1996; and

(b) before that time and after June 1994, in any other case.

"home relocation loan" means a loan received by an individual or the individual's spouse or common-law partner in circumstances where the individual has commenced employment at a location in Canada (in this definition referred to as the "new work location") and by reason thereof has moved from the residence in Canada at which, before the move, the individual ordinarily resided (in this definition referred to as the "old residence") to a residence in Canada at which, after the move, the individual ordinarily resided (in this definition referred to as the "new residence") if

(a) the distance between the old residence and the new work location is at least 40 kilometres greater than the distance between the new residence and the new work location,

(b) the loan is used to acquire a dwelling, or a share of the capital stock of a cooperative housing corporation acquired for the sole purpose of acquiring the right to inhabit a dwelling owned by the corporation, where the dwelling is for the habitation of the individual and is the individual's new residence,

(c) the loan is received in the circumstances described in subsection 80.4(1), or would have been so received if subsection 80.4(1.1) had applied to the loan at the time it was received, and

(d) the loan is designated by the individual to be a home relocation loan, but in no case shall more than one loan in respect of a particular move, or more than one loan at any particular time, be designated as a home relocation loan by the individual;

Related Provisions: 6(23) — Employer-provided mortgage subsidy is taxable; 15(2)(a)(ii) — Housing loan to shareholder; 80.4(4) — Home purchase or relocation loan to employee.

History: The definition "home relocation loan" in subsec. 248(1) amended by 2000, c. 12, Sch. 2, s. 1, to replace "spouse" with "spouse or common-law partner", applicable to 2001 et seq., in force July 31, 2000. See also the transitional rules reproduced in the History to 248(1)"common-law partner".

Para. (c) of "home relocation loan" amended by 1999, c. 22, subsec. 80(1), applicable after February 23, 1998. Para. (c) formerly read:

(c) the loan is received in the circumstances described in subsection 80.4(1), and

Para. (b) of "home relocation loan" substituted by 1994, c. 7, Sch. II (1991, c. 49), subsec. 192(8), applicable to 1985 et seq. Para. (b) formerly read:

(b) the loan is used to acquire a dwelling for the habitation of the individual that is the new residence,

(a) that is an income-averaging annuity contract within the meaning assigned by subsection 61(4), and

(b) in respect of which the individual has made a deduction under section 61 in computing the individual's income for a taxation year;

Related Provisions: 128.1(10)"excluded right or interest"(f)(ii) — Emigration — no deemed disposition of right under IAAC.

"income bond" or "income debenture" of a corporation (in this definition referred to as the "issuing corporation") means a bond or debenture in respect of which interest or dividends are payable only to the extent that the issuing corporation has made a profit before taking into account the interest or dividend obligation and that was issued

(a) before November 17, 1978,

(b) after November 16, 1978 and before 1980 pursuant to an agreement in writing to do so made before November 17, 1978 (in this definition referred to as an "established agreement"), or

(c) by an issuing corporation resident in Canada for a term that may not, in any circumstances, exceed 5 years,

(i) as part of a proposal to or an arrangement with its creditors that had been approved by a court under the Bankruptcy and Insolvency Act,

(ii) at a time when all or substantially all of its assets were under the control of a receiver, receiver-manager, sequestrator or trustee in bankruptcy, or

(iii) at a time when, by reason of financial difficulty, the issuing corporation or another corporation resident in Canada with which it does not deal at arm's length was in default, or could reasonably be expected to default, on a debt obligation held by a person with whom the issuing corporation or the other corporation was dealing at arm's length and the bond or debenture was issued either wholly or in substantial part and either directly or indirectly in exchange or substitution for that obligation or a part thereof, and, in the case of a bond or debenture issued after November 12, 1981, the proceeds from the issue may reasonably be regarded as having been used by the issuing corporation or a corporation with which it was not dealing at arm's length in the financing of its business carried on in Canada immediately before the bond or debenture was issued,

and, for the purposes of this definition,

(d) where the terms or conditions of an established agreement were amended after November 16, 1978, the agreement shall be deemed to have been made after that date, and

(e) where

(i) at any particular time the terms or conditions of a bond or debenture issued pursuant to an established agreement or of any agreement relating to such a bond or debenture have been changed,

(ii) under the terms or conditions of a bond or debenture acquired in the ordinary course of the business carried on by a specified financial institution or a partnership or trust (other than a testamentary trust) or under the terms or conditions of any agreement relating to any such bond or debenture (other than an agreement made before October 24, 1979 to which the issuing corporation or any person related thereto was not a party), the owner thereof could at any particular time after November 16, 1978 require, either alone or together with one or more taxpayers, the repayment, acquisition, cancellation or conversion of the bond or debenture otherwise than by reason of a failure or default under the terms or conditions of the bond or debenture or any agreement that related to, and was entered into at the time of, the issuance of the bond or debenture,

(iii) at any particular time after November 16, 1978, the maturity date of a bond or debenture was extended or the terms or conditions relating to the repayment of the principal amount thereof were changed,

(iv) at a particular time a specified financial institution (or a partnership or trust of which a specified financial institution or a person related to the institution is a member or beneficiary) acquires a bond or debenture that

(A) was issued before November 17, 1978 or under an established agreement,

(B) was issued to a person other than a corporation that was, at the time of issue,

(I) described in any of paragraphs (a) to (e) of the definition "specified financial institution", or

(II) a corporation that was controlled by one or more corporations described in subclause (I) and, for the purpose of this subclause, one corporation is controlled by another corporation if more than 50% of its issued share capital (having full voting rights under all circumstances) belongs to the other corporation, to persons with whom the other corporation does not deal at arm's length, or to the other corporation and persons with whom the other corporation does not deal at arm's length,

(C) was acquired from a person that was, at the time the person last acquired the bond or debenture and at the particular time, a person other than a corporation described in any of paragraphs (a) to (f) of that definition, and

(D) was acquired otherwise than under an agreement in writing made before October 24, 1979, or

(v) at a particular time after November 12, 1981, a specified financial institution (or a partnership or trust of which a specified financial institution or a person related to the institution is a member or beneficiary) acquires a bond or debenture that

(A) was not a bond or debenture referred to in paragraph (c),

(B) was acquired from a person that was, at the particular time, a corporation described in any of paragraphs (a) to (f) of the definition "specified financial institution", and

(C) was acquired subject to or conditional on a guarantee agreement (within the meaning that would be assigned by subsection 112(2.2) if the reference in that subsection to a "share" were read as a reference to an "income bond" or "income debenture") that was entered into after November 12, 1981, the bond or debenture shall, for the purposes of determining at any time after the particular time whether it is an income bond or income debenture, be deemed to have been issued at the particular time otherwise than pursuant to an established agreement;

History: Subparas. (e)(iv) and (v) of the definition "income bond" or "income debenture" in subsec. 248(1) amended by 1999, c. 22, subsec. 80(2), applicable to taxation years that begin after 1998 except that, in the application of the amendment to a bond or debenture acquired from a corporation that last acquired the bond or debenture in a taxation year that began before 1999,

(a) the expression "at the time the person last acquired the bond or debenture and at the particular time, a person other than a corporation described in any of paragraphs (a) to (f) of that definition" in cl. (e)(iv)(C) of the definition, as amended, shall be read as "at the time the person last acquired the bond or debenture, a corporation described in subclause (B)(I) or (II), and at the particular time, a corporation described in any of paragraphs (a) to (f) of that definition"; and

(b) the expression "a corporation described in any of paragraphs (a) to (f) of the definition" in cl. (e)(v)(B) of the definition, as amended, shall be read as "a corporation described in subclause (iv)(B)(I) or (II) of the definition".

Subparas. (e)(iv) and (v) formerly read:

(iv) at any particular time after October 23, 1979, a bond or debenture issued before November 17, 1978 or a bond or debenture issued pursuant to an established agreement (other than a bond or debenture issued to a corporation described in any of paragraphs (a) to (f) of the definition "specified financial institution" in this subsection) is acquired (otherwise than pursuant to an agreement in writing made before October 24, 1979) from a person (other than a corporation described in any of paragraphs (a) to (f) of that definition) by a specified financial institution or by a partnership or trust of which a specified financial institution or a person related thereto is a member or beneficiary, or

(v) at any particular time after November 12, 1981, a bond or debenture (other than a bond or debenture referred to in paragraph (c)) is acquired by a specified financial institution or by a partnership or trust of which a specified financial institution or a person related thereto is a member or beneficiary from a corporation described in any of paragraphs (a) to (f) of the definition "specified financial institution" in this subsection and the acquisition is subject to or conditional on a guarantee agreement (within the meaning that would be assigned by subsection 112(2.2) if the reference therein to a "share" were read as a reference to an "income bond" or "income debenture") that was entered into after November 12, 1981,

Subpara. (c)(i) of "income bond" amended by 1994, c. 7, Sch. V (1992, c. 27), para. 90(1)(q), to substitute "Bankruptcy and Insolvency Act" for "Bankruptcy Act", in force November 30, 1992.

"inventory" means a description of property the cost or value of which is relevant in computing a taxpayer's income from a business for a taxation year or would have been so relevant if the income from the business had not been computed in accordance with the cash method and, with respect to a farming business, includes all of the livestock held in the course of carrying on the business;

Proposed Amendment — 248(1)"inventory"

"inventory" means a description of property of a taxpayer (other than a property in respect of which subsection 94.1(4) or 94.2(3) applies to the taxpayer for a taxation year) the cost or value of which is relevant in computing the taxpayer's income from a business for a taxation year or would have been so relevant if the income from the business had not been computed in accordance with the cash method and, with respect to a farming business, includes all of the livestock held in the course of carrying on the business;

Application: Bill C-10 (Second Senate Reading Dec. 4, 2007; requires re-introduction) (2007, Part 1 — NRTs and FIEs), subsec. 44(5), will amend the definition "inventory" in subsec. 248(1) to read as above, applicable to fiscal periods that begin after 2006, except that it also applies to a fiscal period of a partnership that begins before 2007 if ss. 94.1 to 94.4 apply to that fiscal period of the partnership.

Technical Notes: A taxpayer's "inventory" is generally described in subsection 248(1) as a description of property the cost or value of which is relevant in computing a taxpayer's income from a business for a taxation year. Rules for "inventory" in section 10 and elsewhere in the Act affect the calculation of a taxpayer's income from business.

The definition "inventory" is amended to exclude property of a taxpayer that is subject to the application of subsection 94.1(4) or 94.2(3) in respect of the taxpayer.

Letter from Dept. of Finance, Aug. 11, 2003:

Dear [xxx]

Thank you for your letter of May 1, 2003, concerning the application to property included in the inventory of a business of the provisions contained in the legislative proposals on foreign investment entities ("FIE proposals") that were tabled as a Notice of Ways and Means Motion on October 11, 2002 [since retabled October 30, 2003 — ed.]. I wish also to acknowledge your discussions on this subject with Grant Nash of this Division.

In your letter you request that the definition "exempt interest" in proposed subsection 94.1(1) of the Income Tax Act be expanded to include participating interests that are included in the inventory of a business and that are valued using the method prescribed under section 1801 of the Income Tax Regulations. These regulations permit the taxpayer to use the property's fair market value ("FMV"), but only if FMV valuations are used to value all properties of the taxpayer included in the inventories of the business. Under the FIE proposals, if the participating interests were not to have a readily obtainable fair market value ("ROFMV"), as defined in proposed subsection 94.2(1) of the Act, they would be subject to the imputed income regime under proposed section 94.1. You are concerned that there could be a risk of double taxation in the event that the application of section 94.1 did not operate to suspend the requirement that the taxpayer include the participating interests in the inventory of its business.

You also suggest, as an alternative to exempting the participating interests under the "exempt interest" definition, the possibility of a modification to the FIE proposals so that such participating interests would not be subject to the imputed income regime, but instead would be subject only to the to the mark-to-market regime under proposed section 94.2 of the FIE proposals. However, you raise concerns about possible double taxation in the event that the participating interests were to be subject both to that proposed mark-to-market regime and subsection 10(1).

In this regard we note that, in the case of inventory, the proposed change, contained in the FIE proposals, to the definition "inventory" in subsection 248(1) of the Act would exclude from inventory under the Act any property that would be subject to the mark-to-market regime under proposed section 94.2 of the Act. We are of the view that this proposed change to the definition "inventory" would prevent the double taxation that might otherwise arise, in respect of the application of the mark-to-market regime under proposed section 94.2, in the absence of relief under any other provisions of the Act.

We are prepared to recommend that the FIE proposals be modified to further amend the definition "inventory" in subsection 248(1) of the Act to exclude from inventory under the Act any property that would be subject to the imputed income regime under proposed section 94.1. This modification would prevent the double taxation that might otherwise arise, in respect of the application of proposed section 94.1 to a taxpayer's participating interest, by suspending the requirement that the taxpayer include the participating interest in the inventory of its business. We will recommend that these modifications be effective for the same period as the FIE proposals generally.

Of course, we cannot offer any assurance that either the Minister of Finance or Parliament will agree with the recommendation that we intend to make in this regard. Nonetheless, we trust that this statement of our position is helpful.

Thank you for writing.

History: The definition "mineral" in subsec. 248(1) amended by 1998, c. 19, subsec. 239(1), applicable to taxation years and fiscal periods that begin after 1996 except that,

(a) for greater certainty, that definition shall not result in a characterization of expenditures made or costs incurred in a taxation year or fiscal period that began before 1997 as a Canadian exploration expense, Canadian development expense, Canadian exploration and development expense or foreign exploration and development expense or an increase in any amount deductible under s. 65 as a consequence of an expenditure made or cost incurred before 1997; and

(b) where, as a consequence of the application of that definition, a person's property would, but for this paragraph, be recharacterized as Canadian resource property or foreign resource property at the beginning of the person's first taxation year or fiscal period that begins after 1996, for the purposes of the Act the property is deemed

(i) to have been disposed of by the person immediately before that time for proceeds equal to its cost amount to the person at that time, and

(ii) to have been reacquired at that time by the person for the same amount.

The definition formerly read:

"mineral" includes bituminous sands, calcium chloride, coal, kaolin, oil sands, oil shale and silica, but does not include petroleum, natural gas or a related hydrocarbon not expressly referred to in this definition;

The definition "mineral" added to subsec. 248(1) by 1994, c. 21, subsec. 109(5), applicable to taxation years commencing after 1984, except that the definition shall be read without reference to the word "kaolin" in respect of taxation years ending before 1988.

Interpretation Bulletins: IT-125R4: Dispositions of resource properties.

"mineral resource" means

(a) a base or precious metal deposit,

(b) a coal deposit,

(c) a bituminous sands deposit or oil shale deposit, or

(d) a mineral deposit in respect of which

(i) the Minister of Natural Resources has certified that the principal mineral extracted is an industrial mineral contained in a non-bedded deposit,

(ii) the principal mineral extracted is ammonite gemstone, calcium chloride, diamond, gypsum, halite, kaolin or sylvite, or

(iii) the principal mineral extracted is silica that is extracted from sandstone or quartzite;

Related Provisions: Interpretation Act 8(2.1), (2.2) — Application to exclusive economic zone and continental shelf.

History: Subpara. (d)(ii) of the definition "mineral resource" in subsec. 248(1) amended by 1998, c. 19, subsec. 239(4), applicable to taxation years and fiscal periods that begin after 1996 except that,

(a) for greater certainty, the amendment shall not result in a characterization of expenditures made or costs incurred in a taxation year or fiscal period that began before 1997 as a Canadian exploration expense, Canadian development expense, Canadian exploration and development expense or foreign exploration and development expense or an increase in any amount deductible under s. 65 as a consequence of an expenditure made or cost incurred before 1997; and

(b) where, as a consequence of the application of this amendment, a person's property would, but for this paragraph, be recharacterized as Canadian resource property or foreign resource property at the beginning of the person's first taxation year or fiscal period that begins after 1996, for the purposes of the Act the property is deemed

(i) to have been disposed of by the person immediately before that time for proceeds equal to its cost amount to the person at that time, and

(ii) to have been reacquired at that time by the person for the same amount.

Subpara. (d)(ii) formerly read:

(ii) the principal mineral extracted is calcium chloride, diamond, gypsum, halite, kaolin or sylvite, or

Para. (c) of the definition "mineral resource" in subsec. 248(1) amended by 1997, c. 25, subsec. 71(2), applicable after March 6, 1996. Para. (c) formerly read:

(c) a bituminous sands deposit, oil sands deposit or oil shale deposit, or

Subpara. (d)(i) of "mineral resource" amended by 1994, c. 41, para. 37(1)(o), in force January 12, 1995. Subpara. (i) formerly read:

(i) the Minister of Energy, Mines and Resources has certified that the principal mineral extracted is an industrial mineral contained in a non-bedded deposit,

Subpara. (d)(ii) of the definition "mineral resource" substituted by 1994, c. 21, subsec. 109(3), applicable to taxation years commencing after 1984, except that the subpara. shall be read without reference to the word "kaolin" in respect of taxation years ending before 1988 and without reference to the word "diamond" in respect of taxation years ending before 1993. That subpara. formerly read:

(ii) the principal mineral extracted is sylvite, halite, gypsum or kaolin, or

"minerals" — [Repealed]

History: The definition "minerals" repealed by 1994, c. 21, subsec. 109(1), applicable to taxation years commencing after 1984 (but see the definition "mineral" above, which essentially replaces it). That definition formerly read:

"minerals" does not include petroleum, natural gas or related hydrocarbons (except coal, bituminous sands, oil sands or oil shale);

"mining reclamation trust" — [Repealed]

History: The definition "mining reclamation trust" in subsec. 248(1) repealed by 1998, c. 19, subsec. 66(1), applicable after 1997 and, if an election is made by a trust in accordance with para. (i) of the definition "qualifying environmental trust" in subsec. 248(1),

(a) the trust is deemed to have never been a mining reclamation trust; and

(b) notwithstanding subsecs. 152(4) to (5), the Minister of National Revenue may before 2000 make any assessments and reassessments that are necessary to give effect to the election.

The definition formerly read:

"mining reclamation trust" at any time means a trust resident in a province and maintained at that time for the sole purpose of funding the reclamation of a mine in the province, where the first contribution to the trust was made after 1991, no amount was distributed before February 23, 1994 from the trust and the maintenance of the trust is or may become required under the terms of a contract entered into with Her Majesty in right of Canada or the province or is or may become required pursuant to a law of Canada or the province, but does not include a trust

(a) where that contract was not entered into or that law was not enacted, as the case may be, on or before the later of

(i) the day that is one year after the day the trust was created, and

(ii) January 1, 1996,

(b) that relates to the reclamation of a mine that at that time is a clay pit (other than a kaolin pit), a deposit of peat, a gravel pit, a peat bog, a sand pit, a shale pit or a stone quarry or that relates to the reclamation of a well,

(c) that is not maintained at that time to secure the mining reclamation obligations of one or more persons or partnerships that are beneficiaries under the trust,

(d) that at that time has a trustee other than

(i) Her Majesty in right of Canada or the province, or

(ii) a corporation resident in Canada that is licensed or otherwise authorized under the laws of Canada or a province to carry on in Canada the business of offering to the public its services as trustee,

(e) that borrows money at that time,

(f) that acquired at that time any property that is not described in any of paragraphs (a), (b) and (f) of the definition "qualified investment" in section 204,

(g) that did not comply with prescribed conditions at that time, or

(h) that was at any previous time not a mining reclamation trust;

The definition "mining reclamation trust" added by 1995, c. 3, subsec. 52(4), applicable after 1993 except with respect to a trust the first contribution to which was made before February 23, 1994 and that elects in writing filed with the Minister of National Revenue before 1996 that this definition not apply to the trust.

"personal services business" has the meaning assigned by subsection 125(7);

"personal trust" means

(a) a testamentary trust, or

(b) an inter vivos trust, no beneficial interest in which was acquired for consideration payable directly or indirectly to

(i) the trust, or

(ii) any person who has made a contribution to the trust by way of transfer, assignment or other disposition of property, but, after 1999, does not include a unit trust;

Proposed Amendment — 248(1)"personal trust"

"personal trust" means a trust (other than a trust that is, or was at any time after 1999, a unit trust) that is

(a) a testamentary trust, or

(b) an inter vivos trust no beneficial interest in which was acquired for consideration payable directly or indirectly to

(i) the trust, or

(ii) any person or partnership that has made a contribution to the trust by way of transfer, assignment or other disposition of property;

Application: Bill C-10 (First Reading Feb. 6, 2009), subsec. 76(2), will amend the definition "personal trust" in subsec. 248(1) to read as above, applicable after July 14, 2008.

Technical Notes (Dec. 2008): A "personal trust" is defined in subsection 248(1) as a testamentary trust or an inter vivos trust no beneficial interest in which was acquired for consideration (as determined by subsection 108(7)) payable to the trust or to a contributor to the trust. However, after 1999, a personal trust does not include a unit trust (within the meaning assigned by subsection 108(2)).

The definition "personal trust" is amended in two ways as one of a series of amendments intended to provide for the income tax effects on a reorganization into corporate form of a SIFT wind-up entity. The first amendment provides that a trust is disqualified from personal trust status if it is, or at any time after 1999 was, a unit trust. The second amendment clarifies that, for purposes of the rule disqualifying a trust from personal trust status if a beneficial interest has been acquired for consideration payable in any way to a contributor to the trust, a contributor includes a partnership.

Related Provisions: 107.4(3)(i) — Trust deemed not to be personal trust; 108(2) — Unit trust; 108(6) — Where terms of trust are varied; 108(7) — Meaning of "acquired for consideration"; 110.6(16) — Extension of definition for purposes of capital gains exemption; 128.1(10)"excluded right or interest"(j) — No deemed disposition on emigration of beneficiary; 251(1)(b) — Trust deemed not at arm's length with beneficiary.

History: The portion of the definition "personal trust" after subpara. (b)(ii) amended by 2001, c. 17, subsec. 188(4), applicable after December 23, 1998. That portion formerly read:

> and, for the purposes of this paragraph and paragraph 53(2)(h), where all the beneficial interests in a particular inter vivos trust acquired by way of the transfer, assignment or other disposition of property to the particular trust were acquired by
> (iii) one person, or
> (iv) 2 or more persons who would be related to each other if
> (A) a trust and another person were related to each other, where the other person is a beneficiary under the trust or is related to a beneficiary under the trust, and
> (B) a trust and another trust were related to each other, where a beneficiary under the trust is a beneficiary under the other trust or is related to a beneficiary under the other trust,
> any beneficial interest in the particular trust acquired by such a person shall be deemed to have been acquired for no consideration;

All that portion of para. (b) of "personal trust" following subpara. (ii) amended by 1994, c. 7, Sch. VIII (1993, c. 24), subsec. 139(4), applicable after 1987. That portion formerly read:

> and, for the purposes of this paragraph and paragraph 53(2)(h), where an inter vivos trust is created by way of the transfer, assignment or other disposition of property by an individual (or two or more individuals each of whom was, at the time the trust was created, related to each of the other individuals), any beneficial interest in the trust acquired by the individual, or individuals, at the time the trust was created shall be deemed to have been acquired for no consideration;

"qualifying environmental trust" at any time means a trust resident in a province and maintained at that time for the sole purpose of funding the reclamation of a site in the province that had been used primarily for, or for any combination of, the operation of a mine, the extraction of clay, peat, sand, shale or aggregates (including dimension stone and gravel) or the deposit of waste, where the maintenance of the trust is or may become required under the terms of a contract entered into with Her Majesty in right of Canada or the province or is or may become required under a law of Canada or the province and the contract was entered into or that law was enacted, as the case may be, on or before the later of January 1, 1996 and the day that is one year after the day on which the trust was created, but does not include a trust

(a) that relates at that time to the reclamation of a well,

(b) that is not maintained at that time to secure the reclamation obligations of one or more persons or partnerships that are beneficiaries under the trust,

(c) that at that time has a trustee other than

(i) Her Majesty in right of Canada or the province, or

(ii) a corporation resident in Canada that is licensed or otherwise authorized under the laws of Canada or a province to carry on in Canada the business of offering to the public its services as trustee,

(d) that borrows money at that time,

(e) that acquired at that time any property that is not described in any of paragraphs (a), (b) and (f) of the definition "qualified investment" in section 204,

(f) to which the first contribution was made before 1992,

(g) from which any amount was distributed before February 23, 1994,

(h) if that time is before 1998 and the trust is not a mining reclamation trust at that time,

(i) to which the first contribution was made before 1996,

(ii) from which any amount was distributed before February 19, 1997, or

(iii) any interest in which was disposed of before February 19, 1997,

(i) that elected in writing filed with the Minister, before 1998 or before April of the year following the year in which the first contribution to the trust was made, never to have been a qualifying environmental trust, or

"SIFT trust" has the meaning assigned by section 122.1;

Related Provisions: 104(16) — Treatment of SIFT trust distributions; 122.1(2) — Application of definition from 2006–2010.

History: "SIFT trust" added by 2007, c. 29, s. 28, deemed to have come into force on October 31, 2006.

Proposed Addition — 248(1)"SIFT trust wind-up event", "SIFT wind-up corporation", "SIFT wind-up entity", "SIFT wind-up entity equity"

"SIFT trust wind-up event" means a distribution by a particular trust resident in Canada of property to a taxpayer in respect of which the following conditions are met:

(a) the distribution occurs before 2013,

(b) there is a resulting disposition of all of the taxpayer's interest as a beneficiary under the particular trust,

(c) the particular trust is

(i) a SIFT wind-up entity,

(ii) a trust whose only beneficiary throughout the period (referred to in this definition as the "qualifying period") that begins on July 14, 2008 and that ends at the time of the distribution is another trust that throughout the qualifying period

(A) is resident in Canada, and

(B) is a SIFT wind-up entity or a trust described by this subparagraph, or

(iii) a trust whose only beneficiary at the time of distribution is another trust that throughout the qualifying period

(A) is resident in Canada,

(B) is a SIFT wind-up entity or a trust described by subparagraph (ii), and

(C) is a majority interest beneficiary (within the meaning that would be assigned by section 251.1 if the references in the definition "majority interest beneficiary" in subsection 251.1(3) to "50%" were read as references to "25%") of the particular trust,

(d) the particular trust ceases to exist immediately after the distribution or immediately after the last of a series of SIFT trust wind-up events (determined without reference to this paragraph) of the particular trust that includes the distribution, and

(e) the property was not acquired by the particular trust as a result of a transfer or an exchange

(i) that is

(A) a "qualifying exchange" as defined in subsection 132.2(1) or a "qualifying disposition" as defined in subsection 107.4(1),

(B) made after February 2, 2009, and

(C) from any person other than a SIFT wind-up entity, or

(ii) to which any of sections 51, 85, 85.1, 86, 87, 88, 107.4 or 132.2 applies, of another property acquired as a result of a transfer or an exchange described by subparagraph (i) or this subparagraph;

Technical Notes (Dec. 2008): The new definition "SIFT trust wind-up event" is added as part of a series of amendments intended to provide for the income tax effects on a reorganization into corporate form of a trust that is a SIFT wind-up entity. The definition sets out conditions that must be met in order for a distribution of property by a Canadian resident trust to a taxpayer to be subject to the new rules in section 88.1, subsections 107(3) and (3.1) and paragraph 256(7)(f) and for the rules in subsection 80.01(5.1) to apply to a settlement of debt in consequence of such a distribution.

To qualify as a SIFT trust wind-up event, a distribution to a taxpayer must take place before 2013 and result in a disposition of all of the taxpayer's interest as a beneficiary under the trust. As well, the trust making the distribution must cease to exist immediately after the distribution or immediately after the last of a series of the trust's SIFT wind-up event distributions that includes the distribution (such a series will not exceed 60 days because of the rules in paragraph 88.1(1)(c) and 107(3)(c)).

Finally, a distribution that is a SIFT trust wind-up event can be made only by certain Canadian resident trusts, specifically:

- a SIFT wind-up entity (as defined in subsection 248(1));
- a particular trust the only beneficiary of which is another trust resident in Canada that, throughout the relevant period (meaning the period that starts on July 14, 2008 and that ends at the time of distribution), is a SIFT wind-up entity — in effect, this is the parent SIFT wind-up entity trust's direct wholly owned subsidiary trust;
- applying the above rule iteratively, a particular trust the only beneficiary of which is another trust resident in Canada that, throughout the relevant period, is a trust described above;
- a particular trust the only beneficiary of which is another trust resident in Canada that at the time of distribution, is a trust described above, and that throughout the relevant period is a majority interest beneficiary (within the meaning assigned by section 251.1) of the particular trust — this describes a trust that may not have been wholly owned by another qualifying trust throughout the relevant period, but is so at the time of the distribution.

Related Provisions: 80.01(5.1) — Debt settlement on wind-up event; 107(2) — Exclusion from regular trust rollout; 107(3), (3.1) — Rollout of assets to beneficiaries; 256(7)(f) — Acquiring control of corporation.

"SIFT wind-up corporation", in respect of a SIFT wind-up entity, means at any particular time a corporation

(a) that, at any time that is after July 13, 2008 and before the earlier of the particular time and January 1, 2013, owns all of the equity in the SIFT wind-up entity, or

(b) shares of the capital stock of which are at or before the particular time distributed on a SIFT trust wind-up event of the SIFT wind-up entity;

Technical Notes (Dec. 2008): The new definition "SIFT wind-up corporation" is added as part of a series of amendments intended to provide for the income tax effects on a reorganization into corporate form of a SIFT wind-up entity. The expression is used in subparagraph 7(1.4)(b)(iv), paragraph 87(2)(s.1), subsection 107(3.1) and the definition "qualifying exchange" in section 132.2, which are also included in that series of amendments.

A SIFT wind-up corporation in respect of a SIFT wind-up entity means at any particular time a corporation

- under paragraph (a) of this definition, that owns — at any time in the period after July 14, 2008 and before the earlier of the particular time and 2013 — all of the equity in the SIFT wind-up entity; or
- under paragraph (b) of this definition, a share of the capital stock of which has, at or before the particular time, been distributed on a SIFT trust wind-up event of the SIFT wind-up entity.

Related Provisions: 54"superficial loss"(j) — Deemed identical property for superficial-loss rule; 80.01(5.1) — Debt settlement on wind-up event; 87(2)(s.1) — Amalgamation — continuing corporation; 107(2) — Exclusion from regular trust rollout; 107(3), (3.1) — Rollout of assets to beneficiaries; 256(7)(f) — Acquiring control of corporation. See also under 248(1)"SIFT wind-up entity".

"SIFT wind-up entity" means a trust or partnership that at any time in the period that began on October 31, 2006 and that ends on July 14, 2008 is

(a) a SIFT trust (determined without reference to subsection 122.1(2)),

(b) a SIFT partnership (determined without reference to subsection 197(8)), or

(c) a real estate investment trust (as defined in subsection 122.1(1));

Technical Notes (Dec. 2008): The new definition "SIFT wind-up entity" in subsection 248(1) is added as part of a series of amendments intended to provide for the income tax effects on a reorganization into corporate form of a SIFT wind-up entity. The related amendments include new subparagraph 7(1.4)(b)(iv), subsections 80.01(5.1), 85.1(7) and (8), 88.1(1) and (2), 107(3) and (3.1) and the new definitions "SIFT wind-up corporation" and "SIFT trust wind-up event" in subsection 248(1).

"SIFT wind-up entity" means a trust or partnership that at any time in the period that begins on October 31, 2006 and that ends on July 14, 2008 is a SIFT trust, a SIFT partnership, or a REIT (as defined in subsection 122.1(1)). For this purpose, the definitions "SIFT trust" and "SIFT partnership" are treated as applying effective October 31, 2006 (i.e., read without reference to the special transitional rules that would otherwise suspend their application in respect of a given trust or partnership to no later than the end of 2010).

Related Provisions: 7(1.4)(b)(vi) — Exchange of employee stock options; 54"superficial loss"(j) — Deemed identical property for superficial-loss rule; 80.01(5.1) — Deemed settlement of debt; 85.1(7), (8) — Rollover on exchange for shares before 2013; 88.1 — Wind-up into corporation before 2013; 107(3.1) — Rollout of assets to beneficiaries before 2013.

"SIFT wind-up entity equity", or equity in a SIFT wind-up entity, means

(a) if the SIFT wind-up entity is a trust, a capital interest (determined without reference to subsection (25)) in the trust, and

(b) if the SIFT wind-up entity is a partnership, an interest as a member of the partnership where, by operation of any law governing the arrangement in respect of the partnership, the liability of the member as a member of the partnership is limited, except that if all of the interests described in paragraph (a) or (b), as the case may be, in the SIFT wind-up entity are described by reference to units, it means the part of the interest represented by such a unit;

Technical Notes (Dec. 2008): The new definition "SIFT wind-up entity equity" in subsection 248(1) is added as part of a series of amendments intended to provide for the income tax effects on a reorganization into corporate form of a SIFT wind-up entity. The expression is used, in respect of trusts that are SIFT wind-up entities, in new subparagraph 7(1.4)(b)(vi) and it is also used, in respect of trusts or partnerships that are SIFT wind-up entities, in respect of new paragraph 40(3.5)(b), subsections 85.1(7) and (8), and the new definition "SIFT wind-up corporation" in subsection 248(1).

Under this definition, SIFT wind-up entity equity (including a reference to equity in a SIFT wind-up entity) means, in the case of a SIFT wind-up entity that is a trust, a capital interest in the trust determined without reference to subsection 248(25). In the case of a SIFT wind-up entity that is a partnership, the expression refers to the membership interest of a limited partner, with the result that the membership interest of the general partner is not included in the reference. Note, however, that where all of those capital interests in the trust or all of those member interests of limited partners in the partnership, as the case may be, are described by reference to units, a reference to SIFT wind-up entity equity means the part of the interest represented by the unit.

Application: Bill C-10 (First Reading Feb. 6, 2009), subsec. 76(4), will add the definitions "SIFT trust wind-up event", "SIFT wind-up corporation", "SIFT wind-up entity", "SIFT wind-up entity equity" to subsec. 248(1), applicable after December 19, 2007.

Related Provisions: 116(6)(b)(ii)(B) — No section 116 certificate needed on disposition by non-resident. See also under 248(1)"SIFT wind-up entity".

"salary deferral arrangement", in respect of a taxpayer, means a plan or arrangement, whether funded or not, under which any person has a right in a taxation year to receive an amount after the year where it is reasonable to consider that one of the main purposes for the creation or existence of the right is to postpone tax payable under this Act by the taxpayer in respect of an amount that is, or is on account or in lieu of, salary or wages of the taxpayer for services rendered by the taxpayer in the year or a preceding taxation year (including such a right that is subject to one or more conditions unless there is a substantial risk that any one of those conditions will not be satisfied), but does not include

(a) a registered pension plan,

(b) a disability or income maintenance insurance plan under a policy with an insurance corporation,

(c) a deferred profit sharing plan,

(d) an employees profit sharing plan,

(e) an employee trust,

(f) a group sickness or accident insurance plan,

"share" means a share or fraction of a share of the capital stock of a corporation and, for greater certainty, a share of the capital stock of a corporation includes a share of the capital of a cooperative corporation (within the meaning assigned by subsection 136(2)) and a share of the capital of a credit union;

Proposed Amendment — 248(1)"share"

"share", except as the context otherwise requires, means a share or a fraction of a share of the capital stock of a corporation and, for greater certainty, a share of the capital stock of a corporation includes a share of the capital of a cooperative corporation (within the meaning assigned by subsection 136(2)), a share of the capital of an agricultural cooperative corporation (within the meaning assigned by subsection 135.1(1)) and a share of the capital of a credit union;

Application: Bill C-10 (Second Senate Reading Dec. 4, 2007; requires re-introduction) (2007, Part 1 — NRTs and FIEs), subsec. 44(6), will amend the definition "share" in subsec. 248(1) to read as above, applicable to taxation years that begin after 2006, except that the amendment also applies to a taxation year of a taxpayer that begins before 2007 if ss. 94.1 to 94.4 apply to that taxation year of the taxpayer.

Technical Notes: The definition "share" is amended so that it applies except as the context otherwise requires. For example, if the context requires that the expression "share" refer to a portion of an amount or thing, then it would not carry the meaning otherwise assigned by subsection 248(1).

"share-purchase tax credit" of a taxpayer for a taxation year has the meaning assigned by subsection 127.2(6);

"short-term preferred share" of a corporation at any particular time means a share, other than a grandfathered share, of the capital stock of the corporation issued after December 15, 1987 that at that particular time

(a) is a share where, under the terms and conditions of the share, any agreement relating to the share or any modification of those terms and conditions or that agreement, the corporation or a specified person in relation to the corporation is or may, at any time within 5 years after the date of its issue, be required to redeem, acquire or cancel, in whole or in part, the share (unless the requirement to redeem, acquire or cancel the share arises only in the event of the death of the shareholder or by reason only of a right to convert or exchange the share) or to reduce the paid-up capital of the share, and for the purposes of this paragraph

(i) an agreement in respect of a share of the capital stock of a corporation shall be read without reference to that part of the agreement under which a person agrees to acquire the share for an amount

(A) in the case of a share (other than a share that would, but for that part of the agreement, be a taxable preferred share) the agreement in respect of which provides that the share is to be acquired within 60 days after the day on which the agreement was entered into, that does not exceed the greater of the fair market value of the share at the time the agreement was entered into, determined without reference to the agreement, and the fair market value of the share at the time of the acquisition, determined without reference to the agreement, or

(B) that does not exceed the fair market value of the share at the time of the acquisition, determined without reference to the agreement, or for an amount determined by reference to the assets or earnings of the corporation where that determination may reasonably be considered to be used to determine an amount that does not exceed the fair market value of the share at the time of the acquisition, determined without reference to the agreement, and

(ii) "shareholder" includes a shareholder of a shareholder, or

(b) is a share that is convertible or exchangeable at any time within 5 years from the date of its issue, unless

(i) it is convertible into or exchangeable for

(A) another share of the corporation or a corporation related to the corporation that, if issued, would not be a short-term preferred share,

(B) a right or warrant that, if exercised, would allow the person exercising it to acquire only a share of the corporation or a corporation related to the corporation that, if issued, would not be a short-term preferred share, or

(C) both a share described in clause (A) and a right or warrant described in clause (B), and

(ii) all the consideration receivable for the share on the conversion or exchange is the share described in clause (i)(A) or the right or warrant described in clause (i)(B) or both, as the case may be, and for the purposes of this subparagraph, where a taxpayer may become entitled on the conversion or exchange of a share to receive any particular consideration (other than consideration described in any of clauses (i)(A) to (C)) in lieu of a fraction of a share, the particular consideration shall be deemed not to be consideration unless it may reasonably be considered that the particular consideration was receivable as part of a series of transactions or events one of the main purposes of which was to avoid or limit the application of Part IV.1 or VI.1,

and, for the purposes of this definition,

(c) where at any particular time after December 15, 1987, otherwise than pursuant to a written arrangement to do so entered into before December 16, 1987, the terms or conditions of a share of the capital stock of a corporation that are relevant to any matter referred to in any of paragraphs (a), (b), (f) and (h) are established or modified, or any agreement in respect of any such matter to which the corporation or a specified person in relation to the corporation is a party, is changed or entered into, the share shall be deemed after that particular time to have been issued at that particular time,

(d) where at any particular time after December 15, 1987 a particular share of the capital stock of a corporation has been issued or its terms or conditions have been modified or an agreement in respect of the share is modified or entered into, and it may reasonably be considered, having regard to all the circumstances, including the rate of interest on any debt obligation or the dividend provided on any short-term preferred share, that

(i) but for the existence at any time of such a debt obligation or such a short-term preferred share, the particular share would not have been issued or its terms or conditions modified or the agreement in respect of the share would not have been modified or entered into, and

(ii) one of the main purposes for the issue of the particular share or the modification of its terms or conditions or the modification or entering into the agreement in respect of the share was to avoid or limit the tax payable under subsection 191.1(1), the particular share shall be deemed after that particular time to have been issued at that particular time and to be a short-term preferred share of the corporation,

(e) where at any particular time after December 15, 1987, otherwise than pursuant to a written arrangement to do so entered into before December 16, 1987, the terms or conditions of a share of the capital stock of a corporation are modified or established or any agreement in respect of the share has been changed or entered into, and as a consequence thereof the corporation or a specified person in relation to the corporation may reasonably be expected to redeem, acquire or cancel (otherwise than by reason of the death of the shareholder or by reason only of a right to convert or exchange the share that would not cause the share to be a short-term preferred share by reason of paragraph (b)), in whole or in part, the share, or to reduce its paid-up capital, within 5 years from the particular time, the share shall be deemed to have been issued at that particular time and to be a short-term preferred share of the corporation after the particular time until the time that such reasonable expectation ceases to exist and, for the purposes of this paragraph,

(i) an agreement in respect of a share of the capital stock of a corporation shall be read without reference to that part of the agreement under which a person agrees to acquire the share for an amount

(A) in the case of a share (other than a share that would, but for that part of the agreement, be a taxable preferred share) the agreement in respect of which provides that the share is to be acquired within 60 days after the day on which the agreement was entered into, that does not exceed the greater of the fair market value of the share at the time the agreement was entered into, determined without reference to the agreement, and the fair market value of the share at the time of the acquisition, determined without reference to the agreement, or

(B) that does not exceed the fair market value of the share at the time of the acquisition, determined without reference to the agreement, or for an amount determined by reference to the assets or earnings of the corporation where that determination may reasonably be considered to be used to determine an amount that does not exceed the fair market value of the share at the time of the acquisition, determined without reference to the agreement, and

(ii) "shareholder" includes a shareholder of a shareholder,

(f) where a share of the capital stock of a corporation was issued after December 15, 1987 and at the time the share was issued the existence of the corporation was, or there was an arrangement under which it could be, limited to a period that was within 5 years from the date of its issue, the share shall be deemed to be a short-term preferred share of the corporation unless the share is a grandfathered share and the arrangement is a written arrangement entered into before December 16, 1987,

(g) where a share of the capital stock of a corporation is acquired at any time after December 15, 1987 by the corporation or a specified person in relation to the corporation and the share is at any particular time after that time acquired by a person with whom the corporation or a specified person in relation to the corporation was dealing at arm's length if this Act were read without reference to paragraph 251(5)(b), from the corporation or a specified person in relation to the corporation, the share shall be deemed after that particular time to have been issued at that particular time,

(h) where at any particular time after December 15, 1987, otherwise than pursuant to a written arrangement to do so entered into before December 16, 1987, as a result of the terms or conditions of a share of the capital stock of a corporation or any agreement entered into by the corporation or a specified person in relation to the corporation, any person (other than the corporation or an individual other than a trust) was obligated, either absolutely or contingently and either immediately or in the future, to effect any undertaking within 5 years after the day on which the share was issued (in this paragraph referred to as a "guarantee agreement") including any guarantee, covenant or agreement to purchase or repurchase the share, and including the lending of funds or the placing of amounts on deposit with, or on behalf of the shareholder or a specified person in relation to the shareholder given

(i) to ensure that any loss that the shareholder or a specified person in relation to the shareholder may sustain, by reason of the ownership, holding or disposition of the share or any other property is limited in any respect, and

(ii) as part of a transaction or event or series of transactions or events that included the issuance of the share, the share shall be deemed after that particular time to have been issued at the particular time and to be at and immediately after the particular time a short-term preferred share, and for the purposes of this paragraph, where a guarantee agreement in respect of a share is given at any particular time after December 15, 1987, otherwise than pursuant to a written arrangement to do so entered into before December 16, 1987, the share shall be deemed to have been issued at the particular time and the guarantee agreement shall be deemed to have been given as part of a series of transactions that included the issuance of the share,

(i) a share that is, at the time a dividend is paid thereon, a share described in paragraph (e) of the definition "term preferred share" in this subsection during the applicable time period referred to in that paragraph or a prescribed share shall, notwithstanding any other provision of this definition, be deemed not to be a short-term preferred share at that time, and

(j) "specified person" has the meaning assigned by paragraph (h) of the definition "taxable preferred share" in this subsection;

Proposed Amendment — 248(1)"short-term preferred share"

Letter from Dept. of Finance, May 11, 2005:

Dear [xxx]

Thank you for your letter of April 14, 2005 regarding paragraph (f) of the definition of "short-term preferred share" in subsection 248(1) of the Income Tax Act. That provision specifies that a share of the capital stock of a corporation that is issued in circumstances where the existence of the corporation was, or there was an agreement under which it could be, limited to a period within 5 years from the date of its issue is deemed to be a short-term preferred share of the corporation.

In your letter you have described a situation where employees of a company were granted stock options under an employee stock option plan at a time when the existence of the company was not limited. Although the options remain unvested, they will automatically vest following the decision of the company to sell all or substantially all of its assets and then liquidate, which it intends to do in the near future. Since the employees will be able to exercise their options only following the decision to liquidate the corporation, any share issued in those circumstances would be deemed to be a short-term preferred share.

The rules applicable to taxable preferred shares, of which short-term preferred shares are a subset, are intended to apply to situations where corporations that are not in need of an interest deduction, instead of issuing debt, issue equity having debt-like characteristics. One such debt-like characteristic is repayment within a fixed time period, which can be achieved indirectly with a limitation on the existence of the corporation, effectively guaranteeing that the "equity" investment will be returned within a certain period of time.

You have asked that shares issued pursuant to a grant of options occurring under an employee stock option plan or other employee arrangement, where such grant occurs at a time when the existence of the corporation was not limited to a period within 5 years from the date of grant, be excluded from the definition of short-term preferred share.

It does not seem appropriate that shares issued in the circumstances you describe should be brought into the ambit of the taxable preferred share rules. Consequently, we are prepared to recommend to the Minister of Finance that such an amendment be made to the definition. Of course, we cannot offer any assurance that either the Minister of Finance or Parliament will agree with the recommendation that we intend to make in this regard. Nonetheless, we trust that this statement of our position is helpful.

Thank you for bringing this matter to our attention.

Yours sincerely,

Len Farber

Proposed Addition — 248(1)"specified participating interest"

"specified participating interest" means a property of a taxpayer that is

(a) a participating interest of the taxpayer, other than an exempt interest (as defined by subsection 94.1(1)) of the taxpayer, in a foreign investment entity, or

(b) a participating interest of the taxpayer in a tracking entity (in this paragraph, as defined by subsection 94.2(1)), other than

(i) an exempt interest (as would be defined by subsection 94.1(1) if the definition "exempt interest" in that subsection were read without reference to subparagraphs (a)(i) and (ii) of that definition) of the taxpayer, in a tracking entity, or

(ii) a participating interest in respect of which subsection 94.2(9) does not apply to the taxpayer solely because of paragraph 94.2(9)(e);

Application: Bill C-10 (Second Senate Reading Dec. 4, 2007; requires re-introduction) (2007, Part 1 — NRTs and FIEs), subsec. 44(7), will add the definition "specified participating interest" to subsec. 248(1), applicable to taxation years that begin after 2006, except that it also applies to a taxation year of a taxpayer that begins before 2007 if ss. 94.1 to 94.4 apply to that taxation year of the taxpayer.

Technical Notes: This definition is used throughout the Act, particularly in provisions relating to the transfer of properties to and from corporations, trusts, partnerships, spouses or common-law partners. In general, a transfer of property that is a specified participating interest will not qualify for special rules in the Act that would otherwise allow the transferor of the property to defer recognition, for income tax purposes, of any accrued gains or losses in respect of the property.

A specified participating interest at any time means a property of a taxpayer that at that time is a "participating interest" (e.g., a share of a non-resident corporation, or a beneficial interest in a non-resident trust) of the taxpayer in a "foreign investment entity" (as those expressions are defined in subsection 94.1(1)). However, if the interest is at that time an "exempt interest" (as defined in subsection 94.1(1)) of the taxpayer in the foreign investment entity, it will not be at that time a specified participating interest.

A specified participating interest at any time also means a property of a taxpayer that at that time is a participating interest of the taxpayer in a "tracking entity" (as defined in subsection 94.2(1)). However, if the interest is at that time an exempt interest of the taxpayer in the tracking entity, it will not be at that time a specified participating interest, unless the tracking entity is a controlled foreign affiliate of the taxpayer or is a qualifying entity that is a foreign affiliate of the taxpayer in respect of which the taxpayer has a qualifying interest (within the meaning assigned by paragraph 95(2)(m)). In addition, if the interest is at that time an interest, of the taxpayer in the tracking entity, that is a participating interest in respect of which subsection 94.2(9) does not apply to the taxpayer solely because of paragraph 94.2(9)(e), it will not be at that time a specified participating interest.

For more detail on the definitions "participating interest", "tracking entity", "exempt interest", and "foreign investment entity", see the commentary on those definitions.

Proposed Addition — 248(1)"specified proportion"

"specified proportion", of a member of a partnership for a fiscal period of the partnership, means the proportion that the member's share of the total income or loss of the partnership for the partnership's fiscal period is of the partnership's total income or loss for that period and, for the purpose of this definition, where that income or loss for a period is nil, that proportion shall be computed as if the partnership had income for that period in the amount of $1,000,000;

Application: Bill C-10 (Second Senate Reading Dec. 4, 2007; requires re-introduction) (2007, Part 2 — technical), subsec. 187(11), will add the definition "specified proportion" to subsec. 248(1), applicable after December 20, 2002.

Technical Notes: The definition "specified proportion" of a member of a partnership for a fiscal period of the partnership is currently found in subsection 206(1). The apportionment that results from the definition is, however, useful for many purposes of the Act, and a number of other provisions apply the same concept. For simplicity, the definition is moved to subsection 248(1). As a result, for all purposes of the Act a partner's specified proportion for the period is that proportion of the partnership's total income or loss for that period that is the member's share. If the partnership's income or loss for the period is nil, the proportion is computed as if the partnership had $1 million of income for the period.

"specified shareholder" of a corporation in a taxation year means a taxpayer who owns, directly or indirectly, at any time in the year, not less than 10% of the issued shares of any class of the capital stock of the corporation or of any other corporation that is related to the corporation and, for the purposes of this definition,

(a) a taxpayer shall be deemed to own each share of the capital stock of a corporation owned at that time by a person with whom the taxpayer does not deal at arm's length,

(b) each beneficiary of a trust shall be deemed to own that proportion of all such shares owned by the trust at that time that the fair market value at that time of the beneficial interest of the beneficiary in the trust is of the fair market value at that time of all beneficial interests in the trust,

(c) each member of a partnership shall be deemed to own that proportion of all the shares of any class of the capital stock of a corporation that are property of the partnership at that time that the fair market value at that time of the member's interest in the partnership is of the fair market value at that time of the interests of all members in the partnership,

(d) an individual who performs services on behalf of a corporation that would be carrying on a personal services business if the individual or any person related to the individual were at that time a specified shareholder of the corporation shall be deemed to be a specified shareholder of the corporation at that time if the individual, or any person or partnership with whom the individual does not deal at arm's length, is, or by virtue of any arrangement, may become, entitled, directly or indirectly, to not less than 10% of the assets or the shares of any class of the capital stock of the corporation or any corporation related thereto, and

(e) notwithstanding paragraph (b), where a beneficiary's share of the income or capital of the trust depends on the exercise by any person of, or the failure by any person to exercise, any discretionary power, the beneficiary shall be deemed to own each share of the capital stock of a corporation owned at that time by the trust;

Proposed Amendment — 248(1)"subsidiary wholly-owned corporation"

Letter from Dept. of Finance, Nov. 5, 2004:

Dear [xxx]

Thank you for your letter of September 16, 2004 regarding the definition of "subsidiary wholly-owned corporation" in subsection 248(1) of the Income Tax Act (the "Act") as it relates to subsection 138(11.94) of the Act. Subsection 138(11.94) of the Act provides for the transfer on a rollover basis of an insurance business carried on in Canada by an insurer resident in Canada to a corporation resident in Canada that is a "subsidiary wholly-owned corporation" of that insurer.

In your letter and in your conversations with officials of the department, you requested that, for the purposes of subsection 138(11.94), the definition "subsidiary wholly-owned corporation" be modified in anticipation of a proposed transfer of an insurance business as part of a reorganization of a corporate group. At present, the definition "subsidiary wholly-owned corporation" means a corporation all of the issued shares of which (other than directors' qualifying shares) belong to the particular corporation of which it is a subsidiary. You have asked that, for the purposes of subsection 138(11.94), the definition "subsidiary wholly-owned corporation" be defined in respect of a particular corporation in such a manner that the holding of issued shares of the capital stock of the subsidiary by other corporations that are subsidiary wholly-owned corporations of the particular corporation are permitted.

We are of the view that, for the purposes of subsection 138(11.94), it would be appropriate to modify the definition "subsidiary wholly-owned corporation" in the manner requested. We are prepared to recommend that, for the purposes of subsection 138(11.94), the definition "subsidiary wholly-owned corporation" be defined in respect of a particular corporation resident in Canada, in effect, to have the same meaning as "qualified related corporation" in subsection 219(8) of the Act.

In the absence of any information suggesting that this issue has arisen in the past, we would recommend that the modified definition "subsidiary wholly-owned corporation" apply to transfers, after October 2004, of insurance businesses to which subsection 138(11.94) applies. If this recommendation is acted upon, the amendment will be included in a future technical bill.

Thank you for bringing this matter to our attention.

Yours sincerely,

Brian Ernewein
Director, Tax Legislation Division, Tax Policy Branch

"tax-paid undistributed surplus on hand" — [Repealed under former Act]

"taxpayer" includes any person whether or not liable to pay tax;

Related Provisions: 143.2(1) — "Taxpayer" includes partnership for tax shelter investment cost rules.

Interpretation Bulletins: IT-291R3: Transfer of property to a corporation under subsection 85(1).

"term preferred share" of a corporation (in this definition referred to as the "issuing corporation") means a share of a class of the capital stock of the issuing corporation if the share was issued or acquired after June 28, 1982 and, at the time the share was issued or acquired, the existence of the issuing corporation was, or there was an arrangement under which it could be, limited or, in the case of a share issued after November 16, 1978 if

(a) under the terms or conditions of the share, any agreement relating to the share or any modification of those terms or conditions or that agreement,

(i) the owner thereof may cause the share to be redeemed, acquired or cancelled (unless the owner of the share may cause the share to be redeemed, acquired or cancelled by reason only of a right to convert or exchange the share) or cause its paid-up capital to be reduced,

(ii) the issuing corporation or any other person or partnership is or may be required to redeem, acquire or cancel, in whole or in part, the share (unless the requirement to redeem, acquire or cancel the share arises by reason only of a right to convert or exchange the share) or to reduce its paid-up capital,

(iii) the issuing corporation or any other person or partnership provides or may be required to provide any form of guarantee, security or similar indemnity or covenant (including the lending of funds to or the placing of amounts on deposit with, or on behalf of, the holder thereof or any person related thereto) with respect to the share, or

(iv) the share is convertible or exchangeable unless

(A) it is convertible into or exchangeable for

(I) another share of the issuing corporation or a corporation related to the issuing corporation that, if issued, would not be a term preferred share,

(II) a right or warrant that, if exercised, would allow the person exercising it to acquire only a share of the issuing corporation or a corporation related to the issuing corporation that, if issued, would not be a term preferred share, or

(III) both a share described in subclause (I) and a right or warrant described in subclause (II), and

(B) all the consideration receivable for the share on the conversion or exchange is the share described in subclause (A)(I) or the right or warrant described in subclause (A)(II) or both, as the case may be, and, for the purposes of this clause, where a taxpayer may become entitled on the conversion or exchange of a share to receive any particular consideration (other than consideration described in any of subclauses (A)(I) to (III)) in lieu of a fraction of a share, the particular consideration shall be deemed not to be consideration unless it may reasonably be considered that the particular consideration was receivable as part of a series of transactions or events one of the main purposes of which was to avoid or limit the application of subsection 112(2.1) or 258(3), or

(b) the owner thereof acquired the share after October 23, 1979 and is

(i) a corporation described in any of paragraphs (a) to (e.1) of the definition "specified financial institution",

(ii) a corporation that is controlled by one or more corporations described in subparagraph (i),

(iii) a corporation that acquired the share after December 11, 1979 and is related to a corporation referred to in subparagraph (i) or (ii), or

(iv) a partnership or trust of which a corporation referred to in subparagraph (i) or (ii) or a person related thereto is a member or a beneficiary, that (either alone or together with any of such corporations, partnerships or trusts) controls or has an absolute or contingent right to control or to acquire control of the issuing corporation, but does not include a share of the capital stock of a corporation

(c) that was issued after November 16, 1978 and before 1980 pursuant to an agreement in writing to do so made before November 17, 1978 (in this definition referred to as an "established agreement"),

(d) that was issued as a stock dividend

(i) before April 22, 1980 on a share of the capital stock of a public corporation that was not a term preferred share, or

(ii) after April 21, 1980 on a share that was, at the time the stock dividend was paid, a share prescribed for the purposes of paragraph (f),

(d.1) that is listed on a designated stock exchange in Canada and was issued before April 22, 1980 by

(i) a corporation referred to in any of paragraphs (a) to (d) of the definition "specified financial institution" in this subsection,

(ii) a corporation whose principal business is the lending of money or the purchasing of debt obligations or a combination thereof, or

(iii) an issuing corporation associated with a corporation described in subparagraph (i) or (ii),

(e) for a period not exceeding ten years and, in the case of a share issued after November 12, 1981, for a period not exceeding five years, from the date of its issuance, which share was issued by a corporation resident in Canada,

(i) as part of a proposal to, or an arrangement with, its creditors that had been approved by a court under the Bankruptcy and Insolvency Act,

(ii) at a time when all or substantially all of its assets were under the control of a receiver, receiver-manager, sequestrator or trustee in bankruptcy, or

(iii) at a time when, by reason of financial difficulty, the issuing corporation or another corporation resident in Canada with which it does not deal at arm's length was in default, or could reasonably be expected to default, on a debt obligation held by a person with whom the issuing corporation or the other corporation was dealing at arm's length and the share was issued either wholly or in substantial part and either directly or indirectly in exchange or substitution for that obligation or a part thereof, and, in the case of a share issued after November 12, 1981, the proceeds from the issue may reasonably be regarded as having been used by the issuing corporation or a corporation with which it was not dealing at arm's length in the financing of its business carried on in Canada immediately before the share was issued,

(f) that is a prescribed share, or

(f.1) that is a taxable preferred share held by a specified financial institution that acquired the share

(i) before December 16, 1987, or

(ii) before 1989 pursuant to an agreement in writing entered into before December 16, 1987, other than a share deemed by paragraph (c) of the definition "short-term preferred share" in this subsection or by paragraph (i.2) to have been issued after December 15, 1987 or a share that would be deemed by paragraph (e) of the definition "taxable preferred share" in this subsection to have been issued after December 15, 1987 if the references therein to "8:00 p.m. Eastern Daylight Saving Time, June 18, 1987" were read as references to "December 15, 1987", and, for the purposes of this definition,

(g) where the terms or conditions of an established agreement were amended after November 16, 1978, the agreement shall be deemed to have been made after that date,

(h) where

(i) at any particular time the terms or conditions of a share issued pursuant to an established agreement or of any agreement relating to such a share have been changed,

(ii) under the terms or conditions of

(A) a share of a class of the capital stock of the issuing corporation issued before November 17, 1978 (other than a share that was listed on November 16, 1978 on a prescribed stock exchange in Canada),

(B) a share issued pursuant to an established agreement,

(C) any agreement between the issuing corporation and the owner of a share described in clause (A) or (B), or

(D) any agreement relating to a share described in clause (A) or (B) made after October 23, 1979, the owner thereof could at any particular time after November 16, 1978 require, either alone or together with one or more taxpayers, the redemption, acquisition, cancellation, conversion or reduction of the paid-up capital of the share otherwise than by reason of a failure or default under the terms or conditions of the share or any agreement that related to, and was entered into at the time of, the issuance of the share,

(iii) in respect of a share issued before November 17, 1978, at any particular time after November 16, 1978 the redemption date was extended or the terms or conditions relating to its redemption, acquisition, cancellation, conversion or reduction of its paid-up capital were changed,

(iv) at a particular time after October 23, 1979 and before November 13, 1981, a specified financial institution (or a partnership or trust of which a specified financial institution or a person related to the institution is a member or beneficiary) acquired a share that

(A) was issued before November 17, 1978 or under an established agreement,

(B) was issued to a person other than a corporation that was, at the time of issue,

(I) described in any of paragraphs (a) to (e) of the definition "specified financial institution", or

(II) a corporation that was controlled by one or more corporations described in subclause (I) and, for the purpose of this subclause, one corporation is controlled by another corporation if more than 50% of its issued share capital (having full voting rights under all circumstances) belongs to the other corporation, to persons with whom the other corporation does not deal at arm's length, or to the other corporation and persons with whom the other corporation does not deal at arm's length,

(C) was acquired from a person that was, at the particular time, a person other than a corporation described in subclause (B)(I) or (II), and

(D) was acquired otherwise than under an agreement in writing made before October 24, 1979,

(v) at any particular time after November 12, 1981

(A) in respect of

(I) a share (other than a share referred to in paragraph (e) or a share listed on November 13, 1981 on a prescribed stock exchange in Canada) issued after November 16, 1978 and before November 13, 1981, or

(II) a share issued after November 12, 1981 and before 1983 pursuant to an agreement in writing to do so made before November 13, 1981 (in this definition referred to as a "specified agreement") the owner thereof could require, either alone or together with one or more taxpayers, the redemption, acquisition, cancellation, conversion or reduction of the paid-up capital of the share otherwise than by reason of a failure or default under the terms or conditions of the share or any agreement that related to, and was entered into at the time of, the issuance of the share, or

(B) the redemption date of

(I) a share issued after November 16, 1978 and before November 13, 1981 or

(II) a share issued pursuant to a specified agreement was extended or the terms or conditions relating to its redemption, acquisition, cancellation, conversion or reduction of its paid-up capital were changed, or

(vi) at a particular time after November 12, 1981, a specified financial institution (or a partnership or trust of which a specified financial institution or a person related to the institution is a member or beneficiary) acquired a share (other than a share referred to in paragraph (e)) that

(A) was issued before November 13, 1981 or under a specified agreement,

(B) was acquired from a partnership or person, other than a person that was, at the particular time, a corporation described in any of paragraphs (a) to (f) of the definition "specified financial institution" in this subsection,

(C) was acquired in an acquisition that was not subject to nor conditional on a guarantee agreement, within the meaning assigned by subsection 112(2.2), entered into after November 12, 1981, and

(D) was acquired otherwise than under an agreement in writing made before October 24, 1979 or a specified agreement, the share shall, for the purposes of determining at any time after the particular time whether it is a term preferred share, be deemed to have been issued at the particular time otherwise than pursuant to an established or specified agreement,

(i) where the terms or conditions of a share of the capital stock of the issuing corporation are modified or established after June 28, 1982 and as a consequence thereof the issuing corporation, any person related thereto or any partnership or trust of which the issuing corporation or a person related thereto is a member or a beneficiary may reasonably be expected at any time to redeem, acquire or cancel, in whole or in part, the share or to reduce its paid-up capital, the share shall be deemed as from the date of the modification or as from the date of the establishment, as the case may be, to be a share described in paragraph (a),

(i.1) where

(i) it may reasonably be considered that the dividends that may be declared or paid at any time on a share (other than a prescribed share or a share described in paragraph (e) during the applicable time period referred to in that paragraph) of the capital stock of a corporation issued after December 15, 1987 or acquired after June 15, 1988 are derived primarily from dividends received on term preferred shares of the capital stock of another corporation, and

(ii) it may reasonably be considered that the share was issued or acquired as part of a transaction or event or series of transactions or events one of the main purposes of which was to avoid or limit the application of subsection 112(2.1) or 138(6), the share shall be deemed at that time to be a term preferred share acquired in the ordinary course of business,

(i.2) where at any particular time after December 15, 1987, otherwise than pursuant to a written arrangement to do so entered into before December 16, 1987, the terms or conditions of a taxable preferred share of the capital stock of a corporation relating to any matter referred to in subparagraphs (a)(i) to (iv) have been modified or established, or any agreement in respect of the share relating to any such matter has been changed or entered into by the corporation or a specified person (within the meaning assigned by paragraph (h) of the definition "taxable preferred share" in this subsection) in relation to the corporation, the share shall be deemed after that particular time to have been issued at that particular time, and,

(j) where a particular share of the capital stock of a corporation has been issued or its terms and conditions have been modified and it may reasonably be considered, having regard to all circumstances (including the rate of interest on any debt or the dividend provided on any term preferred share), that

(i) but for the existence at any time of the debt or the term preferred share, the particular share would not have been issued or its terms or conditions modified, and

(ii) one of the main purposes for the issue of the particular share or for the modification of its terms or conditions was to avoid a limitation provided by subsection 112(2.1) or 138(6) in respect of a deduction, the particular share shall be deemed after December 31, 1982 to be a term preferred share of the corporation;

Proposed Addition — 248(1.1)

(1.1) Non-disposition before December 24, 1998 — A redemption, an acquisition or a cancellation, at any particular time after 1971 and before December 24, 1998, of a share or of a right to acquire a share (which share or which right, as the case may be, is referred to in this subsection as the "security") of the capital stock of a corporation (referred to in this subsection as the "issuing corporation") held by another corporation (referred to in this subsection as the "disposing corporation") is not a disposition (within the meaning of the definition "disposition" in section 54 as that section read in its application to transactions and events that occurred at the particular time) of the security if

> (a) the redemption, acquisition or cancellation occurred as part of a merger or combination of two or more corporations (including the issuing corporation and the disposing corporation) to form one corporate entity (referred to in this subsection as the "new corporation");
> (b) the merger or combination
> > (i) is an amalgamation (within the meaning assigned by subsection 87(1) as it read at the particular time) to which subsection 87(11) if in force, and as it read, at the particular time did not apply,

(ii) is an amalgamation (within the meaning assigned by subsection 87(1) as it read at the particular time) to which subsection 87(11) if in force, and as it read, at the particular time applies, if the issuing corporation and the disposing corporation are described by subsection 87(11) (if in force, and as it read, at the particular time) as the parent and the subsidiary, respectively,

(iii) occurred before November 13, 1981 and is a merger of corporations that is described by subsection 87(8) (as it read in respect of the merger or combination), or

(iv) occurred after November 12, 1981 and

(A) is a foreign merger (within the meaning assigned by subsection 87(8.1) as it read in respect of the merger or combination), or

(B) all of the following conditions are met, namely

(I) the merger or combination is not a foreign merger (within the meaning assigned by subsection 87(8.1) as it read in respect of the merger or combination),

(II) subsection 87(8.1), as it read in respect of the merger or combination, contained a subparagraph (c)(ii), and

(III) the merger or combination would be a foreign merger (within the meaning of subsection 87(8.1), as it read in respect of the merger or combination) if that subparagraph 87(8.1)(c)(ii) were read as follows:

"(ii) if, immediately after the merger, the new foreign corporation was controlled by another foreign corporation (in this subsection referred to as the "parent corporation"), shares of the capital stock of the parent corporation,";

(c) either

(i) the disposing corporation received no consideration for the security, or

(ii) in the case where the merger or combination is described by subparagraph (b)(iv), the disposing corporation received no consideration for the security other than property that was, immediately before the merger or combination, owned by the issuing corporation and that, on the merger or combination, became property of the new corporation.

Application: Bill C-10 (Second Senate Reading Dec. 4, 2007; requires re-introduction) (2007, Part 2 — technical), subsec. 187(12), will add subsec. 248(1.1), in force on Royal Assent. In applying subsec. 248(1.1) to a particular redemption, acquisition or cancellation, any assessment of a taxpayer's tax, interest and penalties payable under the Act for a taxation year that includes the time at which the particular redemption, acquisition or cancellation occurred shall, notwithstanding subsecs. 152(4) to (5), be made that is necessary to take into account the application of the new subsection.

Technical Notes: The definition "disposition" was added to subsection 248(1) by S.C. 2001, chapter 17, subsection 188(5) [formerly Bill C-22]. In general, that definition applies to transactions and events that occur after December 23, 1998. The former definition "disposition" was contained in section 54, applicable to transactions and events that occurred before December 24, 1998.

New paragraph (n) is added to the definition "disposition" in subsection 248(1), applicable to redemptions, acquisitions and cancellations of certain securities that occur after December 23, 1998. For more detail, see the commentary to subsection 248(1).

New subsection 248(1.1) is added to deal, in a corresponding fashion, with such redemptions, acquisitions and cancellations that occurred before December 24, 1998.

New subsection 248(1.1) provides that a redemption, an acquisition or a cancellation, at any particular time after 1971 and before December 24, 1998, of a share or of a right to acquire a share (which share or which right, as the case may be, is referred to as the "security") of the capital stock of a corporation (referred to as the "issuing corporation") held by another corporation (referred to as the "disposing corporation") is not a disposition of the security within the meaning of the definition "disposition" in section 54 (as that section read in its application to transactions and events that occur at the particular time), if

- the redemption, acquisition or cancellation occurred as part of a particular merger or combination of two or more corporations (including the issuing corporation and the disposing corporation) to form one corporate entity (referred to as the "new corporation"),
- the particular merger or combination
  - is an amalgamation (within the meaning assigned by subsection 87(1) as it read at the particular time) to which subsection 87(11) if in force, and as it read, at the particular time did not apply,
  - is an amalgamation (within the meaning assigned by subsection 87(1) as it read at the particular time) to which subsection 87(11) if in force, and as it read, at the particular time applies, if the issuing corporation and the disposing corporation are described by subsection 87(11) (if in force, and as it read, at the particular time) as the parent and the subsidiary, respectively,
  - occurred before November 13, 1981 and is a merger of corporations that is described by subsection 87(8) (as it read in respect of the particular merger or combination), or
  - is a merger or combination of non-resident corporations (referred to in these Notes as a "subject merger") that occurred after November 12, 1981 and
    - s a foreign merger (within the meaning assigned by subsection 87(8.1) as it read in respect of the particular merger or combination), or
    - all of the following conditions are met, namely
      - 1. the particular merger or combination is not a foreign merger (within the meaning assigned by subsection 87(8.1) as it read in respect of the particular merger or combination),
      - 2. subsection 87(8.1), as read in respect of the particular merger or combination, contained a subparagraph (c)(ii), and
      - 3. the particular merger or combination would be a foreign merger (within the meaning of subsection 87(8.1), as it read in respect of the particular merger or combination) if that subparagraph 87(8.1)(c)(ii) were read as follows:
        - "(ii) if, immediately after the merger, the new foreign corporation was controlled by another foreign corporation (in this subsection referred to as the "parent corporation"), shares of the capital stock of the parent corporation," and
- either
  - the disposing corporation received no consideration for the security, or
  - in the case where the particular merger or combination is a subject merger, the disposing corporation received no consideration for the security other than property that was, immediately before the particular merger or combination, owned by the issuing corporation and that, on the particular merger or combination, became property of the new corporation.

(2) Tax payable — In this Act, the tax payable by a taxpayer under any Part of this Act by or under which provision is made for the assessment of tax means the tax payable by the taxpayer as fixed by assessment or reassessment subject to variation on objection or on appeal, if any, in accordance with the provisions of that Part.

Related Provisions: 117(1) — Meaning of "tax payable" for purposes of 117–127.4.

(3) Rules applicable in relation to the Province of Quebec [deemed trusts] — For the purposes of the application of this Act in relation to the Province of Quebec,

(a) a usufruct shall be deemed to be a trust, created by will where the usufruct was so established, and property subject to a usufruct shall be deemed to have been transferred to the trust, on the death of the testator and as a consequence thereof where the usufruct arises on death, and to be held in trust and not otherwise;

(b) a right of use or habitation shall be deemed to be a trust, created by will where the right was so established, and property subject to such a right shall be deemed to have been transferred to the trust, on the death of the testator and as a consequence thereof where the right arises on death, and to be held in trust and not otherwise;

(c) a substitution shall be deemed to be a trust, created by will where the substitution was so established, and property subject to a substitution shall be deemed to have been transferred to the trust, on the death of the testator and as a consequence thereof where the substitution arises on death, and to be held in trust and not otherwise;

(d) property subject to rights and obligations under an arrangement (other than a trust) that

(i) is established by or under a written contract that

(A) is governed by the laws of the Province of Quebec, and

(B) provides that, for the purposes of this Act, the arrangement shall be considered to be a trust, and

(ii) creates rights and obligations that are substantially similar to the rights and obligations under a trust (determined without reference to this subsection), shall be deemed to be held in trust and not otherwise, and such an arrangement shall be deemed to be a trust;

(e) a person who has a right (whether immediate or future and whether absolute or contingent) to receive all or any part of the income or capital in respect of property referred to in paragraph (a), (b), (c) or (d) shall be deemed to be beneficially interested in the trust referred to in that paragraph; and

(f) property in relation to which any person has, at any time,

(i) the right of ownership,

(ii) a right as a lessee in an emphyteutic lease, or

(iii) a right as a beneficiary in a trust

shall, notwithstanding that such property is subject to a servitude, be deemed to be beneficially owned by the person at that time.

Proposed Amendment — 248(3) [superseded below]

(3) Certain arrangements under civil law — For the purposes of this Act,

(a) if at any time property is subject to a usufruct, right of use or habitation, or substitution,

(i) the usufruct, right of use or habitation, or substitution, as the case may be, is deemed to be at that time

(A) a trust, and

(B) where the usufruct, right of use or habitation, or substitution, as the case may be, is created by will, a trust created by will,

(ii) the property is deemed

(A) where the usufruct, right of use or habitation, or substitution, as the case may be, arises on the death of a testator, to have been transferred to the trust on and as a consequence of the death of the testator, and not otherwise, and

(B) where the usufruct, right of use or habitation, or substitution, as the case may be, arises otherwise, to have been transferred (at the time it first became subject to the usufruct, right of use or habitation, or substitution, as the case may be) to the trust by the person that granted the usufruct, right of use or habitation, or substitution, and

(iii) the property is deemed to be, throughout the period in which it is subject to the usufruct, right of use or habitation, or substitution, as the case may be, held by the trust, and not otherwise;

(b) an arrangement (other than a partnership, an arrangement described in paragraph (c) or an arrangement that is a trust determined without reference to this paragraph) is deemed to be a trust and property subject to rights and obligations under the arrangement is, if the arrangement is deemed by this paragraph to be a trust, deemed to be held in trust and not otherwise, where the arrangement

(i) is established before October 31, 2003 by or under a written contract that

(A) is governed by the laws of the Province of Quebec, and

(B) provides that, for the purposes of this Act, the arrangement shall be considered to be a trust, and

(ii) creates rights and obligations that are substantially similar to the rights and obligations under a trust (determined without reference to this subsection);

(c) [to be amended as per Proposed Amendment below — ed.] an arrangement (other than an arrangement that is a trust determined without reference to this paragraph) is deemed to be a trust and property subject to rights and obligations under the arrangement is, if the arrangement is deemed by this paragraph to be a trust, deemed to be held in trust and not otherwise, where the arrangement is

(i) established before 2010,

(ii) established by or under a written contract that is governed by the laws of the Province of Quebec,

(iii) entered into between an individual and a corporation licensed or otherwise authorized under the laws of Canada or a province to carry on in Canada the business of offering to the public its services as trustee, and

(iv) established under or pursuant to a specimen plan or fund that

(A) is presented as a declaration of trust or provides that, for the purposes of this Act, the arrangement shall be considered to be a trust, and

(B) is approved by the Minister for the purpose of section 146 or 146.3 of the Act;

(d) a person who has a right (whether immediate or future and whether absolute or contingent) to receive all or part of the income or capital in respect of property that is referred to in paragraph (a) or (b) is deemed to be beneficially interested in the trust; and

(e) notwithstanding that a property is at any time subject to a servitude, the property is deemed to be beneficially owned by a person at that time if, at that time, the person has in relation to the property

(i) the right of ownership,

(ii) a right as a lessee under an emphyteusis, or

(iii) a right as a beneficiary in a trust.

Application: Bill C-10 (Second Senate Reading Dec. 4, 2007; requires re-introduction) (2007, Part 1 — NRTs and FIEs), subsec. 44(8), will amend subsec. 248(3) to read as above, applicable to taxation years that begin after October 30, 2003. For taxation years that begin after 1988 and before October 31, 2003, para. 248(3)(d) shall, in its application to arrangements established under or pursuant to a specimen plan or fund approved by the Canada Revenue Agency for the purpose of s. 146 or 146.3 and entered into between an individual and a corporation licensed or otherwise authorized under the laws of Canada or a province to carry on in Canada the business of offering to the public its services as trustee, be read without reference to

(a) cl. (3)(d)(i)(B), if the specimen plan or fund is presented as a declaration of trust but does not provide that, for the purposes of the Act, the arrangement shall be considered to be a trust; and

(b) subpara. (3)(d)(ii).

Technical Notes: Subsection 248(3) provides a number of rules that apply for the purposes of applying the Act in relation to the Province of Quebec. Paragraphs 248(3)(a) to (d) deem certain institutions or arrangements created under the laws of the Province of Quebec to be trusts for those purposes. Paragraph 248(3)(e) clarifies that a person is deemed to be beneficially interested in a trust if the person has any right to receive the income or the capital in respect of property that is deemed, under any of paragraphs 248(3)(a) to (d), to be held in trust. Paragraph 248(3)(f) provides that a person beneficially owns property, even if there is a servitude in respect of the property, in relation to which the person has rights described in any of subparagraphs 248(3)(f)(i) to (iii).

A number of changes are being made to subsection 248(3), effective for taxation years beginning after October 30, 2003. These changes are as follows.

The preamble to subsection 248(3) is amended to indicate that the provisions of the subsection apply generally for the purposes of the Act.

New paragraph 248(3)(a)

The rules found in existing paragraphs 248(3)(a) to (c) are now found in new paragraph 248(3)(a), which sets out the treatment as a trust of certain civil law institutions.

New paragraphs 248(3)(b) and (c)

New paragraphs 248(3)(b) and (c) are a continuation of existing paragraph 248(3)(d), with some modifications.

Existing paragraph 248(3)(d) provides that an arrangement established by or under a written contract governed by the laws of Quebec (and that is not otherwise a trust) is deemed to be a trust, and its property is deemed to be held in trust, if: (i) the rights and obligations created under that arrangement are similar to those under a trust; and (ii) the contract specifically provides that, for the purposes of the Income Tax Act, the arrangement shall be considered to be a trust. The purpose of this provision was to allow certain commercial arrangements that were created for investment purposes — but which could not be considered to be trusts under the Civil Code of Lower Canada (CCLC), since they were not constituted by gift or bequest — to be characterized as trusts for the purposes of applying the Income Tax Act in the Province of Quebec.

With the replacement of the CCLC by the Civil Code of Quebec (CCQ) in 1994, it became possible for arrangements that were intended to be accommodated by existing paragraph 248(3)(d) to be established as valid trusts in Quebec. As a result, arrangements established after the introduction of the CCQ did not have to rely on the deeming rules in existing paragraph 248(3)(d) to be characterized as trusts for purposes of the Income Tax Act.

Since the status of arrangements established before the introduction of the CCQ were not altered with the introduction of the CCQ, they continued to rely on the deeming provisions in existing paragraph 248(3)(d) for their trust status under the Income Tax Act. These arrangements continue to be accommodated under new paragraphs 248(3)(b) and (c), with paragraph (c) applying specifically in the context of registered retirement savings plans (RRSPs) and registered retirement income funds (RRIFs).

New paragraph 248(3)(b) also accommodates non-trust arrangements that, although not specifically intended to be accommodated under existing paragraph 248(3)(d), nevertheless fall within the ambit of that paragraph. This is the case, however, only for arrangements established before October 31, 2003. Finally, new paragraph 248(3)(b) clarifies that it does not apply to partnerships or to arrangements that are otherwise trusts.

New paragraph 248(3)(c) applies to arrangements marketed as trusteed RRSPs or RRIFs, but that do not qualify as valid trusts under Quebec law. This would include, for example, arrangements established before the introduction of the CCQ (as noted above) and any arrangements whose status under the Income Tax Act may be affected by the judgment of the Supreme Court of Canada in the Bank of Nova Scotia v. Thibault, [2004] 1 S.C.R. 785. In that judgment, which involved the seizability of an arrangement that had been marketed as a self-directed trusteed RRSP, the Court concluded that a trust had not been created under the CCQ.

The conditions for new paragraph 248(3)(c) to apply are modified from those set out in existing paragraph 248(3)(d). This is in recognition of the fact that there are elements of the Thibault decision that give rise to concerns that the particular arrangement considered by the Court (and other similar arrangements seeking RRSP or RRIF status) might not be able to satisfy the conditions for existing paragraph 248(3)(d) to apply. (These modified conditions are also incorporated, as required, into existing paragraph 248(3)(d).)

Specifically, under new paragraph 248(3)(c), there is no requirement that the arrangement create rights and obligations similar to those under a trust. Instead, the following conditions must be satisfied:

- The arrangement must be entered into between an individual and a corporation authorized to offer to the public its services as trustee.
- The arrangement must be established under or pursuant to a specimen plan or fund that is approved by the Canada Revenue Agency (CRA) for the application of the rules governing RRSPs or RRIFs. (Such specimens are used by the CRA to streamline the registration process. For more information, see Information Circular 72-22R9 "Registered Retirement Savings Plans" and Information Circular 78-18R6 "Registered Retirement Income Funds".)

Also, new paragraph 248(3)(c) provides that, where the specimen does not specify that the arrangement shall be considered to be a trust for purposes of the Income Tax Act, it will suffice for the specimen to be presented as a declaration of trust.

The provisions of new paragraph 248(3)(c) apply only to arrangements established before 2010. This means that any arrangements sold in Quebec after 2009, and seeking to qualify as trusteed RRSPs or RRIF under the Income Tax Act, will have to meet the civil law requirements for trusts. This deadline gives trust companies that market individual retirement products in the province of Quebec time to assess whether the status of those products under the Income Tax Act may be affected by the Thibault decision and, if so, to adjust accordingly.

New paragraphs 248(3)(d) and (e)

The provisions of existing paragraphs 248(3)(e) and (f) are found in new paragraphs 248(3)(d) and (e), respectively. In the latter, the obsolete terms "lessee under an emphyteutic lease" / droit de preneur dans un bail emphytéotique are replaced with "lessee under an emphyteusis" / droit d'emphytéote, the new terminology used in the Civil Code of Québec.

Proposed Amendment — 248(3)

(3) Property subject to certain Quebec institutions and arrangements — For the purposes of this Act, if property is subject to an institution or arrangement that is described by this subsection and that is governed by the laws of the Province of Quebec, the following rules apply in respect of the property:

(a) if at any time property is subject to a usufruct, right of use or habitation, or substitution,

(i) the usufruct, right of use or habitation, or substitution, as the case may be, is deemed to be at that time

(A) a trust, and

(B) where the usufruct, right of use or habitation, or substitution, as the case may be, is created by will, a trust created by will,

(ii) the property is deemed

(A) where the usufruct, right of use or habitation, or substitution, as the case may be, arises on the death of a testator, to have been transferred to the trust on and as a consequence of the death of the testator, and not otherwise, and

(B) where the usufruct, right of use or habitation, or substitution, as the case may be, arises otherwise, to have been transferred (at the time it first became subject to the usufruct, right of use or habitation, or substitution, as the case may be) to the trust by the person that granted the usufruct, right of use or habitation, or substitution, and

(iii) the property is deemed to be, throughout the period in which it is subject to the usufruct, right of use or habitation, or substitution, as the case may be, held by the trust, and not otherwise;

(b) an arrangement (other than a partnership, a qualifying arrangement or an arrangement that is a trust determined without reference to this paragraph) is deemed to be a trust and property subject to rights and obligations under the arrangement is, if the arrangement is deemed by this paragraph to be a trust, deemed to be held in trust and not otherwise, where the arrangement

(i) is established before October 31, 2003 by or under a written contract that

(A) is governed by the laws of the Province of Quebec, and

(B) provides that, for the purposes of this Act, the arrangement shall be considered to be a trust, and

(ii) creates rights and obligations that are substantially similar to the rights and obligations under a trust (determined without reference to this subsection);

(c) if the arrangement is a qualifying arrangement,

(i) the arrangement is deemed to be a trust,

(ii) any property contributed at any time to the arrangement by an annuitant, a holder or a subscriber of the arrangement, as the case may be, is deemed to have been transferred, at that time, to the trust by the contributor, and

(iii) property subject to rights and obligations under the arrangement is deemed to be held in trust and not otherwise;

(d) a person who has a right (whether immediate or future and whether absolute or contingent) to receive all or part of the income or capital in respect of property that is referred to in paragraph (a) or (b) is deemed to be beneficially interested in the trust; and

(e) notwithstanding that a property is at any time subject to a servitude, the property is deemed to be beneficially owned by a person at that time if, at that time, the person has in relation to the property

(i) the right of ownership,

(ii) a right as a lessee under an emphyteusis, or

(iii) a right as a beneficiary in a trust.

Application: Bill C-10 (First Reading Feb. 6, 2009), subsec. 76(5), will amend subsec. 248(3) to read as above, applicable to taxation years that begin after October 30, 2003 except that for taxation years that end before 2008, subpara. 248(3)(e)(ii) shall be read without reference to the expression "a holder".

For taxation years that begin after 1988 and before October 31, 2003, para. 248(3)(d) shall, in its application to each arrangement that is entered into between an individual and a corporation licensed or otherwise authorized under the laws of Canada or a province to carry on in Canada the business of offering to the public its services as trustee and that is accepted by the Minister for registration under s. 146 or 146.3, be read without reference to

(a) cl. (i)(B) of that para., if the arrangement is presented as a declaration of trust but does not provide that, for the purposes of the Act, the arrangement shall be considered to be a trust; and

(b) subpara. (ii) of that para..

Technical Notes (Dec. 2008): Subsection 248(3) contains a number of rules that apply to property subject to an institution or arrangement governed by the laws of the Province of Quebec for the purposes of applying the Act. Existing paragraphs 248(3)(a) to (d) deem certain institutions or arrangements created under the laws of the Province of Quebec to be trusts for those purposes. Existing paragraph 248(3)(e) clarifies that a person is deemed to be beneficially interested in a trust if the person has any right to receive the income or the capital in respect of property that is deemed, under any of paragraphs 248(3)(a) to (d), to be held in trust. Existing paragraph 248(3)(f) provides that a person beneficially owns property, even if there is a servitude in respect of the property, in relation to which the person has rights described in any of subparagraphs 248(3)(f)(i) to (iii).

A number of changes are being made to subsection 248(3), generally effective for taxation years beginning after October 30, 2003. These changes are as follows.

Preamble

The opening words of subsection 248(3) are amended to clarify that the application of the provision is limited to institutions or arrangements governed by the laws of the Province of Quebec.

New paragraph 248(3)(a)

The rules found in existing paragraphs 248(3)(a) to (c), which deal with property subject to usufructs, rights of use or habitation, and substitutions, are now found in new paragraph 248(3)(a).

New paragraphs 248(3)(b) and (c)

New paragraphs 248(3)(b) and (c) are a continuation of existing paragraph 248(3)(d), with some modifications. Existing paragraph 248(3)(d) provides that an arrangement established by or under a written contract governed by the laws of Quebec (and that is not otherwise a trust) is deemed to be a trust, and its property is deemed to be held in trust, if:

(i) the rights and obligations created under that arrangement are similar to those under a trust; and

(ii) the contract specifically provides that, for the purposes of the Income Tax Act, the arrangement shall be considered to be a trust.

The purpose of this provision was to allow certain commercial arrangements that were created for investment purposes — but which could not be considered to be trusts under the Civil Code of Lower Canada (CCLC), since they were not constituted by gift or legacy — to be characterized as trusts for the purposes of applying the Income Tax Act in the Province of Quebec.

With the replacement of the CCLC by the Civil Code of Quebec (CCQ) in 1994, it generally became possible for arrangements that were intended to be accommodated by existing paragraph 248(3)(d) to be established as valid trusts in Quebec. As a result, such arrangements did not have to rely on the deeming rules in existing paragraph 248(3)(d) to be characterized as trusts for purposes of the Income Tax Act.

Since the status of arrangements established before the introduction of the CCQ were not altered with the introduction of the CCQ, they continued to rely on the deeming provisions in existing paragraph 248(3)(d) for their trust status under the Income Tax Act.

These arrangements (other than qualifying arrangements) continue to be accommodated under new paragraph 248(3)(b). (Qualifying arrangements are described in new subsection 248(3.2) and include, for example, registered retirement savings plans (RRSPs). For more detail, refer to the notes on that provision below.)

New paragraph 248(3)(b) also accommodates non-trust arrangements that, although not specifically intended to be accommodated under existing paragraph 248(3)(d), nevertheless fall within the ambit of that paragraph. This is the case, however, only for arrangements established before October 31, 2003. New paragraph 248(3)(b) also clarifies that it does not apply to partnerships or to arrangements that are already trusts without reference to the provision.

New paragraph 248(3)(c) accommodates qualifying arrangements, including those that were established before the introduction of the CCQ. Under this paragraph, such arrangements are deemed to be trusts. Further, the paragraph deems any property contributed at any time to the arrangement to have been transferred to the trust by the contributor. It also deems property subject to rights and obligations under the arrangement to be held in trust.

The provisions of existing paragraphs 248(3)(e) and (f) are found in new paragraphs 248(3)(d) and (e), respectively. In the latter, the obsolete terms "lessee under an emphyteutic lease" / droit de preneur dans un bail emphytéotique are replaced with "lessee under an emphyteusis" / droit d'emphytéote, the new terminology used in the CCQ.

Related Provisions: 248(3.1) — Gift of bare ownership of immovables; 248(3.2) — Qualifying arrangement; 248(8) — Occurrences as a consequence of death; 248(9.1) — Trust created by taxpayer's will; 248(25) — Beneficially interested; Interpretation Act 8.1, 8.2 — Common law and civil law equally authoritative.

History: Subsec. 248(3) substituted by 1994, c. 7, Sch. II (1991, c. 49), subsec. 192(15), applicable

(a) after 1990 with respect to property the ownership of which was acquired after 1990;

(b) after 1990 with respect to property that became subject to a usufruct, a right of use or habitation, a substitution, an emphyteutic lease or a trust after 1990;

(c) after 1989 with respect to property that became subject to a usufruct, a right of use or habitation or a substitution after 1989 and before 1991, where the persons who so acquire interests in the property elected jointly by notifying the Minister of National Revenue in writing before 1992 [1994, c. 7, Sch. VIII (1993, c. 24), s. 159 provides that such an election made before December 11, 1993 shall be deemed to have been made before 1992]; and

(d) to 1989 et seq. with respect to property that became subject to an arrangement referred to in para. 248(3)(d) in the 1989 or any subsequent taxation year.

Subsec. 248(3) formerly read:

(3) References to property beneficially owned and to beneficial owner of property — In its application in relation to the Province of Quebec, a reference in this Act to any property that is or was beneficially owned by any person shall be read as including a reference to property in relation to which any person has or had the full ownership whether or not the property is or was subject to a servitude, or has or had a right as a usufructuary, a lessee in an emphyteutic lease, an institute in a substitution or a beneficiary in a trust; and a reference in this Act to the beneficial owner of any property shall be read as including a reference to a person who has or had, accordingly as the context requires, such ownership as a right in relation to that property.

MNR*, [1992] 2 C.T.C. 2339 (TCC); amended (Nov. 18, 1991), Doc. 87-294(IT) (TCC) [unreported] (Assessment in respect of sale of properties upheld even though court decision and other circumstances had denied taxpayer proceeds of sale; right to dispose of properties had been transferred to purchaser).

(3.1) Gift of bare ownership of immovables — Subsection (3) does not apply in respect of a usufruct or a right of use of an immovable in circumstances where a taxpayer disposes of the bare ownership of the immovable by way of a gift to a donee described in the definition "total charitable gifts", "total Crown gifts" or "total ecological gifts" in subsection 118.1(1) and retains, for life, the usufruct or the right of use.

Application: Bill C-10 (Second Senate Reading Dec. 4, 2007; requires re-introduction) (2007, Part 2 — technical), subsec. 187(13), will add subsec. 248(3.1), applicable to dispositions that occur after July 18, 2005.

(3.1) Gift of bare ownership of immovables — Subsection (3) does not apply in respect of a usufruct or a right of use of an immovable in circumstances where a taxpayer disposes of the bare ownership of the immovable by way of a gift to a donee described in the definition "total charitable gifts", "total Crown gifts" or "total ecological gifts" in subsection 118.1(1) and retains, for life, the usufruct or the right of use.

Application: Bill C-10 (First Reading Feb. 6, 2009), subsec. 76(5), will add subsec. 248(3.1), applicable to dispositions that occur after July 18, 2005.

Technical Notes (Dec. 2008): Where, under the laws of Quebec, a property is subject to dismemberment such as a usufruct or a right of use established in favour of an individual while another has the bare ownership, subsection 248(3) of the Act deems the property subject to such a usufruct or right of use to have been transferred to a trust. The whole property will thus be disposed of. Subsection 248(3), as it now reads, does not provide for any exception where the bare ownership of an immovable is gifted to a registered charity. New subsection 248(3.1) provides relief, similar to the exception found in subsection 43.1(1) of the Act for life interests created at common law, where the usufruct or right of use of an immovable is retained by a taxpayer but the bare ownership of the immovable is gifted in circumstances where the gift generates entitlement to a charitable donations credit.

Under new subsection 248(3.1) and subsection 69(1), the dismemberment will entail a disposition only of the bare ownership of an immovable for an amount equal to its fair market value (FMV). In the case of capital property, the adjusted cost base (ACB) of the property will be divided under subsection 43(1) of the Act pro rata between the bare ownership and usufruct or right of use. The usufruct or right of use will be considered to have been disposed of only when it is actually disposed of or is otherwise deemed to be disposed of by the taxpayer.

Example

Mrs. A, whose property is governed by the civil law of the province of Québec, owns as capital property an immovable worth $100,000, which has an ACB of $10,000. She creates a dismemberment of the property by giving the bare ownership (FMV of $60,000) to a registered charitable organization and retaining the right of use (FMV of $40,000).

Under the present rules, subsections 248(3) and 69(1) apply and Mrs. A is considered to have disposed of the immovable at its FMV ($100,000) in favour of a deemed trust. A gain of $90,000 is triggered ($100,000 – $10,000).

Because of new subsection 248(3.1) and subsection 69(1), there is a disposition only of the bare ownership for proceeds of disposition equal to its FMV, i.e. $60,000. This amount can be included in the calculation of her charitable gifts credit. The ACB attributable to the bare ownership is $6,000 ($10,000 × 6/10). This transaction will give rise to a gain of $54,000 ($60,000 – $6,000). Mrs. A retains the right of use of the immovable and there is no disposition of this right. At death, a deemed disposition of her right of use will occur at FMV (established in the same way as for a life estate and remainder interest).

(3.2) Qualifying arrangement — For the purposes of paragraphs 248(3)(b) and (c), an arrangement is a qualifying arrangement if it is

(a) entered into with a corporation that is licensed or otherwise authorized under the laws of Canada or a province to carry on in Canada the business of offering to the public its services as trustee;

(b) established by or under a written contract that is governed by the laws of the Province of Quebec;

(c) presented as a declaration of trust or provides that, for the purposes of this Act, it shall be considered to be a trust; and

(d) presented as an arrangement in respect of which the corporation is to take action for the arrangement to become a registered disability savings plan, a registered education savings plan, a registered retirement income fund, a registered retirement savings plan or a TFSA.

Application: Bill C-10 (First Reading Feb. 6, 2009), subsec. 76(5), will add subsec. 248(3.2), applicable to taxation years that begin after October 30, 2003 except that for taxation years that end before 2008, para. 248(3.2)(d) shall be read without reference to registered disability savings and TFSAs, and for taxation years that end in 2008, para. 248(3.2)(d) shall be read without reference to TFSAs.

Technical Notes (Dec. 2008): New subsection 248(3.2) describes a qualifying arrangement for the purposes of paragraphs 248(3)(b) and (c). This new subsection provides that an arrangement is a qualifying arrangement if

(i) it is entered into with a corporation that is licensed or otherwise authorized under the laws of Canada or a province to carry on in Canada the business of offering to the public its services as trustee,

(ii) it is established by or under a written contract that is governed by the laws of the province of Quebec,

(iii) it is presented as a declaration of trust or provides that, for the purposes of the Act, it shall be considered to be a trust, and

(iv) it is presented as an arrangement in respect of which the corporation will take steps for the arrangement to become a registered disability savings plan (RDSP), a registered education savings plan (RESP), a registered retirement income fund (RRIF), a registered retirement savings plan (RRSP) or a tax-free savings account (TFSA).

New subsection 248(3.2) and new paragraph 248(3)(c) are introduced in response to the judgment of the Supreme Court of Canada in Bank of Nova Scotia v. Thibault, [2004] 1 S.C.R. 785 [[2004] 5 C.T.C. 73 — ed.]. In that judgment, which involved the seizability of an arrangement that had been marketed as a self-directed trusteed RRSP, the Court concluded that a trust had not been created under the Civil Code of Québec (CCQ). This created uncertainty as to whether the arrangement in question was in fact an RRSP under the Act and, if not, whether the status of similar arrangements purporting to be trusteed arrangements was also in jeopardy.

The conditions in new subsection 248(3.2) recognize that there are elements of the Thibault decision that give rise to concerns that the particular arrangement considered by the Court (and other similar arrangements seeking registered status) might not be able to satisfy the conditions for existing paragraph 248(3)(d) to apply. (These modified conditions are also incorporated, as required, into existing paragraph 248(3)(d).)

Subsection 248(3.2) applies to taxation years that begin after October 30, 2003, with some exceptions that recognize that RDSPs and TFSAs were introduced subsequently.

(4) Interest in real property — In this Act, an interest in real property includes a leasehold interest in real property but does not include an interest as security only derived by virtue of a mortgage, hypothecary claim, agreement for sale or similar obligation.

Proposed Amendment — 248(4)

Application: Bill C-10 (Second Senate Reading Dec. 4, 2007; requires re-introduction) (2007, Part 3 — bijuralism), subsec. 278(13), will amend subsec. 248(4) to replace "mortgage, hypothecary claim," with "mortgage,", to come into force on Royal Assent.

Related Provisions: 43.1(1) — Life estates in real property; 248(4.1) — Real right in an immovable under Quebec civil law; Interpretation Act 8.1, 8.2 — Common law and civil law equally authoritative.

History: Subsec. 248(4) amended by 2001, c. 17, subsec. 230(2), to add "hypothecary claim,", in force June 14, 2001.

(4.1) Real right in immovables — In this Act, a real right in an immovable includes a lease but does not include a security right derived by virtue of a hypothec, agreement for sale or similar obligation.

Application: Bill C-10 (Second Senate Reading Dec. 4, 2007; requires re-introduction) (2007, Part 3 — bijuralism), subsec. 278(13), will add subsec. 248(4.1), to come into force on Royal Assent.

Technical Notes: Subsection 248(4) of the current legislation uses the term "droit sur un bien immeuble" in the French version as equivalent for the term "interest in real property" used in the English version. The term refers to the relationship between a person and property and for purposes of the I.T.A. includes a leasehold interest but not an interest as security.

Subsection 248(4) is amended so as to provide, for common law purposes, the scope of the term "interest in real property." Reference to the civil law term "hypothecary claim" is removed from the English version of the provision. Furthermore, the term "intérêt sur un bien réel" is added in the French version of the Act. This term is the French equivalent of the common law term "interest in real property".

For civil law purposes, new subsection 248(4.1) is added in both linguistic versions of the Act. The scope of the civil law term "real right in immovables" / "droit réel sur un immeuble" is adjusted in a similar manner as its common law counterPart by including the lease and excluding security rights.

Related Provisions: 248(4) — Interest in real property under common law; Interpretation Act 8.1, 8.2 — Common law and civil law equally authoritative.

(5) Substituted property — For the purposes of this Act, other than paragraph 98(1)(a),

(a) where a person has disposed of or exchanged a particular property and acquired other property in substitution therefor and subsequently, by one or more further transactions, has effected one or more further substitutions, the property acquired by any such transaction shall be deemed to have been substituted for the particular property; and

(b) any share received as a stock dividend on another share of the capital stock of a corporation shall be deemed to be property substituted for that other share.

Interpretation Bulletins: IT-244R3: Gifts by individuals of life insurance policies as charitable donations; IT-369R: Attribution of trust income to settlor; IT-489R: Nonarm's length sale of shares to a corporation; IT-511R: Interspousal and certain other transfers and loans of property.

(6) "Class" of shares issued in series — In its application in relation to a corporation that has issued shares of a class of its capital stock in one or more series, a reference in this Act to the "class" shall be read, with such modifications as the circumstances require, as a reference to a "series of the class".

Interpretation Bulletins: IT-328R3: Losses on shares on which dividends have been received.

(7) [Deemed date of] Receipt of things mailed — For the purposes of this Act,

(a) anything (other than a remittance or payment described in paragraph (b)) sent by first class mail or its equivalent shall be deemed to have been received by the person to whom it was sent on the day it was mailed; and

(b) the remittance or payment of an amount

(i) deducted or withheld, or

(ii) payable by a corporation,

as required by this Act or a regulation shall be deemed to have been made on the day on which it is received by the Receiver General.

Related Provisions: 153(1) [closing words] — Certain remittances must be made directly to a financial institution; 204.81(8.2) — Rule in 248(7) does not apply to voluntary de-registration of LSVCC; 244(5) — Proof of service by mail; 244(14) — Mailing date presumed to be date of assessment or notice; Reg. 110 — Certain remittances must be made directly to a financial institution.

Interpretation Bulletins: IT-433R: Farming or fishing — use of cash method.

Charities Policies: CPS-017: Effective date of registration.

(8) Occurrences as a consequence of death — For the purpose of this Act,

(a) a transfer, distribution or acquisition of property under or as a consequence of the terms of the will or other testamentary instrument of a taxpayer or the taxpayer's spouse or common-law partner or as a consequence of the law governing the intestacy of a taxpayer or the taxpayer's spouse or common-law partner shall be considered to be a transfer, distribution or acquisition of the property as a consequence of the death of the taxpayer or the taxpayer's spouse or common-law partner, as the case may be;

(b) a transfer, distribution or acquisition of property as a consequence of a disclaimer, release or surrender by a person who was a beneficiary under the will or other testamentary instrument or on the intestacy of a taxpayer or the taxpayer's spouse or common-law partner shall be considered to be a transfer, distribution or acquisition of the property as a consequence of the death of the taxpayer or the taxpayer's spouse or common-law partner, as the case may be; and

(c) a release or surrender by a beneficiary under the will or other testamentary instrument or on the intestacy of a taxpayer with respect to any property that was property of the taxpayer immediately before the taxpayer's death shall be considered not to be a disposition of the property by the beneficiary.

Related Provisions: 248(9) — Definitions; 248(9.1) — Whether trust created by taxpayer's will.

History: Subsec. 248(8) amended by 2000, c. 12, Sch. 2, s. 1, to replace "spouse" with "spouse or common-law partner", applicable to 2001 et seq., in force July 31, 2000. See also the transitional rules reproduced in the History to 248(1)"common-law partner".

(9) Definitions — In subsection (8),

"disclaimer" includes a renunciation of a succession made under the laws of the Province of Quebec that is not made in favour of any person, but does not include any disclaimer made after the period ending 36 months after the death of the taxpayer unless written application therefor has been made to the Minister by the taxpayer's legal representative within that period and the disclaimer is made within such longer period as the Minister considers reasonable in the circumstances;

History: The definition "disclaimer" in subsec. 248(9) substituted by 1994, c. 21, subsec. 109(7), applicable June 15, 1994. That definition formerly read:

> "disclaimer" includes a renunciation of a succession made under the laws of the Province of Quebec that is not made in favour of any person;

Interpretation Bulletins ["disclaimer"]: IT-305R4: Testamentary spouse trusts; IT-313R2: Eligible capital property — rules where a taxpayer has ceased carrying on a business or has died; IT-349R3: Intergenerational transfers of farm property on death.

"release or surrender" means

(a) a release or surrender made under the laws of a province (other than the Province of Quebec) that does not direct in any manner who is entitled to benefit therefrom, or

(b) a gift inter vivos made under the laws of the Province of Quebec of an interest in, or right to property of, a succession that is made to the person or persons who would have benefited if the donor had made a renunciation of the succession that was not made in favour of any person, and that is made within the period ending 36 months after the death of the taxpayer or, where written application therefor has been made to the Minister by the taxpayer's legal representative within that period, within such longer period as the Minister considers reasonable in the circumstances.

Interpretation Bulletins ["release or surrender"]: IT-305R4: Testamentary spouse trusts; IT-313R2: Eligible capital property — rules where a taxpayer has ceased carrying on a business or has died; IT-349R3: Intergenerational transfers of farm property on death.

(9.1) How trust created — For the purposes of this Act, a trust shall be considered to be created by a taxpayer's will if the trust is created

(a) under the terms of the taxpayer's will; or

(b) by an order of a court in relation to the taxpayer's estate made under any law of a province that provides for the relief or support of dependants.

Interpretation Bulletins: IT-305R4: Testamentary spouse trusts.

(9.2) Vested indefeasibly — For the purposes of this Act, property shall be deemed not to have vested indefeasibly

(a) in a trust under which a taxpayer's spouse or common-law partner is a beneficiary, where the trust is created by the will of the taxpayer, unless the property vested indefeasibly in the trust before the death of the spouse or common-law partner; and

(b) in an individual (other than a trust), unless the property vested indefeasibly in the individual before the death of the individual.

I.T. Application Rules: 26(8)–(8.4) — Identical properties owned since before 1972.

Interpretation Bulletins: IT-387R2: Meaning of "identical properties".

(13) Interests in trusts and partnerships — Where after November 12, 1981 a person has an interest in a trust or partnership, whether directly or indirectly through an interest in any other trust or partnership or in any manner whatever, the person shall, for the purposes of the definitions "income bond", "income debenture" and "term preferred share" in subsection (1), paragraph (h) of the definition "taxable preferred share" in that subsection, subsections 84(4.2) and (4.3) and 112(2.6) and section 258, be deemed to be a beneficiary of the trust or a member of the partnership, as the case may be.

(14) Related corporations — For the purpose of paragraph (g) of the definition "specified financial institution" in subsection (1), where in the case of 2 or more corporations it can reasonably be considered, having regard to all the circumstances, that one of the main reasons for the separate existence of those corporations in a taxation year is to limit or avoid the application of subsection 112(2.1) or (2.2) or 138(6), the 2 or more corporations shall be deemed to be related to each other and to each other corporation to which any such corporation is related.

History: Subsec. 248(14) amended by 1994, c. 7, Sch. II (1991, c. 49), subsec. 192(17), to substitute "For the purpose of" for "For the purposes of" and "can reasonably" for "may reasonably", and to add "and to each other corporation to which any such corporation is related", applicable after July 13, 1990.

(15) Goods and services tax — change of use — For the purposes of this Act, where a liability for the goods and services tax is incurred in respect of a change of use at any time of a property, the liability so incurred shall be deemed to have been incurred immediately after that time in respect of the acquisition of the property.

(16) Goods and services tax — input tax credit and rebate — For the purposes of this Act, other than this subsection and subsection 6(8), an amount claimed by a taxpayer as an input tax credit or rebate with respect to the goods and services tax in respect of a property or service shall be deemed to be assistance from a government in respect of the property or service that is received by the taxpayer

(a) where the amount was claimed by the taxpayer as an input tax credit in a return under Part IX of the Excise Tax Act for a reporting period under that Act,

(i) at the time the goods and services tax in respect of the input tax credit was paid or became payable, if the tax was paid or became payable in the reporting period, or

(ii) if no such tax was paid or became payable in respect of the input tax credit in the reporting period, at the end of the reporting period; or

(b) where the amount was claimed as a rebate with respect to the goods and services tax, at the time the amount was received or credited.

Proposed Amendment — 248(16)

(16) Goods and services tax — input tax credit and rebate — For the purposes of this Act, other than this subsection and subsection 6(8), an amount claimed by a taxpayer as an input tax credit or rebate with respect to the goods and services tax in respect of a property or service is deemed to be assistance from a government in respect of the property or service that is received by the taxpayer

(a) where the amount was claimed by the taxpayer as an input tax credit in a return under Part IX of the Excise Tax Act for a reporting period under that Act,

(i) at the particular time that is the earlier of the time that the goods and services tax in respect of the input tax credit was paid and the time that it became payable,

(A) if the particular time is in the reporting period, or

(B) if,

(I) the taxpayer's threshold amount, determined in accordance with subsection 249(1) of the Excise Tax

Act, is greater than $500,000 for the taxpayer's fiscal year (within the meaning assigned by that Act) that includes the particular time, and

(II) the taxpayer claimed the input tax credit at least 120 days before the end of the normal reassessment period, as determined under subsection 152(3.1), for the taxpayer in respect of the taxation year that includes the particular time,

(ii) at the end of the reporting period, if

(A) subparagraph (i) does not apply, and

(B) the taxpayer's threshold amount, determined in accordance with subsection 249(1) of the Excise Tax Act, is $500,000 or less for the fiscal year (within the meaning assigned by that Act) of the taxpayer that includes the particular time, and

(iii) in any other case, on the last day of the taxpayer's earliest taxation year

(A) that begins after the taxation year that includes the particular time, and

(B) for which the normal reassessment period, as determined under subsection 152(3.1), for the taxpayer ends at least 120 days after the time that the input tax credit was claimed; or

(b) where the amount was claimed as a rebate with respect to the goods and services tax, at the time the amount was received or credited.

Application: Bill C-10 (Second Senate Reading Dec. 4, 2007; requires re-introduction) (2007, Part 2 — technical), subsec. 187(15), will amend subsec. 248(16) to read as above, applicable in respect of input tax credits that become eligible to be claimed in taxation years that begin after December 20, 2002.

Technical Notes: Subsection 248(16) provides rules under which amounts received by, or credited to, a taxpayer as an input tax credit or rebate with respect to the goods and services tax (GST) are deemed to be assistance from a government received by a taxpayer. As a consequence, such amounts are either included in income or reduce the cost or capital cost of the related property, or the amount of the related expenditure or expenditure pool, for tax purposes.

Subsection 248(16) also specifies the time at which the receipt (or credit) of an input tax credit or rebate is deemed to be received as assistance. With respect to input tax credits, subparagraph 248(16)(a)(i) provides that the assistance (i.e., the input tax credit) is considered to be received by a taxpayer at the time the GST in respect of the input tax credit was paid or became payable by the taxpayer if the GST was paid or became payable in the same reporting period under the Excise Tax Act in which the input tax credit was claimed. If a taxpayer does not claim the input tax credit in the same reporting period in which the GST was paid or became payable, subparagraph 248(16)(a)(ii) includes the amount of assistance in the taxpayer's income for the taxation year that includes the end of the reporting period in which the taxpayer claimed the input tax credit.

Subsection 248(16) is amended in three respects for input tax credits that become eligible to be claimed in taxation years that begin after December 20, 2002.

First, subparagraph 248(16)(a)(i) is amended to extend its application to cases where the input tax credit is claimed by a taxpayer in a reporting period that is subsequent to the period in which the related GST was paid or became payable if

- the taxpayer's threshold amount (as determined under subsection 249(1) of the Excise Tax Act) is greater than $500,000 for the taxpayer's fiscal year (as defined by that Act) that includes the earlier of the time that the GST in respect of the input tax credit was paid and the time that it became payable, and
- the taxpayer claimed the input tax credit at least 120 days before the end of the normal reassessment period (as determined under subsection 152(3.1) of the Income Tax Act) for the taxpayer in respect of the taxation year that includes that earlier time.

In general, the change to this subparagraph means that an input tax credit of a taxpayer (who is a GST filer with a threshold amount greater than $500,000 for GST purposes) is considered to have been received at the time the related GST was paid or became payable, even though the input tax credit is claimed in a later GST reporting period. However, this is the case only if the taxpayer claims the input tax credit at least 120 days before the taxation year in which the GST was paid or became payable becomes statute-barred for income tax purposes.

Second, subparagraph 248(16)(a)(ii) is amended to provide that an input tax credit is considered to be received at the end of the reporting period in which it is claimed only if

- subparagraph 248(16)(a)(i) does not apply, and
- the taxpayer's threshold amount (as determined under subsection 249(1) of the Excise Tax Act) is $500,000 or less for the fiscal year of the taxpayer that includes the earlier of the time that the GST in respect of the input tax credit was paid or became payable.

Thus, subparagraph 248(16)(a)(ii) does not apply if subparagraph 248(16)(a)(i) applies. Where subparagraph 248(16)(a)(i) does not apply, subparagraph 248(16)(a)(ii) provides that the input tax credit is considered to have been received at the end of the reporting period in which it is claimed only if the taxpayer's threshold amount for GST purposes was $500,000 or less at the time the GST was paid or became payable.

Third, new subparagraph 248(16)(a)(iii) is added to apply in any other case. If applicable, that subparagraph provides that the input tax credit is considered to have been received on the last day of the taxpayer's earliest taxation year

- that begins after the taxation year that includes the earlier of the time that the GST in respect of the input tax credit was paid and the time that it became payable, and
- for which the normal reassessment period for the taxpayer ends at least 120 days after the time at which the input tax credit was claimed.

Reference should also made to the commentary to new subsection 248(17.1) of the Income Tax Act which provides a special rule in respect of the timing of a claim in respect of certain input tax credits assessed under the Excise Tax Act.

Proposed Addition — 248(16.1)

(16.1) Quebec input tax refund and rebate — For the purpose of this Act, other than this subsection and subsection 6(8), an amount claimed by a taxpayer as an input tax refund or a rebate with respect to the Quebec sales tax in respect of a property or service is deemed to be assistance from a government in respect of the property or service that is received by the taxpayer

(a) where the amount was claimed by the taxpayer as an input tax refund in a return under An Act respecting the Québec sales tax, R.S.Q., c. T-0.1, for a reporting period under that Act,

(i) at the particular time that is the earlier of the time that the Quebec sales tax in respect of the input tax refund was paid and the time that it became payable,

(A) if the particular time is in the reporting period, or

(B) if,

(I) the taxpayer's threshold amount, determined in accordance with section 462 of that Act is greater than $500,000 for the taxpayer's fiscal year (within the meaning assigned by that Act) that includes the particular time, and

(II) the taxpayer claimed the input tax refund at least 120 days before the end of the normal reassessment period, as determined under subsection 152(3.1), for the taxpayer in respect of the taxation year that includes the particular time,

(ii) at the end of the reporting period, if

(A) subparagraph (i) does not apply, and

(B) the taxpayer's threshold amount, determined in accordance with section 462 of that Act is $500,000 or less for the fiscal year (within the meaning assigned by that Act) of the taxpayer that includes the particular time, and

(iii) in any other case, on the last day of the taxpayer's earliest taxation year

(A) that begins after the taxation year that includes the particular time, and

(B) for which the normal reassessment period, as determined under subsection 152(3.1), for the taxpayer ends at least 120 days after the time that the input tax refund was claimed; or

(b) where the amount was claimed as a rebate with respect to the Quebec sales tax, at the time the amount was received or credited.

Application: Bill C-10 (Second Senate Reading Dec. 4, 2007; requires re-introduction) (2007, Part 2 — technical), subsec. 187(16), will add subsec. 248(16.1), applicable in respect of input tax refunds and rebates that become eligible to be claimed in taxation years that begin after February 27, 2004.

Technical Notes: New subsection 248(16.1) provides special rules for amounts received, or credited to, a taxpayer as an input tax refund or rebate in respect of Quebec sales tax. Such amounts are either included in a taxpayer's income or reduce the cost or capital cost of the related property, or the amount of the related expenditure or expenditure pool, for tax purposes.

In general, an input tax refund in respect of Quebec sales tax may — depending on the circumstances — have to be included in a taxpayer's income in the taxation year in which the taxpayer may first claim the refund, rather than the year in which it is received. A rebate of Quebec sales tax is included in income at the time the rebate is received or credited. For a more detailed explanation of the application of subsection 248(16.1), reference should be made to the commentary accompanying amendments to subsection 248(16), which provides analogous special rules in respect of the timing of the inclusion in income of certain input tax credits and rebates assessed under the Excise Tax Act.

Related Provisions: 12(1)(x) — Inclusion in income; 12(2.2) — Deemed outlay or expense; 13(7.1) — Deemed capital cost of certain property; 37(1)(d) — Scientific research and experimental development; 53(2)(k) — Reduction in adjusted cost base; 66.1(6)"cumulative Canadian exploration expense"I — Assistance reduces CCEE; 66.2(5)"cumulative Canadian development expense"M — Assistance reduces CCDE; 66.4(5)"cumulative Canadian oil and gas property expense"I — Assistance reduces CCOGPE; 248(16) — Parallel rule for GST; 248(17.1) — Application of 248(16) to passenger vehicles and aircraft; 248(17.3) — Timing of deemed assistance where QST assessed; 248(18.1) — Repayment of input tax refund.

(17) Application of subsec. (16) to passenger vehicles and aircraft — Where the input tax credit of a taxpayer under Part IX of the Excise Tax Act in respect of a passenger vehicle or aircraft is determined with reference to subsection 202(4) of the Excise Tax Act, subparagraphs (16)(a)(i) and (ii) shall, as they apply in respect of such property, be read as follows:

Proposed Amendment — 248(17) opening words

(17) Application of subsec. (16) to passenger vehicles and aircraft — If the input tax credit of a taxpayer under Part IX of the Excise Tax Act in respect of a passenger vehicle or aircraft is determined with reference to subsection 202(4) of that Act, subparagraphs (16)(a)(i) to (iii) are to be read as they apply in respect of the passenger vehicle or aircraft, as the case may be, as follows:

Application: Bill C-10 (Second Senate Reading Dec. 4, 2007; requires re-introduction) (2007, Part 2 — technical), subsec. 187(17), will amend the opening words of subsec. 248(17) to read as above, applicable in respect of input tax credits that become eligible to be claimed in taxation years that begin after December 20, 2002.

Technical Notes: Subsection 248(17) applies in the case of an input tax credit in respect of a passenger vehicle or aircraft claimable by an individual or partnership where the credit is determined by reference to capital cost allowance in respect of the vehicle or aircraft (i.e., where there is less than exclusive use in commercial activity). Subsection 248(17) is amended to reflect the amendments made to subsection 248(16) as described in the commentary to that subsection.

"(i) at the beginning of the first taxation year or fiscal period of the taxpayer commencing after the end of the taxation year or fiscal period, as the case may be, in which the goods and services tax in respect of such property was considered for the purposes of determining the input tax credit to be payable, if the tax was considered for the purposes of determining the input tax credit to have become payable in the reporting period, or

(ii) if no such tax was considered for the purposes of determining the input tax credit to have become payable in the reporting period, at the end of the reporting period; or"

Proposed Addition — 248(17.1)

(17.1) Application of subsec. (16.1) to passenger vehicles and aircraft — If the input tax refund of a taxpayer under An Act respecting the Québec sales tax, R.S.Q., c. T-0.1, in respect of a passenger vehicle or aircraft is determined with reference to section 252 of that Act, subparagraphs (16.1)(a)(i) to (iii) are to be read as they apply in respect of the passenger vehicle or aircraft, as the case may be, as follows:

"(i) at the beginning of the first taxation year or fiscal period of the taxpayer that begins after the end of the taxation year or fiscal period, as the case may be, in which the Quebec sales tax in respect of such property was considered for the purposes of determining the input tax refund to be payable, if the tax was considered for the purposes of determining the input tax refund to have become payable in the reporting period, or

(ii) if no such tax was considered for the purposes of determining the input tax refund to have become payable in the reporting period, at the end of the reporting period; or"

Application: Bill C-10 (Second Senate Reading Dec. 4, 2007; requires re-introduction) (2007, Part 2 — technical), subsec. 187(18), will add subsec. 248(17.1), applicable in respect of input tax refunds and rebates that become eligible to be claimed in taxation years that begin after February 27, 2004.

Technical Notes: New subsection 248(17.1) applies in the case of an input tax refund of Quebec sales tax, in respect of a passenger vehicle or aircraft, claimable by an individual or partnership where the credit is determinable by reference to capital cost allowance in respect of the vehicle or aircraft (that is, where there is less than exclusive use in commercial activity). In general, this subsection defers the time the input tax refund is considered to be received for income tax purposes to the taxation year or fiscal period following that in which Quebec sales tax in respect of the property is considered as payable for the purposes of determining the input tax refund. This avoids circularity with subsection 248(16.1). The provision preserves the proper timing between the input tax refund entitlement and the adjustment to the capital cost. This change applies in respect of Quebec input tax refunds that become eligible to be claimed in taxation years that begin after February 27, 2004.

(17.2) Input tax credit on assessment — An amount in respect of an input tax credit that is deemed by subsection 296(5) of the Excise Tax Act to have been claimed in a return or application filed under Part IX of that Act is deemed to have been so claimed for the reporting period under that Act that includes the time when the Minister makes the assessment referred to in that subsection.

Application: Bill C-10 (Second Senate Reading Dec. 4, 2007; requires re-introduction) (2007, Part 2 — technical), subsec. 187(18), will add subsec. 248(17.2), applicable in respect of input tax credits that become eligible to be claimed in taxation years that begin after December 20, 2002.

Technical Notes: New subsection 248(17.2) determines, in respect of input tax credits that become eligible to be claimed in taxation years that begin after December 20, 2002, the time at which an input tax credit is considered to have been claimed in respect of certain input tax credit assessments made under the Excise Tax Act (ETA).

This subsection provides that, if an amount in respect of an input tax credit is deemed by subsection 296(5) of the ETA to have been claimed in a return or application filed under Part IX of that Act, the input tax credit is deemed to have been claimed for the GST reporting period that includes the time the Minister of National Revenue makes the GST assessment.

Accordingly, the rule in clause 248(16)(a)(i)(A) of the Income Tax Act (ITA) relating to the time at which an input tax credit is considered to have been received cannot apply to an input tax credit to which subsection 296(5) of the ETA applies. However, the other rules in paragraph 248(16)(a) of the ITA that determine the time at which an input tax credit is received are to be applied on the basis that an input tax credit (to which subsection 296(5) of the ETA applies) is not claimed by the taxpayer until the reporting period that includes the time at which the input tax credit is actually assessed — i.e., not the reporting period to which the assessment relates but the reporting period in which the input tax credit is deemed to be claimed for GST purposes.

Proposed Addition — 248(17.3)

(17.3) Quebec input tax refund on assessment — An amount in respect of an input tax refund that is deemed by section 30.5 of An Act respecting the Ministère du Revenu, R.S.Q., c. M-31, to have been claimed is deemed to have been so claimed for the reporting period under An Act respecting the Québec sales tax, R.S.Q., c. T- 0.1, that includes the day on which an assessment is issued to the taxpayer indicating that the refund has been allocated under that section 30.5.

Application: Bill C-10 (Second Senate Reading Dec. 4, 2007; requires re-introduction) (2007, Part 2 — technical), subsec. 187(18), will add subsec. 248(17.3), applicable in respect of input tax refunds and rebates that become eligible to be claimed in taxation years that begin after February 27, 2004.

Technical Notes: New subsection 248(17.3) provides that an input tax refund of Quebec sales tax, that is deemed to be claimed by section 30.5 of An Act respecting the Quebec Revenue Minister, is deemed to be claimed for the reporting period under An Act respecting Quebec Sales Tax that includes the day on which an assessment is issued to the taxpayer indicating that the refund has been allocated to the taxpayer. This change applies in respect of Quebec input tax refunds and rebates that become eligible to be claimed in taxation years that begin after February 27, 2004.

Related Provisions: 248(17.2) — Parallel rule for GST.

(18) Goods and services tax — repayment of input tax credit — For the purposes of this Act, where an amount is added at a particular time in determining the net tax of a taxpayer under Part IX of the Excise Tax Act in respect of an input tax credit relating to property or a service that had been previously deducted in determining the net tax of the taxpayer, that amount shall be deemed to be assistance repaid at the particular time in respect of the property or service pursuant to a legal obligation to repay all or part of that assistance.

Related Provisions: 20(1)(hh) — Deduction for repayment of assistance; 39(13) — Capital loss on repayment of assistance; 53(1)(e)(ix)(B) — Adjusted cost base of partnership interest; 127(10.7) — Investment tax credit — repayment of assistance; 248(18.1) — Parallel rule for QST.

Proposed Addition — 248(18.1)

(18.1) Repayment of Quebec input tax refund — For the purposes of this Act, if an amount is added at a particular time in determining the net tax of a taxpayer under An Act respecting the Québec sales tax, R.S.Q., c. T-0.1, in respect of an input tax refund relating to property or service that had been previously deducted in determining the net tax of the taxpayer, that amount is deemed to be assistance repaid at the particular time in respect of the property or service under a legal obligation to repay all or part of that assistance.

Application: Bill C-10 (Second Senate Reading Dec. 4, 2007; requires re-introduction) (2007, Part 2 — technical), subsec. 187(19), will add subsec. 248(18.1), applicable after February 27, 2004.

Technical Notes: New subsection 248(18.1) provides that an amount added in determining net tax of a taxpayer under An Act respecting Quebec Sales Tax in respect of an input tax refund relating to a property or service that had previously been deducted in computing such net tax is treated as assistance repaid under a legal obligation to repay that assistance. Such an amount could be so added under Quebec law pursuant to an assessment of Quebec sales tax. As a consequence, such an amount will either be deducted in computing income under paragraph 20(1)(hh) or will increase the cost or capital cost of the related property or the amount of the related expenditure or expenditure pool for tax purposes (as provided under subsection 13(7.1), paragraphs 37(1)(c) and 53(2)(k) and under the definitions "cumulative Canadian exploration expense" in subsection 66.1(6), "cumulative Canadian development expense" in subsection 66.2(5) and "cumulative Canadian oil and gas property expense" in subsection 66.4(5)).

Related Provisions: 20(1)(hh) — Deduction for repayment of assistance; 39(13) — Capital loss on repayment of assistance; 53(1)(e)(ix)(B) — Adjusted cost base of partnership interest; 127(10.7) — Investment tax credit — repayment of assistance; 248(18) — Parallel rule for GST.

(19) When property available for use — Except as otherwise provided, property shall be considered to have become available for use for the purposes of this Act at the time at which it has, or would have if it were depreciable property, become available for use for the purpose of subsection 13(26).

Related Provisions: 13(27)–(31) — Meaning of "available for use"; 37(1.2) — R&D capital expenditures; 127(11.2) — Investment tax credit.

History: Subsec. 248(19) added by 1994, c. 7, Sch. II (1991, c. 49), subsec. 192(18), applicable after 1989.

(20) Partition of property — Subject to subsections (21) to (23), for the purposes of this Act, where at any time a property owned by two or more persons is the subject of a partition, the following rules apply, notwithstanding any retroactive or declaratory effect of the partition:

(a) each such person who had an interest in the property immediately before that time shall be deemed not to have disposed at that time of that proportion, not exceeding 100%, of the interest that the fair market value of that person's interest in the property immediately after that time is of the fair market value of that person's interest in the property immediately before that time,

(b) each such person who has an interest in the property immediately after that time shall be deemed not to have acquired at that time that proportion of the interest that the fair market value of that person's interest in the property immediately before that time is of the fair market value of that person's interest in the property immediately after that time,

(c) each such person who had an interest in the property immediately before that time shall be deemed to have had until that time, and to have disposed at that time of, that proportion of the person's interest to which paragraph (a) does not apply,

(d) each such person who has an interest in the property immediately after that time shall be deemed not to have had before that time, and to have acquired at that time, that proportion of the person's interest to which paragraph (b) does not apply, and

(e) paragraphs (a) to (d) do not apply where the interest of the person is an interest in fungible tangible property described in that person's inventory, and, for the purposes of this subsection, where an interest in the property is an undivided interest, the fair market value of the interest at any time shall be deemed to be equal to that proportion of the fair market value of the property at that time that the interest is of all the undivided interests in the property.

Proposed Amendment — 248(20)

(20) Partition of property — Subject to subsections (21) to (23), for the purposes of this Act, where at any time a property owned by two or more persons is the subject of a partition, the following rules apply, notwithstanding any retroactive or declaratory effect of the partition:

(a) each such person who had, immediately before that time, an interest in, or for civil law a right in, the property (which interest or right in the property is referred to in this subsection and subsection (21) as an "interest" or a "right", as the case may be) shall be deemed not to have disposed at that time of that proportion, not exceeding 100%, of the interest or right that the fair market value of that person's interest or right in the property immediately after that time is of the fair market value of that person's interest or right in the property immediately before that time,

(b) each such person who has an interest or right in the property immediately after that time shall be deemed not to have acquired at that time that proportion of the interest or right that the fair market value of that person's interest or right in the property immediately before that time is of the fair market value of that person's interest or right in the property immediately after that time,

(c) each such person who had an interest or a right in the property immediately before that time shall be deemed to have had until that time, and to have disposed at that time of, that proportion of the person's interest or right to which paragraph (a) does not apply,

(d) each such person who has an interest or a right in the property immediately after that time shall be deemed not to have had before that time, and to have acquired at that time, that proportion of the person's interest or right to which paragraph (b) does not apply, and

(e) paragraphs (a) to (d) do not apply where the interest or right of the person is an interest or a right in fungible tangible property, or for civil law fungible corporeal property described in that person's inventory, and, for the purposes of this subsection, where an interest or a right in the property is an undivided interest or right, the fair market value of the interest or right at any time shall be deemed to be equal to that proportion of the fair market value of the property at that time that the interest or right is of all the undivided interests or rights in the property.

Application: Bill C-10 (Second Senate Reading Dec. 4, 2007; requires re-introduction) (2007, Part 3 — bijuralism), subsec. 278(14), will amend subsec. 248(20) to read as above, to come into force on Royal Assent.

Technical Notes: See under 12(4).

Related Provisions: 248(21) — Subdivision of property; 248(22) — Matrimonial regimes.

History: The opening words of subsec. 248(20) amended by 2001, c. 17, subsec. 230(3), to substitute "owned by two" for "jointly owned by 2", in force June 14, 2001.

Subsec. 248(20) added by 1994, c. 7, Sch. II (1991, c. 49), subsec. 192(18), applicable after July 13, 1990 except that the subsec. does not apply to a partition effected before 1992

(a) pursuant to the terms of an agreement in writing entered into on or before that day; or

(b) in accordance with a confirmation in writing from the Department of National Revenue or a provincial department of revenue as to the tax consequences of that partition, where the confirmation is in respect of a written request received by such department on or before that day.

(21) Subdivision of property — Where a property that was owned by two or more persons is the subject of a partition among those persons and, as a consequence thereof, each such person has, in the property, a new interest the fair market value of which immediately after the partition, expressed as a percentage of the fair market value of all the new interests in the property immediately after the partition, is equal to the fair market value of that person's undivided interest immediately before the partition, expressed as a percentage of the fair market value of all the undivided interests in the property immediately before the partition,

(a) subsection (20) does not apply to the property, and

(b) the new interest of each such person shall be deemed to be a continuation of that person's undivided interest in the property immediately before the partition, and, for the purposes of this subsection,

(c) subdivisions of a building or of a parcel of land that are established in the course of, or in contemplation of, a partition and that are co-owned by the same persons who co-owned the building or the parcel of land, or by their assignee, shall be regarded as one property, and

(d) where an interest in the property is or includes an undivided interest, the fair market value of the interest shall be determined without regard to any discount or premium that applies to a minority or majority interest in the property.

Proposed Amendment — 248(21)

Application: Bill C-10 (Second Senate Reading Dec. 4, 2007; requires re-introduction) (2007, Part 3 — bijuralism), subsec. 278(14), will amend subsec. 248(21) by substituting "interest or right" for "interest" in seven places throughout, "interests or rights" for "interests" twice in the opening words, and "interest or a right in the property" for "interest in the property" in para. (d), to come into force on Royal Assent.

Technical Notes: See under 12(4).

Related Provisions: 248(20) — Partition of property.

History: The opening words of subsec. 248(21) and para. 248(21)(c) amended by 2001, c. 17, subsecs. 230(4), (5), to substitute "owned by two" for "jointly owned by 2" in the opening words, and "co-owned" for "jointly owned" (twice) in para. (c), in force June 14, 2001.

Subsec. 248(21) added by 1994, c. 7, Sch. II (1991, c. 49), subsec. 192(18), applicable after July 13, 1990.

(22) Matrimonial regimes — Where at any time property could, as the consequence of the dissolution of a matrimonial regime between 2 spouses or common-law partners, be the subject of a partition, for the purposes of this Act

(a) where that property was owned by one of the spouses or common-law partners immediately before it became subject to that regime and had not subsequently been disposed of before that time, it shall be deemed to be owned at that time by that spouse or common-law partner and not by the other spouse or common-law partner; and

(b) in any other case, the property shall be deemed to be owned by the spouse or common-law partner who has the administration of that property at that time and not by the other spouse or common-law partner.

(25) Beneficially interested — For the purposes of this Act,

(a) a person or partnership beneficially interested in a particular trust includes any person or partnership that has any right (whether immediate or future, whether absolute or contingent or whether conditional on or subject to the exercise of any discretion by any person or partnership) as a beneficiary under a trust to receive any of the income or capital of the particular trust either directly from the particular trust or indirectly through one or more trusts or partnerships;

(b) except for the purpose of this paragraph, a particular person or partnership is deemed to be beneficially interested in a particular trust at a particular time where

(i) the particular person or partnership is not beneficially interested in the particular trust at the particular time,

(ii) because of the terms or conditions of the particular trust or any arrangement in respect of the particular trust at the particular time, the particular person or partnership might, because of the exercise of any discretion by any person or partnership, become beneficially interested in the particular trust at the particular time or at a later time, and

(iii) at or before the particular time, either

(A) the particular trust has acquired property, directly or indirectly in any manner whatever, from

(I) the particular person or partnership,

(II) another person with whom the particular person or partnership, or a member of the particular partnership, does not deal at arm's length,

(III) a person or partnership with whom the other person referred to in subclause (II) does not deal at arm's length,

(IV) a controlled foreign affiliate of the particular person or of another person with whom the particular person or partnership, or a member of the particular partnership, does not deal at arm's length, or

(V) a non-resident corporation that would, if the particular partnership were a corporation resident in Canada, be a controlled foreign affiliate of the particular partnership, or

(B) a person or partnership described in any of subclauses (A)(I) to (V) has given a guarantee on behalf of the particular trust or provided any other financial assistance whatever to the particular trust; and

(c) a member of a partnership that is beneficially interested in a trust is deemed to be beneficially interested in the trust.

Related Provisions: 94(1) — Meaning of "beneficiary" for non-resident trust; 104(1.1) — Restricted meaning of "beneficiary" of a trust; 108(1) — "Beneficiary"; 248(3) — Certain persons in Quebec deemed to be beneficially interested in trust.

History: Subsec. 248(25) amended by 1998, c. 19, subsec. 239(7), applicable after 1997. Subsec. 248(25) formerly read:

> (25) For the purposes of this Act, a person or partnership beneficially interested in a particular trust includes any person or partnership that has any right (whether immediate or future, whether absolute or contingent or whether conditional on or subject to the exercise of any discretionary power by any person or persons) as a beneficiary under a trust to receive any of the income or capital of the particular trust either directly from the particular trust or indirectly through one or more other trusts.

Subsec. 248(25) amended by 1997, c. 25, subsec. 71(4), applicable after 1996. Subsec. (25) formerly read:

> (25) For the purposes of this Act, a person or partnership is beneficially interested in a particular trust if the person or partnership has any right (whether immediate or future, whether absolute or contingent or whether conditional on or subject to the exercise of any discretionary power by any person or persons) as a beneficiary under a trust to receive any of the income or capital of the particular trust either directly from the particular trust or indirectly through one or more other trusts.

Subsec. 248(25) substituted by 1994, c. 21, subsec. 109(9), applicable after 1990. Subsec. (25) formerly read:

> (25) For the purposes of this Act, a person or partnership is beneficially interested in a trust if the person or partnership has any right (whether immediate or future, whether absolute or contingent or whether conditional on or subject to the exercise of any discretionary power by any person or persons) to receive any of the income or capital of the trust either directly from the trust or indirectly through one or more other trusts.

(25.1) Trust-to-trust transfers — Where at any time a particular trust transfers property to another trust (other than a trust governed by a registered retirement savings plan or by a registered retirement income fund) in circumstances to which paragraph (f) of the definition "disposition" in subsection (1) applies, without affecting the personal liabilities under this Act of the trustees of either trust or the application of subsection 104(5.8) and paragraph 122(2)(f), the other trust is deemed to be after that time the same trust as, and a continuation of, the particular trust.

(25.1) Trust-to-trust transfers — Where at any time a particular trust transfers property to another trust (other than a trust governed by a registered retirement savings plan or by a registered retirement income fund) in circumstances to which paragraph (f) of the definition "disposition" in subsection (1) applies, without affecting the personal liabilities under this Act of the trustees of either trust or the application of subsection 104(5.8) and paragraph 122(2)(f), the other trust is deemed to be after that time the same trust as, and a continuation of, the particular trust, and, for greater certainty, if the property was deemed to be taxable Canadian property of the particular trust by paragraph 51(1)(f), 85(1)(i) or 85.1(1)(a), subsection 85.1(5) or 87(4) or (5) or paragraph 97(2)(c) or 107(2)(d.1), the property is deemed to be taxable Canadian property of the other trust.

Application: Bill C-10 (Second Senate Reading Dec. 4, 2007; requires re-introduction) (2007, Part 2 — technical), subsec. 187(21), will amend subsec. 248(25.1) to read as above, applicable in respect of transfers that occur after December 23, 1998.

Technical Notes: Subsection 248(25.1) applies where there is a transfer of a property from a particular trust to another trust (other than a RRSP trust or RRIF trust) in circumstances to which paragraph (f) of the definition "disposition" in subsection 248(1) (see the commentary above) applies. The result of the application of paragraph (f) is that the transfer does not constitute a disposition. Where this is the case, subsection 248(25.1) deems the other trust after the particular time to be the same trust as, and a continuation of, the particular trust.

Subsection 248(25.1) is amended, for greater certainty, to ensure that where the transferred property is deemed under a number of specified provisions to be taxable Canadian property of the particular trust, the property continues to be taxable Canadian property of the other trust.

(25.1) Trust-to-trust transfers — Where at any time a particular trust transfers property to another trust (other than a trust governed by a registered retirement savings plan or by a registered retirement income fund) in circumstances to which paragraph (f) of the definition "disposition" in subsection (1) applies, without affecting the personal liabilities under this Act of the trustees of either trust or the application of subsection 104(5.8) and paragraph 122(2)(f), the other trust is deemed to be after that time the same trust as, and a continuation of, the particular trust, and, for greater certainty, if the property was deemed to be taxable Canadian property of the particular trust by paragraph 51(1)(f), 85(1)(i) or 85.1(1)(a) or (8)(b), subsection 85.1(5) or 87(4) or (5) or paragraph 97(2)(c) or 107(2)(d.1) or (3.1)(d), the property is deemed to be taxable Canadian property of the other trust.

Application: Bill C-10 (First Reading Feb. 6, 2009), subsec. 76(6), will amend subsec. 248(25.1) to read as above, applicable after December 19, 2007.

Related Provisions: 104(1.1) — Restricted meaning of "beneficiary" despite 248(25.1); 104(5.8) — Transfers between trusts; 108(1) — Definition of "capital interest"; 233.2(4) — Disclosure of transfer to CRA; 248(1)"disposition"(c) — Disposition incudes transfer to a trust.

(25.2) Trusts to ensure obligations fulfilled — Except for the purpose of this subsection, where at any time property is transferred to a trust in circumstances to which paragraph (k) of the definition "disposition" in subsection (1) applies, the trust is deemed to deal with the property as agent for the transferor throughout the period that begins at the time of the transfer and ends at the time of the first change after that time in the beneficial ownership of the property.

(25.3) Cost of trust interest — The cost to a taxpayer of a particular unit of a trust is deemed to be equal to the amount described in paragraph (a) where

(a) the trust issues the particular unit to the taxpayer directly in satisfaction of a right to enforce payment of an amount by the trust in respect of the taxpayer's capital interest in the trust;

(b) at the time that the particular unit is issued, the trust is neither a personal trust nor a trust prescribed for the purpose of subsection 107(2); and

(c) either

(i) the particular unit is capital property and subparagraph 53(2)(h)(i.1) applies in respect of the amount described in paragraph (a), or would apply if that subparagraph were read without reference to clauses 53(2)(h)(i.1)(A) and (B), or

Proposed Amendment — 248(25.3)(c)(i)

(i) the particular unit is capital property and the amount is not proceeds of disposition of a capital interest in the trust, or

Application: Bill C-10 (Second Senate Reading Dec. 4, 2007; requires re-introduction) (2007, Part 2 — technical), subsec. 187(22), will amend subpara. 248(25.3)(c)(i) to read as above, applicable to units issued after December 20, 2002.

Technical Notes: Subsection 248(25.3) of the Income Tax Act applies where a trust (other than a personal trust or a trust prescribed for the purpose of subsection 107(2)) issues particular units of the trust to a taxpayer directly in satisfaction of a right to a qualifying amount payable from the trust in respect of the taxpayer's capital interest in the trust. In such a case, the cost to the taxpayer of the particular units is deemed to equal the amount so payable. Subparagraph 248(25.3)(c)(i) provides that in the case of particular units of a trust that are capital property, a qualifying amount payable is one that causes, or but for clauses 53(2)(h)(i.1)(A) and (B) would cause, a reduction under subparagraph 53(2)(h)(i.1) to the adjusted cost base of the taxpayer's capital interest in the trust.

Subparagraph 248(25.3)(c)(i) is amended to provide that, in the case of particular units of a trust that are capital property, a qualifying amount payable is an amount payable that does not represent proceeds of disposition of a capital interest in the trust.

(ii) the particular unit is not capital property and subparagraph 53(2)(h)(i.1) does not apply in respect of the amount described in paragraph (a) but would so apply if that subparagraph were read without reference to clauses 53(2)(h)(i.1)(A) and (B).

(25.4) Where acquisition by another of right to enforce — If at a particular time a taxpayer's capital interest in a trust includes a right to enforce payment of an amount by the trust, the amount shall be added at the particular time to the cost otherwise determined to the taxpayer of the capital interest where

(a) immediately after the particular time there is a disposition by the taxpayer of the capital interest;

(b) as a consequence of the disposition, the right to enforce payment of the amount is acquired by another person or partnership; and

(c) if the right to enforce payment of the amount had been satisfied by a payment to the taxpayer by the trust, there would have been no disposition of that right for the purposes of this Act because of the application of paragraph (i) of the definition "disposition" in subsection (1).

(26) Debt obligations — For greater certainty, where at any time a person or partnership (in this subsection referred to as the "debtor") becomes liable to repay money borrowed by the debtor or becomes liable to pay an amount (other than interest)

(a) as consideration for any property acquired by the debtor or services rendered to the debtor, or

(b) that is deductible in computing the debtor's income, for the purposes of applying the provisions of this Act relating to the treatment of the debtor in respect of the liability, the liability shall be considered to be an obligation, issued at that time by the debtor, that has a principal amount at that time equal to the amount of the liability at that time.

(27) Parts of debt obligations — For greater certainty,

(a) unless the context requires otherwise, an obligation issued by a debtor includes any part of a larger obligation that was issued by the debtor;

(b) the principal amount of that part shall be considered to be the portion of the principal amount of that larger obligation that relates to that part; and

(c) the amount for which that part was issued shall be considered to be the portion of the amount for which that larger obligation was issued that relates to that part.

Related Provisions: 43 — Partial disposition of capital property; 142.4(9) — Partial disposition of specified debt obligation by financial institution.

History: Subsec. 248(27) added by 1995, c. 21, subsec. 43(3), applicable to taxation years that end after February 21, 1994.

(28) Limitation respecting inclusions, deductions and tax credits — Unless a contrary intention is evident, no provision of this Act shall be read or construed

(a) to require the inclusion or permit the deduction, either directly or indirectly, in computing a taxpayer's income, taxable income or taxable income earned in Canada, for a taxation year or in computing a taxpayer's income or loss for a taxation year from a particular source or from sources in a particular place, of any amount to the extent that the amount has already been directly or indirectly included or deducted, as the case may be, in computing such income, taxable income, taxable income earned in Canada or loss, for the year or any preceding taxation year;

(b) to permit the deduction, either directly or indirectly, in computing a taxpayer's tax payable under any Part of this Act for a taxation year of any amount to the extent that the amount has already been directly or indirectly deducted in computing such tax payable for the year or any preceding taxation year; or

(c) to consider an amount to have been paid on account of a taxpayer's tax payable under any Part of this Act for a taxation year to the extent that the amount has already been considered to have been paid on account of such tax payable for the year or any preceding taxation year.

History: Subsec. 248(29) repealed by 2007, c. 35, subsec. 65(3), applicable after December 13, 2007. It formerly read:

(29) Prescribed stock exchange rule — A part, division or subdivision of a stock exchange that is prescribed for the purpose of any provision of this Act is deemed for that purpose to be a prescribed stock exchange.

Subsec. 248(29) added by 2001, c. 17, subsec. 188(7), applicable after October 1999.

Proposed Addition — 248(30)–(33)

Technical Notes: At common law, it is generally the view that a gift includes only a property transferred voluntarily, without any contractual obligation and with no advantage of a material character returned to the transferor.

In contrast, under section 1806 of the Civil Code of Quebec ("CCQ"), a gift in Quebec is a contract by which ownership of property is transferred by gratuitous title. However, the rights of ownership may be separated, such that it may be possible for a transferor to transfer part of the rights of ownership without any material advantage returned (i.e., by way of gift) and to transfer the other Part separately for consideration. It is therefore possible, in Quebec, to sell a property to a charity at a price below fair market value, resulting in a gift of the difference.

Under both the common law and the CCQ, it is generally accepted that a transfer of property is not a gift unless the donor is impoverished by the transfer to the benefit of the donee and it is the donor's intention to enrich the donee without consideration.

At common law there is generally no ability to separate the rights of ownership of a single property in the course of making a gift. As such, at common law a contract to dispose of a property to a charity at a price below fair market value would not generally be considered to include a gift.

Nevertheless, there have been certain decisions made under the common law where it has been found that a transfer of property to a charity was made partly in consideration for services and partly as a gift.

Subsections 248(30), (31) and (32) are added to the Act to clarify the circumstances under which taxpayers and donees may be eligible for tax benefits available under the Act in respect of the impoverishment of a taxpayer in favour of a donee. In addition to the clarification provided by these new rules, on December 24, 2002, the Canada Revenue Agency released guidelines (Income Tax Technical News No. 26) that describe how it will apply the new rules to various situations and fundraising methods commonly used in the charitable sector. Subsection 248(34) provides technical rules regarding the repayment of debt that previously reduced the eligible amount of a gift. Subsections 248(35) to (39) provide technical rules, regarding the eligible amount of a gift or the value of property transferred and benefits receivable, that apply in calculating the eligible amount of a gift or political contribution. New subsection (40) provides that the rule in subsection 248(30) does not generally apply to inter-charity transfers. New subsection (41) deems the eligible amount of a gift to be nil if a donor fails to provide that information.

In general, these provisions are intended to reflect the policy that the amount eligible for an income tax benefit to a donor, by way of a charitable donation deduction or credit or a political contributions tax credit, should reflect the economic impact on the donor (before considering the income tax benefit) of the gift or contribution.

(30) Intention to give — The existence of an amount of an advantage in respect of a transfer of property does not in and by itself disqualify the transfer from being a gift to a qualified donee if

(a) the amount of the advantage does not exceed 80% of the fair market value of the transferred property; or

(b) the transferor of the property establishes to the satisfaction of the Minister that the transfer was made with the intention to make a gift.

Technical Notes: For the transfer of property to qualify as a gift, it is necessary that the transfer be voluntary and with the intention to make a gift. At common law, where the transferor of the property has received any form of consideration or benefit, it is generally presumed that such an intention is not present. New subsection 248(30), which applies in respect of transfers of property after December 20, 2002 to qualified donees (such as registered charities), allows the opportunity to rebut this presumption. New paragraph 248(30)(a) provides that the existence of an amount of an advantage to the transferor will not necessarily disqualify the transfer from being a gift if the amount of the advantage does not exceed 80% of the fair market value of the transferred property.

Example

Mr. Short transfers land and a building with a fair market value of $300,000 to a registered charity. The charity assumes liability for an outstanding $100,000 mortgage on the property. The assumption of the mortgage by the charity does not necessarily disqualify the transfer from being a gift for the purposes of the Act.

If the value of the mortgage is equal to the outstanding amount (e.g., the interest rate and terms and conditions are representative of current market conditions), the eligible amount of the gift, in respect of which Mr. Short may be entitled to a tax credit under subsection 118.1(3), is $200,000.

If the amount of an advantage in respect of a transfer of property exceeds 80% of the fair market value of the transferred property, new paragraph 248(30)(b) provides that the transfer will not necessarily be disqualified from being a gift if the transferor can establish to the satisfaction of the Minister of National Revenue that the transfer was made with the intention to make a gift.

In the above example, if the amount of the mortgage outstanding had been greater than $240,000, Mr. Short (or the charity on Mr. Short's behalf) could apply to the Minister of National Revenue for a determination as to whether the transfer was made with the intention to make a gift.

It is generally accepted that the tax benefit available to a taxpayer, by way of a charitable donation deduction or credit, is not considered an advantage or benefit that would reflect a lack of donative intent on the part of a taxpayer. However, there may be circumstances where the intention of a taxpayer to make a gift is in doubt because of the combination of tax and other benefits to the taxpayer. If the primary motivation of a taxpayer for entering into a transaction or series of transactions is to return a profit to the taxpayer by way of a combination of tax and other benefits, the taxpayer may not be impoverished by the transfer of a property to a charity. Subsection 248(30) is not intended to allow a taxpayer to profit by the making of a gift.

Dept. of Finance news release 2003-061, Dec. 5, 2003: The Minister also released draft amendments relating to limited-recourse debt and "split-receipting." These measures implement proposals introduced in Budget 2003 that address charitable donation arrangements that were promoted in recent years involving the use of limited-recourse debt. [See 143.2(6.1) and 248(34) — ed.] The draft amendments also incorporate changes put forward in December 2002 relating to the right to receive a benefit in respect of the donation. (31) Eligible amount of gift or monetary contribution [split receipting] — The eligible amount of a gift or monetary contribution is the amount by which the fair market value of the property that is the subject of the gift or monetary contribution exceeds the amount of the advantage, if any, in respect of the gift or monetary contribution.

Technical Notes: New subsection 248(31), which applies in respect of gifts and political contributions made after December 20, 2002, defines the eligible amount of a gift or contribution as the amount by which the fair market value of the property that is the subject of the gift or contribution exceeds the amount of the advantage, if any, in respect of the gift or contribution. Subsection 248(31) is added concurrently with amendments to subsections 110.1(1) and 118.1(1), which describe the types of gifts in respect of which an eligible amount will qualify for a deduction (for corporations) or a tax credit (for individuals). The amount of the advantage in respect of a gift or contribution is described in new subsection 248(32).

It is proposed that subsections 3501(1), (1.1) and (6) of the Regulations be amended to provide that official receipts issued by a registered organization in respect of a gift made after December 20, 2002 contain, in addition to the information already prescribed, the eligible amount of the gift.

(32) Amount of advantage — The amount of the advantage in respect of a gift or monetary contribution by a taxpayer is the total of

(a) the total of all amounts, other than an amount referred to in paragraph (b), each of which is the value, at the time the gift or monetary contribution is made, of any property, service, compensation, use or other benefit that the taxpayer, or a person or partnership who does not deal at arm's length with the taxpayer, has received, obtained or enjoyed, or is entitled, either immediately or in the future and either absolutely or contingently, to receive, obtain, or enjoy

(i) that is consideration for the gift or monetary contribution,

(ii) that is in gratitude for the gift or monetary contribution, or

(iii) that is in any other way related to the gift or monetary contribution, and

(b) the limited-recourse debt, determined under subsection 143.2(6.1), in respect of the gift or monetary contribution at the time the gift or monetary contribution is made.

Technical Notes: New subsection 248(32), which generally applies in respect of gifts or political contributions made after December 20, 2002, describes the amount of an advantage in respect of a gift or contribution as, in general, the total value of all property, services, compensation or other benefits to which the donor of a property is entitled.

Subsection 248(32) is added concurrently with the addition of subsection 248(31), which defines the eligible amount of a gift or contribution, and with the amendment of subsection 127(3) in respect of contributions to a political party. The amount of an advantage reduces the eligible amount of a gift or contribution.

In general, new subsection 248(32) is intended to apply in respect of any transaction or series of transactions having either the purpose or the effect of reducing the economic impact to a donor of a gift or contribution. This includes, for instance, situations where a charity invests funds or acquires property in a manner that benefits the donor. The reduction to an eligible amount also includes an advantage that is partial consideration for, or in gratitude for, the gift or contribution, or is in any way related to the gift or contribution. An example would include the option of a donor to satisfy or pay a loan by assigning or transferring to another person a property (including the rights under an insurance policy) that has less economic value than the amount of loan outstanding. Another example would include an assumption of a donor's risk by a charity, where the acquisition, directly or indirectly, of an interest in a property of the donor by the charity may have the effect of reducing the potential loss of the donor from that investment. (However, a tax credit or deduction resulting from a charitable donation is not considered a benefit.)

An advantage may exist even though it is not received at the time of the gift or contribution. For example, it may have been received prior to the time of the gift or may be contingent or receivable in the future. The advantage may accrue either to the donor or to a person not dealing at arm's length with the donor. It is not necessary that the advantage be receivable from the donee.

Paragraph 248(32)(b) includes as an advantage any limited-recourse debt in respect of the gift or contribution. For additional details regarding limited-recourse debt, see the commentary to new subsection 143.2(6.1).

It is proposed that subsections 2000(1) and (6) and 3501(1), (1.1) and (6) of the Regulations be amended to provide that official receipts issued by a registered organization or political party in respect of a gift or contribution contain, in addition to the information already prescribed, the eligible amount and the amount of the advantage, if any, in respect of the gift or contribution.

Related Provisions: 248(30) — Existence of advantage does not negate gift; 248(33) — Deemed cost of property acquired; 248(34) — Repayment of limited-recourse debt.

Charities Policies: CPC-025: Gift — expenses — volunteer; CPC-026: Fundraising — third-party fundraisers.

(33) Cost of property acquired by donor — The cost to a taxpayer of a property, acquired by the taxpayer in circumstances where subsection (32) applies to include the value of the property in computing the amount of the advantage in respect of a gift or monetary contribution, is equal to the fair market value of the property at the time the gift or monetary contribution is made.

Technical Notes: New subsection 248(33), which applies in respect of gifts or political contributions made after December 20, 2002, provides that the cost to a taxpayer of property acquired by the taxpayer in the course of the making of a gift or contribution by the taxpayer is the fair market value of the property at the time of the making of the gift or contribution. The fair market value of such a property is relevant in computing the amount of the advantage in respect of the gift or contribution under subsection 248(32).

Application: Bill C-10 (Second Senate Reading Dec. 4, 2007; requires re-introduction) (2007, Part 2 — technical), subsec. 187(23), will add subsecs. 248(30)–(33), applicable in respect of gifts and monetary contributions made after December 20, 2002, except that subsec. 248(32) is to be read without reference to

(i) its para. (b) in respect of gifts and monetary contributions made before February 19, 2003, and

Proposed Addition — 248(34)

(34) Repayment of limited-recourse debt — If at any time in a taxation year a taxpayer has paid an amount (in this subsection referred to as the "repaid amount") on account of the principal amount of an indebtedness which was, before that time, an unpaid principal amount that was a limited-recourse debt referred to in subsection 143.2(6.1) (in this subsection referred to as the "former limited-recourse debt") in respect of a gift or monetary contribution (in this subsection referred to as the "original gift" or "original monetary contribution", respectively, as the case may be) of the taxpayer (otherwise than by way of assignment or transfer of a guarantee, security or similar indemnity or covenant, or by way of a payment in respect of which any taxpayer referred to in subsection 143.2(6.1) has incurred an indebtedness that would be a limited-recourse debt referred to in that subsection if that indebtedness were in respect of a gift or monetary contribution made at the time that that indebtedness was incurred), the following rules apply:

(a) if the former limited-recourse debt is in respect of the original gift, for the purposes of sections 110.1 and 118.1, the taxpayer is deemed to have made in the taxation year a gift to a qualified donee, the eligible amount of which deemed gift is the amount, if any, by which

(i) the amount that would have been the eligible amount of the original gift, if the total of all such repaid amounts paid at or before that time were paid immediately before the original gift was made,

exceeds

(ii) the total of

(A) the eligible amount of the original gift, and

(B) the eligible amount of all other gifts deemed by this paragraph to have been made before that time in respect of the original gift; and

(b) if the former limited-recourse debt is in respect of the original monetary contribution, for the purposes of subsection 127(3), the taxpayer is deemed to have made in the taxation year a monetary contribution referred to in that subsection, the eligible amount of which is the amount, if any, by which

(i) the amount that would have been the eligible amount of the original monetary contribution, if the total of all such repaid amounts paid at or before that time were paid immediately before the original monetary contribution was made,

exceeds

(ii) the total of

(A) the eligible amount of the original monetary contribution, and

(B) the eligible amount of all other monetary contributions deemed by this paragraph to have been made before that time in respect of the original monetary contribution.

Application: Bill C-10 (Second Senate Reading Dec. 4, 2007; requires re-introduction) (2007, Part 2 — technical), subsec. 187(23), will add subsec. 248(34), applicable in respect of gifts and monetary contributions made after February 18, 2003.

Technical Notes: New subsection 248(34), which applies in respect of gifts or political contributions made after February 18, 2003, generally provides that a repayment of the principal amount of a limited-recourse debt in respect of a gift or political contribution is deemed to be a gift in the year it is paid. However, in some circumstances the total amount of limited-recourse debt and other advantages to the donor may exceed the fair market value of the property transferred to a charity, resulting in no eligible amount to the donor under subsection 248(31). In this case, the donor must pay off the excess amount before any amount will be allowed as a gift. Also, a payment financed by other limited-recourse debt or made by way of assignment or transfer of a guarantee, security or similar indemnity or covenant is not recognized for these purposes. For example, the assumption of a taxpayer's limited-recourse debt by another person, in exchange for an insurance policy in favour of the taxpayer that guarantees a particular rate of return on an investment held by any person, would not qualify as a deemed gift under subsection 248(34).

Dept. of Finance news release 2003-061, Dec. 5, 2003: The Minister also released draft amendments relating to limited-recourse debt and "split-receipting." These measures implement proposals introduced in Budget 2003 that address charitable donation arrangements that were promoted in recent years involving the use of limited-recourse debt. [See under 248(35)-(41) for full text of news release — ed.]

Proposed Addition — 248(35)–(41)

(35) Deemed fair market value — For the purposes of subsection (31), paragraph 69(1)(b) and subsections 110.1(2.1) and (3) and 118.1(5.4) and (6), the fair market value of a property that is the subject of a gift made by a taxpayer to a qualified donee is deemed to be the lesser of the fair market value of the property otherwise determined and the cost, or in the case of capital property, the adjusted cost base, of the property to the taxpayer immediately before the gift is made if

(a) the taxpayer acquired the property under a gifting arrangement that is a tax shelter as defined in subsection 237.1(1); or

(b) except where the gift is made as a consequence of the taxpayer's death,

(i) the taxpayer acquired the property less than 3 years before the day that the gift is made [see proposed exception in comfort letter below — ed.], or

(ii) the taxpayer acquired the property less than 10 years before the day that the gift is made and it is reasonable to conclude that, at the time the taxpayer acquired the property, one of the main reasons for the acquisition was to make a gift of the property to a qualified donee.

Technical Notes: New subsection 248(35), which applies in respect of gifts made after 6:00 p.m. (EST), December 5, 2003, provides that the fair market value of a property that is the subject of a gift is, for the purposes of determining the eligible amount of a gift under subsection 248(31), deemed to be the lesser of the actual fair market value of the property and its cost to the donor. This rule applies if the property was acquired by the donor as part of a gifting arrangement that is a tax shelter. For more information on gifting arrangements, refer to the commentary for subsection 237.1(1).

Unless the donation is made as a consequence of the donor's death, this rule also applies if the property was acquired

- less than three years before the time of donation, or
- less than 10 years before that time, if one of the main purposes of acquisition was to gift the property to a qualified donee.

Letter from Dept. of Finance, Dec. 23, 2004:

Dear [xxx]

SUBJECT: Draft Amendments Regarding Charitable Donations

I am writing in regard to your letter of April 15, 2004 and your subsequent discussions with us, concerning the draft amendments to the Income Tax Act ("the Act") proposed by the Minister of Finance on December 5, 2003. You have suggested that these proposed amendments be revised to grandfather gifts made pursuant to a written undertaking given before that date.

It is our view that such a basis for grandfathering could be problematic in the area of gifting, since it may be argued as a matter of law that a promise to make a gift is not enforceable. However, we have read with interest the submissions of others who have suggested that proposed subsection 248(35) of the Act not apply in respect of newly-issued shares acquired in the context of a rollover of property to a corporation. We also understand that, in the situation you describe, the donated shares are publicly listed shares that do not meet the exception in proposed paragraph 248(36)(c) of the Act because the gift will be made to a private foundation.

The proposed rule in subsection 248(35) is not, in general, intended to apply in respect of property that has been held for longer than three years and was not originally acquired with an expectation of donation. Accordingly, a result that would cause subsection 248(35) to apply simply because that property has been substituted with another property for the purposes of making a donation, would be inconsistent with the intent of the proposed rule. However, we would have policy concerns if an exception to the proposed rule could be used by a donor, or a related group of taxpayers that includes the donor, to avoid the application of the rule to property that has been held less than three years or acquired with an expectation of donation.

To accommodate your concerns, without creating an opportunity for avoidance, we are prepared to recommend to the Minister of Finance that an exception to proposed subsection 248(35) apply in respect of the donation of certain shares of a private corporation controlled by the donor or a person related to the donor. These shares would be exempted from the proposed rule if they were received as consideration for property, transferred to the corporation, to which subsection 248(35) would not have applied if instead that property had been donated, at the time of the transfer, by the transferor to a qualified donee. However, no tax deduction or credit would be available if it could reasonably be concluded that a particular gift was related to a transaction or series of transactions in respect of which one of the purposes was to avoid the application of subsection 248(35) to any gift of any property.

We will recommend that this exception have the same coming-into-force as subsection 248(35) of the Act.

Of course, I can offer no assurance that the Minister of Finance will agree with the recommendation that I have described. Nonetheless, I hope that this discussion is helpful.

Yours sincerely,

Len Farber, General Director, Tax Legislation Division, Tax Policy Branch

Related Provisions: 52(4) — Cost of property acquired as prize is its fair market value; 87(2)(m.2), 88(1)(e.2) — Amalgamation or windup — continuing corporation; 237.1(1) — Definitions of "gifting arrangement" and "tax shelter"; 248(36) — Non-arm's length acquisition by donor; 248(37) — Exceptions; 248(38) — Anti-avoidance rule — artificial transactions; 248(39) — Anti-avoidance — selling property and donating proceeds; 248(41) — Donation value deemed nil if taxpayer does not inform donee of circumstances requiring reduction.

Registered Charities Newsletters. 18 (charitable donation tax shelter arrangements); 24 (determining fair market value).

(36) Non-arm's length transaction — If a taxpayer acquired a property that is the subject of a gift to which subsection (35) applies because of subparagraph (35)(b)(i) or (ii) and the property was, at any time within the 3-year or 10-year period, respectively, that ends when the gift was made, acquired by a person or partnership with whom the taxpayer does not deal at arm's length, for the purpose of applying subsection (35) to the taxpayer, the cost, or in the case of capital property, the adjusted cost base, of the property to the taxpayer immediately before the gift is made is deemed to be equal to the lowest amount that is the cost, or in the case of capital property, the adjusted cost base, to the taxpayer or any of those persons or partnerships immediately before the property was disposed of by that person or partnership.

Technical Notes: New subsection 248(36) applies in conjunction with subsection 248(35), to "look-back" to discern whether a donated property was previously acquired by a person dealing non-arm's length with the donor. If subsection 248(35) applies because the donor acquired the property within the three years of donation, then if a non-arm's length person owned that property within that three-year period, the value of the gift to the donor will be the lower of the taxpayer's cost and the lowest cost to any such non-arm's length person.

Similarly, the rule will apply if subsection (35) applies because the taxpayer acquired the property within the last ten years and one of the main reasons of the acquisition was to gift the property, if a non-arm's length person acquired that property within that ten-year period.

Related Provisions: 248(41) — Donation value deemed nil if taxpayer does not inform donee of circumstances requiring reduction.

(37) Non-application of subsec. (35) — Subsection (35) does not apply to a gift

(a) of inventory;

(b) of real property or an immovable situated in Canada;

(c) of an object referred to in subparagraph 39(1)(a)(i.1);

(d) of property to which paragraph 38(a.1) or (a.2) would apply, if those paragraphs were read without reference to "other than a private foundation";

(e) of a share of the capital stock of a corporation if

(i) the share was issued by the corporation to the donor,

(ii) immediately before the gift, the corporation was controlled by the donor, a person related to the donor or a group of persons each of whom is related to the donor, and

(iii) subsection (35) would not have applied in respect of the consideration for which the share was issued had that consideration been donated by the donor to the qualified donee when the share was so donated;

(f) by a corporation of property if

(i) the property was acquired by the corporation in circumstances to which subsection 85(1) or (2) applied,

(ii) immediately before the gift, the shareholder from whom the corporation acquired the property controlled the corporation or was related to a person or each member of a group of persons that controlled the corporation, and

(iii) subsection (35) would not have applied in respect of the property had the property not been transferred to the corporation and had the shareholder made the gift to the qualified donee when the corporation so made the gift; or

(g) of a property that was acquired in circumstances where subsection 70(6) or (9) or 73(1), (3) or (4) applied, unless subsection (36) would have applied if this subsection were read without reference to this paragraph.

Technical Notes: New subsection 248(37) provides exceptions to the application of subsection 248(35) where the property that is the subject of a gift is an ecological gift, inventory, real property situated in Canada, publicly-traded securities or cultural property, the value of which is certified by the Cultural Property Export Review Board.

In some circumstances, a shareholder might transfer a property to a controlled corporation in exchange for shares issued by the corporation, and then donate the shares. Alternatively, the corporation might donate the property it received. If subsection 248(35) would not have applied to a gift of a property by a shareholder, either because it is a type of property referred to above or because subsection 248(35) would not apply to the shareholder in any event, and if the shareholder donates the share, subsection 248(37) will further exempt the share from the application of subsection 248(35). If subsections 85(1) or 85(2) applied to the transfer of such an exempt property to the corporation, then subsection 248(37) will preclude the application of subsection 248(35) to that property if it is then donated by the corporation.

Similarly, sometimes a donor will make a gift of a property that was acquired in circumstances where subsection 70(6) or (9) or 73(1), (3) or (4) applied. In such a case, the donor has acquired the property from a transferor (such as a spouse) on a tax-deferred "rollover" basis. Unless the transferor acquired the property within the 3-year period referred to in subsection 248(35) (or the 10-year period, if applicable), subsection 248(37) provides that subsection 248(35) will not apply in these circumstances to deem the value of the gift to be the donor's rollover cost or adjusted cost base.

(38) Artificial transactions — The eligible amount of a particular gift of property by a taxpayer is nil if it can reasonably be concluded that the particular gift relates to a transaction or series of transactions

(a) one of the purposes of which is to avoid the application of subsection (35) to a gift of any property; or

(b) that would, if this Act were read without reference to this paragraph, result in a tax benefit to which subsection 245(2) applies.

Technical Notes: New subsection 248(38) applies in respect of gifts made after 6:00 p.m. (EST), December 5, 2003, to prevent a donor from avoiding the application of subsection 248(35) by disposing and reacquiring a property before donating it to a qualified donee. If this is the purpose of any transaction or series of transactions that includes a disposition or acquisition of a property, for such gifts made before July 18, 2005, the cost of the property to the donor for the purpose of subsection 248(35) is deemed to be the lowest cost incurred by the taxpayer at any time to acquire that property or an identical property.

For gifts made on or after July 18, 2005, the eligible amount is deemed to be nil if a transaction or series of transactions

- has, as one of its purposes, the avoidance of the application of subsection 248(35), or
- would otherwise result in a tax benefit to which the General Anti-Avoidance Rule in subsection 245(2) would otherwise apply.

For example, the eligible amount of a gift resulting from a transaction or series to which subsection 248(38) would apply, if the gift were made before July 18, 2005, would be deemed to be nil if instead the gift were made on or on or after July 18, 2005.

The objectives of the provisions in the Act related to gifting are generally described above under the heading "Gifts and Contributions", but are not limited to that description.

Related Provisions: 248(41) — Donation value deemed nil if taxpayer does not inform donee of circumstances requiring reduction.

(39) Substantive gift [selling property and donating proceeds] — If a taxpayer disposes of a property (in this subsection referred to as the "substantive gift") that is a capital property or an eligible capital property of the taxpayer, to a recipient that is a registered party, a provincial division of a registered party, a registered association or a candidate, as those terms are defined in the Canada Elections Act, or that is a qualified donee, subsection (35) would have applied in respect of the substantive gift if it had been the subject of a gift by the taxpayer to a qualified donee, and all or a part of the proceeds of disposition of the substantive gift are (or are substituted, directly or indirectly in any manner whatever, for) property that is the subject of a gift or monetary contribution by the taxpayer to the recipient or any person dealing not at arm's length with the recipient, the following rules apply:

(a) for the purpose of subsection (31), the fair market value of the property that is the subject of the gift or monetary contribution made by the taxpayer is deemed to be that proportion of the lesser of the fair market value of the substantive gift and the cost, or if the substantive gift is capital property of the taxpayer, the adjusted cost base, of the substantive gift to the taxpayer immediately before the disposition to the recipient, that the fair market value otherwise determined of the property that is the subject of the gift or monetary contribution is of the proceeds of disposition of the substantive gift;

(b) if the substantive gift is capital property of the taxpayer, for the purpose of the definitions "proceeds of disposition" of property in subsection 13(21) and section 54, the sale price of the substantive gift is to be reduced by the amount by which the fair market value of the property that is the subject of the gift (determined without reference to this section) exceeds the fair market value determined under paragraph (a); and

(c) if the substantive gift is eligible capital property of the taxpayer, the amount determined under paragraph (a) in the description of E in the definition "cumulative eligible capital" in subsection 14(5) in respect of the substantive gift is to be reduced by the amount by which the fair market value of the property that is the subject of the gift (determined without reference to this section) exceeds the fair market value determined under paragraph (a).

Technical Notes: New subsection 248(39), which applies in respect of gifts made after February 26, 2004, prevents a donor from avoiding the application of subsection 248(35) by disposing a property (the "substantive gift") to a qualified donee and donating the proceeds, rather than donating the property itself. The provision applies similarly in respect of political contributions. The fair market value of the gift or contribution of the proceeds, for the purpose of determining its eligible amount under subsection 248(31), is deemed to be the lesser of the fair market value of the property sold and its cost. Subsection 248(39) does not apply if subsection 248(35) would not have applied to a gift by the taxpayer of that property.

Related Provisions: 248(41) — Donation value deemed nil if taxpayer does not inform donee of circumstances requiring reduction.

(40) Inter-charity gifts — Subsection (30) does not apply in respect of a gift received by a qualified donee from a registered charity.

Related Provisions: 248(41) — Eligible amount deemed nil if information not provided.

Technical Notes: The July 18, 2005 proposal in respect of subsection 248(40) has been removed and replaced with an unrelated amendment.

New subsection 248(30) allows the opportunity for a donor to rebut the general presumption that the receipt of any form of consideration or benefit reflects that lack of an intention to make a gift. Such a rule is unnecessary in the context of inter-charity transfers and could lead to complication of the "disbursement quota" calculation of a charity under section 149.1. New subsection 248(40) therefore precludes the application of subsection 248(30) to transfers made by a registered charity to a qualified donee. Consequently, the eligible amount of a gift under new subsection 248(31) should always equal its fair market value.

[This was not included in the July 18, 2005 draft legislation. That draft contained a 248(40) which proposed that charities be required to make inquiries with respect to any donation of $5,000 or more, before issuing a receipt, to ascertain compliance with 248(31)-(39). It was withdrawn following objections from the charity sector — ed.]

Letter from Dept. of Finance, Nov. 29, 2005 [re former 248(40)]:

Dear [xxx]

I am writing in response to your letter of November 2, 2005 in which you expressed concern regarding the administrative burden on charities that may be implied by [former] proposed subsection 248(40) of the Income Tax Act.

This proposal was made in response to suggestions from the charitable sector that charities were unsure as to what information should be obtained from donors in order to correctly prepare a receipt. It was recognized that in some cases charities would not have direct knowledge of all circumstances that might have implications for the eligible amount of a gift. The provision was intended to provide clarity as to what charities should ask their donors before preparing a receipt.

However, we recognize the difficulties that have been brought to light by this proposal. Therefore, we are prepared to recommend to the Minister of Finance that proposed subsection 248(40) be withdrawn. As was the case before the proposal of this provision, charities will still be responsible [for seeking] relevant information from donors where the need for such information is apparent to them in the particular circumstances.

Thank you for bringing this matter to my attention.

Yours sincerely,

Len Farber, General Director, Tax Legislation Division, Tax Policy Branch

[Another 101 letters, identical to this, were issued (total 50 in English, 52 in French) — ed.]

(41) Information not provided — Notwithstanding subsection (31), the eligible amount of a gift or monetary contribution made by a taxpayer is nil if the taxpayer does not — before a receipt referred to in subsection 110.1(2), 118.1(2) or 127(3), as the case may be, is issued in respect of the gift or monetary contribution — inform the qualified donee or the recipient, as the case may be, of any circumstances in respect of which subsection (31), (35), (36), (38) or (39) requires that the eligible amount of the gift or monetary contribution be less than the fair market value, determined without reference to subsection (35) and subsections 110.1(3) and 118.1(6), of the property that is the subject of the gift or monetary contribution.

Technical Notes: New subsection 248(41), which applies in respect of gifts and monetary contributions made after 2005, provides that the eligible amount of a gift is nil if, before an official charitable receipt is issued by a donee, the donor fails to inform the donee of information that would be relevant to the application of subsections 248(31), (35), (36), (38) or (39). The donee requires such information for correct preparation of the receipt.

Application: Bill C-10 (Second Senate Reading Dec. 4, 2007; requires re-introduction) (2007, Part 2 — technical), subsec. 187(23), will add subsecs. 248(35)–(41), applicable in respect of gifts and monetary contributions made after December 20, 2002, except that

(a) subsecs. 248(35), (37) and (38) do not apply in respect of gifts made before 6:00 p.m. EST on December 5, 2003 and, in respect of gifts made after that time but before July 18, 2005, subsec. 248(38) is to be read as follows:

> (38) If it can reasonably be concluded that one of the reasons for a series of transactions, that includes a disposition or acquisition of a property of a taxpayer that is the subject of a gift by the taxpayer, is to increase the amount that would be deemed by subsection (35) to be the fair market value of the property, the cost of the property for the purpose of that subsection is deemed to be the lowest cost to the taxpayer to acquire that property or an identical property at any time.

(b) subsec. 248(36) does not apply in respect of gifts or monetary contributions made before July 18, 2005;

(c) subsec. 248(39) does not apply in respect of gifts or monetary contributions made before February 27, 2004;

(d) subsec. 248(40) does not apply in respect of gifts made before November 9, 2006; and

(e) subsec. 248(41) does not apply in respect of gifts and monetary contributions made before 2006.

Dept. of Finance news release 2003-061, Dec. 5, 2003: Government Announces Restrictions on Charitable Donation Tax Shelter Arrangements

John Manley, Deputy Prime Minister and Minister of Finance, today released draft amendments to the Income Tax Act limiting the tax benefits of charitable donations made under tax shelter and other arrangements.

The amendments proposed today respond to concerns that various promoters are marketing charitable gifting schemes to the public in which property acquired by a taxpayer is donated to a charity at a value represented to be in excess of the taxpayer's acquisition cost. These "buy-low, donate-high" arrangements provide taxpayers with a tax benefit greater than their actual cost of the donated property. These proposed amendments will not apply to gifts of publicly traded securities, certified cultural property, ecological gifts, or real property situated in Canada.

As of 6:00 p.m. EST on December 5, 2003, the value of a gift of property for charitable donation purposes will be limited to a donor's cost of the property, where it is donated within three years of acquisition by the donor or is otherwise acquired through a gifting arrangement or in contemplation of donation.

The Minister also released draft amendments relating to limited-recourse debt and "split-receipting." These measures implement proposals introduced in Budget 2003 that address charitable donation arrangements that were promoted in recent years involving the use of limited-recourse debt [see 143.2(6.1), 237.1(1)"gifting arrangement"(b) and 248(34) — ed.]. The draft amendments also incorporate changes put forward in December 2002 relating to the right to receive a benefit in respect of the donation [see 248(30)–(33) — ed.].

References in the draft legislation to "Announcement Time" should be read as referring to 6:00 p.m. EST on December 5, 2003.

249. (1) Definition of "taxation year" — For the purpose of this Act, a "taxation year" is

(a) in the case of a corporation or Canadian resident partnership, a fiscal period, and

(b) in the case of an individual, a calendar year, and when a taxation year is referred to by reference to a calendar year, the reference is to the taxation year or years coinciding with, or ending in, that year.

Proposed Amendment — 249(1)

249. (1) Definition of "taxation year" — Except as expressly otherwise provided in this Act, a "taxation year" is

(a) in the case of a corporation, a fiscal period;

(b) in the case of an individual (other than a testamentary trust), a calendar year; and

(c) in the case of a testamentary trust, the period for which the accounts of the trust are made up for purposes of assessment under this Act.

Application: Bill C-10 (Second Senate Reading Dec. 4, 2007; requires re-introduction) (2007, Part 2 — technical), subsec. 188(1), will amend subsec. 249(1) to read as above, applicable after December 20, 2002. See also the addition of para. 249(1)(d) by S.C. 2007, c. 29 (Bill C-52) below.

Technical Notes: Subsection 249(1) sets out, for purposes of the Act, the definition "taxation year". Paragraph 249(1)(a) provides that in the case of a corporation, a taxation year is a fiscal period. Paragraph 249(1)(b) provides that the taxation year of an individual is the calendar year. Subsection 249(1) also provides that when a taxation year is referred to by reference to a calendar year, the reference is to the taxation year or years coinciding with, or ending in, that year.

Subsection 249(1) is amended to clarify that the definition "taxation year" contained in that subsection applies for purposes of the Act except as otherwise provided. For examples of exceptions, which apply for limited purposes, see the definitions "taxation year" in subsections 95(1) and 149.1(1).

Subsection 249(1) is also amended to add new paragraph 249(1)(c), which provides that the taxation year of a testamentary trust is the period for which the accounts of the trust are made up for purposes of assessment under the Act. This definition was previously contained in paragraph 104(23)(a), which is being repealed.

New subsection 249(1.1) provides that, when a taxation year is referred to by reference to a calendar year, the reference is to the taxation year or taxation years that coincide with, or that end in, that calendar year. This rule combines the identical rules previously found in paragraph 104(23)(b), which is repealed, and subsection 249(1).

These amendments apply after December 20, 2002. For a related set of amendments, see the commentary on paragraphs 104(23)(a) and (b).

Proposed Addition — 249(1)(d)

(d) in the case of a Canadian resident partnership, a fiscal period.

Application: S.C. 2007, c. 29 (Bill C-52, Royal Assent June 22, 2007), s. 42, will add para. 249(1)(d) once Bill C-10 (see proposed amendment above) receives Royal Assent, deemed to have come into force on October 31, 2006.

Technical Notes (Dec. 21, 2006): Subsection 249(1) defines "taxation year" in the case of a corporation or an individual. Subsection 249(1) is amended, in conjunction with the introduction of Part IX.1, to provide that the taxation year of a Canadian resident partnership is its fiscal period.

Related Provisions: 11(2) — Reference to "taxation year" of individual who carries on a business; 14(4) — Taxation year of individual — eligible capital property rules; 20(16.2) — Taxation year of individual — terminal loss rules; 87(2)(a) — Deemed year-end and new taxation year on amalgamation; 95(1)"taxation year" — Taxation year of foreign affiliate; 96(1)(b) — Taxation year of partnership; 104(23) — Testamentary trusts; 128(2)(d) — Deemed year-end where individual bankrupt; 128.1(1)(a) — Deemed year-end and new taxation year on becoming resident in Canada; 128.1(4)(a) — Deemed year-end and new taxation year on ceasing to be resident in Canada; 132.11 — Election for mutual fund trust to have December 15 year-end; 132.2(1)(b) [to be repealed], 132.2(3)(b) [draft] — Deemed year-end and new taxation year on transfer of property between mutual funds; 144(11) — Deemed year-end on EPSP becoming DPSP; 149(10)(a) — Taxation year of corporation becoming or ceasing to be exempt; 149.1(1) — Taxation year of registered charity; 188(1) — Deemed year-end on notice of revocation of charity registration; 249(2), (3) — References to "taxation year" and "fiscal period"; 249(3.1) — Deemed year end on becoming or ceasing to be CCPC; 249(4) — Deemed year-end on change of control; 249(5), (6) — Rules for testamentary trust; 250.1(a) — Taxation year of non-resident person.

History: Para. 249(1)(a) amended by 2007, c. 29, s. 29 to add "or Canadian resident partnership", deemed to have come into force on October 31, 2006.

Regulations: 1104(1) (taxation year of individual for capital cost allowance purposes).

Interpretation Bulletins: IT-184R: Deferred cash purchase tickets issued by Canadian Wheat Board; IT-363R2: Deferred profit sharing plans — deductibility of employer contributions and taxation of amounts received by a beneficiary (archived).

Proposed Addition — 249(1.1)

(1.1) References to calendar year — When a taxation year is referred to by reference to a calendar year, the reference is to the taxation year or taxation years that coincide with, or that end in, that calendar year.

Application: Bill C-10 (Second Senate Reading Dec. 4, 2007; requires re-introduction) (2007, Part 2 — technical), subsec. 188(1), will add subsec. (1.1), applicable after December 20, 2002.

Technical Notes: See under Bill C-10 proposed amendment to 249(1) above.

(2) References to certain taxation years and fiscal periods — For the purposes of this Act,

(a) a reference to a taxation year ending in another year includes a reference to a taxation year ending coincidentally with that other year; and

(b) a reference to a fiscal period ending in a taxation year includes a reference to a fiscal period ending coincidentally with that year.

Related Provisions: 249(1) — "Taxation year"; 250.1(a) — Taxation year of non-resident person.

History: Para. 249(2)(b) amended by 1995, c. 3, s. 53, applicable to fiscal periods that end after 1993. Para. (b) formerly read:

(b) a reference to a fiscal period of a partnership ending in a taxation year includes a reference to a fiscal period of the partnership ending coincidentally with that year.

(3) Deemed year end where fiscal period exceeds 365 days — Notwithstanding subsection (1), where the fiscal period of a corporation exceeds 365 days and by reason thereof the corporation does not have a taxation year that ends in a particular calendar year, for the purposes of this Act, the corporation's first taxation year ending in the immediately following calendar year shall be deemed to end on the last day of the particular calendar year.

(3.1) Year end on status change — If at any time a corporation becomes or ceases to be a Canadian-controlled private corporation, otherwise than because of an acquisition of control to which subsection (4) would, if this Act were read without reference to this subsection, apply,

(a) subject to paragraph (c), the corporation's taxation year that would, if this Act were read without reference to this subsection, include that time is deemed to end immediately before that time;

(b) a new taxation year of the corporation is deemed to begin at that time;

(c) notwithstanding subsections (1) and (3), the corporation's taxation year that would, if this Act were read without reference to this subsection, have been its last taxation year that ended before that time is deemed instead to end immediately before that time if

(i) were this Act read without reference to this paragraph, that taxation year would, otherwise than because of paragraph 128(1)(d), section 128.1 and paragraphs 142.6(1)(a) or 149(10)(a), have ended within the 7-day period that ended immediately before that time,

(ii) within that 7-day period no person or group of persons acquired control of the corporation, and the corporation did not become or cease to be a Canadian-controlled private corporation, and

(iii) the corporation elects, in its return of income under Part I for that taxation year to have this paragraph apply; and

(d) for the purpose of determining the corporation's fiscal period after that time, the corporation is deemed not to have established a fiscal period before that time.

Related Provisions: 89(4) — General rate income pool addition on becoming CCPC; 89(8) — Low rate income pool addition on ceasing to be CCPC; 125(7)"Canadian-controlled private corporation"(d) — Election not to be CCPC for purposes of 249(3.1).

History: Subsec. 249(3.1) added by 2007, c. 2, s. 53, applicable to taxation years that end after 2005.

(4) Year end on change of control — Where at any time control of a corporation (other than a corporation that is a foreign affiliate of a taxpayer resident in Canada and that did not carry on a business in Canada at any time in its last taxation year beginning before that time) is acquired by a person or group of persons, for the purposes of this Act,

(a) subject to paragraph (c), the taxation year of the corporation that would, but for this paragraph, have included that time shall be deemed to have ended immediately before that time;

(b) a new taxation year of the corporation shall be deemed to have commenced at that time;

(c) subject to paragraph 128(1)(d), section 128.1, and paragraphs 142.6(1)(a) and 149(10)(a), and notwithstanding subsections (1) and (3), where the taxation year of the corporation that would, but for this subsection, have been its last taxation year that ended before that time would, but for this paragraph, have ended within the 7-day period that ended immediately before that time, that taxation year shall, except where control of the corporation was acquired by a person or group of persons within that period, be deemed to end immediately before that time where the corporation so elects in its return of income under Part I for that taxation year; and

(d) for the purpose of determining the corporation's fiscal period after that time, the corporation shall be deemed not to have established a fiscal period before that time.

Related Provisions: 139.1(18) — Holding corporation deemed not to acquire control of insurer on demutualization; 149(10) — Exempt corporations; 256(6)–(9) — Whether control acquired.

History: Para. 249(4)(c) amended by 1995, c. 21, s. 60, applicable after February 22, 1994. Para. (c) formerly read:

(c) subject to paragraph 128(1)(d), section 128.1 and paragraph 149(10)(a), and notwithstanding subsections (1) and (3), where the taxation year of the corporation that would, but for this subsection, have been its last taxation year that ended before that time would, but for this paragraph, have ended within the 7-day period that ended immediately before that time, that taxation year shall, except where control of the corporation was acquired by a person or group of persons within that period, be deemed to end immediately before that time where the corporation so elects in its return of income under Part I for that taxation year; and

Para. 249(4)(c) substituted by 1994, c. 21, s. 110, applicable after 1992 except that, where a corporation has elected in accordance with paragraph 111(4)(a) of 1994, c. 21 (see subsec. 250(5.1)), the amended para. applies to the time at which the corporation was first granted articles of continuation (or similar constitutional documents) in any jurisdiction. That para. formerly read:

(c) subject to paragraphs 88.1(c), 128(1)(d) and 149(10)(a), and notwithstanding subsections (1) and (3), where the taxation year of the corporation that would, but for this subsection, have been its last taxation year ending before that time and would, but for this paragraph, have ended within the seven day period ending immediately before that time, that taxation year shall, except where control of the corporation has been acquired by a person or group of persons within the seven day period ending immediately before that time, be deemed to end immediately before that time where the corporation so elects in its return of income under Part I for that taxation year; and

That portion of subsec. 249(4) preceding para. (a) substituted by 1994, c. 7, Sch. II (1991, c. 49), s. 193, applicable to acquisitions of control occurring after July 13, 1990. That portion formerly read:

(4) Deemed year end where change of control occurs — Where, at any time, control of a corporation has been acquired by a person or group of persons, the following rules apply:

Interpretation Bulletins: IT-151R5: Scientific research and experimental development expenditures; IT-302R3: Losses of a corporation — the effect that acquisitions of control, amalgamations, and windings-up have on their deductibility.

I.T. Technical News: 7 (control by a group — 50/50 arrangement).

Proposed Addition — 249(5), (6)

(5) Testamentary trusts — The period for which the accounts of a testamentary trust are made up for the purposes of an assessment under this Act may not exceed 12 months, and no change in the time when such a period ends may be made for the purposes of this Act without the concurrence of the Minister.

Technical Notes: New subsection 249(5) is added consequential on the repeal of paragraph 104(23)(a).

Subsection 249(5) provides that the period for which the accounts of a testamentary trust are made up for purposes of assessment under the Act may not exceed 12 months and that no change in the time when such a period ends may be made for the purposes of the Act without the concurrence of the Minister of National Revenue. The rule was previously found in paragraph 104(23)(a), which is being repealed.

This amendment applies after December 20, 2002. For a related set of amendments, see the commentary on paragraphs 104(23)(a) and (b) and subsection 249(1) and (1.1).

Related Provisions: 249(6) — Deemed year-end on loss of testamentary trust status.

(6) Loss of testamentary trust status — If at a particular time after December 20, 2002 a transaction or event, described in any of paragraphs (b) to (d) of the definition "testamentary trust" in subsection 108(1), occurs and as a result of that occurrence a trust or estate is not a testamentary trust, the following rules apply:

(a) the fiscal period for a business or property of the trust or estate that would, if this Act were read without reference to this subsection and those paragraphs, have included the particular time is deemed to have ended immediately before the particular time;

(b) the taxation year of the trust or estate that would, if this Act were read without reference to this subsection and those paragraphs, have included the particular time is deemed to have ended immediately before the particular time;

(c) a new taxation year of the trust or estate is deemed to have started at the particular time; and

(d) in determining the fiscal period for a business or property of the trust or estate after the particular time, the trust or estate is deemed not to have established a fiscal period before that time.

Application: Bill C-10 (Second Senate Reading Dec. 4, 2007; requires re-introduction) (2007, Part 2 — technical), subsec. 188(2), will add subsecs. 249(5) and (6), subsec. (5) applicable after December 20, 2002, and subsec. (6) applicable after July 18, 2005 and, if a trust or estate so elects in writing by filing the election with the Minister of National Revenue on or before its filing-due date for its taxation year in which Bill C-10 is assented to, it also applies to that trust or estate, as the case may be, after December 20, 2002.

Technical Notes: New subsection 249(6) provides a set of rules that apply where a trust or estate loses its status under the Act as a "testamentary trust". This loss of status will generally occur where property has been contributed or loaned to the trust or estate in circumstances described in any of paragraphs (b) to (d) of the definition "testamentary trust" in subsection 108(1) or where the trust or estate has been created by someone other than the deceased person on and as a consequence of whose death the trust or estate arose (in this regard, see paragraph (a) of that definition). Under the existing rules in the Act, where a transaction or event described in any of those paragraphs occurs at a particular time, the trust or estate will lose its status as a testamentary trust for its entire taxation year that would otherwise include that time. As a result, the trust will be treated as an inter vivos trust at all times after the end of its last taxation year, if any, throughout which it was a testamentary trust.

As such, its first taxation year after that last taxation year will be, given the definition "taxation year" in subsection 249(1), the calendar year.

New subsection 249(6) provides transitional relief for trusts or estates that lose their "testamentary trust" status. Under that subsection, if at a particular time after December 20, 2002 a transaction or event, described in any of paragraphs (b) to (d) of the definition "testamentary trust" in subsection 108(1), occurs and as a result of that occurrence a trust or estate is not a testamentary trust, a number of special rules apply in determining its taxation years and fiscal periods. (Note that a trust or estate that fails to qualify as a testamentary trust because of paragraph (a) of the definition "testamentary trust" will be an inter vivos trust from its creation and is, therefore, not in need of this transitional relief.) In particular,

- under paragraph 249(6)(a), the fiscal period, for a business or property of the trust or estate, that would, if the Act were read without reference to subsection 249(6) and paragraphs (b) to (d) of the definition "testamentary trust", have included the particular time, is deemed to have ended immediately before the particular time. Subsection 249.1(3) ensures that the next fiscal period starts at the particular time and subsection 249.1(1) requires that that next fiscal period end no later than the calendar year in which it began (i.e. the new taxation year) — this is because the trust would then have become an inter vivos trust.

- the taxation year of the trust or estate that would, if this Act were read without reference to this subsection and paragraphs (b) to (d) of the definition "testamentary trust", have included the particular time is deemed to have ended immediately before the particular time. As a result, the trust or estate maintains testamentary trust status until the offside event occurs.

- a new taxation year of the trust or estate is deemed to have started at the particular time.

- in determining the fiscal period for a business or property of the trust or estate after the particular time, the trust or estate is deemed not to have established a fiscal period before that time.

New subsection 249(6) applies after November 9, 2006. However, if a trust or estate elects in writing filed with the Minister of National Revenue on or before its filing-due date for its taxation year in which the subsection receives Royal Assent, it also applies to that trust or estate, as the case may be, after December 20, 2002.

Example:

Trust A was created on and as a consequence of the death of John Smith in 2004. Trust A has a November 30 year-end. For its 2004 and 2005 taxation years, Trust A is a testamentary trust. On April 15, 2006, Trust A becomes indebted to a beneficiary of the trust by way of an interest-free loan.

Results:

(i) Existing scheme of the Act

Because of paragraph (d) of the definition "testamentary trust", Trust A cannot qualify as a testamentary trust at any time in its taxation year that began December 1, 2005. Therefore, Trust A becomes an inter vivos trust effective December 1, 2005. Trust A would, as an inter vivos trust, have a December 31, 2005 year-end, with an April 1, 2006 filing-due date.

(ii) New Subsection 249(6)

Because of paragraph (d) of the definition "testamentary trust", Trust A cannot qualify as a testamentary trust. Its taxation year that began December 1, 2005 is deemed to have ended immediately before April 15, 2006 — that is to say, on April 14, 2006 (Assume that a reference to time in the legislation is to a day.) Therefore, Trust A maintains its status as a testamentary trust throughout the stub year that began on December 1, 2005 and ended on April 14, 2006. The trust would have 90 days from the end of that taxation year to file its return of income for the stub year. A new taxation year is deemed to begin April 15, 2006. As the April 15, 2006 loan occurs in the new taxation year, Trust A is an inter vivos trust throughout the new taxation year, which, accordingly, will end on December 31, 2006. As a result, Trust A is able to maintain testamentary trust status until the time immediately before the offside event. With respect to any late-filing for the stub year, relief may be available under the provisions in section 220.

249.1 (1) Definition of "fiscal period" — For the purposes of this Act, a "fiscal period" of a business or a property of a person or partnership means the period for which the person's or partnership's accounts in respect of the business or property are made up for purposes of assessment under this Act, but no fiscal period may end

(a) in the case of a corporation, more than 53 weeks after the period began,

(b) in the case of

(i) an individual (other than an individual to whom section 149 or 149.1 applies or a testamentary trust),

(i.1) a fiscal period of an inter vivos trust (other than a fiscal period to which paragraph 132.11(1)(c) applies),

(ii) a partnership of which

(A) an individual (other than a testamentary trust or an individual to whom section 149 or 149.1 applies),

(B) a professional corporation, or

(C) a partnership to which this subparagraph applies, would, if the fiscal period ended at the end of the calendar year in which the period began, be a member of the partnership in the period, or

(iii) a professional corporation that would, if the fiscal period ended at the end of the calendar year in which the period began, be in the period a member of a partnership to which subparagraph (ii) applies, after the end of the calendar year in which the period began unless, in the case of a business, the business is not carried on in Canada, is a prescribed business or is carried on by a prescribed person or partnership,

(c) in any other case, more than 12 months after the period began, and, for the purpose of this subsection, the activities of a person to whom section 149 or 149.1 applies are deemed to be a business.

(2) Not a member of a partnership — For the purpose of subparagraph (1)(b)(ii) and subsection (4), a person or partnership that would not have a share of any income or loss of a partnership for a fiscal period of the partnership, if the period ended at the end of the calendar year in which the period began, is deemed not to be a member of the partnership in that fiscal period.

Related Provisions: 96(1.01) — Income allocation to former partner.

(3) Subsequent fiscal periods — Where a fiscal period of a business or a property of a person or partnership ends at any time, the subsequent fiscal period, if any, of the business or property of the person or partnership is deemed to begin immediately after that time.

(4) Alternative method — Paragraph (1)(b) does not apply to a fiscal period of a business carried on, throughout the period of time that began at the beginning of the fiscal period and ended at the end of the calendar year in which the fiscal period began,

(a) by an individual (otherwise than as a member of a partnership), or

(b) by an individual as a member of a partnership, where throughout that period

(i) each member of the partnership is an individual, and

(ii) the partnership is not a member of another partnership,

where

(c) in the case of an individual

(i) who is referred to in paragraph (a), or

(ii) who is a member of a partnership no member of which is a testamentary trust, an election in prescribed form to have paragraph (1)(b) not apply is filed with the Minister by the individual on or before the individual's filing-due date, and with the individual's return of income under Part I, for the taxation year that includes the first day of the first fiscal period of the business that begins after 1994, and

(d) in the case of an individual who is a member of a partnership a member of which is a testamentary trust, an election in prescribed form to have paragraph (1)(b) not apply is filed with the Minister by the individual on or before the earliest of the filing-due dates of the members of the partnership for a taxation year that includes the first day of the first fiscal period of the business that begins after 1994.

Related Provisions: 34.1(1) — Additional income adjustment where election made; 96(1.01) — Income allocation to former partner; 96(1.1) — Allocation of share of income to retiring partner; 96(3) — Election by members of partnership; 249.1(5) — Alternative method not applicable to tax shelter; 249.1(6) — Revocation of election; Reg. 600(b.1) — Late filing of election by January 31, 1998.

(5) Alternative method not applicable to tax shelter investments — Subsection (4) does not apply to a particular fiscal period of a business where, in a preceding fiscal period or throughout the period of time that began at the beginning of the particular period and ended at the end of the calendar year in which the particular period began, the expenditures made in the course of carrying on the business were primarily the cost or capital cost of tax shelter investments (as defined in subsection 143.2(1)).

History: Subsec. 249.1(5) amended by 1998, c. 19, s. 240, applicable to fiscal periods that begin after 1994. Subsec. 249.1(5) formerly read:

(5) Alternative method not applicable to tax shelter — Subsection (4) does not apply to a particular fiscal period of a business where, in a preceding fiscal period or throughout the period of time that began at the beginning of the particular period and ended at the end of the calendar year in which the particular period began, the expenditures made in the course of carrying on the business were primarily the cost or capital cost of tax shelters (within the meaning assigned by subsection 237.1(1)).

(6) Revocation of election — Subsection (4) does not apply to fiscal periods of a business carried on by an individual that begin after the beginning of a particular taxation year of the individual where

(a) an election in prescribed form to revoke an election filed under subsection (4) in respect of the business is filed with the Minister; and

(b) the election to revoke is filed

(i) in the case of an individual

(A) who is not a member of a partnership, or

(B) who is a member of a partnership no member of which is a testamentary trust, by the individual on or before the individual's filing-due date, and with the individual's return of income under Part I, for the particular taxation year, and

(ii) in [the] case of an individual who is a member of a partnership a member of which is a testamentary trust, by the individual on or before the earliest of the filing-due dates of the members of the partnership for a taxation year that includes the first day of the first fiscal period of the business that begins after the beginning of the particular year.

Related Provisions: 96(3) — Election by members of partnership.

(7) Change of fiscal period — No change in the time when a fiscal period ends may be made for the purposes of this Act without the concurrence of the Minister.

Related Provisions: 87(2)(j.91), (qq) — Change in fiscal period after amalgamation; 149(10)(a) — Change in fiscal period on becoming or ceasing to be exempt; 249(4)(d) — Change in fiscal period allowed after change in control of corporation.

250. (1) Person deemed resident — For the purposes of this Act, a person shall, subject to subsection (2), be deemed to have been resident in Canada throughout a taxation year if the person

(a) sojourned in Canada in the year for a period of, or periods the total of which is, 183 days or more;

(b) was, at any time in the year, a member of the Canadian Forces;

(c) was, at any time in the year,

(i) an ambassador, minister, high commissioner, officer or servant of Canada, or

(ii) an agent-general, officer or servant of a province, and was resident in Canada immediately prior to appointment or employment by Canada or the province or received representation allowances in respect of the year;

(d) performed services, at any time in the year, in a country other than Canada under a prescribed international development assistance program of the Government of Canada and was resident in Canada at any time in the 3 month period preceding the day on which those services commenced;

(d.1) was, at any time in the year, a member of the overseas Canadian Forces school staff who filed his or her return for the year on the basis that the person was resident in Canada throughout the period during which the person was such a member;

(e) [Repealed]

(f) was at any time in the year a child of, and dependent for support on, an individual to whom paragraph (b), (c), (d) or (d.1) applies and the person's income for the year did not exceed the amount used under paragraph (c) of the description of B in subsection 118(1) for the year;

(g) was at any time in the year, under an agreement or a convention with one or more other countries that has the force of law in Canada, entitled to an exemption from an income tax otherwise payable in any of those countries in respect of income from any source (unless all or substantially all of the person's income from all sources was not so exempt), because at that time the person was related to or a member of the family of an individual (other than a trust) who was resident in Canada.

(6) Residence of international shipping corporation — For the purposes of this Act, a corporation that was incorporated or otherwise formed under the laws of a country other than Canada or of a state, province or other political subdivision of such a country shall be deemed to be resident in that country throughout a taxation year and not to be resident in Canada at any time in the year, where

(a) the corporation

(i) has as its principal business in the year the operation of ships that are used primarily in transporting passengers or goods in international traffic (determined on the assumption that the corporation is non-resident and that, except where paragraph (c) of the definition "international traffic" in subsection 248(1) applies, any port or other place on the Great Lakes or St. Lawrence River is in Canada), or

(ii) holds throughout the year shares of one or more other corporations, each of which

(A) is a subsidiary wholly-owned corporation of the corporation as defined by subsection 87(1.4), and

(B) is deemed by this subsection to be resident in a country other than Canada throughout the year, and at no time in the year is the total of the cost amounts to the corporation of all those shares less than 50% of the total of the cost amounts to it of all its property;

(b) all or substantially all of the corporation's gross revenue for the year consists of

(i) gross revenue from the operation of ships in transporting passengers or goods in that international traffic,

(ii) dividends from one or more other corporations each of which

(A) is a subsidiary wholly-owned corporation of the corporation, as defined by subsection 87(1.4), and

(B) is deemed by this subsection to be resident in a country other than Canada throughout each of its taxation years that began after February 1991 and before the last time at which it paid any of those dividends, or

(iii) a combination of amounts described in subparagraph (i) or (ii); and

(c) the corporation was not granted articles of continuance in Canada before the end of the year.

251. (1) Arm's length — For the purposes of this Act,

(a) related persons shall be deemed not to deal with each other at arm's length;

(b) a taxpayer and a personal trust (other than a trust described in any of paragraphs (a) to (e.1) of the definition "trust" in subsection 108(1)) are deemed not to deal with each other at arm's length if the taxpayer, or any person not dealing at arm's length with the taxpayer, would be beneficially interested in the trust if subsection 248(25) were read without reference to subclauses 248(25)(b)(iii)(A)(II) to (IV); and

(c) where paragraph (b) does not apply, it is a question of fact whether persons not related to each other are at a particular time dealing with each other at arm's length.

Proposed Amendment — 251(1)(c)

(c) in any other case, it is a question of fact whether persons not related to each other are, at a particular time, dealing with each other at arm's length.

Application: Bill C-10 (Second Senate Reading Dec. 4, 2007; requires re-introduction) (2007, Part 2 — technical), s. 189, will amend para. 251(1)(c) to read as above, applicable after December 23, 1998.

Technical Notes: Subsection 251(1) provides a set of rules that determine whether persons are considered, for the purposes of the Act, to deal with each other at arm's length. Paragraph 251(1)(a) deems related persons not to deal with each other at arm's length. Paragraph 251(1)(b) deems a taxpayer and a personal trust (other than a trust described in any of paragraphs (a) to (e.1) of the definition "trust" in subsection 108(1)) not to deal with each other at arm's length if the taxpayer, or any person not dealing at arm's length with the taxpayer, is beneficially interested in the trust. Paragraph 251(1)(c) provides that, where paragraph 251(1)(b) does not apply, it is a question of fact whether persons not related to each other are at a particular time dealing with each other at arm's length.

Paragraph 251(1)(c) is amended to clarify that it applies in any case where paragraphs (a) and (b) do not apply.

Related Provisions: 7(1.11) — Whether mutual fund trust at arm's length with corporation for purposes of stock option rules; 55(4) — Arm's length dealings; 55(5)(e) — Siblings deemed to deal at arm's length for purposes of s. 55; 66(17) — Non-arm's length partnerships; 84.1(2)(b), (d) — Non-arm's length sale of shares; 88(1)(d.2) — Whether parties dealing at arm's length for bump of cost base of property on windup of corporation; 94(15) — Application to non-resident trust rules; 94.1(2)(f) — Application to foreign investment entity rules; 95(2.1) — Whether taxpayer dealing with foreign affiliate at arm's length for certain purposes; 107.4(4) — Certain dispositions by trust deemed not at arm's length; 143.2(14) — Parties deemed not dealing at arm's length for tax shelter cost calculation where information located outside Canada; 212.1(3)(c) — Non-arm's length sales of shares by non-residents; 247 — Calculation of profit on non-arm's length transactions with non-residents (transfer pricing); 248(25) — Meaning of "beneficially interested"; Reg. 1102(20) — Taxpayers deemed at arm's length for certain purposes relating to depreciable property; Reg. 1204(1.2) — Whether partners and partnerships deal at arm's length for purposes of resource allowance.

History: Para. 251(1)(b) amended and para. (c) added by 2001, c. 17, s. 192, applicable after December 23, 1998, except that para. (b) shall, for the purpose of applying the definition "taxable Canadian property" in subsec. 248(1), not apply in respect of property acquired before December 24, 1998. Para. 251(1)(b) formerly read:

> (b) it is a question of fact whether persons not related to each other were at a particular time dealing with each other at arm's length.

(5) Control by related groups, options, etc. — For the purposes of subsection (2) and the definition "Canadian-controlled private corporation" in subsection 125(7),

(a) where a related group is in a position to control a corporation, it shall be deemed to be a related group that controls the corporation whether or not it is part of a larger group by which the corporation is in fact controlled;

(b) where at any time a person has a right under a contract, in equity or otherwise, either immediately or in the future and either absolutely or contingently,

(i) to, or to acquire, shares of the capital stock of a corporation or to control the voting rights of such shares, the person shall, except where the right is not exercisable at that time because the exercise thereof is contingent on the death, bankruptcy or permanent disability of an individual, be deemed to have the same position in relation to the control of the corporation as if the person owned the shares at that time,

(ii) to cause a corporation to redeem, acquire or cancel any shares of its capital stock owned by other shareholders of the corporation, the person shall, except where the right is not exercisable at that time because the exercise thereof is contingent on the death, bankruptcy or permanent disability of an individual, be deemed to have the same position in relation to the control of the corporation as if the shares were so redeemed, acquired or cancelled by the corporation at that time,

(iii) to, or to acquire or control, voting rights in respect of shares of the capital stock of a corporation, the person is, except where the right is not exercisable at that time because its exercise is contingent on the death, bankruptcy or permanent disability of an individual, deemed to have the same position in relation to the control of the corporation as if the person could exercise the voting rights at that time, or

(iv) to cause the reduction of voting rights in respect of shares, owned by other shareholders, of the capital stock of a corporation, the person is, except where the right is not exercisable at that time because its exercise is contingent on the death, bankruptcy or permanent disability of an individual, deemed to have the same position in relation to the control of the corporation as if the voting rights were so reduced at that time; and

(c) where a person owns shares in two or more corporations, the person shall as shareholder of one of the corporations be deemed to be related to himself, herself or itself as shareholder of each of the other corporations.

"majority-interest beneficiary", of a trust at any time, means a person whose interest as a beneficiary, if any, at that time

(a) in the income of the trust has, together with the interests as a beneficiary in the income of the trust of all persons with whom the person is affiliated, a fair market value that is greater than 50% of the fair market value of all the interests as a beneficiary in the income of the trust; or

(b) in the capital of the trust has, together with the interests as a beneficiary in the capital of the trust of all persons with whom the person is affiliated, a fair market value that is greater than 50% of the fair market value of all the interests as a beneficiary in the capital of the trust.

"majority-interest group of beneficiaries", of a trust at any time, means a group of persons each of whom is a beneficiary under the trust at that time such that

(a) if one person held the interests as a beneficiary of all of the members of the group, that person would be a majority-interest beneficiary of the trust; and

(b) if any member of the group were not a member, the test described in paragraph (a) would not be met.

"majority-interest group of partners" of a partnership means a group of persons each of whom has an interest in the partnership such that

(a) if one person held the interests of all members of the group, that person would be a majority interest partner of the partnership; and

(b) if any member of the group were not a member, the test described in paragraph (a) would not be met.

History: The definitions "beneficiary", "contributor", "majority-interest beneficiary" and "majority-interest group of beneficiaries" added to subsec. 251.1(3) by 2005, c. 19, subsec. 54(2), applicable in determining whether persons are, at any time after March 22, 2004, affiliated.

Subsec. 251.1(3) added by 1998, c. 19, s. 243, applicable after April 26, 1995.

(4) Interpretation — For the purposes of this section,

(a) persons are affiliated with themselves;

(b) a person includes a partnership;

(c) notwithstanding subsection 104(1), a reference to a trust does not include a reference to the trustee or other persons who own or control the trust property; and

(d) in determining whether a person is affiliated with a trust,

(i) if the amount of income or capital of the trust that a person may receive as a beneficiary under the trust depends on the exercise by any person of, or the failure by any person to exercise, a discretionary power, that person is deemed to have fully exercised, or to have failed to exercise, the power, as the case may be,

(ii) the interest of a person in a trust as a beneficiary is disregarded in determining whether the person deals at arm's length with the trust if the person would, in the absence of the interest as a beneficiary, be considered to deal at arm's length with the trust,

(iii) a trust is not a majority interest beneficiary of another trust unless the trust has an interest as a beneficiary in the income or capital, as the case may be, of the other trust, and

(iv) in determining whether a contributor to one trust is affiliated with a contributor to another trust, individuals connected by blood, marriage, common-law partnership or adoption are deemed to be affiliated with one another.

History: Paras. 251.1(4)(c) and (d) added by 2005, c. 19, subsec. 54(3), applicable in determining whether persons are, at any time after March 22, 2004, affiliated, except that para. (d) is to be read without reference to subpara. (iv) in determining whether persons are, before September 16, 2004, affiliated.

Subsec. 251.1(4) added by 1998, c. 19, s. 243, applicable after April 26, 1995.

(3) Extended meaning of "spouse" and "former spouse" — For the purposes of paragraph 56(1)(b), section 56.1, paragraphs 60(b) and (j), section 60.1, subsections 70(6) and (6.1), 73(1) and (5) and 104(4), (5.1) and (5.4), the definition "pre-1972 spousal trust" in subsection 108(1), subsection 146(16), the definition "survivor" in subsection 146.2(1), subparagraph 146.3(2)(f)(iv), subsections 146.3(14), 147(19), 147.3(5) and (7) and 148(8.1) and (8.2), the definition "small business property" in subsection 206(1), the definition "qualifying transfer" in subsection 207.01(1), and subsections 210(1) and 248(22) and (23), "spouse" and "former spouse" of a particular individual include another individual who is a party to a void or voidable marriage with the particular individual.

Application: Bill C-10 (Second Senate Reading Dec. 4, 2007; requires re-introduction) (2007, Part 2 — technical), s. 190, will amend subsec. 252(3) to replace "subparagraph 210(c)(ii) and subsections 248(22) and (23)" with "subsections 210(1) and 248(22) and (23)", applicable to 1996 et seq. Note: amendments made by S.C. 2008, c. 28 (Bill C-50, Royal Assent June 18, 2008), s. 35, adding reference to 146.2(1) and 207.01 applicable to 2009 et seq., are incorporated in the final version above, per s. 42 of said c. 28.

Technical Notes: Subsection 252(3) extends the meaning of the terms "spouse" and "former spouse" to include, for a number of purposes, a party to a void or voidable marriage.

The provision is amended consequential on amendments to Part XII.2 of the Act, which add a new reference to "spouse" in the definition "designated income" and maintain the existing references to "spouse" and "former spouse" in the definition "designated beneficiary" in subsection 210(1). For more detail, see the commentary on subsection 210(1).

Technical Notes (April 2008): Coordinating Amendments — [former] Bill C-10

Bill C-10, introduced in the 2nd session of the 39th Parliament and entitled the Income Tax Amendments Act, 2006, includes a number of measures that enact or amend provisions that are also the subject of the present enactment. If both are enacted, it will be necessary to ensure that the changes to those provisions are coordinated. This is accomplished through a series of technical coordinating amendments in the present enactment. . . .

The coordinating amendment in clause 42 ensures that the present enactment modifies the correct version of subsection 252(3), which provides extended meanings of "spouse" and "former spouse" for a number of purposes under that Act. Bill C-10 includes a change to one of the statutory references in the subsection, while the present enactment adds a reference in relation to the TFSA rules [146.2 and 207.01 — ed.]. Clause 42 ensures that both of these will operate as intended, regardless of the order of the two enactments.

Related Provisions: 147.1(1) — RPP — Definition of spouse; Reg. 8500(5) — Rule in 252(3) applies to Regs. 8500–8520.

History: References to "the definition "survivor" in subsection 146.2(1)" and "the definition "qualifying transfer" in subsection 207.01(1)" added to subsec. 252(3) in numerical order by 2008, c. 28, s. 35, applicable to 2009 et seq.

Subsec. 252(3) amended by 2005, c. 33, subsec. 12(3) to delete "of the opposite sex" and to replace "voidable or void" with "void or voidable", in force on July 20, 2005 (Royal Assent).

Subsec. 252(3) amended by 2003, c. 15, s. 89, applicable after 2003. The subsec. formerly read:

(3) For the purposes of paragraphs 56(1)(b) and (c), section 56.1, paragraphs 60(b), (c) and (j), section 60.1, subsections 70(6) and (6.1), 73(1) and (5) and 104(4), (5.1) and (5.4), the definition "pre-1972 spousal trust" in subsection 108(1), subsection 146(16), subparagraph 146.3(2)(f)(iv), paragraph 146.3(14)(b), subsections 147.3(5) and (7) and 148(8.1) and (8.2), the definition "small business property" in subsection 206(1), subparagraph 210(c)(ii) and subsections 248(22) and (23), "spouse" and "former spouse" of a particular individual include another individual of the opposite sex who is a party to a voidable or void marriage with the particular individual.

Subsec. 252(3) amended to add the words "the definition "small business property" in subsection 206(1)" by 2000, c. 19, s. 69, applicable to 1998 et seq.

Subsec. 252(3) amended by 1994, c. 7, Sch. VIII (1993, c. 24), subsec. 140(2), applicable to 1991 et seq. Subsec. (3) formerly read:

(3) For the purposes of paragraphs 56(1)(b) and (c), section 56.1, paragraphs 60(b), (c) and (j), section 60.1, subsections 73(1) and 146(16), subparagraph 146.3(2)(f)(iv), paragraph 146.3(14)(b), subsections 147.3(5) and (7) and 148(8.1) and (8.2), subparagraph 210(c)(ii) and subsections 248(22) and (23), "spouse" and "former spouse" include a party to a voidable or void marriage, as the case may be.

Subsec. 252(3) substituted by 1994, c. 7, Sch. II (1991, c. 49), s. 196, applicable after 1989. Subsec. 252(3) formerly read:

(3) For the purposes of paragraphs 56(1)(b) and (c), section 56.1, paragraphs 60(b), (c) and (j), section 60.1, subsections 73(1) and 146(16), subparagraph 146.3(2)(f)(iv), paragraph 146.3(14)(b), subsections 147.3(5) and (7) and 148(8) and subparagraph 210(c)(ii), "spouse" and "former spouse" include a party to a voidable or void marriage, as the case may be.

253.1 Investments in limited partnerships [deemed not carrying on business] — For the purposes of subparagraph 108(2)(b)(ii), paragraphs 130.1(6)(b), 131(8)(b) and 132(6)(b), subsection 146.2(4), paragraphs 146.4(5)(b) and 149(1)(o.2), the definition "private holding corporation" in subsection 191(1) and regulations made for the purposes of paragraphs 149(1)(o.3) and (o.4), if a trust or corporation holds an interest as a member of a partnership and, by operation of any law governing the arrangement in respect of the partnership, the liability of the member as a member of the partnership is limited, the member shall not, solely because of its acquisition and holding of that interest, be considered to carry on any business or other activity of the partnership.

253.1 Investments in limited partnerships [deemed not carrying on business] — For the purposes of subparagraph 108(2)(b)(ii), paragraphs 130.1(6)(b), 131(8)(b), 132(6)(b) and 146.1(2.1)(c), subsection 146.2(4), paragraphs 146.4(5)(b) and 149(1)(o.2), the definition "private holding corporation" in subsection 191(1) and regulations made for the purposes of paragraphs 149(1)(o.3) and (o.4), if a trust or corporation holds an interest as a member of a partnership and, by operation of any law governing the arrangement in respect of the partnership, the liability of the member as a member of the partnership is limited, the member shall not, solely because of its acquisition and holding of that interest, be considered to carry on any business or other activity of the partnership.

Application: S.C. 2007, c. 35 (Bill C-28, Royal Assent December 14, 2007), s. 134, will add reference to para. 146.1(2.1)(c) to s. 253.1 once Bill C-10 (Second Senate Reading Dec. 4, 2007; requires re-introduction) (2007, Part 1 — NRTs and FIEs), subsec. 191(1), receives Royal Assent, applicable in respect of 2008 et seq. Note: amendments made by S.C. 2008, c. 28 (Bill C-50, Royal Assent June 18, 2008), s. 36, adding reference to 146.2(4) applicable to 2009 et seq., are incorporated in the final version above, per s. 43 of said c. 28.

Technical Notes (Nov. 2006 to Bill C-33): Section 253.1 applies for specified provisions of the Act and Regulations where a trust or corporation holds an interest as a limited partnership. It provides that the trust or corporation will not, solely because of its acquisition and holding of the limited partnership interest, be considered to carry on any business or other activity of the partnership.

Section 253.1 is amended so that it also applies for the purpose of paragraph 146.1(2.1)(c), which provides that the registration of a registered education savings plan (RESP) is revocable if a trust governed by the plan carries on a business. The amendment to section 253.1 ensures that the acquisition and holding of a limited partnership interest by an RESP trust does not jeopardize the registered status of the plan, provided the interest is a qualified investment for the trust.

Bill C-10, introduced in the 2nd session of the 39th Parliament and entitled the Income Tax Amendments Act, 2006, includes a number of measures that enact or amend provisions that are also the subject of the present enactment. If both are enacted, it will be necessary to ensure that the changes to those provisions are coordinated. This is accomplished through a series of technical coordinating amendments in the present enactment. . .

Clause 43 performs a comparable function [to that of clause 42; see Technical Notes to proposed amendment to 252(3) above — ed.] in respect of amendments to section 253.1, which treats the mere acquisition and holding of a limited partnership interest as not constituting the carrying on of the partnership's business for certain purposes of that Act.

253.1 Investments in limited partnerships — For the purposes of subparagraph 108(2)(b)(ii), paragraphs 130.1(6)(b), 131(8)(b) and 132(6)(b), subsection 146.2(6), paragraphs 146.4(5)(b) and 149(1)(o.2), the definition "private holding corporation" in subsection 191(1) and regulations made for the purposes of paragraphs 149(1)(o.3) and (o.4), if a trust or corporation holds an interest as a member of a partnership and, by operation of any law governing the arrangement in respect of the partnership, the liability of the member as a member of the partnership is limited, the member shall not, solely because of its acquisition and holding of that interest, be considered to carry on any business or other activity of the partnership.

Application: Bill C-10 (First Reading Feb. 6, 2009), s. 77, will amend s. 253.1 to read as above, applicable to 2009 et seq.

Technical Notes (Dec. 2008): Section 253.1 provides that, for specified provisions of the Act and Regulations (including subsection 146.2(4) relating to tax-free savings accounts), a trust or corporation will not, solely because of its acquisition and holding of an interest as a limited partner in a limited partnership, be considered to carry on any business or other activity of the partnership. Section 253.1 is amended to reflect the renumbering of subsection 146.2(4) as subsection 146.2(6).

History: S. 253.1 amended to substitute "131(8)(b) and 132(6)(b), subsection 146.2(4), paragraphs 146.4(5)(b)" for "131(8)(b), 132(6)(b), 146.4(5)(b)" by 2008, c. 28, s. 36, applicable to 2009 et seq.

S. 253.1 amended to substitute "132(6)(b), 146.4(5)(b)" for "132(6)(b)" and "if a trust" for "where a trust" by 2007, c. 35, s. 124, applicable to 2008 et seq.

S. 253.1 added by 2001, c. 17, s. 193, applicable after 1992, except that for taxation years that end after December 16, 1999 and before 2003, the section shall be read as follows:

> 253.1 For the purposes of subparagraph 108(2)(b)(ii), paragraphs 130.1(6)(b), 131(8)(b), 132(6)(b) and 149(1)(o.2), the definition "private holding corporation" in subsection 191(1) and regulations made for the purposes of paragraphs 149(1)(o.3) and (o.4), where a trust or corporation is a member of a partnership and, by operation of any law governing the arrangement in respect of the partnership, the liability of the member as a member of the partnership is limited, the member is deemed
> (a) to undertake an investing of its funds because of its acquisition and holding of its interest as a member of the partnership; and
> (b) not to carry on any business or other activity of the partnership.

(1.1) Definition of "specified class" — For the purposes of subsection (1), "specified class" means a class of shares of the capital stock of a corporation where, under the terms or conditions of the shares or any agreement in respect thereof,

(a) the shares are not convertible or exchangeable;

(b) the shares are non-voting;

(c) the amount of each dividend payable on the shares is calculated as a fixed amount or by reference to a fixed percentage of an amount equal to the fair market value of the consideration for which the shares were issued;

(d) the annual rate of the dividend on the shares, expressed as a percentage of an amount equal to the fair market value of the consideration for which the shares were issued, cannot in any event exceed,

(i) where the shares were issued before 1984, the rate of interest prescribed for the purposes of subsection 161(1) at the time the shares were issued, and

(ii) where the shares were issued after 1983, the prescribed rate of interest at the time the shares were issued; and

(e) the amount that any holder of the shares is entitled to receive on the redemption, cancellation or acquisition of the shares by the corporation or by any person with whom the corporation does not deal at arm's length cannot exceed the total of an amount equal to the fair market value of the consideration for which the shares were issued and the amount of any unpaid dividends thereon.

(1.2) Control, etc. — For the purposes of this subsection and subsections (1), (1.1) and (1.3) to (5),

(a) a group of persons in respect of a corporation means any two or more persons each of whom owns shares of the capital stock of the corporation;

(b) for greater certainty,

(i) a corporation that is controlled by one or more members of a particular group of persons in respect of that corporation shall be considered to be controlled by that group of persons, and

(ii) a corporation may be controlled by a person or a particular group of persons notwithstanding that the corporation is also controlled or deemed to be controlled by another person or group of persons;

(c) a corporation shall be deemed to be controlled by another corporation, a person or a group of persons at any time where

(i) shares of the capital stock of the corporation having a fair market value of more than 50% of the fair market value of all the issued and outstanding shares of the capital stock of the corporation, or

(ii) common shares of the capital stock of the corporation having a fair market value of more than 50% of the fair market value of all the issued and outstanding common shares of the capital stock of the corporation are owned at that time by the other corporation, the person or the group of persons, as the case may be;

(d) where shares of the capital stock of a corporation are owned, or deemed by this subsection to be owned, at any time by another corporation (in this paragraph referred to as the "holding corporation"), those shares shall be deemed to be owned at that time by any shareholder of the holding corporation in a proportion equal to the proportion of all those shares that

(i) the fair market value of the shares of the capital stock of the holding corporation owned at that time by the shareholder

is of

(ii) the fair market value of all the issued shares of the capital stock of the holding corporation outstanding at that time;

(e) where, at any time, shares of the capital stock of a corporation are property of a partnership, or are deemed by this subsection to be owned by the partnership, those shares shall be deemed to be owned at that time by each member of the partnership in a proportion equal to the proportion of all those shares that

(i) the member's share of the income or loss of the partnership for its fiscal period that includes that time

is of

(ii) the income or loss of the partnership for its fiscal period that includes that time and for this purpose, where the income and loss of the partnership for its fiscal period that includes that time are nil, that proportion shall be computed as if the partnership had had income for that period in the amount of $1,000,000;

(f) where shares of the capital stock of a corporation are owned, or deemed by this subsection to be owned, at any time by a trust,

(i) in the case of a testamentary trust under which one or more beneficiaries were entitled to receive all of the income of the trust that arose before the date of death of one or the last surviving of those beneficiaries (in this paragraph referred to as the "distribution date") and no other person could, before the distribution date, receive or otherwise obtain the use of any of the income or capital of the trust,

(A) where any such beneficiary's share of the income or capital therefrom depends on the exercise by any person of, or the failure by any person to exercise, any discretionary power, those shares shall be deemed to be owned at any time before the distribution date by the beneficiary, and

(B) where clause (A) does not apply, those shares shall be deemed to be owned at any time before the distribution date by any such beneficiary in a proportion equal to the proportion of all those shares that the fair market value of the beneficial interest in the trust of the beneficiary is of the fair market value of the beneficial interests in the trust of all those beneficiaries,

(ii) where a beneficiary's share of the accumulating income or capital therefrom depends on the exercise by any person of, or the failure by any person to exercise, any discretionary power, those shares shall be deemed to be owned at that time by the beneficiary, except where subparagraph (i) applies and that time is before the distribution date,

(iii) in any case where subparagraph (ii) does not apply, a beneficiary shall be deemed at that time to own the proportion of those shares that the fair market value of the beneficial interest in the trust of the beneficiary is of the fair market value of all beneficial interests in the trust, except where subparagraph (i) applies and that time is before the distribution date, and,

(iv) in the case of a trust referred to in subsection 75(2), the person referred to in that subsection from whom property of the trust or property for which it was substituted was directly or indirectly received shall be deemed to own those shares at that time; and

(g) in determining the fair market value of a share of the capital stock of a corporation, all issued and outstanding shares of the capital stock of the corporation shall be deemed to be non-voting.

(1.4) Options and rights — For the purpose of determining whether a corporation is associated with another corporation with which it is not otherwise associated, where a person or any partnership in which the person has an interest has a right at any time under a contract, in equity or otherwise, either immediately or in the future and either absolutely or contingently,

(a) to, or to acquire, shares of the capital stock of a corporation, or to control the voting rights of shares of the capital stock of a corporation, the person or partnership shall, except where the right is not exercisable at that time because the exercise thereof is contingent on the death, bankruptcy or permanent disability of an individual, be deemed to own the shares at that time, and the shares shall be deemed to be issued and outstanding at that time; or

(b) to cause a corporation to redeem, acquire or cancel any shares of its capital stock owned by other shareholders of a corporation, the person or partnership shall, except where the right is not exercisable at that time because the exercise thereof is contingent on the death, bankruptcy or permanent disability of an individual, be deemed at that time to have the same position in relation to control of the corporation and ownership of shares of its capital stock as if the shares were redeemed, acquired or cancelled by the corporation.

History: Subsec. 256(1.4) amended by 1994, c. 7, Sch. II (1991, c. 49), subsec. 198(2), applicable retroactively to its introduction (see History note to subsec. (1.6)). Subsec. (1.4) formerly read:

> (1.4) For the purposes of determining if a corporation is associated at any time with any other corporation that is controlled, directly or indirectly in any manner whatever, by a person, or by a group of persons of which the person is a member, where the person, or any partnership in which the person has an interest, has a right at any time under contract, in equity or otherwise, either immediately or in the future and either absolutely or contingently,
> (a) to, or to acquire, shares of the capital stock of the corporation, or to control the voting rights of shares of the capital stock of the corporation, the person or partnership shall, except where the contract provides that the right is not exercisable until the death, bankruptcy or permanent disability of an individual designated therein, be deemed to own the shares at that time and the shares shall be deemed to be issued and outstanding at that time; or
> (b) to cause the corporation to redeem, acquire or cancel any shares of its capital stock owned by other shareholders of the corporation, the person or partnership shall, except where the contract provides that the right is not exercisable until the death, bankruptcy or permanent disability of an individual designated therein, be deemed at that time to have had the same position in relation to control of the corporation and ownership of shares of its capital stock as if the shares were redeemed, acquired or cancelled by the corporation.

Interpretation Bulletins: IT-64R4: Corporations: association and control.

(1.5) Person related to himself, herself or itself — For the purposes of subsections (1) to (1.4) and (1.6) to (5), where a person owns shares in two or more corporations, the person shall as shareholder of one of the corporations be deemed to be related to himself, herself or itself as shareholder of each of the other corporations.

Related Provisions: 256(1.2) — Control, etc.

Interpretation Bulletins: IT-64R4: Corporations: association and control.

(1.6) Exception — For the purposes of subsection (1.2) and notwithstanding subsection (1.4), any share that is

(a) described in paragraph (e) of the definition "term preferred share" in subsection 248(1) during the applicable time referred to in that paragraph, or shall be deemed not to have been issued and outstanding and not to be owned by any shareholder and an amount equal to the greater of the paid-up capital of the share and the amount, if any, that any holder of the share is entitled to receive on the redemption, cancellation or acquisition of the share by the corporation shall be deemed to be a liability of the corporation.

(b) a share of a specified class within the meaning of subsection (1.1)

Related Provisions: 256(1.2) — Control, etc.; 256(1.5) — Person deemed related to self.

(2) Corporations associated through a third corporation — Where two corporations

(a) would, but for this subsection, not be associated with each other at any time, and

(b) are associated, or are deemed by this subsection to be associated, with the same corporation (in this subsection referred to as the "third corporation") at that time, they shall, for the purposes of this Act, be deemed to be associated with each other at that time, except that, for the purposes of section 125, where the third corporation is not a Canadian-controlled private corporation at that time or elects, in prescribed form, for its taxation year that includes that time not to be associated with either of the other two corporations, the third corporation shall be deemed not to be associated with either of the other two corporations in that taxation year and its business limit for that taxation year shall be deemed to be nil.

(2.1) Anti-avoidance — For the purposes of this Act, where, in the case of two or more corporations, it may reasonably be considered that one of the main reasons for the separate existence of those corporations in a taxation year is to reduce the amount of taxes that would otherwise be payable under this Act or to increase the amount of refundable investment tax credit under section 127.1, the two or more corporations shall be deemed to be associated with each other in the year.

(3) Saving provision — Where one corporation (in this subsection referred to as the "controlled corporation") would, but for this subsection, be associated with another corporation in a taxation year by reason of being controlled, directly or indirectly in any manner whatever, by the other corporation or by reason of both of the corporations being controlled, directly or indirectly in any manner whatever, by the same person at a particular time in the year (which corporation or person so controlling the controlled corporation is in this subsection referred to as the "controller") and it is established to the satisfaction of the Minister that

(a) there was in effect at the particular time an agreement or arrangement enforceable according to the terms thereof, under which, on the satisfaction of a condition or the happening of an event that it is reasonable to expect will be satisfied or happen, the controlled corporation will

(i) cease to be controlled, directly or indirectly in any manner whatever, by the controller, and

(ii) be or become controlled, directly or indirectly in any manner whatever, by a person or group of persons, with whom or with each of the members of which, as the case may be, the controller was at the particular time dealing at arm's length, and

(b) the purpose for which the controlled corporation was at the particular time so controlled was the safeguarding of rights or interests of the controller in respect of

(i) any indebtedness owing to the controller the whole or any part of the principal amount of which was outstanding at the particular time, or

(ii) any shares of the capital stock of the controlled corporation that were owned by the controller at the particular time and that were, under the agreement or arrangement, to be redeemed by the controlled corporation or purchased by the person or group of persons referred to in subparagraph (a)(ii), the controlled corporation and the other corporation with which it would otherwise be so associated in the year shall be deemed, for the purpose of this Act, not to be associated with each other in the year.

(4) Saving provision — Where one corporation would, but for this subsection, be associated with another corporation in a taxation year by reason of both of the corporations being controlled by the same executor, liquidator of a succession or trustee and it is established to the satisfaction of the Minister

(a) that the executor, liquidator or trustee did not acquire control of the corporations as a result of one or more estates or trusts created by the same individual or two or more individuals not dealing with each other at arm's length, and

(b) that the estate or trust under which the executor, liquidator or trustee acquired control of each of the corporations arose only on the death of the individual creating the estate or trust, the two corporations are deemed, for the purposes of this Act, not to be associated with each other in the year.

History: Subsec. 256(4) amended by 2001, c. 17, s. 231, in force June 14, 2001. Subsec. 256(4) formerly read:

(4) Where one corporation would, but for this subsection, be associated with another corporation in a taxation year by reason of both of the corporations being controlled by the same trustee or executor and it is established to the satisfaction of the Minister

(a) that the trustee or executor did not acquire control of the corporations as a result of one or more trusts or estates created by the same individual or two or more individuals not dealing with each other at arm's length, and

(b) that the trust or estate under which the trustee or executor acquired control of each of the corporations arose only on the death of the individual creating the trust or estate, the two corporations shall be deemed, for the purposes of this Act, not to be associated with each other in the year.

(5) Idem — Where one corporation would, but for this subsection, be associated with another corporation in a taxation year, by reason only that the other corporation is a trustee under a trust pursuant to which the corporation is controlled, the two corporations shall be deemed, for the purposes of this Act, not to be associated with each other in the year unless, at any time in the year, a settlor of the trust controlled or is a member of a related group that controlled the other corporation that is the trustee under the trust.

(5.1) Control in fact — For the purposes of this Act, where the expression "controlled, directly or indirectly in any manner whatever," is used, a corporation shall be considered to be so controlled by another corporation, person or group of persons (in this subsection referred to as the "controller") at any time where, at that time, the controller has any direct or indirect influence that, if exercised, would result in control in fact of the corporation, except that, where the corporation and the controller are dealing with each other at arm's length and the influence is derived from a franchise, licence, lease, distribution, supply or management agreement or other similar agreement or arrangement, the main purpose of which is to govern the relationship between the corporation and the controller regarding the manner in which a business carried on by the corporation is to be conducted, the corporation shall not be considered to be controlled, directly or indirectly in any manner whatever, by the controller by reason only of that agreement or arrangement.

(E) a corporation on a distribution (within the meaning assigned by subsection 55(1)) by a specified corporation (within the meaning assigned by that subsection) if a dividend, to which subsection 55(2) does not apply because of paragraph 55(3)(b), is received in the course of the reorganization in which the distribution occurs,

Application: Bill C-10 (Second Senate Reading Dec. 4, 2007; requires re-introduction) (2007, Part 2 — technical), subsec. 192(2), will add cl. 256(7)(a)(i)(E), applicable to acquisitions of shares that occur after 2000.

Technical Notes: Paragraph 256(7)(a) describes the circumstances where control of a corporation (or a corporation controlled by the corporation) is considered not to have been acquired for the purposes of certain provisions of the Act. That paragraph is amended in two ways.

First, subparagraph 256(7)(a)(i) is amended effective with respect to the acquisition of shares after 2000 to add clause (E) which precludes an acquisition of control of a corporation on a distribution (within the meaning assigned by subsection 55(1)) by a specified corporation (within the meaning assigned by that subsection) if a dividend is received in the course of a spin-off distribution in which no portion of the dividend is treated as a capital gain by the anti-avoidance rule in subsection 55(2) because of the application of the exception for certain reorganizations under paragraph 55(3)(b).

Example:

Facts:

Pubco is a specified corporation under the butterfly rules in section 55 and a person or group of persons does not control it. Pubco owns all of the shares of Subco. In the course of a distribution (as defined by subsection 55(1)), Pubco distributes the Subco shares to Newco, which is established in the course of the reorganization for the purposes of the distribution. The same shareholders that own all of the shares of Pubco own all of the shares of Newco. Because there is no person or group of persons that control Pubco and Newco, an acquisition of control of Subco would occur upon Newco's acquisition of the Subco shares on the distribution despite the fact the same shareholders own Pubco and Newco.

Application:

In this example, new clause 256(7)(a)(i)(E) provides that there is no acquisition of control of Subco by Newco if Pubco's distribution of its Subco shares to Newco is a distribution to which the anti-avoidance rule in subsection 55(2) does not apply because the distribution complies with the exception in paragraph 55(3)(b).

Second, new subparagraph 256(7)(a)(iii), which applies to the acquisition of shares after 2000, provides that, where there is an acquisition of any shares of a corporation, there is no acquisition of control of the corporation by a related group of persons if each member of each group of persons that controls the corporation was related to the corporation immediately before the change of control.

Example:

Facts:

Corporation X has issued 100 common shares with 1 vote per share. There are no other issued shares. Mr. X owns 51% of Corporation X's issued shares. Ms. D who is the daughter of Mr. X owns 49% of the common shares issued by Corporation X. Mr. X has de jure control of Corporation X.

Mr. X disposes of 10 shares of Corporation X to Mr. Z, an arm's length person. Consequently, Mr. X no longer has de jure control, and a group of persons acquires de jure control of Corporation X.

Application:

If Mr. X and Ms. D form a related group of persons that otherwise acquires control of Corporation X upon the disposition of shares by Mr. X, new subparagraph 256(7)(a)(iii) deems no acquisition of control if no other group of persons that includes Mr. Z acquires control of Corporation X. It is a question of fact whether Mr. X and Ms. D form a group of persons that would otherwise acquire control of Corporation X and, if so, whether there exists another group of persons that also acquires control. Depending on the circumstances, Mr. X and Ms. D; Mr. X and Mr. Z; Ms. D and Mr. Z; or Mr. X, Ms. D and Mr. Z could form a group of persons that acquires control of Corporation X. Consequently, new subparagraph 256(7)(a)(iii) applies only if, in this example, Mr. X and Ms. D form a group of persons that control Corporation X and there exists no other group of persons (which includes Mr. Z) that acquires control of Corporation X.

Letter from Dept. of Finance, July 3, 2001:

Dear [xxx]

This is in reply to your firm's letters of December 22, 2000, January 24 and 31, February 5, 9 and 23, 2001, and telephone conversations with members of this Division regarding the application of section 55 of the Income Tax Act (the "Act") to a proposed Canadian public corporation spin-off.

You have expressed the concern that the mechanics of a public spin-off butterfly under paragraph 55(3)(b) of the Act should not, by and of themselves, result in any acquisition of control on a "no types of property" Canadian public corporation spin-off. As well, you are concerned that certain shares referred to below should not be considered to be taxable Canadian property for the purposes of the Act. I propose to address each matter separately.

Acquisition of Control

Under paragraph 55(3)(b) of the Act, a Canadian public corporation ("Pubco") will spin-off the shares of its subsidiary corporation ("Subco") to a newly created public corporation ("Newco"). We understand that, pursuant to a Plan of Arrangement, the shareholders of Pubco will exchange their common shares for common shares and "special" shares of Pubco. Pubco shareholders will transfer to Newco, in exchange for common shares of Newco, their special Pubco shares, which have a total value equal to the value of the Subco shares owned by Pubco. Pubco will transfer all of its Subco shares to Newco in consideration for preferred shares of Newco. There will be a cross repurchase of the special Pubco shares held by Newco and the Newco preferred shares held by Pubco. Pubco will be a "specified corporation" within the meaning of subsection 55(1) of the Act in relation to the distribution of the shares of Subco.

Your concern is that Newco will acquire control of Subco on the acquisition of the Subco shares from Pubco, with the result that the acquisition of control and successor rules under the Act will apply to Subco after its acquisition by Newco.

We agree there should not be an acquisition of control and the successor rules of the Act should not apply to the acquisition of the Subco shares by Newco in the circumstances you describe provided the spin-off of Subco is not subsequently tainted. In this regard therefore we will recommend to the Minister of Finance that the Act be amended to ensure there is no acquisition of control in these circumstances.

In particular, we will recommend an amendment [now 256(7)(a)(i)(E) — ed.] which will provide that where Pubco, a "specified corporation" within the meaning of subsection 55(1) of the Act, spins off its shares of Subco to Newco in the course of a reorganization in which all the dividends that are received are ones to which paragraph 55(3)(b) of the Act applies, control of Subco will be considered not to have been acquired solely as a result of the acquisition of the Subco shares by Newco. We will also recommend that such an amendment be effective for acquisitions made after 2000. If the recommendation is acted upon, we anticipate that such an amendment would be included in a future technical bill.

Taxable Canadian Property

As well, because of subparagraph 115(l)(b)(iv) of the Act, the special shares of Pubco that will be acquired by a non-resident shareholder of Pubco pursuant to a Plan of Arrangement will be considered to be taxable Canadian property for the purposes of the Act. Under the provisions of sections 85 and 85.1 of the Act, the taxable Canadian property status of the special shares issued by Pubco will cause the Newco shares acquired by the non-resident in exchange for the non-resident's special shares of Pubco to be taxable Canadian property of the non-resident even though the Newco shares will be listed on a prescribed stock exchange. As well, the special shares of Pubco will not be excluded property for the purpose of subsection 116(3) of the Act because the definition "excluded property" in subsection 116(6) applies in the case of shares of the capital stock of a corporation only if the shares are listed on a prescribed stock exchange.

In these circumstances, we agree that the Newco shares should not be considered to be taxable Canadian property by reason only of a deeming rule that applies on the exchange of the special shares for the Newco shares (i.e., because subparagraph 115(1)(b)(iv) applied before the exchange to the special shares of Newco). Consequently, we will recommend to the Minister of Finance that the Act be amended [now 55(6) — ed.] to ensure that the above-mentioned special shares of Pubco held by a non-resident shareholder will not be considered to be taxable Canadian property of the non-resident in these circumstances for the purposes of the Act. We will recommend that such an amendment be effective for such special shares issued by a public corporation after April 26, 1995 where the shares are issued by the corporation as part of the series of transactions or events that includes a distribution of property by the corporation in the course of a butterfly reorganization. The date of April 26, 1995 is the date upon which the related amendments to paragraph 115(l)(b) took effect. If the recommendation is acted upon, we anticipate that such an amendment would be included in a future technical bill.

Yours sincerely,

Brian Ernewein, Director, Tax Legislation Division, Tax Policy Branch

(ii) the redemption or cancellation at any particular time of, or a change at any particular time in the rights, privileges, restrictions or conditions attaching to, shares of the particular corporation or of a corporation controlling the particular corporation, where each person and each member of each group of persons that controls the particular corporation immediately after the particular time was related (otherwise than because of a right referred to in paragraph 251(5)(b)) to the corporation

(A) immediately before the particular time, or

(B) immediately before the death of a person, where the shares were held immediately before the particular time by an estate that acquired the shares because of the person's death;

Proposed Addition — 256(7)(a)(iii)

(iii) the acquisition at any time of shares of the particular corporation if

(A) the acquisition of those shares would otherwise result in the acquisition of control of the particular corporation at that time by a related group of persons, and

(B) each member of each group of persons that controls the particular corporation at that time was related (otherwise than because of a right referred to in paragraph 251(5)(b)) to the particular corporation immediately before that time;

Application: Bill C-10 (Second Senate Reading Dec. 4, 2007; requires re-introduction) (2007, Part 2 — technical), subsec. 192(3), will add subpara. 256(7)(a)(iii), applicable to acquisitions of shares that occur after 2000.

Technical Notes: See under 256(7)(a)(i)(E) above.

(b) where at any time 2 or more corporations (each of which is referred to in this paragraph as a "predecessor corporation") have amalgamated to form one corporate entity (in this paragraph referred to as the "new corporation"),

(i) control of a corporation is deemed not to have been acquired by any person or group of persons solely because of the amalgamation unless it is deemed by subparagraph (ii) or (iii) to have been so acquired,

(ii) a person or group of persons that controls the new corporation immediately after the amalgamation and did not control a predecessor corporation immediately before the amalgamation is deemed to have acquired immediately before the amalgamation control of the predecessor corporation and of each corporation it controlled immediately before the amalgamation (unless the person or group of persons would not have acquired control of the predecessor corporation if the person or group of persons had acquired all the shares of the predecessor corporation immediately before the amalgamation), and

(iii) control of a predecessor corporation and of each corporation it controlled immediately before the amalgamation is deemed to have been acquired immediately before the amalgamation by a person or group of persons

(A) unless the predecessor corporation was related (otherwise than because of a right referred to in paragraph 251(5)(b)) immediately before the amalgamation to each other predecessor corporation,

(B) unless, if one person had immediately after the amalgamation acquired all the shares of the new corporation's capital stock that the shareholders of the predecessor corporation, or of another predecessor corporation that controlled the predecessor corporation, acquired on the amalgamation in consideration for their shares of the predecessor corporation or of the other predecessor corporation, as the case may be, the person would have acquired control of the new corporation as a result of the acquisition of those shares, or

(C) unless this subparagraph would, but for this clause, deem control of each predecessor corporation to have been acquired on the amalgamation where the amalgamation is an amalgamation of

(I) two corporations, or

(II) two corporations (in this subclause referred to as the "parents") and one or more other corporations (each of which is in this subclause referred to as a "subsidiary") that would, if all the shares of each subsidiary's capital stock that were held immediately before the amalgamation by the parents had been held by one person, have been controlled by that person;

(c) subject to paragraph (a), where 2 or more persons (in this paragraph referred to as the "transferors") dispose of shares of the capital stock of a particular corporation in exchange for shares of the capital stock of another corporation (in this paragraph referred to as the "acquiring corporation"), control of the acquiring corporation and of each corporation controlled by it immediately before the exchange is deemed to have been acquired at the time of the exchange by a person or group of persons unless

(i) the particular corporation and the acquiring corporation were related (otherwise than because of a right referred to in paragraph 251(5)(b)) to each other immediately before the exchange, or

(ii) if all the shares of the acquiring corporation's capital stock that were acquired by the transferors on the exchange were acquired at the time of the exchange by one person, the person would not control the acquiring corporation;

(d) where at any time shares of the capital stock of a particular corporation are disposed of to another corporation (in this paragraph referred to as the "acquiring corporation") for consideration that includes shares of the acquiring corporation's capital stock and, immediately after that time, the acquiring corporation and the particular corporation are controlled by a person or group of persons who

(i) controlled the particular corporation immediately before that time, and

(ii) did not, as part of the series of transactions or events that includes the disposition, cease to control the acquiring corporation, control of the particular corporation and of each corporation controlled by it immediately before that time is deemed not to have been acquired by the acquiring corporation solely because of the disposition; and

(e) where at any time all the shares of the capital stock of a particular corporation are disposed of to another corporation (in this paragraph referred to as the "acquiring corporation") for consideration that consists solely of shares of the acquiring corporation's capital stock and, immediately after that time,

(i) the acquiring corporation is not controlled by any person or group of persons, and

(ii) the fair market value of the shares of the capital stock of the particular corporation is not less than 95% of the fair market value of all the assets of the acquiring corporation, control of the particular corporation and of each corporation controlled by it immediately before that time is deemed not to have been acquired by the acquiring corporation solely because of the disposition.

Proposed Amendment — 256(7)(e)

(e) control of a particular corporation and of each corporation controlled by it immediately before a particular time is deemed not to have been acquired at the particular time by a corporation (in this paragraph referred to as the "acquiring corporation") if at the particular time, the acquiring corporation acquires shares of the particular corporation's capital stock for consideration that consists solely of shares of the acquiring corporation's capital stock, and if

(i) immediately after the particular time

(A) the acquiring corporation owns all the shares of each class of the particular corporation's capital stock (determined without reference to shares of a specified class, within the meaning assigned by paragraph 88(1)(c.8)),

(B) the acquiring corporation is not controlled by any person or group of persons, and

(C) the fair market value of the shares of the particular corporation's capital stock that are owned by the acquiring corporation is not less than 95% of the fair market value of all of the assets of the acquiring corporation, or

(ii) any of clauses (i)(A) to (C) do not apply and the acquisition occurs as part of a plan of arrangement that, on completion, results in

(A) the acquiring corporation (or a new corporation that is formed on an amalgamation of the acquiring corporation and a subsidiary wholly-owned corporation of the acquiring corporation) owning all the shares of each class of the particular corporation's capital stock (determined without reference to shares of a specified class, within the meaning assigned by paragraph 88(1)(c.8)),

(B) the acquiring corporation (or the new corporation) not being controlled by any person or group of persons, and

(C) the fair market value of the shares of the particular corporation's capital stock that are owned by the acquiring corporation (or the new corporation) being not less than 95% of the fair market value of all of the assets of the acquiring corporation (or the new corporation).

Application: Bill C-10 (Second Senate Reading Dec. 4, 2007; requires re-introduction) (2007, Part 2 — technical), subsec. 192(4), will amend para. 256(7)(e) to read as above, applicable in respect of shares acquired after 1999.

Technical Notes: Paragraph 256(7)(e) provides that, where certain conditions are satisfied, control of a particular corporation will be considered not to have been acquired solely because of a disposition of all of the shares of the particular corporation for consideration consisting solely of shares of the acquiring corporation. These conditions include a requirement that, immediately after the disposition, the acquiring corporation is not controlled by a person or group of persons and that the fair market value of the shares of the particular corporation is not less than 95% of the fair market value of all of the assets of the acquiring corporation.

Paragraph 256(7)(e) is amended, for shares acquired after 1999, to ensure that it applies on the acquisition of any shares of the capital stock of the particular corporation by the acquiring corporation if, immediately after the acquisition, the acquiring corporation owns all of the shares of the capital stock of the particular corporation (other than shares of a specified class) and the 95% test is met. This provision is also amended to deem control not to be acquired if shares of the particular corporation are acquired as part of a plan of arrangement and, upon completion of the arrangement, the acquiring corporation owns all the shares of the capital stock of the particular corporation (other than shares of a specified class) and the 95% test is met. Thus, amended paragraph 256(7)(e) may apply in circumstances where the acquiring corporation owns shares of the capital stock of the particular corporation before the acquisition being examined. In addition, amended paragraph 256(7)(e) excludes shares of a specified class, as defined in paragraph 88(1)(c.8), from the determination of whether the acquiring corporation has acquired all of the shares of the particular corporation. Shares of a specified class are excluded on the basis that they are non-voting securities similar to debt and should not be considered in determining whether control has been acquired for the purpose of paragraph 256(7)(e).

This amendment also ensures that, in circumstances where the acquisition occurs as part of a plan of arrangement, the acquiring corporation includes a new corporation formed on an amalgamation of the acquiring corporation and a subsidiary controlled corporation of the acquiring corporation. As a result, paragraph 256(7)(e) may apply to a situation where the acquiring corporation owns shares of the particular corporation indirectly through a subsidiary controlled corporation if the acquiring corporation and the subsidiary controlled corporation are amalgamated as part of a plan of arrangement that includes the acquisition.

Proposed Addition — 256(7)(f)

(f) if a particular trust is the only beneficiary of another trust, the particular trust is described in paragraph (c) of the definition "SIFT trust wind-up event", the particular trust would, in the absence of this paragraph, acquire control of a corporation solely because of a SIFT trust wind-up event that is a distribution of shares of the capital stock of the corporation by the other trust, and the other trust controlled the corporation immediately before the distribution, the particular trust is deemed not to acquire control of the corporation because of the distribution.

Application: Bill C-10 (First Reading Feb. 6, 2009), subsec. 78(1), will add para. 256(7)(f), applicable after July 14, 2008.

Technical Notes (Dec. 2008): Subsection 256(7) sets out rules for determining in special circumstances whether there has been an acquisition of control for the purposes of certain provisions of the Act.

New paragraph 256(7)(f) is introduced as one of a series of amendments intended to provide for the income tax effects on a reorganization into corporate form of a SIFT wind-up entity. Paragraph 256(7)(f) applies in respect of the distribution by a trust

("the distributing trust") of property to another trust ("the particular trust"), where the property distributed is shares of the capital stock of a corporation and the distribution qualifies as a "SIFT trust wind-up event" (newly defined in subsection 248(1)). Paragraph 256(7)(f) responds to the possibility that, if control of the corporation is determined to be with the trustees of the distributing trust, the distribution could result in an acquisition of control of the corporation by the trustees of the particular trust. Under paragraph 256(7)(f) the particular trust is deemed, if certain additional conditions are met, not to acquire control of the corporation solely because of the distribution.

The additional conditions that must be met in order for paragraph 256(7)(f) to apply are that:

- the corporation be controlled by the trustees of the distributing trust immediately before the distribution;
- the particular trust be the only beneficiary under the distributing trust;
- the particular trust be described in paragraph (c) of the new definition "SIFT trust wind-up event" in subsection 248(1) (in effect, the particular trust be a SIFT wind-up entity or a trust the only beneficiary of which is another trust that is a SIFT wind-up entity); and
- the particular trust would, in the absence of paragraph 256(7)(f), have acquired control of the corporation on the SIFT trust wind-up event.

(9) Date of acquisition of control — For the purposes of this Act, where control of a corporation is acquired by a person or group of persons at a particular time on a day, control of the corporation shall be deemed to have been acquired by the person or group of persons, as the case may be, at the commencement of that day and not at the particular time unless the corporation elects in its return of income under Part I filed for its taxation year ending immediately before the acquisition of control not to have this subsection apply.

Proposed Amendment — 256(9)

(9) Date of acquisition of control — For the purposes of this Act, other than for the purposes of determining if a corporation is, at any time, a small business corporation or a Canadian-controlled private corporation, where control of a corporation is acquired by a person or group of persons at a particular time on a day, control of the corporation shall be deemed to have been acquired by the person or group of persons, as the case may be, at the beginning of that day and not at the particular time unless the corporation elects in its return of income under Part I filed for its taxation year that ends immediately before the acquisition of control not to have this subsection apply.

Application: Bill C-10 (First Reading Feb. 6, 2009), subsec. 78(2), will amend subsec. 256(9) to read as above, applicable in respect of an acquisition of control of a corporation that occurs after 2005, other than in respect of such an acquisition of control that occurs before January 28, 2009 and in respect of which the taxpayer elects in writing, filed with the Minister of National Revenue on or before the taxpayer's filing-due date for the taxpayer's 2009 taxation year, that the amendment not apply.

A taxpayer is deemed to have made the election described above in respect of an acquisition of control of a corporation that occurs before January 28, 2009 if it can reasonably be considered, having regard to a return of income, notice of objection, or notice of appeal, filed or served by the taxpayer under the Act before January 28, 2009, that the taxpayer has interpreted and applied subsection 256(9) for the purposes of determining if the corporation was a small business corporation or a Canadian-controlled private corporation at the time of the transfer of shares of the corporation that caused the acquisition of control to occur.

Federal Budget, Notice of Ways and Means Motion, Jan. 27, 2009: Acquisition of Control of a Corporation

(18) That subsection 256(9) of the Act not apply for the purposes of determining if a corporation is, at any time, a small business corporation or a Canadian-controlled private corporation (CCPC), and that

(a) this paragraph apply in respect of acquisitions of control of a corporation that occur after 2005, other than in respect of such an acquisition of control that occurs before January 28, 2009 in respect of which the taxpayer elects on or before the taxpayer's filing-due date for the taxpayer's 2009 taxation year that this measure not apply; and

(b) a taxpayer be deemed to have made the election described in subparagraph (a) in respect of an acquisition of control of a corporation if it can reasonably be considered that the position taken in respect of the acquisition of control in a return of income, notice of objection or notice of appeal filed or served under the Act before January 28, 2009 relies upon an interpretation of that subsection of the Act to the effect that the subsection applies for the purposes of determining if the corporation was a small business corporation or a CCPC at the time of the transfer of shares of the corporation that caused the acquisition of control to occur.

Federal Budget, Supplementary Information, Jan. 27, 2009: Acquisition of Control of a Corporation — Time of Acquisition

The Income Tax Act provides for various tax consequences, for example, constraints on the ability of a corporation to carry-over unclaimed losses and other amounts, in circumstances where control of a corporation has been acquired. In this regard, control of a corporation is generally deemed to have been acquired at the beginning of the day on which control of the corporation was acquired, instead of at the particular time of that day at which the transaction that caused the acquisition of control occurs. This deeming rule facilitates certain computations, such as the valuation of inventory and other tax pools that are required to be calculated as the result of an acquisition of control.

The application of this deeming rule was interpreted in a 2006 Federal Court of Appeal decision [La Survivance v. R., [2007] 1 C.T.C. 189 (FCA) — ed.] as being limited strictly to the issue of control: in circumstances where control of a corporation was acquired by a purchaser as a result of a transfer of shares of the corporation to the purchaser from a vendor, control of the corporation was considered to have been relinquished by the vendor at the beginning of the day of the transfer, but the ownership of the shares was considered to have been retained by the vendor until the actual time of the transfer. This interpretation can produce anomalies in relation to the vendor's entitlement to claim certain tax benefits that depend on who has control of the corporation at the time of the transfer.

For example, where a Canadian-resident individual transfers shares of a Canadian-controlled private corporation (CCPC) that is a small business corporation, gains on the disposition normally qualify for the $750,000 Lifetime Capital Gains Exemption (LCGE) [110.6(2.1) — ed.]. However, under this interpretation control of the corporation is considered to have been acquired as at the beginning of the day of the transfer, not at the actual time of the transfer. If the purchaser is, for instance, non-resident, the corporation will no longer be considered to be Canadian-controlled at the actual time of the transfer, and the vendor will not be entitled to claim the LCGE.

Budget 2009 therefore proposes that the deeming rule regarding the timing of an acquisition of control of a corporation be amended to ensure that it does not affect the status of a corporation as a CCPC at the time of the transaction that caused the change of control.

This amendment will apply in respect of acquisitions of control that occur after 2005 except that it will not apply to a taxpayer in respect of such an acquisition of control that occurs before January 28, 2009 if the taxpayer so elects on or before the taxpayer's filing-due date for the taxpayer's 2009 taxation year. A taxpayer shall be deemed to have made such an election if it may reasonably be considered that the position taken in the taxpayer's return of income filed before January 28, 2009 relies upon the reasoning in the court decision.

(2) Deemed dividend on term preferred share — Notwithstanding subsection 15(3), an amount paid or payable after 1978 as interest on or as an amount in lieu of interest in respect of

(a) any interest or dividend payable after November 16, 1978 on an income bond or an income debenture issued before November 17, 1978 or pursuant to an agreement in writing made before that date, or shall, for the purposes of subsections 112(2.1) and 138(6), be deemed to be a dividend received on a term preferred share.

(b) a dividend that became payable or in arrears after November 16, 1978 on a share of the capital stock of a corporation that is not a term preferred share by reason of having been issued before November 17, 1978 or pursuant to an agreement in writing made before that date,

(3) Deemed interest on preferred shares — Subject to subsection (4), for the purposes of paragraphs 12(1)(c) and (k) and sections 113 and 126, each amount that is a dividend received in a taxation year on

(a) a term preferred share by a specified financial institution resident in Canada from a corporation not resident in Canada, or

(b) any other share that

(i) is a grandfathered share, or

(ii) was issued before 8:00 p.m. Eastern Daylight Saving Time, June 18, 1987 and is not deemed by subsection 112(2.22) to have been issued after that time by a corporation from a corporation not resident in Canada, if the dividend would have been a dividend in respect of which no deduction could have been made under subsection 112(1) or (2) or 138(6) because of subsection 112(2.2) of the Income Tax Act, chapter 148 of the Revised Statutes of Canada, 1952, as it read on June 17, 1987, if the corporation that paid the dividend were a taxable Canadian corporation shall be deemed to be interest received in the year and not a dividend received on a share of the capital stock of a corporation.

259. (1) Proportional holdings in trust property — For the purposes of subsections 146(6), (10) and (10.1), 146.2(4) and 146.3(7), (8) and (9) and Parts X, X.2 and XI to XI.1, if at any time a taxpayer that is a registered investment or that is described in any of paragraphs 149(1)(r), (s), (u) to (u.2) or (x) acquires, holds or disposes of a particular unit in a qualified trust and the qualified trust elects for any period that includes that time to have this subsection apply,

259. (1) Proportional holdings in trust property — For the purposes of subsections 146(6), (10) and (10.1), 146.1(2.1), 146.2(4) and 146.3(7), (8) and (9) and Parts X, X.2 and XI to XI.1, if at any time a taxpayer that is a registered investment or that is described in any of paragraphs 149(1)(r), (s), (u) to (u.2) or (x) acquires, holds or disposes of a particular unit in a qualified trust and the qualified trust elects for any period that includes that time to have this subsection apply,

Application: Bill C-10 (Second Senate Reading Dec. 4, 2007; requires re-introduction) (2007, Part 2 — technical), s. 193, will amend the opening words of subsec. 259(1) to add reference to subsec. 146.1(2.1), applicable to 2000 et seq., except that in their application to taxation years that begin before 2005, the opening words are to be read as follows:

> 259. (1) For the purposes of subsections 146(6), (10) and (10.1), 146.1(2.1) and 146.3(7), (8) and (9) and Parts X, X.2, XI and XI.1, if at any time a taxpayer described in section 205 acquires, holds or disposes of a particular unit in a qualified trust and the qualified trust elects for any period that includes that time to have this subsection apply,

Note: amendments made by S.C. 2008, c. 28 (Bill C-50, Royal Assent June 18, 2008), s. 37, applicable to 2009 et seq., are incorporated in the final version above, per s. 44 of said c. 28.

Technical Notes: Subsection 259(1) provides a "look-through" rule that applies to certain taxpayers (including trusts governed by RRSPs) that acquire units of a "qualified trust". If the qualified trust so elects, each taxpayer is deemed to acquire, hold and dispose of its proportionate interest in the underlying assets of the qualified trust. This rule can benefit a taxpayer where the direct investment in the units of the qualified trust would constitute a non-qualified investment. By "looking through" to the underlying assets of the qualified trust, a taxpayer may be able to reduce or eliminate the tax penalties that result from holding non-qualified investments.

Subsection 259(1) is amended so that it applies for the purpose of the registration rules for registered education savings plans (RESPs). Under subsection 146.1(2.1), the registration of an RESP is revocable if a trust governed by the plan holds a non-qualified investment. This amendment will permit an RESP trust to make a direct investment in a qualified trust that is itself a non-qualified investment, without jeopardizing the registered status of the RESP, provided the qualified trust restricts its holdings to qualified investments.

Bill C-10, introduced in the 2nd session of the 39th Parliament and entitled the Income Tax Amendments Act, 2006, includes a number of measures that enact or amend provisions that are also the subject of the present enactment. If both are enacted, it will be necessary to ensure that the changes to those provisions are coordinated. This is accomplished through a series of technical coordinating amendments in the present enactment. . . .

Clause 44 ensures the correct interaction of amendments in the two enactments to section 259, which provides a "look-through" rule that applies to registered plan trusts that acquire units of a "qualified trust".

Application: Bill C-10 (First Reading Feb. 6, 2009), s. 79, will amend the opening words of subsec. 259(1) (as amended by Bill C-10 — see above) to substitute "146.2(6)" for "146.2(4)", applicable to 2009 et seq.

Technical Notes (Dec. 2008): Subsection 259(1), which is the main substantive element of the section 259 "look-through", is amended to reflect the renumbering of subsection 146.2(4) as subsection 146.2(6).

(a) the taxpayer shall be deemed not to acquire, hold or dispose of at that time, as the case may be, the particular unit;

(b) where the taxpayer holds the particular unit at that time, the taxpayer shall be deemed to hold at that time that proportion (referred to in this subsection as the "specified portion") of each property (in this subsection referred to as a "relevant property") held by the trust at that time that one (or, where the particular unit is a fraction of a whole unit, that fraction) is of the number of units of the trust outstanding at that time;

(c) [Repealed]

(d) where that time is the later of

(i) the time the trust acquires the relevant property, and

(ii) the time the taxpayer acquires the particular unit,

the taxpayer shall be deemed to acquire the specified portion of a relevant property at that time;

(e) where that time is the time the specified portion of a relevant property is deemed by paragraph (d) to have been acquired, the fair market value of the specified portion of the relevant property at that time shall be deemed to be the specified portion of the fair market value of the relevant property at the time of its acquisition by the trust;

(f) where that time is the time immediately before the time the trust disposes of a particular relevant property, the taxpayer shall be deemed to dispose of, immediately after that time, the specified portion of the particular relevant property for proceeds equal to the specified portion of the proceeds of disposition to the trust of the particular relevant property;

(g) where that time is the time immediately before the time the taxpayer disposes of the particular unit, the taxpayer shall be deemed to dispose of, immediately after that time, the specified portion of each relevant property for proceeds equal to the specified portion of the fair market value of that relevant property at that time; and

(h) where the taxpayer is deemed because of this subsection

(i) to have acquired a portion of a relevant property as a consequence of the acquisition of the particular unit by the taxpayer and the acquisition of the relevant property by the trust, and

(ii) subsequently to have disposed of the specified portion of the relevant property, the specified portion of the relevant property shall, for the purposes of determining the consequences under this Act of the disposition and without affecting the proceeds of disposition of the specified portion of the relevant property, be deemed to be the portion of the relevant property referred to in subparagraph (i).

(2) [Repealed]

(3) Election — An election by a qualified trust under subsection (1) shall be made by the qualified trust filing a prescribed form with the Minister and shall apply for the period

(a) that begins on the later of

(i) the day that is 15 months before the day on which the election is filed, and

(ii) the day, if any, that is designated by the qualified trust in the election; and

(b) that ends on the earlier of

(i) the day on which the qualified trust files with the Minister a notice of revocation of the election, and

(ii) the day, if any, that is designated by the qualified trust in the notice of revocation and that is not before the day that is 15 months before the day on which the notice of revocation is filed.

Interpretation Bulletins: IT-412R2: Foreign property of registered plans.

Forms: T1024: Election to deem a proportional holding in qualified trust/corporate property.

(4) Requirement to provide information — Where a qualified trust elects under subsection (1),

(a) it shall provide notification of the election

(i) within 30 days after making the election, to each person who held a unit in the qualified trust at any time in the period before the election was made and during which the election is applicable, and

(ii) at the time of acquisition, to each person who acquires a unit in the qualified trust at any time in the period after the election was made and during which the election is applicable; and

(b) if a person who holds a unit in the qualified trust at any time in the period during which the election is applicable makes a written request to the qualified trust for information that is necessary for the purpose of determining the consequences under this Act of the election for that person, the qualified trust shall provide to the person that information within 30 days after receiving the request.

(5) Definitions — In this section,

"qualified corporation" — [Repealed]

"qualified trust" at any time means a trust (other than a registered investment or a trust that is prescribed to be a small business investment trust) where

(a) each trustee of the trust at that time is a corporation that is licensed or otherwise authorized under the laws of Canada or a province to carry on in Canada the business of offering to the public its services as a trustee or a person who is a trustee of a trust governed by a registered pension plan,

(b) all the interests of the beneficiaries under the trust at that time are described by reference to units of the trust all of which are at that time identical to each other,

(c) it has never before that time borrowed money except where the borrowing was for a term not exceeding 90 days and the borrowing was not part of a series of loans or other transactions and repayments, and

(d) it has never before that time accepted deposits.

Related Provisions: 149(1)(o.4) — No tax payable by master trust; 248(10) — Series of transactions; 248(12) — Identical properties.

Regulations: 5103 (prescribed small business investment trust; needs to be amended to apply for 259(5) rather than 259(3)).

History [s. 259]: The opening words of subsec. 259(1) amended by 2008, c. 28, s. 37, applicable to 2009 et seq. The opening words formerly read:

(1) For the purposes of subsections 146(6), (10) and (10.1) and 146.3(7), (8) and (9) and Parts X, X.2 and XI.1, if at any time a taxpayer that is a registered investment or that is described in paragraph 149(1)(r), (s), (u) or (x) acquires, holds or disposes of a particular unit in a qualified trust and the qualified trust elects for any period that includes that time to have this subsection apply,

Opening words of subsec. 259(1) amended by 2005, c. 30, subsec. 18(1), applicable to taxation years that begin after 2004. The opening words formerly read:

For the purposes of subsections 146(6), (10) and (10.1) and 146.3(7), (8) and (9) and Parts X, X.2, XI and XI.1, where at any time a taxpayer described in section 205 acquires, holds or disposes of a particular unit in a qualified trust and the trust elects for any period that includes that time to have the provisions of this subsection apply,

Para. 259(1)(c) and subsec. 259(2) repealed by the said c. 30, subsecs. 18(2), (3), applicable to taxation years that begin after 2004. The para. and subsec. formerly read:

(c) the cost amount to the taxpayer at that time of the specified portion of a relevant property shall be deemed to be equal to the specified portion of the cost amount at that time to the trust of the relevant property;

. . . . .

(2) Proportional holdings in corporate property — Subsection (1) applies to an election by a qualified corporation as if

(a) the reference to "a qualified trust" were read as "the capital stock of a qualified corporation";

(b) the references to "unit" were read as "share"; and

(c) the references to "the trust" were read as "the corporation".

Subsecs. 259(3) and (4) amended by the said c. 30, subsec. 18(4), applicable to taxation years that begin after 2004. The subsecs. formerly read:

(3) The election by a trust or a corporation (in this subsection referred to as the "elector") under subsection (1) shall be made by the elector filing a prescribed form with the Minister and shall apply for the period beginning 15 months before the day of filing thereof (or such later time as the elector designates in its election) and ending at such time as the election is revoked by the elector filing with the Minister a notice of revocation (or at such earlier time within the 15-month period before the day on which the notice of revocation is filed with the Minister as the elector designates in its notice of revocation).

(4) Where a trust or a corporation elects under subsection (1),

(a) it shall, not more than 30 days after making the election, notify each person who, before the election is made and during the period for which the election is made, held a unit in the trust or a share in the capital stock of the corporation, as the case may be, of the election; and

(b) where any person who holds such a unit or share during the period for which the election is made makes a written request to the trust or the corporation for information that is necessary for the purpose of determining the consequences under this Act of the election for that person, the trust or the corporation, as the case may be, shall provide the person with that information not more than 30 days after the receipt of the request.

The definition "qualified corporation" in subsecs. 259(5) amended by the said c. 30, subsec. 18(5), applicable to taxation years that begin after 2004. The definition formerly read:

"qualified corporation" at any time means a corporation described in paragraph 149(1)(o.2) where, at that time,

(a) all the issued and outstanding shares of the capital stock of the corporation are identical to each other, or

(b) all the issued and outstanding shares of the capital stock of the corporation are held by one person;

S. 259 substituted by 1994, c. 21, s. 115, subsecs. (1), (3) and (5) applicable to periods occurring after 1985, subsec. (2) applicable to periods occurring after 1991, and subsec. (4) applicable to elections made after December 21, 1992. That section formerly read:

259. (1) Proportional holdings in trust property — For the purposes of subsections 146(6), (10) and (10.1) and 146.3(7) to (9) and Parts X, X.2, XI and XI.1 of this Act and subsections 146.2(12), (13) and (14) of the Income Tax Act, chapter 148 of the Revised Statutes of Canada, 1952, where at any time a taxpayer described in section 205 acquires, holds or disposes of an interest in a qualified trust and the trust elects for any period that includes that time to have the provisions of this subsection apply, the taxpayer shall be deemed

(a) not to acquire, hold or dispose of at that time, as the case may be, that interest in the trust;

(b) to hold at that time that proportion (in this subsection referred to as the taxpayer's "specified portion") of each property of the trust that the number of units of the trust held by the taxpayer at that time is of the number of units of the trust outstanding at that time, and the cost amount to the trust of the taxpayer's specified portion of each such property shall be deemed to be the cost amount to the taxpayer of the taxpayer's specified portion of the property;

(c) to acquire the taxpayer's specified portion of each property of the trust at the later of

(i) the date the trust acquires the property, and

(ii) the date the taxpayer acquires the interest in the trust, and the fair market value, at the time of acquisition by the taxpayer, of the taxpayer's specified portion of the property shall be deemed to be the fair market value of that specified portion of the property at the time of its acquisition by the trust; and

(d) to dispose of the taxpayer's specified portion of each property of the trust at the earlier of

(i) the date the trust disposes of the property, and

(ii) the date the taxpayer disposes of the interest in the trust for proceeds equal to,

(iii) where subparagraph (i) applies, the proceeds of disposition to the trust of the taxpayer's specified portion of the property, and

(iv) where subparagraph (ii) applies, the fair market value, immediately before the disposition of the interest, of the taxpayer's specified portion of the property.

(2) Election — The election by a trust under subsection (1) shall be made by the trust filing a prescribed form with the Minister and shall be applicable in respect of the period commencing 15 months before the date of filing thereof (or such later time as the trust may designate in its election) and ending at such time as the election is revoked by the trust filing with the Minister a notice of revocation (or at such earlier time within the 15 month period immediately preceding the date on which the notice of revocation is filed with the Minister as the trust may designate in its notice of revocation).

(3) Definition of "qualified trust" — In this section, "qualified trust" means a trust, other than a registered investment or a trust that is prescribed to be a small business investment trust, where

(a) each trustee of the trust is a corporation that is licensed or otherwise authorized under the laws of Canada or a province to carry on in Canada the business of offering to the public its services as trustee or a person who is a trustee of a trust governed by a registered pension fund or plan;

(b) the interests of the beneficiaries under the trust are described by reference to units of the trust that are identical in all respects and any difference between the interest in the trust of each beneficiary and the interest in the trust of each other beneficiary is dependent solely on the difference in the number of units held by those beneficiaries;

(c) it has never borrowed money except where the borrowing was for a term not exceeding 90 days and was not part of a series of loans or other transactions and repayments;

(d) it has never accepted deposits; and

(e) it complies with prescribed conditions.

Para. 259(3)(c) amended by 1994, c. 7, Sch. VIII (1993, c. 24), s. 142, applicable to borrowings occurring after 1990. Para. (3)(c) formerly read:

(c) it has never borrowed money;

Proposed Addition — 260(1)"dealer compensation payment"

"dealer compensation payment" means an amount received by a taxpayer as compensation, for an underlying payment,

(a) from a registered securities dealer resident in Canada who paid the amount in the ordinary course of a business of trading in securities, or

(b) in the ordinary course of the taxpayer's business of trading in securities, where the taxpayer is a registered securities dealer resident in Canada;

Application: Bill C-10 (Second Senate Reading Dec. 4, 2007; requires re-introduction) (2007, Part 2 — technical), subsec. 194(5), will add the definition "dealer compensation payment" to subsec. 260(1), applicable to arrangements made after 2001.

Technical Notes: "Dealer compensation payment" is one of the newly-defined terms, introduced not to effect any substantive change to the relevant rules but only for simplicity and clarity. A dealer compensation payment is an amount paid or received as compensation for an underlying payment by a registered securities dealer who is resident in Canada and who pays or receives the amount in the ordinary course of its business of trading in securities.

"qualified security" means

(a) a share of a class of the capital stock of a corporation that is listed on a stock exchange or of a class of the capital stock of a corporation that is a public corporation by reason of the designation of the class by the corporation in an election made under subparagraph (b)(i) of the definition "public corporation" in subsection 89(1) or by the Minister in a notice to the corporation under subparagraph (b)(ii) of that definition,

(b) a bond, debenture, note or similar obligation of a corporation described in paragraph (a) or of a corporation that is controlled by such a corporation,

(c) a bond, debenture, note or similar obligation of or guaranteed by the government of any country, province, state, municipality or other political subdivision, or a corporation, commission, agency or association controlled by any such person, or

(d) a warrant, right, option or similar instrument with respect to a share described in paragraph (a);

Proposed Addition — 260(1)"qualified security"(e)

(e) a qualified trust unit;

Application: Bill C-10 (Second Senate Reading Dec. 4, 2007; requires re-introduction) (2007, Part 2 — technical), subsec. 194(1), will add para. (e) to the definition "qualified security" in subsec. 260(1), applicable to arrangements made after 2001.

Technical Notes: The securities lending arrangement rules apply only to securities that are qualified securities. A new paragraph (e) is added to the definition "qualified security" to include a qualified trust unit.

Letter from Dept. of Finance, Dec. 11, 2002:

Dear [xxx]

I am writing in response to your letters concerning the application of the Income Tax Act's securities lending rules to listed units of mutual fund trusts.

In your letters and our subsequent discussions, you represent that listed mutual fund trust units ought to be included as "qualified securities" for purposes of the securities lending arrangements ("SLA") rules in section 260 of the Income Tax Act. You explain that some taxpayers have already made loans of listed mutual fund trust units. You further state that most of the lenders are mutual funds, and suggest that such lenders need to clarify as much as possible their tax position on the lent trust units before their current taxation year ends.

We agree that the attributes of listed mutual fund trust units, in the context of the SLA rules, are very similar to those of listed stocks and bonds. Therefore, we are prepared to recommend an amendment to the SLA rules to treat listed mutual fund trust units as "qualified securities" for the purposes of ensuring that there would be no disposition by lenders as a result of the loan of such securities. Subject to further submissions, we would propose that this change apply to loans of listed mutual fund units after 2001.

As you know, we have not been able — based on the material provided to us [xxx] — to reach a decision to recommend changes relating to the income tax treatment of compensation payments received by lenders or of compensation payments made by borrowers. However, we remain open to consider further representations on these issues.

Should this recommendation be acted upon it will be presented in a Technical Bill to be tabled at the first opportunity for consideration by Parliament.

Yours sincerely,

Len Farber, General Director, Tax Legislation Division, Tax Policy Branch

History: The definition "qualified security" in subsec. 260(1) amended to substitute "stock exchange" for "prescribed stock exchange" by 2007, c. 35, subsec. 66(1), applicable after December 13, 2007.

Proposed Addition — 260(1)"qualified trust unit"

"qualified trust unit" means a unit of a mutual fund trust that is listed on a prescribed stock exchange;

Application: Bill C-10 (Second Senate Reading Dec. 4, 2007; requires re-introduction) (2007, Part 2 — technical), subsec. 194(5), will add the definition "qualified trust unit" to subsec. 260(1), applicable to arrangements made after 2001.

S.C. 2007, c. 35 (Bill C-28, Royal Assent December 14, 2007), subsec. 99(1), will amend the definition to substitute "stock exchange" for "prescribed stock exchange" once Bill C-10 receives Royal Assent.

Technical Notes: A "qualified trust unit" is defined to mean a unit of a mutual fund trust that is listed on a prescribed stock exchange.

Proposed Addition — 260(1)"SLA compensation payment"

"SLA compensation payment" means an amount paid pursuant to a securities lending arrangement as compensation for an underlying payment;

Technical Notes: "SLA compensation payment" is a newly-defined term, introduced not to effect any substantive change to the relevant rules but only for simplicity and clarity. An SLA compensation payment is an amount paid pursuant to a securities lending arrangement as compensation for an underlying payment.

Application: Bill C-10 (Second Senate Reading Dec. 4, 2007; requires re-introduction) (2007, Part 2 — technical), subsec. 194(5), will add the definition "SLA compensation payment" to subsec. 260(1), applicable to arrangements made after 2001.

"securities lending arrangement" means an arrangement under which

(a) a person (in this section referred to as the "lender") transfers or lends at any particular time a qualified security to another person (in this section referred to as the "borrower") with whom the lender deals at arm's length,

Proposed Amendment — 260(1)"securities lending arrangement"(a)

(a) a person (in this section referred to as the "lender") transfers or lends at any particular time a qualified security to another person (in this section referred to as the "borrower"),

Application: Bill C-10 (Second Senate Reading Dec. 4, 2007; requires re-introduction) (2007, Part 2 — technical), subsec. 194(2), will amend para. (a) of the definition "securities lending arrangement" in subsec. 260(1) to read as above, applicable to arrangements made after 2002.

Technical Notes: There are three amendments to the definition "securities lending arrangement".

Paragraph (a) of the existing definition provides that in order for there to be a securities lending arrangement, the lender and the borrower of a security must be dealing at arm's length. The amendment to paragraph (a) extends the definition to include an arrangement entered into by non-arm's length parties. New paragraph (e) provides that where the lender and borrower do not deal with each other at arm's length, the arrangement must be of a term not exceeding 270 days and must not be part of a series of securities lending arrangements, loans or other transactions intended to be in effect for more than 270 days.

(b) it may reasonably be expected, at the particular time, that the borrower will transfer or return after the particular time to the lender a security (in this section referred to as an "identical security") that is identical to the security so transferred or lent,

(c) where the qualified security is a share of the capital stock of a corporation, the borrower is obligated to pay to the lender amounts equal to and as compensation for all dividends, if any, paid on the security that would have been received by the borrower if the borrower had held the security throughout the period beginning after the particular time and ending at the time an identical security is transferred or returned to the lender, and

(c) the borrower is obligated to pay to the lender amounts equal to and as compensation for all amounts, if any, paid on the security that would have been received by the borrower if the borrower had held the security throughout the period that begins after the particular time and that ends at the time an identical security is transferred or returned to the lender,

Application: Bill C-10 (Second Senate Reading Dec. 4, 2007; requires re-introduction) (2007, Part 2 — technical), subsec. 194(3), will amend para. (c) of the definition "securities lending arrangement" in subsec. 260(1) to read as above, applicable to arrangements made after 2001.

Technical Notes: Paragraph (c) of the existing definition provides that where a borrowed security is a share, the borrower must be obligated to pay to the lender a dividend compensation payment in order for the transaction to be a securities lending arrangement. This paragraph is amended to apply a comparable requirement in respect of all arrangements. This recognizes and codifies the commercial reality that compensation payments are required to be made by the borrower to the lender in all securities lending arrangements, and not just those arrangements involving shares.

(d) the lender's risk of loss or opportunity for gain or profit with respect to the security is not changed in any material respect,

Proposed Addition — 260(1)"securities lending arrangement"(e)

(e) if the lender and the borrower do not deal with each other at arm's length, it is intended that neither the arrangement nor any series of securities lending arrangements, loans or other transactions of which the arrangement is a part be in effect for more than 270 days,

Application: Bill C-10 (Second Senate Reading Dec. 4, 2007; requires re-introduction) (2007, Part 2 — technical), subsec. 194(4), will add para. (e) to the definition "securities lending arrangement" in subsec. 260(1), applicable to arrangements made after 2002.

Technical Notes: See under 260(1)"securities lending arrangement"(a).

but does not include an arrangement one of the main purposes of which may reasonably be considered to be to avoid or defer the inclusion in income of any gain or profit with respect to the security.

Related Provisions: 112(2.3) — Dividend rental arrangements; 248(1)"securities lending arrangement" — Definition applies to entire Act; 248(12) — Identical properties; 256(6), (6.1) — Meaning of "controlled".

History: Para. (c) of "securities lending arrangement" substituted by 1994, c. 7, Sch. II (1991, c. 49), subsec. 199(1), applicable to transfers, loans and payments made after April 26, 1989. Para. (c) formerly read:

(c) the borrower is obligated to pay to the lender amounts equal to and as compensation for all dividends, if any, paid on the security after the particular time and before an identical security is transferred or returned to the lender, and

Proposed Addition — 260(1)"security distribution", "underlying payment"

"security distribution" means an amount that is

(a) an underlying payment, or

(b) an SLA compensation payment, or a dealer compensation payment, that is deemed by subsection (5.1) to be an amount received as an amount described by any of paragraphs (5.1)(a) to (c);

Technical Notes: "Security distribution" is a newly-defined term, introduced not to effect any substantive change to the relevant rules but only for simplicity and clarity. A security distribution is an amount, in respect of a borrowed security, that is either an underlying payment paid by the issuer of the security (for example as a dividend or a trust distribution) or a dealer compensation payment, or an SLA compensation payment.

"underlying payment" means an amount paid on a qualified security by the issuer of the security.

Technical Notes: "Underlying payment" is a newly-defined term. As with most of the other new definitions in this subsection, this term is defined for simplicity and clarity. An underlying payment is an amount paid on a qualified security by the issuer of the security.

Application: Bill C-10 (Second Senate Reading Dec. 4, 2007; requires re-introduction) (2007, Part 2 — technical), subsec. 194(5), will add the definitions "security distribution" and "underlying payment" to subsec. 260(1), applicable to arrangements made after 2001.

(1.1) Eligible dividend — This subsection applies to an amount if the amount is received by a person who is resident in Canada, the amount is deemed under subsection (5) to be a taxable dividend, and the amount is either

(a) received as compensation for an eligible dividend, within the meaning assigned by subsection 89(1); or

(b) received as compensation for a taxable dividend (other than an eligible dividend) paid by a corporation to a non-resident shareholder in circumstances where it is reasonable to consider that the corporation would, if that shareholder were resident in Canada, have designated the dividend to be an eligible dividend under subsection 89(14).

(1.1) Eligible dividend — This subsection applies to an amount if the amount is received by a person who is resident in Canada, is deemed under subsection (5.1) to be a taxable dividend, and is either

(a) received as compensation for an eligible dividend, within the meaning assigned by subsection 89(1); or

(b) received as compensation for a taxable dividend (other than an eligible dividend) paid by a corporation to a non-resident shareholder in circumstances where it is reasonable to consider that the corporation would, if that shareholder were resident in Canada, have designated the dividend to be an eligible dividend under subsection 89(14).

Application: Bill C-10 (Second Senate Reading December 4, 2007; requires re-introduction), subsecs. 281(5) and (6), will amend subsec. 260(1.1) to read as above, applicable to SLA compensation payments or dealer compensation payments received in respect of eligible dividends paid after 2005.

Related Provisions: 260(5) — Dividend compensation payment deemed to be eligible dividend.

History: Subsec. 260(1.1) added by 2007, c. 2, subsec. 54(1), applicable to amounts received as compensation for dividends paid after 2005.

(2) Non-disposition — Subject to subsections (3) and (4), for the purposes of this Act, any transfer or loan by a lender of a security under a securities lending arrangement shall be deemed not to be a disposition of the security and the security shall be deemed to continue to be property of the lender and, for the purposes of this subsection, a security shall be deemed to include an identical security that has been transferred or returned to the lender under the arrangement.

Related Provisions: 260(10), (11) — Application to partnerships.

(3) Disposition of right — Where, at any time, a lender receives property (other than an identical security or an amount deemed by subsection (4) to have been received as proceeds of disposition) in satisfaction of or in exchange for the lender's right under a securities lending arrangement to receive the transfer or return of an identical security, for the purposes of this Act the lender shall be deemed to have disposed at that time of the security that was transferred or lent for proceeds of disposition equal to the fair market value of the property received for the disposition of the right (other than any portion thereof that is deemed to have been received by the lender as a taxable dividend), except that section 51, 85.1, 86 or 87, as the case may be, shall apply in computing the income of the lender with respect to any such disposition as if the security transferred or lent had continued to be the lender's property and the lender had received the property directly.

(4) Idem — Where, at any time, it may reasonably be considered that a lender would have received proceeds of disposition for a security that was transferred or lent under a securities lending arrangement, if the security had not been transferred or lent, the lender shall be deemed to have disposed of the security at that time for those proceeds of disposition.

(5) Deemed dividend — For the purposes of this Act, any amount received (other than an amount received as proceeds of disposition or an amount received by a corporation under an arrangement where it may reasonably be considered that one of the main reasons for the corporation entering into the arrangement was to enable it to receive an amount that would otherwise have been deemed by this subsection to be a dividend)

(a) under a securities lending arrangement from a person resident in Canada, or a person not resident in Canada where the amount was paid in the course of carrying on business in Canada through a permanent establishment as defined by regulation, or

(b) by or from a person who is a registered securities dealer resident in Canada, where the amount is received or paid, as the case may be, in the ordinary course of the business of trading in securities carried on by the dealer, as compensation for a taxable dividend paid on a share of the capital stock of a public corporation that is a qualified security shall, to the extent of the amount of that dividend, be deemed to have been received as a taxable dividend and, if subsection (1.1) applies to the amount, as an eligible dividend on the share from the corporation.

Proposed Amendment — 260(5), (5.1)

(5) Where subsec. (5.1) applies — (5) Subsection (5.1) applies to a taxpayer for a taxation year in respect of a particular amount (other than an amount received as proceeds of disposition or an amount received by a person under an arrangement where it may reasonably be considered that one of the main reasons for the person entering into the arrangement was to enable the person to receive an SLA compensation payment or a dealer compensation payment that would be deductible in computing the taxable income, or not included in computing the income, for any taxation year of the person) received by the taxpayer in the taxation year

(a) as an SLA compensation payment,

(i) from a person resident in Canada, or

(ii) from a non-resident person who paid the particular amount in the course of carrying on business in Canada through a permanent establishment as defined by regulation; or

(b) as a dealer compensation payment.

(5.1) Deemed character of compensation payments [temporary] — If this subsection applies in respect of a particular amount received by a taxpayer in a taxation year as an SLA compensation payment or as a dealer compensation payment, the particular amount is deemed, to the extent of the underlying payment to which the amount relates, to have been received by the taxpayer in the taxation year as,

(a) where the underlying payment is a taxable dividend paid on a share of the capital stock of a public corporation (other than an underlying payment to which paragraph (b) applies), a taxable dividend on the share;

(b) where the underlying payment is paid by a trust on a qualified trust unit issued by the trust,

(i) an amount of the trust's income that was, to the extent that subsection 104(13) applied to the underlying payment,

(A) paid by the trust to the taxpayer as a beneficiary under the trust, and

(B) designated by the trust in respect of the taxpayer to the extent of a valid designation, if any, by the trust under this Act in respect of the recipient of the underlying payment, and

(ii) to the extent that the underlying payment is a distribution of a property from the trust, a distribution of that property from the trust; or

(c) in any other case, interest.

Application: Bill C-10 (Second Senate Reading Dec. 4, 2007; requires re-introduction) (2007, Part 2 — technical), subsec. 194(6), will amend subsec. 260(5) to read as above, and add subsec. (5.1) (subject to further amendment below), applicable to

arrangements made after 2001, except that, if the parties to an arrangement jointly so elect in writing and file the election with the Minister of National Revenue within 90 days after the day on which Bill C-10 is assented to, subsec. 260(5.1) is to be read, in its application to SLA compensation payments or dealer compensation payments received under the arrangement before February 28, 2004, without reference to para. 260(5.1)(b), para. (c) or both paras. (b) and (c), as specified by the parties in the election.

Technical Notes: Subsection 260(5), in its current form, treats dividend compensation payments that are received under specified circumstances as dividends. The subsection also, however, denies this dividend treatment where the amount is received by a corporation and one of the main reasons for the corporation entering into the arrangement was to enable it to receive an amount that would be treated as a dividend by the subsection.

Subsection 260(5) is reorganized into two subsections, and these subsections incorporate three newly-defined terms: "dealer compensation payment", "SLA compensation payment" and "underlying payment".

New subsection 260(5) describes the circumstances under which the compensation payment deeming rule, now found in new subsection 260(5.1), applies. The deeming rule applies where an amount is received under a securities lending arrangement under one of these circumstances: from a person resident in Canada, from a person not resident in Canada where the amount was paid in the course of carrying on business in Canada through a permanent establishment, or from or by a registered securities dealer. These are essentially the same as the circumstances specified prior to the amendment.

Also, the anti-avoidance rule in this subsection — which currently addresses only the case of an amount that would otherwise be received by a corporation as a dividend — is amended to include all otherwise non-taxable amounts that may be received under a securities lending arrangement, by any person. This amendment recognizes that with the introduction of qualified trust units as "qualified securities," a person may be treated as having received any of several kinds of non-taxable amounts.

New subsection 260(5.1) treats a given compensation payment as one of three things: a dividend, an amount paid by a trust and having the same characteristics, source and purpose as the "underlying payment" amount paid by the trust directly, or interest. The overall effect of the provision is, in addition to replicating the former dividend deeming rule, to deem compensation payments in respect of payments from a trust to have the same characteristics, source and purpose as if the amounts were paid by the trust.

These amendments apply to securities lending arrangements made after 2001 except that if the parties to an arrangement file a joint election in writing within 90 days after Royal Assent of this amendment with the Minister of National Revenue, the parties may elect such that either one or both of the deeming rules in paragraph 260(5.1)(b) or (c) will not apply with respect to non-dividend compensation payments received before February 28, 2004. Taxpayers may wish to make this election to leave open the possibility that these non-dividend compensation payments had a different characterization under the law prior to these amendments.

(5.1) Deemed character of compensation payments — If this subsection applies in respect of a particular amount received by a taxpayer in a taxation year as an SLA compensation payment or as a dealer compensation payment, the particular amount is deemed for the purpose of this Act, to the extent of the underlying payment to which the amount relates, to have been received by the taxpayer in the taxation year as,

(a) where the underlying payment is a taxable dividend paid on a share of the capital stock of a public corporation (other than an underlying payment to which paragraph (b) applies), a taxable dividend and, if subsection (1.1) applies to the particular amount, an eligible dividend on the share;

(b) where the underlying payment is paid by a trust on a qualified trust unit issued by the trust,

(i) an amount of the trust's income that was, to the extent that subsection 104(13) applied to the underlying payment,

(A) paid by the trust to the taxpayer as a beneficiary under the trust, and

(B) designated by the trust in respect of the taxpayer to the extent of a valid designation, if any, by the trust under this Act in respect of the recipient of the underlying payment, and

(ii) to the extent that the underlying payment is a distribution of a property from the trust, a distribution of that property from the trust; or

(c) in any other case, interest.

Application: Bill C-10 (Second Senate Reading December 4, 2007; requires re-introduction), subsecs. 281(5) and (7), will amend subsec. 260(5.1) to read as above, applicable to SLA compensation payments or dealer compensation payments received in respect of eligible dividends paid after 2005.

(6) Non-deductibility — In computing a taxpayer's income under Part I from a business or property

(a) where the taxpayer is not a registered securities dealer, no deduction shall be made in respect of an amount that, if paid, would be deemed by subsection (5) to have been received by another person as a taxable dividend; and

(b) where the taxpayer is a registered securities dealer, no deduction shall be made in respect of more than ⅔ of that amount.

Proposed Amendment — 260(6)

(6) Deductibility — In computing the income of a taxpayer under Part I from a business or property for a taxation year, there may be deducted a particular amount, paid by the taxpayer in the year as an SLA compensation payment or as a dealer compensation payment, that is equal to

(a) if the taxpayer is a registered securities dealer and the particular amount is deemed by subsection (5.1) to have been received as a taxable dividend, no more than ⅔ of the particular amount; or

(b) if the particular amount is in respect of an amount other than an amount that is, or is deemed by subsection (5.1) to have been, received as a taxable dividend,

(i) where the taxpayer disposes of the borrowed security and includes the gain or loss, if any, from the disposition in computing its income from a business, the particular amount, or

(ii) in any other case, the lesser of

(A) the particular amount, and

(B) the amount, if any, in respect of the security distribution to which the SLA compensation payment or dealer compensation payment relates that is included in computing the income, and not deducted in computing the taxable income, for any taxation year of the taxpayer or of any person to whom the taxpayer is related.

Application: Bill C-10 (Second Senate Reading Dec. 4, 2007; requires re-introduction) (2007, Part 2 — technical), subsec. 194(6), will amend subsec. 260(6) to read as above, applicable to arrangements made after 2001.

Technical Notes: Subsection 260(6) limits the extent to which a person who makes a dividend compensation payment under a securities lending arrangement may deduct the payment in computing income from a business or property. In brief, the subsection denies a deduction for any dividend compensation payment made by persons other than registered securities dealers, and provides that registered securities dealers may deduct up to ⅔ of the dividend compensation payments they make.

Amended subsection 260(6) retains this ⅔ dividend compensation payment deduction for registered securities dealers. It also allows any taxpayer — including but not limited to registered securities dealers — a deduction in respect of compensation payments, either SLA compensation payments or dealer compensation payments, that are not dividend compensation payments. The amount of this new deduction is computed differently depending on the actions of the taxpayer in question (the one who made the payment and seeks to deduct it). If the taxpayer has disposed of the borrowed security and has included any resulting gain or loss in computing business income, the compensation payment is fully deductible. In any other case, new subsection 260(6) allows a deduction to the extent of the lesser of (i) the compensation payment and (ii) the amount, to which the compensation payment relates, included in the taxable income of the taxpayer or persons related to it.

Related Provisions: 260(6.1) — Deductible amount; 260(10), (11) — Application to partnerships.

History: Subsec. 260(6) amended by 1995, c. 21, subsec. 75(2), applicable to payments made after June 1989. Subsec. (6) formerly read:

(6) In computing the income of a taxpayer under Part I from a business or property, no deduction shall be made in respect of an amount that, if paid, would be deemed by subsection (5) to have been received by another person as a taxable dividend.

(6.1) Deductible amount — Notwithstanding subsection (6), there may be deducted in computing a corporation's income under Part I from a business or property for a taxation year an amount equal to the lesser of

(a) the amount that the corporation is obligated to pay to another person under an arrangement described in paragraphs (c) and (d) of the definition "dividend rental arrangement" in subsection 248(1) that, if paid, would be deemed by subsection (5) to have been received by another person as a taxable dividend, and

Proposed Amendment — 260(6.1)(a)

(a) the total of all amounts each of which is an amount that the corporation becomes obligated in the taxation year to pay to another person under an arrangement described in paragraph (b) of the definition "dividend rental arrangement" in subsection 248(1) that, if paid, would be deemed by subsection (5.1) to have been received by another person as a taxable dividend, and

Application: Bill C-10 (Second Senate Reading Dec. 4, 2007; requires re-introduction) (2007, Part 2 — technical), subsec. 194(7), will amend para. 260(6.1)(a) to read as above, applicable to

(a) arrangements made after December 20, 2002;

(b) an arrangement made after November 2, 1998 and before December 21, 2002 if the parties to the arrangement have made the election described in the Application note to the proposed amendment to 248(1)"dividend rental arrangement", except that, in its application to an arrangement made before 2002, the reference to "subsection 260" in para. 260(6.1)(a) is to be read as "subsection (5)"; and

(c) an arrangement, other than an arrangement to which para. (b) above applies, made after 2001 and before December 21, 2002, except that, in its application before December 21, 2002, para. 260(6.1)(a) is to be read as follows:

(a) the amount that the corporation is obligated to pay to another person under an arrangment described in paragraphs (c) and (d) of the definition "dividend rental arrangement" in subsection 248(1) that, if paid, would be deemed by subsection (5.1) to have been received by another person as a taxable dividend; and

Technical Notes: Subsection 260(6.1) provides a deduction for dividend compensation payments made pursuant to certain dividend rental arrangements. The amount deductible is the lesser of the amount the corporation is obligated to pay as compensation under the arrangement and the amount of the dividends received by the corporation under the arrangement that were identified in its return of income as amounts which are not deductible because of subsection 112(2.3).

Paragraph 260(6.1)(a) is amended to clarify that the amount described in that paragraph is the total of all amounts that the corporation becomes obligated in the taxation year to pay to another person as compensation under certain dividend rental arrangements.

Also, paragraph 260(6.1)(a) of the English version of the Act is amended, as a consequence of the amendments to the definition "dividend rental arrangement" in subsection 248(1), by replacing the reference to "paragraphs (c) and (d)" of that definition to a reference to "paragraph (b)" of that definition.

This amendment applies to dividend rental arrangements made after December 20, 2002 and, if the parties jointly elect within 90 days after this Act has been assented to, it also applies to dividend rental arrangements made after November 2, 1998 and on or before December 21, 2002, except that before 2002 the reference to "subsection 260(5.1)" should be read as "subsection 260(5)".

For arrangements made after 2001 and before December 21, 2002 that are not the subject of the election described in the previous paragraph, the definition "dividend rental arrangement" in effect before December 21, 2002 is applicable, except that the reference to "subsection 260(5)" in that definition should be read as "subsection 260(5.1)".

(b) the amount of the dividends received by the corporation under the arrangement that were identified in its return of income under Part I for the year as an amount in respect of which no amount was deductible because of subsection 112(2.3) in computing the taxpayer's taxable income or taxable income earned in Canada.

Related Provisions: 260(7)(b) — No dividend refund on amount deductible under 260(6.1); 260(10), (11) — Application to partnerships.

History: Subsec. 260(6.1) added by 1995, c. 21, subsec. 75(2), applicable to payments made

(a) after April 1989, where the corporation has elected under subsec. 74(3) (of 1995, c. 21 — see under 248(1)"dividend rental arrangement"), except that, for the purposes of para. 260(6.1)(b), a dividend received after April 1989 and before July 1994 that was identified in the corporation's return of income under Part I of the Act for its first taxation year that ends after June 22, 1995 shall be deemed to have been identified in its return of income under that Part for its taxation year in which the dividend was received; and

(b) after June 1994, in any other case.

(7) Dividend refund — For the purposes of section 129,

(a) any amount paid by a corporation that is not a registered securities dealer (other than an amount for which a deduction in computing income may be claimed under subsection (6.1)), and

(b) ⅓ of any amount paid by a corporation that is a registered securities dealer (other than an amount for which a deduction in computing income may be claimed under subsection (6.1)) that is deemed by subsection (5) to have been received by another person as a taxable dividend shall be deemed to have been paid by the corporation as a taxable dividend.

Proposed Amendment — 260(7)

(7) Dividend refund — For the purpose of section 129, if a corporation pays an amount for which no deduction in computing the corporation's income may be claimed under subsection (6.1) and subsection (5.1) deems the amount to have been received by another person as a taxable dividend,

(a) the corporation is deemed to have paid the amount as a taxable dividend, where the corporation is not a registered securities dealer; and

(b) the corporation is deemed to have paid ⅓ of the amount as a taxable dividend, where the corporation is a registered securities dealer.

Application: Bill C-10 (Second Senate Reading Dec. 4, 2007; requires re-introduction) (2007, Part 2 — technical), subsec. 194(8), will amend subsec. 260(7) to read as above, applicable to arrangements made after 2001.

Technical Notes: Subsection 260(7) provides that, where a corporation makes a payment which is deemed by the former subsection 260(5) to be a taxable dividend, the corporation will also be entitled to treat the amount as the payment of a dividend for the purposes of section 129.

Subsection 260(7) is amended to replace the reference "subsection 260(5)" with "subsection 260(5.1)" and is reorganized for clarity and simplicity and specifically not to effect any substantive changes to the rule.

History: Subsec. 260(7) amended by 1995, c. 21, subsec. 75(2), applicable to payments made after June 1989, except that in its application to payments made after June 1989 and before July 1994 with respect to a corporation that has not elected under subsec. 74(3) (of 1995, c. 21 — see under 248(1)"dividend rental arrangement"), subsec. 260(7) shall be read without reference to the expression "(other than an amount for which a deduction in computing income may be claimed under subsection (6.1))". Subsec. (7) formerly read:

(7) For the purposes of section 129, any amount paid by a corporation that is deemed by subsection (5) to have been received by another person as a taxable dividend shall be deemed to have been paid by the corporation as a taxable dividend.

Interpretation Bulletins: IT-243R4: Dividend refund to private corporations.

(8) Non-resident withholding tax — For the purposes of Part XIII,

(a) any amount paid or credited under a securities lending arrangement by or on behalf of the borrower to the lender as compensation for any interest or dividend paid in respect of the security shall be deemed to be a payment made by the borrower to the lender of interest, except that where, throughout the term of the securities lending arrangement, the borrower has provided the lender under the arrangement with money in an amount of, or securities described in paragraph (c) of the definition "qualified security" in subsection (1) that have a fair market value of, not less than 95% of the fair market value of the security and the borrower is entitled to enjoy, directly or indirectly, the benefits of all or substantially all income derived from, and opportunity for gain with respect of, the money or securities,

(i) the amount paid or credited shall, to the extent of the amount of the interest or dividend paid in respect of the security, be deemed to be a payment made by the borrower to the lender of interest or a dividend, as the case may be, payable on the security, and

(ii) the security is deemed to be a security described in paragraph (a) of the definition "fully exempt interest" in subsection 212(3) if the security is described in paragraph (c) of the definition "qualified security" in subsection (1), and

(iii) [Repealed]

(b) any amount paid or credited under a securities lending arrangement by or on behalf of the borrower to the lender as, on account of, in lieu of payment of or in satisfaction of, a fee for the use of the security shall be deemed to be a payment made by the borrower to the lender of interest and, for the purposes of this paragraph, where the borrower has at any time provided the lender with money, either as collateral or consideration for the security, and the borrower does not under the arrangement pay or credit a reasonable amount to the lender as, on account of, in lieu of payment of or in satisfaction of, a fee for the use of the security, the amount, if any, by which

(i) interest on the money computed at the prescribed rates in effect during the term of the arrangement

exceeds

(ii) the amount, if any, by which any amount that the lender pays or credits to the borrower under the arrangement exceeds the amount of the money shall be deemed to be an amount paid under the arrangement by the borrower to the lender as a fee for the use of the security, at the time that an identical security is or can reasonably be expected to be transferred or returned to the lender, and, for the purposes of Part XIII and any agreement or convention between the Government of Canada and the government of another country that has the force of law in Canada, any amount deemed by this subsection (other than subparagraph (a)(i) or (ii)) to be a payment of interest shall be deemed not to be payable on or in respect of the security.

Proposed Amendment — 260(8)–(8.2)

(8) Non-resident withholding tax — For the purpose of Part XIII, any amount paid or credited under a securities lending arrangement by or on behalf of the borrower to the lender

(a) as an SLA compensation payment is, subject to paragraph (b) or (c), deemed to be a payment of interest made by the borrower to the lender;

(b) as an SLA compensation payment in respect of a security that is a qualified trust unit, is deemed, to the extent of the amount of the underlying payment to which the SLA compensation payment relates, to be an amount paid by the trust and having the same character and composition as the underlying payment;

(c) as an SLA compensation payment, if the security is not a qualified trust unit and throughout the term of the securities lending arrangement, the borrower has provided the lender under the arrangement with money in an amount of, or securities described in paragraph (c) of the definition "qualified security" in subsection (1) that have a fair market value of, not less than 95% of the fair market value of the security and the borrower is entitled to enjoy, directly or indirectly, the benefits of all or substantially all income derived from, and opportunity for gain with respect of, the money or securities,

(i) is, to the extent of the amount of the interest or dividend paid in respect of the security, deemed to be a payment made by the borrower to the lender of interest or a dividend, as the case may be, payable on the security, and

(ii) is, to the extent of the amount of the interest, if any, paid in respect of the security, deemed

(A) for the purpose of subparagraph 212(1)(b)(vii) to have been payable by the issuer of the security, and

(B) to have been payable on a security that is a security described in subparagraph 212(1)(b)(ii) where the security is a security described in paragraph (c) of the definition "qualified security" in subsection (1); and

(d) as, on account of, in lieu of payment of or in satisfaction of, a fee for the use of the security is deemed to be a payment of interest made by the borrower to the lender.

Technical Notes: Subsection 260(8) applies special rules, for the purposes of Part XIII of the Act, to payments made under securities lending arrangements. The subsection has two main aspects: rules that ensure the appropriate treatment for Part XIII purposes of compensation payments; and a rule that in certain circumstances will treat a borrower as having paid to a lender a "borrow fee".

In addition to incorporating the newly added definitions, SLA compensation payments and underlying payments (which do not effect any substantive changes), the subsection is rearranged into three separate subsections. Amended subsection 260(8) retains the previous rules for compensation payments relating to interest and dividends, confining them to amounts paid on a security that is not a qualified trust unit. Subsection 260(8) also provides for compensation payments made in respect of a borrowed qualified trust unit: these are treated as payments from a trust and as having the same character and composition as the trust payments for which they compensate.

(8.1) Deemed fee for borrowed security — For the purpose of paragraph (8)(d), if under a securities lending arrangement the borrower has at any time provided the lender with money, either as collateral or consideration for the security, and the borrower does not, under the arrangement, pay or credit a reasonable amount to the lender as, on account of, in lieu of payment of or in satisfaction of, a fee for the use of the security, the borrower is deemed to have, at the time that an identical security is or can reasonably be expected to be transferred or returned to the lender, paid to the lender under the arrangement an amount as a fee for the use of the security equal to the amount, if any, by which

(a) the interest on the money computed at the prescribed rates in effect during the term of the arrangement

exceeds

(b) the amount, if any, by which any amount that the lender pays or credits to the borrower under the arrangement exceeds the amount of the money.

(8.2) Effect for tax treaties — In applying subsection (8), any amount, paid or credited under a securities lending arrangement by or on behalf of the borrower to the lender, that is deemed by paragraph (8)(a), (b) or (d) to be a payment of interest, is deemed for the purposes of any tax treaty not to be payable on or in respect of the security.

Technical Notes: New subsection 260(8.1) provides for a deemed borrow fee, on the same basis as the existing paragraph 260(8)(b). New subsection 260(8.2) similarly preserves the effect of the existing postamble to subsection 260(8) in relation to tax treaties.

Application: Bill C-10 (Second Senate Reading Dec. 4, 2007; requires re-introduction) (2007, Part 2 — technical), subsec. 194(8), will replace subsec. 260(8) with subsecs. 260(8)–(8.2), applicable to arrangements made after 2001.

S.C. 2007, c. 35 (Bill C-28, Royal Assent December 14, 2007), subsec. 99(3), will amend subpara. 260(8)(c)(ii) to read as follows once Bill C-10 receives Royal Assent:

(ii) is, to the extent of the amount of the interest, if any, paid in respect of the security, deemed, if the security is described in paragraph (c) of the definition "qualified security" in subsection (1), to have been payable on a security described in paragraph (a) of the definition "fully exempt interest" in subsection 212(3); and

Related Provisions: 212(1)(b)(xii), (xiii), 212(2.1) — Exemptions from non-resident withholding tax; 212(19) — Special tax on securities dealers re non-resident withholding tax exemption; 260(8.1) — Deemed fee for 260(8)(d); 260(8.2) — Effect for tax treaty purposes.

History: Subpara. 260(8)(a)(ii) amended and subpara. (iii) repealed by 2007, c. 35, subsec. 66(2), applicable after 2007. The subparas. formerly read:

(ii) the amount paid or credited shall, to the extent of the amount of the interest, if any, paid in respect of the security, be deemed for the purpose of subparagraph 212(1)(b)(vii) to have been payable by the issuer of the security, and

(iii) the security shall be deemed to be a security described in subparagraph 212(1)(b)(ii) if it is a security described in paragraph (c) of the definition "qualified security" in subsection (1), and

Subpara. 260(8)(a)(iii) added by 1994, c. 21, s. 116, applicable to securities lending arrangements entered into after May 28, 1993.

Subsec. 260(8) substituted by 1994, c. 7, Sch. II (1991, c. 49), subsec. 199(2), applicable to transfers, loans and payments made after April 26, 1989, except that, in its application to transfers, loans and payments made before May 27, 1989, para. 260(8)(a) shall be read as follows:

(a) any payment made by or on behalf of the borrower to the lender as compensation for any interest or dividend paid in respect of the security shall be deemed to be a payment by the borrower to the lender of interest or a dividend, as the case may be, on the security; and

Subsec. 260(8) formerly read:

(8) For the purposes of Part XIII,

(a) any payment made under a securities lending arrangement by or on behalf of the borrower to the lender as compensation for any interest or dividend paid in respect of the security shall be deemed to be a payment made by the borrower to the lender of interest, except that where, throughout the term of the securities lending arrangement the borrower has provided to the lender under the arrangement cash in an amount of, or securities described in paragraph (c) of the definition "qualified security" in subsection (1) that have a fair market value of, not less than 95% of the fair market value of the security and the borrower is entitled to enjoy, directly or indirectly, the benefits of substantially all income derived from and opportunity for gain with respect to the cash or securities, the payment shall be deemed to be a payment by the borrower to the lender of interest or a dividend, as the case may be, payable on the security; and

(b) any payment made under a securities lending arrangement by or on behalf of a borrower of a security to the lender for the use of the security shall be deemed to be a payment made by the borrower to the lender of interest and, for the purposes of this paragraph, any profit earned by the lender that may reasonably be considered to have resulted from the securities lending arrangement, other than any payment made by or on behalf of the borrower to the lender as compensation for any interest or dividend paid on the security, shall be deemed to be a payment made under the securities lending arrangement by the borrower of the security to the lender for the use of the security.

(9) Restricted financial institution — For the purposes of subsection 187.3(1), where at any time a dividend is received by a restricted financial institution on a share that was last acquired before that time pursuant to an obligation of a borrower to return or transfer a share under a securities lending arrangement, an acquisition of the share under the arrangement shall be deemed at and after that time not to be an acquisition of the share.

(10) Non-arm's length compensation payment — For the purpose of Part XIII, where the lender under a securities lending arrangement is not dealing at arm's length with either the borrower under the arrangement or the issuer of the security that is transferred or lent under the arrangement, or both, and subsection (8) deems an amount to be a payment of interest by a person to the lender in respect of that security, the lender is deemed, in respect of that payment, not to be dealing at arm's length with that person.

Proposed Amendment — 260(10)

Application: S.C. 2007, c. 35 (Bill C-28, Royal Assent December 14, 2007), subsec. 99(4), will renumber subsec. 260(10) as 260(9.1) once Bill C-10 (Second Senate Reading Dec. 4, 2007; requires re-introduction) (2007, Part 2 — technical), subsec. 194(9) (see proposed addition below) receives Royal Assent.

Proposed Addition — 260(10)–(12)

(10) Partnerships — For the purpose of this section,

(a) a person includes a partnership; and

(b) a partnership is deemed to be a registered securities dealer if each member of the partnership is a registered securities dealer.

Technical Notes: A "securities lending arrangement" (SLA) is defined in subsection 260(1) as a particular transaction between two persons: the "lender" and the "borrower" of a security. A partnership — which for most purposes of the Act is not a person — can be a party to a transaction that would be an SLA if the partnership were a person. In such a case, it is appropriate in policy terms for the arrangement to be treated as an SLA. New subsections (10), (11) and (12) are added to section 260 to bring partnerships within the SLA rules.

New subsection 260(10) provides that, for the purposes of section 260, a person includes a partnership. This allows a partnership to be either the borrower or the lender in respect of an SLA. The subsection also treats a partnership as a registered securities dealer, if all of its members are themselves registered securities dealers.

(11) Corporate members of partnerships — A corporation that is, in a taxation year, a member of a partnership is deemed

(a) for the purpose of applying subsection (5) in respect of the taxation year,

(i) to receive its specified proportion, for each fiscal period of the partnership that ends in the taxation year, of each amount received by the partnership in that fiscal period, and

(ii) in respect of the receipt of its specified proportion of that amount, to be the same person as the partnership;

(b) for the purpose of applying paragraph (6.1)(a) in respect of the taxation year, to become obligated to pay its specified proportion, for each fiscal period of the partnership that ends in the taxation year, of the amount the partnership becomes, in that fiscal period, obligated to pay to another person under the arrangement described in that paragraph; and

(c) for the purpose of applying section 129 in respect of the taxation year, to have paid

(i) if the partnership is not a registered securities dealer, the corporation's specified proportion, for each fiscal period of the partnership that ends in the taxation year, of each amount paid by the partnership (other than an amount for which a deduction in computing income may be claimed under subsection (6.1) by the corporation), and

(ii) if the partnership is a registered securities dealer, 1/3 of the corporation's specified proportion, for each fiscal period of the partnership that ends in the taxation year, of each amount paid by the partnership (other than an amount for which a deduction in computing income may be claimed under subsection (6.1) by the corporation).

Technical Notes: A transaction's status as an SLA is relevant to, among other things, the tax treatment of amounts paid and received in compensation for dividends or interest on the security that is transferred or lent. New subsections 260(11) and (12) are added to ensure the appropriate treatment of these amounts in a case where a corporation or an individual is a member of a partnership that has entered into an SLA.

- Under new paragraph 260(11)(a), a corporation that is a member of a partnership is treated for the purpose of subsection 260(5) as having received its "specified proportion" (now defined in subsection 248(1)) of each compensation payment or amount in respect of proceeds of disposition that is described in subsection 260(5) and was received by the partnership. It is also treated as being the same person as the partnership, thus ensuring that the partnership's reasons for entering into the arrangement (which are relevant to the applicability of the subsection) are attributed to the corporation.

- New paragraph 260(11)(b) treats the corporation as being obligated to pay its specified proportion of each dividend compensation payment described in paragraph 260(6.1)(a).

- New paragraph 260(11)(c) treats the corporation, for the purpose of applying the dividend refund rules in section 129, as having paid its specified proportion of each non-deductible dividend compensation payment made by the partnership.

(12) Individual members of partnerships — An individual that is, in a taxation year, a member of a partnership is deemed

(a) for the purpose of applying subsection (5) in respect of the taxation year,

(i) to receive the individual's specified proportion, for each fiscal period of the partnership that ends in the taxation year, of each amount received by the partnership in that fiscal period, and

(ii) in respect of the receipt of the individual's specified proportion of that amount, to be the same person as the partnership; and

(b) [temporary] for the purpose of subsection 82(1), to have paid the individual's specified proportion, for each fiscal period of the partnership that ends in the year, of each amount paid by the partnership in that fiscal period that is deemed by subsection (5.1) to have been received by another person as a taxable dividend.

Technical Notes:

- New paragraph 260(12)(a) performs for individuals who are members of a partnership the same functions as new paragraph 260(11)(a) does for corporations that are partners.

- New paragraph 260(12)(b) treats an individual partner as having paid, for the purpose of clause 82(1)(a)(ii)(B), the individual's specified proportion of each dividend compensation payment paid by the partnership that is deemed by new subsection 260(5.1) to have been received by another person as a taxable dividend.

(a) arrangements made after December 20, 2002; and

(b) an arrangement made after November 2, 1998 and before December 21, 2002 if the parties to the arrangement have made the election described in the Application note to the amendment to 248(1)"dividend rental arrangement", except that, in its application to an arrangement made before 2002, the reference to "subsection 260" in para. 260(12)(b) is to be read as "subsection (5)".

Proposed Amendment — 260(12)(b)

(b) for the purpose of subsection 82(1), to have paid the individual's specified proportion, for each fiscal period of the partnership that ends in the year, of each amount paid by the partnership in that fiscal period that is deemed by subsection (5.1) to have been received by another person as a taxable dividend or an eligible dividend.

Application: Bill C-10 (Second Senate Reading December 4, 2007; requires re-introduction), subsec. 281(8), will amend para. 260(12)(b) to read as above, applicable to SLA compensation payments or dealer compensation payments received in respect of eligible dividends paid after 2005.

Related Provisions: 260(11) — Corporate partners.

History: Subsec. 260(10) added by 2007, c. 35, subsec. 66(3), applicable after 2007.

261. [Functional currency reporting — to be replaced by proposed version at end of s. 261] — (1) Definitions — The definitions in this subsection apply in this section.

"Canadian currency year" of a taxpayer means a taxation year of the taxpayer in respect of which subsection (4) did not apply to the taxpayer.

Proposed Amendment — 261

[See after existing s. 261.]

"Canadian tax results" of a taxpayer for a particular taxation year of the taxpayer means

(a) the amount of the income of the taxpayer for the particular taxation year;

(b) the amount of the taxable income of the taxpayer for the particular taxation year;

(c) the amount (other than an amount payable on behalf of another person under subsection 153(1) or section 215) of tax or other amount payable under this Act by the taxpayer in respect of the particular taxation year;

(d) the amount (other than an amount refundable on behalf of another person in respect of amounts payable on behalf of that person under subsection 153(1) or section 215) of tax or other amount refundable under this Act to the taxpayer in respect of the particular taxation year; and

(e) any amount that is relevant in determining the amounts described in respect of the taxpayer under paragraphs (a) to (d).

Related Provisions: 261(5)(j) — Determination of Canadian tax results when using functional currency reporting; 261(6.1) — Determination when election filed.

"consolidated financial statements" of a taxpayer for a taxation year means the financial statements of the taxpayer that are prepared in accordance with generally accepted accounting principles that are applicable to that taxation year.

"currency exchange rate" on a particular day means, in respect of a conversion of an amount determined in a particular currency into an amount determined in another currency, the average, for the 12 month period ending on the particular day,

(a) where the particular currency is Canadian currency, of the rate of exchange (calculated by reference to the rate of exchange quoted by the Bank of Canada at noon on each business day in the period) for the exchange of the Canadian dollar for a unit of the other currency or such rate or rates of exchange acceptable to the Minister;

(b) where the other currency is Canadian currency, of the rate of exchange (calculated by reference to the rate of exchange quoted by the Bank of Canada at noon on each business day in the period) for the exchange of a unit of the particular currency for the Canadian dollar or such rate or rates of exchange acceptable to the Minister; or

(c) where neither the particular currency nor the other currency is Canadian currency, of the rate of exchange (calculated by reference to the rates of exchange quoted by the Bank of Canada at noon on each business day in the period for the exchange of the Canadian dollar for a unit of each of those currencies) for the exchange of a unit of the particular currency for a unit of the other currency or such rate or rates of exchange acceptable to the Minister.

"functional currency" of a taxpayer for a particular taxation year of the taxpayer means the currency of a country other than Canada if that currency is

(a) a qualifying currency;

(b) the currency that is, more often than any other currency, used in the conduct of the taxpayer's principal business activities in the particular taxation year; and

(c) the currency in which the financial results of the taxpayer for the particular taxation year are computed in the taxpayer's consolidated financial statements and legal-entity financial statements for the particular taxation year.

"functional currency year" of a taxpayer means a taxation year of the taxpayer in respect of which subsection (4) applies to the taxpayer.

Related Provisions: 261(12)(a) — Functional currency year of wound-up subsidiary; 261(14)(a) — Functional currency year of predecessor of amalgamated corporation.

"generally accepted accounting principles" means the accounting principles established or recommended by the Accounting Standards Board of Canada or such other accounting principles as are determined to be acceptable by the Minister.

"initial functional currency year" of a taxpayer means a functional currency year of the taxpayer if the particular taxation year of the taxpayer ending immediately before the beginning of that functional currency year of the taxpayer was a Canadian currency year of the taxpayer.

"initial reversionary year" of a taxpayer means the first taxation year of the taxpayer that begins immediately after the last functional currency year of the taxpayer.

"last Canadian currency year" of a taxpayer means the last taxation year of the taxpayer that ends before the beginning of the initial functional currency year of the taxpayer.

"last functional currency year" of a taxpayer means a functional currency year of the taxpayer if the particular taxation year of the taxpayer beginning immediately after the end of that functional currency year is a Canadian currency year of the taxpayer.

"legal-entity financial statements" of a taxpayer for a taxation year means the financial statements of the taxpayer that would be prepared for that taxation year in accordance with generally accepted accounting principles that are applicable to that taxation year if those generally accepted accounting principles did not require consolidation

"qualifying currency" of a taxpayer for a taxation year means each of

(a) the currency of the United States of America;

(b) the currency of the European Monetary Union;

(c) the currency of the United Kingdom; and

(d) a prescribed currency.

"reversionary exchange rate" of a taxpayer for a functional currency year of the taxpayer means the average, for the 12-month period ending on the last day of the functional currency year of the taxpayer, of the rate of exchange (quoted by the Bank of Canada at noon on each business day in the period) for the exchange of a unit of the functional currency of the taxpayer for the functional currency year for the Canadian dollar.

"tax credit" means an amount deductible in computing a taxpayer's tax payable, or deemed to have been paid on account of a taxpayer's tax payable, under any Part of this Act for a taxation year.

"transitional exchange rate" of a taxpayer means the average, for the 12-month period ending on the last day of the last Canadian currency year of the taxpayer, of the rate of exchange (calculated by reference to the rate of exchange quoted by the Bank of Canada at noon on each business day in the period) for the exchange of the Canadian dollar for a unit of the functional currency of the taxpayer for the initial functional currency year of the taxpayer.

(2) Canadian currency requirement — Subject to subsections (3) to (10),

(a) the Canadian tax results of a taxpayer for a particular taxation year are to be determined using Canadian currency; and

(b) subject to subsection 79(7), paragraphs 80(2)(k) and 142.7(8)(b), if a particular amount that is relevant in computing the taxpayer's Canadian tax results for the particular taxation year is an amount expressed in a currency other than Canadian currency, that amount is to be converted to an amount expressed in Canadian currency using the rate of exchange quoted by the Bank of Canada at noon on the day on which that amount first arose for the exchange of a unit of that other currency for a unit of Canadian currency or such other rate of exchange as is acceptable to the Minister.

Related Provisions: 76.1 — Debt of non-resident moved from or assumed in non-resident's Canadian business.

(3) Application of subsec. (4) — Subsection (4) applies to a taxpayer in respect of a particular taxation year of the taxpayer if

(a) the taxpayer is, throughout the particular taxation year, a corporation (other than an investment corporation, a mortgage investment corporation or a mutual fund corporation) resident in Canada;

(b) the taxpayer has elected that subsection (4) apply to the taxpayer in respect of the particular taxation year, or a preceding taxation year, and each subsequent taxation year of the taxpayer and has filed that election with the Minister in prescribed form and manner on or before the taxpayer's filing due date

(i) for the taxation year immediately preceding the first taxation year in respect of which the election was made, or

(ii) where there was not a taxation year immediately preceding the first taxation year in respect of which the election was made, for the first taxation year in respect of which the election was made;

(c) there is a functional currency of the taxpayer for the particular taxation year;

(d) where the taxpayer's taxation year immediately preceding the particular taxation year was a functional currency year of the taxpayer, the functional currency of the taxpayer for that preceding taxation year is the same as the functional currency of the taxpayer for the particular taxation year; and

(e) where the taxpayer's taxation year immediately preceding the particular taxation year was a Canadian currency year of the taxpayer, no preceding taxation year of the taxpayer was a functional currency year of the taxpayer.

(4) Functional currency reporting — If, because of subsection (3), this subsection applies to a taxpayer for a particular taxation year of the taxpayer,

(a) the taxpayer's Canadian tax results for the particular taxation year are to be determined using the taxpayer's functional currency for the particular taxation year;

(b) each reference in the Act or the regulations to a particular amount expressed in Canadian dollars is to be read as a reference to a particular amount expressed in the taxpayer's functional currency for the particular taxation year determined by applying the currency exchange rate in respect of the conversion of Canadian currency into that functional currency as of the first day of the particular taxation year;

(c) subject to subsection 79(7), paragraphs 80(2)(k) and 142.7(8)(b), if a particular amount that is relevant in computing the taxpayer's Canadian tax results for the particular taxation year is an amount expressed in a currency other than the taxpayer's functional currency for the particular taxation year, that amount is to be converted to an amount expressed in the taxpayer's functional currency for the particular taxation year by using the rates of exchange quoted by the Bank of Canada at noon on the day that the particular amount first arose for the exchange of the Canadian dollar for a unit of each of those currencies or such other rate of exchange as is acceptable to the Minister;

(d) each reference in subsection 79(7), paragraph 80(2)(k) and subsections 80.01(11) and 80.1(8) to "Canadian currency" is to be read as a reference to "the taxpayer's functional currency";

(e) the reference in subsection 39(2) to "the value of the currency or currencies of one or more countries other than Canada relative to Canadian currency, a taxpayer has made a gain or sustained a loss in a taxation year" is to be read as reference to

"the value of the currency or currencies of one or more countries (other than the taxpayer's functional currency for the taxation year) relative to a taxpayer's functional currency for a taxation year, the taxpayer has made a gain or sustained a loss in the taxation year" and the references in that subsection to "currency of a country other than Canada" shall be read as references to "currency other than the taxpayer's functional currency for the taxation year";

(f) the definition "foreign currency" in subsection 248(1) is, in respect of the taxpayer, to be, at any time in the particular taxation year, read as:

"foreign currency" in respect of a taxpayer, at any time in a particular taxation year, means a currency other than the taxpayer's functional currency for the particular taxation year;

(g) where a taxation year of a foreign affiliate of the taxpayer ends in the particular taxation year of the taxpayer, the references in section 95 and in regulations made for the purposes of that section (other than subsection 5907(6) of the Regulations) to "Canadian currency" shall be read, in respect of the foreign affiliate, as a reference to "the taxpayer's functional currency for the particular taxation year".

Related Provisions: 76.1 — Debt of non-resident moved from or assumed in non-resident's Canadian business; 95(2)(f.12)–(f.15) — currency calculations for foreign affiliate (FAPI) rules; 261(1)"Canadian currency year" — Year to which 261(4) does not apply; 261(1)"functional currency year" — Year to which 261(4) applies; 261(18) — Anti-avoidance rule.

(5) Converting Canadian currency amounts — In applying this Act to a taxpayer for a particular functional currency year of the taxpayer

(a) subject to subparagraph (10)(b)(iii), in determining the amount (expressed in the taxpayer's functional currency for the particular functional currency year) that may be deducted, or relevant in determining the amount that may be deducted, under subsection 37(1) or 66(4), section 110.1 or 111 or subsection 126(2), 127(5), 129(1), 181.1(4) or 190.1(3) in the particular functional currency year, each amount (determined in Canadian currency) that is relevant to the determination and that was determined for a taxation year of the taxpayer that preceded the initial functional currency year of the taxpayer, is to be converted to the taxpayer's functional currency for the particular functional currency year using the transitional exchange rate of the taxpayer;

(b) in determining, at any time in the particular functional currency year, the cost (expressed in the taxpayer's functional currency for the particular functional currency year) to the taxpayer of a property that was acquired by the taxpayer before the beginning of the taxpayer's initial functional currency year, the cost (determined in Canadian currency) to the taxpayer of the property at the end of the last Canadian currency year of the taxpayer is to be converted to the taxpayer's functional currency for the particular functional currency year using the transitional exchange rate of the taxpayer;

(c) in determining, at any time in the particular functional currency year, the adjusted cost base (expressed in the taxpayer's functional currency for the particular functional currency year) to the taxpayer of a capital property that was acquired by the taxpayer before the beginning of the taxpayer's initial functional currency year, each amount (determined in Canadian currency) that was required by section 53 to be added or deducted in computing, at any time before the beginning of the initial functional currency year of the taxpayer, the adjusted cost base of the property to the taxpayer is to be converted to the taxpayer's functional currency for the particular functional currency year using the transitional exchange rate of the taxpayer;

(d) in determining, at any time in the particular functional currency year, the amount (expressed in the taxpayer's functional currency for the particular functional currency year) of the taxpayer's undepreciated capital cost of depreciable property of a prescribed class, cumulative eligible capital in respect of a business, cumulative Canadian exploration expense (within the meaning assigned by subsection 66.1(6)), cumulative Canadian development expense (within the meaning assigned by subsection 66.2(5)), cumulative foreign resource expense in respect of a country other than Canada (within the meaning assigned by subsection 66.21(1)) and cumulative Canadian oil and gas property expense (within the meaning assigned by subsection 66.4(5)), (each of which is referred to in this paragraph as a "pool amount") each amount (determined in Canadian currency) that was added to or deducted from a particular pool amount of the taxpayer in respect of a taxation year of the taxpayer preceding the initial functional currency year of the taxpayer is to be converted to the taxpayer's functional currency for the particular functional currency year using the transitional exchange rate of the taxpayer;

(e) in determining any amount (expressed in the taxpayer's functional currency for the particular functional currency year) that has been deducted or claimed as a reserve in computing the income of the taxpayer for its last Canadian currency year, that amount (determined in Canadian currency) deducted or claimed as a reserve is to be converted to the taxpayer's functional currency for the particular functional currency year using the transitional exchange rate of the taxpayer;

(f) in determining the amount (expressed in the taxpayer's functional currency for the particular functional currency year) of any outlay or expense referred to in subsection 18(9) that was made or incurred by the taxpayer and the amount that was deducted in respect of that outlay or expense in respect of a taxation year preceding the initial functional currency year of the taxpayer, such amounts of outlay or expense or deductions (determined in Canadian currency for those years) are to be converted to the taxpayer's functional currency for the particular functional currency year using the transitional exchange rate of the taxpayer;

(g) in determining, at any time in the particular functional currency year, the amount (expressed in the taxpayer's functional currency for the particular functional currency year) of the taxpayer's paid-up capital in respect of any class of shares of its capital stock, any amount (determined in Canadian currency) added or deducted in computing the taxpayer's paid-up capital in respect of the class in a taxation year preceding the initial functional currency year of the taxpayer is to be converted to the taxpayer's functional currency for the particular functional currency year using the transitional exchange rate of the taxpayer;

(h) where the taxpayer issued a debt obligation in a taxation year of the taxpayer preceding the initial functional currency year of the taxpayer, in determining the amount (expressed in the taxpayer's functional currency for the particular functional currency year) for which the obligation was issued, the principal amount (expressed in the taxpayer's functional currency for the particular functional currency year) of the obligation, any amount (expressed in the taxpayer's functional currency for the particular functional currency year) paid in satisfaction of the principal amount of the obligation in a taxation year of the taxpayer preceding the initial functional currency year of the taxpayer, and the amount (determined in the taxpayer's functional currency for the particular functional currency year) of any gain or loss attributable to the fluctuation in the values of currencies,

(i) where the obligation was issued in the taxpayer's functional currency for the particular functional currency year, the amount (determined in the taxpayer's functional currency for the particular functional currency year) for which the obligation was issued, the principal amount (determined in the taxpayer's functional currency for the particular functional currency year) of the obligation and the amounts (determined in the taxpayer's functional currency for the particular functional currency year) paid in satisfaction of the principal amount of the obligation, in a taxation year of the taxpayer preceding the initial functional currency year of the taxpayer are those amounts determined in those years in the taxpayer's functional currency for the particular functional currency year,

(ii) where the obligation was issued in Canadian currency, the amount for which the obligation was issued (determined in Canadian currency), the principal amount (determined in Canadian currency) of the obligation and the amounts (determined in Canadian currency) paid in satisfaction of the principal amount of the obligation, in a taxation year preceding the initial functional currency year are to be converted to the taxpayer's functional currency for the particular functional currency year using the transitional exchange rate of the taxpayer, and

(iii) where the obligation was issued in a currency (referred to in this subparagraph as the "third currency") other than Canadian currency or the taxpayer's functional currency for the particular functional currency year, the amount (determined in the third currency) for which the obligation was issued, the principal amount (determined in the third currency) of the obligation and the amounts (determined in the third currency) paid in satisfaction of the principal amount of the obligation in a taxation year of the taxpayer preceding the initial functional currency year of the taxpayer, are to be converted to the taxpayer's functional currency for the particular functional currency year using the currency exchange rate in respect of a conversion of an amount determined in the third currency into an amount determined in the taxpayer's functional currency for the particular functional currency year on the last day of the last Canadian currency year of the taxpayer;

(i) in determining the amount (expressed in the taxpayer's functional currency for the particular functional currency year) of tax payable under Part I for a Canadian currency year for the purpose of determining the taxpayer's first instalment base or second instalment base for the taxpayer's initial functional currency year, the amount (determined in Canadian currency) of tax payable is to be converted to the taxpayer's functional currency for the particular functional currency year using the transitional exchange rate of the taxpayer; and

(j) any amount (expressed in Canadian currency), other than an amount referred to in paragraphs (a) to (i), determined under the provisions of this Act in or in respect of a taxation year preceding the initial functional currency year of the taxpayer that is relevant in determining the Canadian tax results (expressed in the taxpayer's functional currency for the particular functional currency year) of the taxpayer for the particular functional currency year is to be converted to the taxpayer's functional currency for the particular functional currency year using the transitional exchange rate of the taxpayer.

Related Provisions: 261(7) — Where amount determined in functional currency becomes payable or refundable; 261(8), (9) — Effect of switching back to Canadian currency.

(6) Deferred amounts relating to debt — In applying this Act to a taxpayer for a particular functional currency year of the taxpayer

(a) where, at any time in the particular functional currency year, the taxpayer has made a particular payment (expressed in the taxpayer's functional currency for the particular functional currency year) on account of the principal amount (expressed in the taxpayer's functional currency for the particular functional currency year) of a debt obligation that was issued by the taxpayer in a Canadian currency year of the taxpayer that ended before the beginning of the initial functional currency year of the taxpayer

(i) the taxpayer is deemed to have a capital gain under paragraph 39(2)(a) or income, as the case may be, attributable to the fluctuation in the values of currencies in respect of the particular payment for the particular functional currency year equal to the amount determined by the formula

where

A is the amount determined by the formula

where

D is the amount (expressed in Canadian currency), if any, that would have been determined to be the taxpayer's capital gain under paragraph 39(2)(a) or income, as the case may be, if the principal amount of the debt obligation outstanding (determined in Canadian currency), immediately before the end of the last Canadian currency year of the taxpayer, had been settled by a payment by the taxpayer to the holder of the obligation of an amount equal to that outstanding principal amount at that time, and

E is the transitional exchange rate of the taxpayer,

B is the amount of the particular payment (expressed in the taxpayer's functional currency for the particular functional currency year), and

C is the principal amount of the debt obligation outstanding (determined in the taxpayer's functional currency for the particular functional currency year) at the beginning of the initial functional currency year of the taxpayer,

(ii) the taxpayer is deemed to have a capital loss under paragraph 39(2)(b) or a loss, as the case may be, attributable to the fluctuation in the values of currencies in respect of the particular payment for the particular functional currency year equal to the amount determined by the formula

where

F is the amount determined by the formula

$$I \times J$$

where

I is the amount (expressed in Canadian currency), if any, that would have been determined to be the taxpayer's capital loss under paragraph 39(2)(b) or loss, as the case may be, if the principal amount of the debt obligation outstanding (determined in Canadian currency), immediately before the end of the last Canadian currency year of the taxpayer, had been settled by a payment by the taxpayer to the holder of the obligation of an amount equal to that outstanding principal amount at that time, and

J is the transitional exchange rate of the taxpayer,

G is the amount of the particular payment (expressed in the taxpayer's functional currency for the particular functional currency year), and

H is the principal amount of the debt obligation outstanding (determined in the taxpayer's functional currency for the particular functional currency year) at the beginning of the initial functional currency year of the taxpayer, and

(iii) where a debt obligation is denominated in a currency other than the taxpayer's functional currency for the particular functional currency year, any amount determined under element B in the formula in subparagraph (i) or element G in the formula in subparagraph (ii) is to be determined with reference to the relative value of that currency and the taxpayer's functional currency for the particular functional currency year at the beginning of the initial functional currency year of the taxpayer, and

(b) notwithstanding paragraph 80(2)(k), where an obligation of the taxpayer was issued in a taxation year of the taxpayer preceding the initial functional currency year of the taxpayer in a currency other than the taxpayer's functional currency for the particular functional currency year, a forgiven amount arising at any time in the particular functional currency year in respect of the obligation is to be determined by reference to the currency exchange rate on the last day of the taxpayer's last Canadian currency year in respect of a conversion of an amount determined in the other currency into an amount determined in the taxpayer's functional currency for the particular functional currency year.

(7) Amounts payable or refundable in respect of a functional currency year — Notwithstanding subsection (4),

(a) if, at any particular time, an amount (determined in the taxpayer's functional currency for the particular functional currency year) first becomes payable under this Act by a taxpayer to the Receiver General in respect of a particular functional currency year of the taxpayer,

(i) that amount (determined in the taxpayer's functional currency for the particular functional currency year) is to be converted to Canadian currency using the currency exchange rate on the earlier of the day the amount is so paid and the day that includes the particular time in respect of a conversion of an amount determined in the taxpayer's functional currency for the particular functional currency year into an amount determined in Canadian currency, and

(ii) the amount so determined in Canadian currency under subparagraph (i) is to be paid to the Receiver General in Canadian currency; and

(b) if, at any particular time, an amount (determined in a taxpayer's functional currency for the particular functional currency year) first becomes payable under this Act to the taxpayer by the Minister, for a particular functional currency year of the taxpayer, or is deemed to be paid on account of an amount payable by the taxpayer under the Act for that particular functional currency year,

(i) that amount (determined in the taxpayer's functional currency for the particular functional currency year) is to be converted to Canadian currency using the currency exchange rate on the day that includes the particular time in respect of the conversion of an amount determined in the taxpayer's functional currency for the particular functional currency year into an amount determined in Canadian currency, and

(ii) the amount so determined in Canadian currency under subparagraph (i) is to be paid to the taxpayer by the Minister or is deemed to have been paid to the taxpayer by the Minister, as the case may be, in Canadian currency.

(8) Application of subsec. (9) — Subsection (9) applies to a taxpayer for a particular Canadian currency year that begins after the last functional currency year of the taxpayer.

(9) Converting functional currency amounts — Where, because of subsection (8), this subsection applies to a taxpayer for a particular Canadian currency year of the taxpayer, in applying this Act to the taxpayer for that particular Canadian currency year, the following rules apply:

(a) subject to subparagraph (10)(a)(iii), in determining the amount (expressed in Canadian currency) that may be deducted, or relevant in determining the amount that may be deducted, under subsection 37(1) or 66(4), section 110.1 or 111 or subsection 126(2), 127(5), 129(1), 181.1(4) or 190.1(3) in the particular Canadian currency year,

(i) each amount (determined in the taxpayer's functional currency for the functional currency year of the taxpayer) that is relevant to the determination and that was first required to be determined in a functional currency year of the taxpayer that preceded the particular Canadian currency year, is to be converted to Canadian currency using the reversionary exchange rate of the taxpayer for that functional currency year, and

(ii) each amount (determined in Canadian currency) that is relevant to the determination and that was first required to be determined in a Canadian currency year of the taxpayer preceding the particular Canadian currency year is the amount that was so determined in Canadian currency in that Canadian currency year;

(b) in determining, at any time in the particular Canadian currency year, the cost (expressed in Canadian currency) to the taxpayer of a property,

(i) where the property was acquired by the taxpayer in a functional currency year of the taxpayer preceding the particular Canadian currency year, the cost (determined in the taxpayer's functional currency for the functional currency year) to the taxpayer of the property is to be converted to Canadian currency using the reversionary exchange rate of the taxpayer for that functional currency year, and

(ii) where the property was acquired by the taxpayer in a Canadian currency year of the taxpayer preceding the particular Canadian currency year, the cost (determined in Canadian currency) to the taxpayer of the property is the cost so determined in Canadian currency in that Canadian currency year;

(c) in determining, at any time in the particular Canadian currency year, the adjusted cost base (expressed in Canadian currency) to the taxpayer of a capital property

(i) each amount (determined in the taxpayer's functional currency for the functional currency year) that is required by section 53 to be added or deducted in computing the adjusted cost base of the property to the taxpayer and was first required by that section to be added or deducted at any time in a functional currency year of the taxpayer preceding the particular Canadian currency year is to be converted to Canadian currency using the reversionary exchange rate of the taxpayer for that functional currency year, and

(ii) each amount (determined in Canadian currency) that is required by section 53 to be added or deducted in computing the adjusted cost base of the property to the taxpayer and was first required by that section to be added or deducted at any time in a Canadian currency year of the taxpayer preceding the particular Canadian currency year is the amount that was so determined in Canadian currency in that Canadian currency year;

(d) in determining, at any time in the particular Canadian currency year, the amount (expressed in Canadian currency) of the taxpayer's undepreciated capital cost of depreciable property of a prescribed class, cumulative eligible capital in respect of a business, cumulative Canadian exploration expense (within the meaning assigned by subsection 66.1(6)), cumulative Canadian development expense (within the meaning assigned by subsection 66.2(5)), cumulative foreign resource expense in respect of a country other than Canada (within the meaning assigned by subsection 66.21(1)) and cumulative Canadian oil and gas property expense (within the meaning assigned by subsection 66.4(5)), (each of which is referred to in this paragraph as a "pool amount"),

(i) each amount (determined in the taxpayer's functional currency for the functional currency year) that is required to be added to or deducted from a particular pool amount of the taxpayer and was first required to be added or deducted in respect of a functional currency year of the taxpayer preceding the particular Canadian currency year is to be converted to Canadian currency using the reversionary exchange rate of the taxpayer for that functional currency year, and

(ii) each amount (determined in Canadian currency) that is required to be added to or deducted from a particular pool amount of the taxpayer and was first required to be added or deducted in respect of a Canadian currency year of the taxpayer preceding the particular Canadian currency year is the amount that was so determined in Canadian currency in that Canadian currency year;

(e) in determining any amount (expressed in Canadian currency) that has been deducted or claimed as a reserve in computing the income of the taxpayer for its last functional currency year preceding the particular Canadian currency year, that amount (determined in the taxpayer's functional currency for the last functional currency year) deducted or claimed as a reserve for that last functional currency year is to be converted to Canadian currency using the reversionary exchange rate of the taxpayer for that last functional currency year;

(f) in determining the amount (expressed in Canadian currency) of any outlay or expense referred to in subsection 18(9) that was made or incurred by the taxpayer and the amount that was deducted by the taxpayer in respect of that outlay or expense in respect of a taxation year of the taxpayer preceding the particular Canadian currency year,

(i) such of those amounts (determined in the taxpayer's functional currency for the functional currency year) that were first made or incurred or deducted by the taxpayer in or in respect of a functional currency year of the taxpayer preceding the particular Canadian currency year are to be converted to Canadian currency using the reversionary exchange rate of the taxpayer for that functional currency year, and

(ii) such of those amounts (determined in Canadian currency) that were first made or incurred or deducted by the taxpayer in or in respect of a Canadian currency year of the taxpayer preceding the particular Canadian currency year are the amounts that were so determined in Canadian currency in that Canadian currency year;

(g) in determining, at any time in the particular Canadian currency year, the amount (expressed in Canadian currency) of the taxpayer's paid-up capital in respect of any class of shares of its capital stock,

(i) any amount (determined in the taxpayer's functional currency for the functional currency year) that was first added or deducted in computing the taxpayer's paid-up capital in respect of the class in a functional currency year of the taxpayer preceding the particular Canadian currency year is to be converted to Canadian currency using the reversionary exchange rate of the taxpayer for that functional currency year, and

(ii) any amount (determined in Canadian currency) that was first added or deducted in computing the taxpayer's paid-up capital in respect of the class in a Canadian currency year of the taxpayer preceding the particular Canadian currency year is the amount that was so determined in Canadian currency in that Canadian currency year;

(h) where an obligation was issued in a taxation year of the taxpayer preceding the initial reversionary year of the taxpayer, in determining, at any time in the particular Canadian currency year, the amount (expressed in Canadian currency) for which an obligation was issued, the principal amount (expressed in Canadian currency) of the obligation, the amounts (expressed in Canadian currency) paid in satisfaction of the principal amount of the obligation, and the amount (determined in Canadian currency), if any, of any gain or loss attributable to the fluctuation in the value of the Canadian currency relative to the value of the currency in which the obligation was issued,

(i) subject to paragraph (i), where the obligation was issued in a currency other than Canadian currency,

(A) the amount (determined in the currency in which the obligation was issued) for which the obligation was issued and the principal amount (determined in the currency in which the obligation was issued) of the obligation are

(I) where the taxation year of the taxpayer in which the obligation was issued was a Canadian currency year of the taxpayer, the amounts (determined in Canadian currency) that were so determined in Canadian currency in that Canadian currency year, or

(II) where the taxation year of the taxpayer in which the obligation was issued was a functional currency year of the taxpayer, the amounts determined by converting those amounts (determined in the taxpayer's functional currency for the functional currency year) to Canadian currency by using the reversionary exchange rate of the taxpayer for that functional currency year, and

(B) the amounts (determined in the currency in which the obligation was issued) paid at any time in a taxation year of the taxpayer preceding the initial reversionary year of the taxpayer in satisfaction of the principal amount of the obligation are

(I) where the taxation year of the taxpayer in which an amount was paid was a Canadian currency year of the taxpayer, the amount (determined in Canadian currency) that was so determined in Canadian currency in that Canadian currency year, or

(II) where the taxation year of the taxpayer in which an amount was paid was a functional currency year of the taxpayer, the amount determined by converting that amount (determined in the taxpayer's functional currency for the functional currency year) to Canadian currency by using the reversionary exchange rate of the taxpayer for that functional currency year, and

(ii) where the obligation was issued in Canadian currency, the amount (determined in Canadian currency) for which the obligation was issued, the principal amount (determined in Canadian currency) of the obligation and the amounts (determined in Canadian currency) paid, in a taxation year of the taxpayer preceding the initial reversionary year of the taxpayer, in satisfaction of the principal amount of the obligation, are the amounts so determined in Canadian currency in those preceding years;

(i) where an obligation was issued in a currency other than Canadian currency in a taxation year of the taxpayer preceding the initial reversionary year of the taxpayer, in determining, in respect of subsection 79(7) or paragraph 80(2)(k) or 142.7(8)(b), the amount (expressed in Canadian currency) for which the obligation was issued, the principal amount (determined in Canadian currency) of the obligation, and the amounts (determined in Canadian currency) paid in satisfaction of the principal amount of the obligation, at any time in the particular Canadian currency year, those amounts are to be determined as if subsections (1) to (7) had not applied to the taxpayer for any preceding taxation year;

(j) where the particular Canadian currency year is the initial reversionary year of the taxpayer, for the purpose of determining the taxpayer's first instalment base or second instalment base in the particular Canadian currency year, the amount (determined in the taxpayer's functional currency for the functional currency year) of tax payable by the taxpayer under Part I for the last functional currency year of the taxpayer is to be converted to Canadian currency using the reversionary exchange rate of the taxpayer for that last functional currency year; and

(k) in determining any amount (determined in Canadian currency and referred to in this paragraph as the "specified amount"), at any time in the particular Canadian currency year, other than an amount referred to in paragraphs (a) to (j), that is relevant in determining the Canadian tax results of the taxpayer for the particular Canadian currency year

(i) any amount (determined in the taxpayer's functional currency for the functional currency year) that is relevant in determining the specified amount and was first determined in or in respect of a functional currency year of the taxpayer preceding the particular Canadian currency year, is to be converted to Canadian currency using the reversionary exchange rate of the taxpayer for that functional currency year, and

(ii) any amount (determined in Canadian currency) that is relevant in determining the specified amount and was first determined in or in respect of a Canadian currency year of the taxpayer preceding the particular Canadian currency year is the amount that was so determined in Canadian currency in that Canadian currency year.

(10) Functional currency and Canadian currency amounts carried back — In determining an amount that a taxpayer may claim under section 111 or subsection 126(2), 127(5), 181.1(4) or 190.1(3), for a particular taxation year of the taxpayer, the following rules apply:

(a) if the particular taxation year is a Canadian currency year of the taxpayer, the amount that may be claimed (determined in Canadian currency) is to be determined,

(i) by converting each amount (determined in the taxpayer's functional currency for the particular functional currency year) of a loss incurred, tax credit arising and expenditure made in or in respect of a particular functional currency year of the taxpayer that ends after the particular taxation year to Canadian currency using the currency exchange rate in respect of the conversion of an amount determined in the taxpayer's functional currency for the particular functional currency year into an amount determined in Canadian currency on the last day of that particular functional currency year,

(ii) as if each amount (determined in Canadian currency) of a loss incurred, tax credit arising, expenditure made and deduction claimed in or in respect of a Canadian currency year of the taxpayer were the amount of that loss incurred, tax credit arising, expenditure made and deduction claimed in Canadian currency in or in respect of that Canadian currency year of the taxpayer, and

(iii) by converting each amount (determined in the taxpayer's functional currency for the particular functional currency year) claimed in or in respect of a particular functional currency year of the taxpayer preceding the initial reversionary year of the taxpayer (in respect of an amount of loss incurred, tax credit arising or expenditure made by a taxpayer in or in respect of a Canadian currency year) to Canadian currency using the currency exchange rate on the last day of the Canadian currency year of the taxpayer in or in respect of which the amount claimed arose in respect of the conversion of an amount determined in the taxpayer's functional currency for the particular functional currency year to an amount determined in Canadian currency; and

(b) if the particular taxation year is a functional currency year of the taxpayer, the amount that may be claimed (determined in the taxpayer's functional currency for the particular taxation year) is to be determined,

(i) by converting each amount (determined in Canadian currency) of a loss incurred, tax credit arising and expenditure made in or in respect of a particular Canadian currency year of the taxpayer that ends after the particular taxation year to the taxpayer's functional currency for the particular taxation year using the currency exchange rate in respect of the conversion of an amount determined in Canadian currency into an amount determined in the taxpayer's functional currency for the particular taxation year on the last day of that particular Canadian currency year,

(ii) as if each amount (determined in the taxpayer's functional currency for the particular taxation year) of a loss incurred, tax credit arising, expenditure made and deduction claimed in or in respect of a functional currency year of the taxpayer were the amount of that loss incurred, tax credit arising, expenditure made and deduction claimed in the taxpayer's functional currency for the particular taxation year, and

(iii) by converting each amount (determined in Canadian currency) claimed in or in respect of a particular Canadian currency year of the taxpayer preceding the initial functional currency year of the taxpayer (in respect of an amount of loss incurred, tax credit arising or expenditure made by a taxpayer in or in respect of a functional currency year of the taxpayer) to the taxpayer's functional currency for the particular taxation year using the currency exchange rate on the last day of the functional currency year of the taxpayer in or in respect of which the amount claimed arose in respect of the conversion of an amount determined in Canadian currency to an amount determined in the taxpayer's functional currency for the particular taxation year.

(11) Subsec. 88(1) wind-ups — effect on subsidiary — Subsection (12) applies to a corporation (referred to in this subsection and subsection (12) as the "subsidiary") that has been wound up into another corporation (referred to in this subsection as the "parent") if

(a) subsection 88(1) applied to the subsidiary and the parent in respect of the winding-up of the subsidiary;

(b) the taxation year of the subsidiary (referred to in this subsection and subsection (12) as the "distribution year of the subsidiary") in which any portion of a property (such portion of the property referred to in this subsection as the "distributed property") of the subsidiary was distributed to the parent, or any portion of an obligation (such portion of the obligation referred to in this subsection as the "assumed obligation") of the subsidiary was assumed by the parent, on the winding-up of the subsidiary would, were this section read without reference to this subsection, be a functional currency year of the subsidiary; and

(c) either

(i) where the taxation year of the parent (referred to in this paragraph as the "acquisition year of the parent") in which the subsidiary distributed the distributed property to the parent, or the assumed obligation of the subsidiary was assumed by the parent, on the winding-up of the subsidiary was a functional currency year of the parent, the functional currency for the acquisition year of the parent was not the functional currency of the subsidiary for the distribution year of the subsidiary, or

(ii) the acquisition year of the parent was not a functional currency year of the parent.

(12) Taxation year of subsidiary — Where, because of subsection (11), this subsection applies to the subsidiary, for the purposes of this section

(a) the last taxation year of the subsidiary that ends before the beginning of the distribution year of the subsidiary is deemed to be the last functional currency year of the subsidiary; and

(b) subsection (4) is deemed not to apply to the subsidiary for each taxation year of the subsidiary commencing after the end of the last functional currency year of the subsidiary described in paragraph (a).

(13) Amalgamations — effect on predecessor corporations — Subsection (14) applies to a corporation (referred to in this subsection and subsection (14) as the "specified predecessor") that has merged with one or more other corporations to form one corporate entity (referred to in this subsection as the "new corporation") if

(a) the merger was an amalgamation (within the meaning assigned by subsection 87(1));

(b) the taxation year of the specified predecessor (referred to in this subsection and subsection (14) as the "last taxation year of the specified predecessor") that ended immediately before the amalgamation would, were this section read without reference to subsection (14), be a functional currency year of the specified predecessor; and

(c) either

(i) where the taxation year of the new corporation (referred to in this paragraph as the "first taxation year of the new corporation") that began at the time of the amalgamation was a functional currency year of the new corporation, the functional currency of the new corporation for the first taxation year of the new corporation was not the functional currency of the specified predecessor for the last taxation year of the specified predecessor, or

(ii) the first taxation year of the new corporation was not a functional currency year of the new corporation.

(14) Taxation year of specified predecessor — Where, because of subsection (13), this subsection applies to the specified predecessor, for the purposes of this section

(a) the taxation year of the specified predecessor that ends immediately before the beginning of the last taxation year of the specified predecessor is deemed to be the last functional currency year of the specified predecessor; and

(b) subsection (4) is deemed not to apply to the specified predecessor corporation for each taxation year of the specified predecessor commencing after the end of the last functional currency year of the specified predecessor described in paragraph (a).

(15) Deemed continuation on winding-up or amalgamation — For the purpose of this section,

(a) subject to subsection (16), where there has been a winding-up of a taxpayer (referred to in this subsection and subsection (16) as the "subsidiary") into another taxpayer (referred to in this subsection and subsection (16) as the "parent") to which subsection 88(1) has applied, the parent is deemed to be the same corporation as and a continuation of the subsidiary; and

(b) subject to subsection (17), where there has been an amalgamation (within the meaning assigned by subsection 87(1)) of two or more corporations (each such taxpayer referred to in this subsection and subsection (17) as a "predecessor") to form one corporate entity (referred to in this subsection and subsection (17) as the "new corporation") the new corporation is deemed to be the same corporation as and a continuation of each such predecessor corporation.

(16) Exception to deemed continuation — winding-up — Where the parent would not, in a taxation year of the parent ending after the time the subsidiary was wound up, satisfy the requirements of paragraph (3)(e) because the last functional currency year of the subsidiary referred to in subsection (12) in respect of the winding-up is, because of paragraph (15)(a), the last functional currency year of the parent, paragraph (15)(a) shall not apply, for the purposes of paragraph (3)(e), to the parent in respect of the subsidiary if the total of all amounts each of which is the cost amount, at the end of the taxation year of the parent in which the property of the subsidiary was distributed to the parent in the course of winding-up, to the parent of a property that was distributed to the parent on the winding-up (or property substituted for such property) is less than 50% of the total of all amounts each of which is the cost amount, at the end of that taxation year, to the parent of a property of the parent.

(17) Exception to deemed continuation — amalgamation — Where the new corporation would not, in a taxation year of the new corporation commencing on or after the time of the amalgamation, satisfy the requirements of paragraph (3)(e) because the last functional currency year of the predecessor referred to in subsection (14) in respect of the amalgamation is, because of paragraph (15)(b) the last functional currency year of the new corporation, paragraph (15)(b) shall not apply, for the purposes of paragraph (3)(e), to the new corporation in respect of the predecessor if the total of all amounts each of which is the cost amount, at the end of the taxation year of the new corporation that began at the time of the amalgamation, to the new corporation of a property that, immediately before the amalgamation, was a property of the predecessor (or property substituted for such property) is less than 50% of the total of all amounts each of which is the cost amount, at the end of that taxation year of the new corporation, to the new corporation of a property of the new corporation.

(18) Anti-avoidance — Where, at any time, all or substantially all of the property (referred to in this subsection as the "transferred property") of a business (referred to in this subsection as the "transferred business") of a taxpayer has been disposed of by the taxpayer (referred to in this subsection as the "transferor") and acquired, either directly or indirectly by a corporation resident in Canada (referred to in this subsection as the "transferee") that, immediately after the acquisition, was related to the taxpayer, and a taxation year of the transferor beginning before that time was a functional currency year of the transferor, for the purposes of this section, the transferee is deemed to be the same corporation as and a continuation of the transferor if the total of all amounts each of which is the cost amount, at the end of the taxation year of the transferee in which the transferred business was transferred, to the transferee of a property that was a transferred property (or property substituted for such property) is greater than 50% of the total of all amounts each of which is the cost amount, at the end of that taxation year of the transferree, to the transferree of a property of the transferree.

Technical Notes (Dec. 2008): Overview

Current section 261 confirms that, as a general rule, all amounts required to be determined under the provisions of the Act are determined in Canadian currency. It also provides, where certain conditions are met, an exception to this requirement. If the conditions are met, certain Canadian resident corporations will be permitted to determine their Canadian tax results in their functional currency.

There are two main reasons for allowing taxpayers to report in a currency other than the Canadian dollar. First, certain taxpayers maintain their books and records for financial reporting purposes in a foreign currency and translate those results to Canadian dollars solely in order to compute their Canadian tax liability. Second, the determination of certain taxpayers' Canadian tax liabilities in Canadian dollars when their financial results are determined in a foreign currency can result in distorted financial results in years of currency volatility. As such, the option to elect into functional currency tax reporting is meant both to ease compliance and to promote more representative financial reporting.

Section 261 is replaced with a new version that incorporates various amendments to make the rules more comprehensive and to respond to issues identified since the time of the section's enactment. The amendments are summarized as follows.

- The definition of "functional currency" in subsection 261(1) is amended to address concerns about the practical application of current paragraphs (b) and (c) of that definition. Specifically, those paragraphs are replaced with a new paragraph (b) that refers to the primary currency in which the taxpayer maintains its records and books of account for financial reporting purposes. (Consequentially, the definitions "consolidated financial statements", "generally accepted accounting principles" and "legal-entity financial statements" in subsection 261(1) are repealed.)

- Section 261 is also amended in connection with the exchange rates that are required to be used for various calculations involving different currencies. On electing into the functional currency regime, the existing provisions require that the current (or spot) foreign exchange rate on the last day of the last Canadian currency year be used in respect of debt obligations, while the "transitional exchange rate" (based on a 12-month average) is required to be used in respect of assets. This means that accrued foreign exchange gains and losses in respect of debt obligations are measured differently from those in respect of assets. This lack of symmetry can in some circumstances produce adverse results. As well, the use of the transitional exchange rate in these circumstances can produce anomalies in the calculation of foreign exchange gains and losses in respect of assets in cases where the asset is disposed of early in the first functional currency year. Consequently, amendments are made throughout section 261 to replace the 12-month average exchange rate concept with the spot rate concept. As a result, the definitions "currency exchange rate", "reversionary exchange rate" and "transitional exchange rate" in subsection 261(1) are replaced with the new definition "relevant spot rate" in subsection 261(1).

- The definitions "initial functional currency year", "initial reversionary year", "last Canadian currency year" and "last functional currency year" in subsection 261(1) are also repealed. This is because amendments to the definitions "Canadian currency year" and "functional currency year", and the new definition "reversionary year", make those other definitions unnecessary.

- The definition "tax credit" in subsection 261(1) is also repealed. This is because current subsection 261(10) is replaced by subsection 261(15), which does not employ the term "tax credit" but rather refers to the broader term "Canadian tax results".

- The new definitions "pre-reversion debt", "pre-transition debt" and "tax reporting currency" are also introduced in subsection 261(1).
- Subsection 261(3) is simplified. Where a taxpayer elects to enter into the functional currency regime, the amended subsection applies to each taxation year of the taxpayer that ends on or after the day that is six months after the day on which the election is filed with the Minister of National Revenue. This is in contrast with the current rule that provides for different filing deadlines based on whether or not a taxpayer has a preceding taxation year. Under the amended rule, all taxpayers, whether long- existing, newly-formed by amalgamation or newly-incorporated, have a similar filing deadline. The amended rule also provides appropriate treatment for taxpayers with short taxation years.
- Subsection 261(3) is also amended to remove the requirement that the taxpayer continue to have the foreign currency qualify as its functional currency in all taxation years after its first functional currency year. Although a taxpayer that is eligible for and makes the functional currency election in subsection 261(3) will ordinarily continue to file under the functional currency regime for all future taxation years (using that elected functional currency — a term newly defined in subsection 261(1)), it will now be able to revoke that election. Subsection 261(4) permits a taxpayer to revoke its functional currency election by filing, on a day that is in a functional currency year of the taxpayer (other than its first functional currency year), a notice of revocation. The revocation applies to each taxation year of the taxpayer that begins on or after the day that is six months after that day; it causes the taxpayer to revert to Canadian currency tax reporting for each of those years.
- Subsection 261(6) introduces rules to deal with situations where a taxpayer that has made a functional currency election is or becomes a member of a partnership.
- Subsection 261(11), replacing current subsection 261(7), introduces more comprehensive rules to deal with instalments and other payments of taxes, interest and penalties for a functional currency reporter.
- Subsections 261(16) and (17) replace the rules in current subsections 261(11) to (14) to provide more comprehensive rules in respect of wind-ups and amalgamations where the parties to the wind-up or amalgamation do not have the same tax reporting currency.
- Subsections 261(18) and (19) replace current subsections 261(15) to (18) and provide for more comprehensive anti-avoidance rules in respect of transfers of property that are made for the purpose of changing or enabling the changing of the tax reporting currency to which the properties are subject.

For ease of reference, the subsections of current section 261 and those of new section 261 are listed in the following table of concordance (Table 1).

Coming-into-force provisions

In general, these amendments to section 261 apply in respect of taxation years that begin after December 13, 2007 (which is generally the period of application of current section 261). However, there are both a transitional rule for functional currency elections made before June 28, 2008 and an override of the otherwise applicable election deadline under paragraph 261(3)(b) that extends that deadline to December 15, 2008. There is also a transitional provision in respect of the partnership rule in subsection 261(6) that is consequential to the December 15, 2008 deadline extension.

A more specific description of the amendments' coming-into-force provisions follows.

First, the definitions in amended subsection 261(1) (other than the definition "Canadian tax results"), subsections 261(3) to (14) and subsections 261(16) to (22) apply in respect of taxation years that begin after December 13, 2007, subject to three transitional rules.

1. Where a taxpayer has, on or before June 27, 2008, made an election under paragraph 261(3)(b) to enter into the foreign currency tax reporting regime,

   (a) if the taxpayer makes a further election in writing, and files it with the Minister of National Revenue on or before the taxpayer's filing-due date for the taxpayer's taxation year that includes the day on which this set of proposed amendments receives Royal Assent, the relevant spot rate for a particular day is deemed, for the purposes of subsections 261(7) to (10) to be the average of the rates that would, in the absence of this transitional rule, be the relevant spot rates for each day in the 12-month period that ends on the particular day, and

   (b) subsections 261(20) and (21) apply in respect of taxation years that begin after June 27, 2008.

2. In applying paragraph 261(3)(b), if the day that is six months before the end of the particular taxation year referred to in that paragraph is before December 15, 2008, the reference in that paragraph to "the day that is six months before the end of the particular taxation year" is, in respect of that particular taxation year, to be read as a reference to "December 15, 2008".

3. In applying subparagraph (iii) of paragraph 261(6)(a), if the particular taxpayer referred to in that paragraph filed an election under paragraph 261(3)(b) before December 16, 2008, the particular taxpayer is deemed to have filed the election on the day that is six months before the end of its first taxation year that begins after December 13, 2007.

Second, the amended definition "Canadian tax results" in subsection 261(1), and amended subsection 261(2), apply for all taxation years. This is the same period of application as for the current definition "Canadian tax results" and current subsection 261(2).

Third, subsection 261(15) applies after December 13, 2007. This is the same period of application as for current subsection 261(10), the provision that subsection 261(15) would replace.

261. [Functional currency reporting] — (1) Definitions — The definitions in this subsection apply in this section.

"Canadian currency year" of a taxpayer means a taxation year that precedes the first functional currency year of the taxpayer.

Technical Notes (Dec. 2008): Subsection 261(1) defines certain terms for the purposes of section 261.

For ease of reference, the terms defined in current subsection 261(1) and in new subsection 261(1) are listed in the following table of concordance (Table 2).

Table 2 — Table of concordance for definitions in subsection 261(1)

Current subsection 261(1)	New subsection 261(1)
"Canadian currency year"	"Canadian currency year"
"functional currency year"	"functional currency year"

Current subsection 261(1)	New subsection 261(1) "reversionary year"
"Canadian tax results"	"Canadian tax results"
"consolidated financial statements" "generally accepted accounting principles" "legal-entity financial statements"
"currency exchange rate" "reversionary exchange rate" "transitional exchange rate"	"relevant spot rate"
"functional currency"	"elected functional currency" "functional currency" "tax reporting currency"
"initial functional currency year" "initial reversionary year" "last Canadian currency year" "last functional currency year"
	"pre-reversion debt" "pre-transition debt"
"qualifying currency"	"qualifying currency"
"tax credit"

A Canadian currency year of a taxpayer is defined as a taxation year that precedes the first functional currency year of the taxpayer. As reformulated, this concept relates only to periods before the taxpayer adopts functional currency tax reporting and is distinguishable from the new concept of a "reversionary year", as discussed below.

"Canadian tax results" of a taxpayer for a taxation year means

(a) the amount of the income, taxable income or taxable income earned in Canada of the taxpayer for the taxation year;

(b) the amount (other than an amount payable on behalf of another person under subsection 153(1) or section 215) of tax or other amount payable under this Act by the taxpayer in respect of the taxation year;

(c) the amount (other than an amount refundable on behalf of another person in respect of amounts payable on behalf of that person under subsection 153(1) or section 215) of tax or other amount refundable under this Act to the taxpayer in respect of the taxation year; and

(d) any amount that is relevant in determining the amounts described in respect of the taxpayer under paragraphs (a) to (c).

Technical Notes (Dec. 2008): The Canadian tax results of a taxpayer for a taxation year are defined as:

- the amount of the income, taxable income or taxable income earned in Canada of the taxpayer for the taxation year;
- the amount (other than an amount payable on behalf of another person under subsection 153(1) or section 215) of tax or other amount payable under the Act by the taxpayer in respect of the taxation year,
- the amount (other than an amount refundable on behalf of another person in respect of amounts payable on behalf of that person under subsection 153(1) or section 215) of tax or other amount refundable under the Act to the taxpayer in respect of the taxation year, and
- any amount relevant in determining any of the amounts described above.

The only substantive amendment to this definition is the inclusion of the amount of a taxpayer's taxable income earned in Canada.

Related Provisions: 261(2)(b) — Determination of Canadian tax results when no election filed; 261(5)(a), (c), 261(6), 261(7)(h), 261(15)–(18) — Determination when election filed.

"elected functional currency" of a taxpayer means the currency of a country other than Canada that was the functional currency of the taxpayer for its first taxation year in respect of which it made an election under paragraph (3)(b).

Technical Notes (Dec. 2008): The elected functional currency of a taxpayer is a new concept that represents the currency in which a taxpayer that adopts functional currency tax reporting must report all of its Canadian tax results, pursuant to paragraph 261(5)(a).

The elected functional currency of a taxpayer is defined as the currency of a country other than Canada, that is the taxpayer's functional currency for its first taxation year in respect of which it made an election under paragraph 261(3)(b). This can be illustrated with the following example.

Assumptions:

1. Company X is a calendar year tax reporter.

2. Company X wishes to adopt functional currency tax reporting for its 2009 taxation year.

3. Company X has a U.S. dollar functional currency, as defined, for the 2009 taxation year.

Analysis:

Paragraph 261(3)(b) requires Company X to file an election on or before June 30, 2009 in order to use the functional currency rules for its 2009 taxation year. If that election is filed on time, the first taxation year in respect of which it made an election under paragraph 261(3)(b) will be the 2009 taxation year. Furthermore, because the functional currency of Company X for its 2009 taxation year is the U.S. dollar, its elected functional currency will be the U.S. dollar.

If, on the other hand, Company X files the paragraph 261(3)(b) election on July 3, 2009, Company X will enter the functional currency regime in its 2010 taxation year and its first taxation year in respect of which it made an election under paragraph 261(3)(b) will be the 2010 taxation year. Thus, if the functional currency of Company X changes in 2010 to the euro, its elected functional currency will be the euro.

"functional currency" of a taxpayer for a taxation year means the currency of a country other than Canada if that currency is, throughout the taxation year,

(a) a qualifying currency; and

(b) the primary currency in which the taxpayer maintains its records and books of account for financial reporting purposes.

Technical Notes (Dec. 2008): The term "functional currency" is used in the definition "elected functional currency" and in subsection 261(3). This definition is fundamental to the determination of whether a taxpayer can qualify for functional currency tax reporting. Essentially there is just one condition: the primary currency in which the taxpayer keeps its books and records for financial reporting purposes must be a qualifying currency. ("Qualifying currency" is discussed below.) In making determinations as to whether a corporation has a "functional currency", the reasons for the introduction of this optional tax reporting regime, as discussed in the overview section of these notes, should be borne in mind.

In many cases the "primary currency" in which a taxpayer keeps its books and records for financial reporting purposes will be easy to determine: the taxpayer will use only a single currency for financial reporting purposes. The expression "primary currency", however, also addresses two less straightforward situations. First, where a corporation first records all of its transactions in one currency and then converts those results on an aggregated basis to another currency for financial reporting purposes, it could be said that the corporation keeps its books in both currencies. The first currency would, however, ordinarily be its "primary" currency within the meaning intended here. Second, certain Canadian taxpayers may carry on two distinct businesses in one legal entity. One business may be highly integrated with that of the entity's foreign parent — perhaps mainly serving customers in the foreign parent's jurisdiction — while the other business could be a totally independent business that serves Canadian customers. In such circumstances, it is possible that the taxpayer could keep its books in two different currencies. Regard would have to be had to which business is the most significant to the taxpayer in order to determine which currency is the primary currency.

"functional currency year" of a taxpayer means a taxation year in respect of which subsection (5) applies to the taxpayer.

Technical Notes (Dec. 2008): A functional currency year of a taxpayer is a taxation year in respect of which subsection 261(5) applies to the taxpayer.

"pre-reversion debt" of a taxpayer means a debt obligation of the taxpayer that was issued by the taxpayer before the beginning of the taxpayer's first reversionary year.

Technical Notes (Dec. 2008): The term "pre-reversion debt" is used in subsections 261(12) to (14).

A pre-reversion debt of a taxpayer is defined as a debt obligation of the taxpayer that was issued by the taxpayer before the beginning of the taxpayer's first reversionary year. A pre-reversion debt can include a pre-transition debt, as defined below.

Related Provisions: 261(13) — Pre-reversion debt denominated in foreign currency; 261(14) — Deferred amount relating to pre-reversion debt.

"pre-transition debt" of a taxpayer means a debt obligation of the taxpayer that was issued by the taxpayer before the beginning of the taxpayer's first functional currency year.

Technical Notes (Dec. 2008): The term "pre-transition debt" is used in subsections 261(8) to (10) and (12).

A pre-transition debt of a taxpayer is defined as a debt obligation of the taxpayer that was issued by the taxpayer before the beginning of the taxpayer's first functional currency year.

Related Provisions: 261(8)–(10), 261(12)(f) — Pre-transition debts.

"qualifying currency" at any time means each of

(a) the currency of the United States of America;

(b) the currency of the European Monetary Union;

(c) the currency of the United Kingdom;

(d) the currency of Australia; and

(e) a prescribed currency.

Technical Notes (Dec. 2008): The term "qualifying currency" is used in the definition "functional currency". A qualifying currency at any time is defined as:

- the currency of the United States of America,
- the currency of the European Monetary Union,
- the currency of the United Kingdom,
- the currency of Australia, and
- a prescribed currency.

The only substantive change to this definition is the addition of the currency of Australia.

Related Provisions: 261(1)"functional currency"(a) — Currency must be qualifying currency.

"relevant spot rate" for a particular day means, in respect of a conversion of an amount from a particular currency into another currency,

(a) if the particular currency or the other currency is Canadian currency, the rate quoted by the Bank of Canada for noon on the particular day (or, if there is no such rate quoted for the particular day, the closest preceding day for which such a rate is quoted) for the exchange of the particular currency for the other currency, or, in applying paragraphs (2)(b) and (5)(c), another rate of exchange that is acceptable to the Minister; and

(b) if neither the particular currency nor the other currency is Canadian currency, the rate — calculated by reference to the rates quoted by the Bank of Canada for noon on the particular day (or, if either of such rates is not quoted for the particular day, the closest preceding day for which both such rates are quoted) for the exchange of Canadian currency for each of those currencies — for the exchange of the particular currency for the other currency, or, in applying paragraphs (2)(b) and (5)(c), another rate of exchange that is acceptable to the Minister.

Technical Notes (Dec. 2008): The relevant spot rate for a particular day is to be used, in the manner described elsewhere in section 261, in converting amounts from a particular currency into another currency. The meaning of "relevant spot rate" depends on whether either of the currencies is the Canadian dollar.

- If one of the currencies is Canadian currency, the relevant spot rate is the rate quoted by the Bank of Canada for noon on the particular day for the exchange of the particular currency for the other currency, or, in applying paragraphs 261(2)(b) and (5)(c), another rate of exchange that is acceptable to the Minister of National Revenue.
- If neither of the currencies is Canadian currency, the relevant spot rate is determined indirectly: it is calculated by reference to the rates quoted by the Bank of Canada for noon on the particular day for the exchange of Canadian currency for each of those currencies. Again, in applying paragraphs 261(2)(b) and (5)(c), another rate of exchange that is acceptable to the Minister of National Revenue may be used.

In either case, if there is no Bank of Canada rate for the particular day, the rate to be used is the Bank of Canada rate for the closest preceding day for which such a rate is quoted (or, in the foreign-to-foreign case, both rates are quoted).

"reversionary year" of a taxpayer means a taxation year that begins after the last functional currency year of the taxpayer.

Technical Notes (Dec. 2008): A reversionary year of a taxpayer is a taxation year that begins after the last functional currency year of the taxpayer.

"tax reporting currency" of a taxpayer for a taxation year, and at any time in the taxation year, means the currency in which the taxpayer's Canadian tax results for the taxation year are to be determined.

Technical Notes (Dec. 2008): The term "tax reporting currency" is used in subsections 261(16) to (20).

The tax reporting currency of a taxpayer for a taxation year, and at any time in the taxation year, is defined as being the currency in which the taxpayer's Canadian tax results for the taxation year are to be determined. Thus, whereas the term "elected functional currency" can only refer to a foreign currency, "tax reporting currency" includes both foreign and Canadian currency.

(2) Canadian currency requirement — In determining the Canadian tax results of a taxpayer for a particular taxation year,

(a) subject to this section, other than this subsection, Canadian currency is to be used; and

(b) subject to this section, other than this subsection, 79(7) and paragraphs 80(2)(k) and 142.7(8)(b), if a particular amount that is relevant in computing those Canadian tax results is expressed in a currency other than Canadian currency, the particular amount is to be converted to an amount expressed in Canadian currency using the relevant spot rate for the day on which the particular amount arose.

Technical Notes (Dec. 2008): Subsection 261(2) is a general rule that applies to taxpayers that do not elect into the functional currency tax reporting regime. It provides that Canadian currency is to be used in determining the Canadian tax results of such a taxpayer. As well, if a particular amount that is relevant in computing those Canadian tax results is expressed in a foreign currency, the particular amount is — subject to certain exceptions — to be converted to Canadian currency using the relevant spot rate for the day on which the particular amount first arose.

Related Provisions: 76.1 — Debt of non-resident moved from or assumed in non-resident's Canadian business.

(3) Application of subsec. (5) — Subsection (5) applies to a taxpayer in respect of a particular taxation year if

(a) the taxpayer is, throughout the particular taxation year, a corporation (other than an investment corporation, a mortgage investment corporation or a mutual fund corporation) resident in Canada;

(b) the taxpayer has elected that subsection (5) apply to the taxpayer and has filed that election with the Minister in prescribed form and manner on or before the day that is six months before the end of the particular taxation year;

(c) there is a functional currency of the taxpayer for the first taxation year of the taxpayer in respect of which subsection (5) would, if this subsection were read without reference to this paragraph, apply;

(d) the taxpayer has not filed another election under paragraph (b); and

(e) a revocation by the taxpayer under subsection (4) does not apply to the particular taxation year.

Technical Notes (Dec. 2008): Subsection 261(3) provides the conditions that must be met for a taxpayer to determine its Canadian tax results using a currency other than the Canadian dollar. This subsection provides that subsection 261(5), which requires a taxpayer to compute its Canadian tax results using its elected functional currency, will apply in respect of a particular taxation year where all of the following five conditions are met.

The first condition, set out in paragraph 261(3)(a), is that the taxpayer must be, throughout the particular taxation year, a corporation resident in Canada that is not an investment corporation, a mortgage investment corporation or a mutual fund corporation.

The second condition, in paragraph 261(3)(b), is that the taxpayer must file an election with the Minister of National Revenue in prescribed form and manner. If the four other conditions of this subsection are met, the election will then trigger the application of subsection 261(5) beginning with the first taxation year that ends on or after the day that is six months after the day the election is filed.

The third condition, in paragraph 261(3)(c), is that there be a functional currency of the taxpayer for the first taxation year of the taxpayer in respect of which subsection 261(5) applies. (To avoid circularity, that is described as the first taxation year in respect of which that subsection would, but for this condition, apply.)

The fourth condition, in paragraph 261(3)(d), is that the taxpayer must not have filed another election under paragraph 261(3)(b). What this means is that, subject to any overriding provisions in subsections 261(16) and (17), a taxpayer cannot change its elected functional currency. It also means that a taxpayer that, having once been subject to the functional currency regime, has reverted to Canadian currency tax reporting cannot re-elect into the functional currency regime at a later time.

The fifth condition, in paragraph 261(3)(e), is that a revocation by the taxpayer under subsection 261(4) must not apply to the particular taxation year.

Related Provisions: 261(1)"elected functional currency" — Definition once election made; 261(2) — Rules where no election made; 261(4) — Revocation of election.

(4) Revocation of election — A taxpayer may revoke its election under paragraph (3)(b) by filing, on a day that is in a functional currency year of the taxpayer (other than its first functional currency year), a notice of revocation in prescribed form and manner. The revocation applies to each taxation year of the taxpayer that begins on or after the day that is six months after that day.

Technical Notes (Dec. 2008): Subsection 261(4) allows a corporation that has elected functional currency tax reporting to revoke its election and revert to Canadian currency tax reporting. The taxation years for which the revocation applies will then become "reversionary years" of the taxpayer and the rules of subsections 261(12) to (14) will apply.

A revocation is effected by filing a notice of revocation in prescribed form and manner. However, the revocation notice must be filed on a day that is in a functional currency year of the taxpayer that is not its first functional currency year. As the revocation applies to each taxation year of the taxpayer that begins on or after the day that is six months after the day the revocation is filed, a taxpayer that enters the functional currency regime is required to stay in the regime for at least two taxation years.

(5) Functional currency tax reporting — If this subsection applies to a taxpayer in respect of a particular taxation year,

(a) [elected currency to be used] — the taxpayer's Canadian tax results for the particular taxation year are to be determined using the taxpayer's elected functional currency;

(b) [dollar amounts] — unless the context otherwise requires, each reference in this Act or the regulations to an amount (other than in respect of a penalty or fine) that is described as a particular number of Canadian dollars is to be read in respect of the taxpayer and the particular taxation year, as a reference to that amount expressed in the taxpayer's elected functional currency using the relevant spot rate for the first day of the particular taxation year;

(c) [conversion at date amount arose] — subject to paragraph (9)(b), subsection (15), subsection 79(7) and paragraphs 80(2)(k) and 142.7(8)(b), if a particular amount that is relevant in computing the taxpayer's Canadian tax results for the particular taxation year is expressed in a currency other than the taxpayer's elected functional currency, the particular amount is to be converted to an amount expressed in the taxpayer's elected functional currency using the relevant spot rate for the day on which the particular amount arose;

(d) [debt forgiveness] — the definition "exchange rate" in subsection 111(8) is, in respect of the taxpayer and the particular taxation year, and with such modifications as the context requires, to be read as follows:

"exchange rate" at any time in respect of a particular currency other than the taxpayer's elected functional currency means the relevant spot rate, for the day that includes that time, in respect of the conversion of an amount from the particular currency to the taxpayer's elected functional currency, or a rate of exchange acceptable to the Minister;

(e) [subsec. 39(2)] — except in applying paragraph 95(2)(f.15) in respect of a taxation year, of a foreign affiliate of the taxpayer, that is a functional currency year of the foreign affiliate within the meaning of subsection (6.1), each reference in subsection 39(2)

(i) to "the value of the currency or currencies of one or more countries other than Canada relative to Canadian currency, a taxpayer" is to be read, in respect of the taxpayer and the particular taxation year, and with such modifications as the context requires, as a reference to "the value of the currency or currencies of one or more countries (other than the taxpayer's elected functional currency) relative to a taxpayer's elected functional currency, the taxpayer", and

(ii) to "currency of a country other than Canada" is to be read, in respect of the taxpayer and the particular taxation year, and with such modifications as the context requires, as a reference to "currency other than the taxpayer's elected functional currency";

(f) [loss carryovers] — each reference in

(i) section 76.1, subsection 79(7), paragraph 80(2)(k), subsections 80.01(11), 80.1(8), 142.4(1) and 142.7(8) and the definition "amortized cost" in subsection 248(1), and subparagraph 231(6)(a)(iv) of the Regulations, to "Canadian currency" is, in respect of the taxpayer and the particular taxation year, and with such modifications as the context requires, to be read as a reference to "the taxpayer's elected functional currency", and

(ii) subparagraph 94.1(1)(b)(vii), the definition "foreign currency debt" in subsection 111(8), subsection 142.4(1), and the definition "amortized cost" in subsection 248(1) to "currency of a country other than Canada" is, in respect of the taxpayer and the particular taxation year, and with such modifications as the context requires, to be read as a reference to "currency other than the taxpayer's elected functional currency";

(g) [definition "foreign currency"] — the definition "foreign currency" in subsection 248(1) is, in respect of the taxpayer and the taxation year, and with such modifications as the context requires, to be read as follows:

"foreign currency" in respect of a taxpayer, at any time in a taxation year, means a currency other than the taxpayer's elected functional currency;

(h) [FAPI rules] — where a taxation year, of a foreign affiliate of the taxpayer, is a functional currency year of the foreign affiliate within the meaning of subsection (6.1),

(i) the references in section 95 (other than paragraph 95(2)(f.15)) and the references in regulations made for the purposes of section 95 or 113 (other than subsection 5907(6) of the Regulations) to

(A) "Canadian currency" are to be read, in respect of the foreign affiliate and the taxation year, and with such modifications as the context requires, as references to "the taxpayer's elected functional currency", and

(B) "currency of a country other than Canada" are to be read, in respect of the foreign affiliate and the taxation year, and with such modifications as the context requires, as references to "currency other than the taxpayer's elected functional currency", and

(ii) the reference in paragraph 95(2)(f.13) to "the rate of exchange quoted by the Bank of Canada at noon on" is to be read, in respect of the foreign affiliate and the taxation year, and with such modifications as the context requires, as a reference to "the relevant spot rate for".

Technical Notes (Dec. 2008): Subsection 261(5) is the main operative rule for section 261. It contains the rules — as set out in paragraphs 261(5)(a) to (h) — that apply in respect of each functional currency year of a taxpayer (the "particular taxation year").

Paragraph 261(5)(a) provides that the taxpayer's Canadian tax results for the particular taxation year are to be determined using the taxpayer's elected functional currency.

Paragraph 261(5)(b) provides that, unless the context otherwise requires, each reference in the Act or the Regulations to an amount (other than in respect of a penalty or fine) that is described as a particular number of Canadian dollars is to be read as a reference to that amount expressed in the taxpayer's elected functional currency using the relevant spot rate for the first day of the particular taxation year.

Paragraph 261(5)(c) provides that, subject to paragraph 261(9)(b), subsection 261(15), and certain other provisions in the Act, if a particular amount that is relevant in computing the taxpayer's Canadian tax results for the particular taxation year is expressed in a currency other than the taxpayer's elected functional currency, the particular amount is to be converted to an amount expressed in the taxpayer's elected functional currency using the relevant spot rate for the day on which the particular amount first arose.

Paragraphs 261(5)(d) to (h) provide special readings of a number of the Act's provisions, in order to take account of the functional currency tax reporting regime. The general effect of these special readings is to substitute references to the taxpayer's elected functional currency for references to Canadian currency.

Related Provisions: 76.1 — Debt of non-resident moved from or assumed in non-resident's Canadian business; 95(2)(f.12)–(f.15) — Currency calculations for foreign affiliates (FAPI rules); 261(1)"functional currency year" — Year to which 261(5) applies; 261(2) — Rules where no election made; 261(3) — Conditions for 261(5) to apply; 261(6) — Application to partnership; 261(7) — Converting Canadian currency amounts; 261(11) — Determination of amounts payable for administrative rules; 261(15) — Amounts carried back; 261(16)(a)(i), (b)(ii)(C) — Application on winding-up; 261(18) — Anti-avoidance rule.

(6) Partnerships — For the purposes of computing the Canadian tax results of a particular taxpayer for each taxation year that is a functional currency year or a reversionary year of the particular taxpayer, this section is to be applied as if each partnership of which the particular taxpayer is a member at any time in the taxation year were a taxpayer that

(a) had as its first functional currency year its first fiscal period, if any, that

(i) is a fiscal period at any time during which the particular taxpayer is a member of the partnership,

(ii) begins after December 13, 2007, and

(iii) ends at least six months after the day that is six months before the end of the particular taxpayer's first functional currency year;

(b) had as its last Canadian currency year its last fiscal period, if any, that ends before its first functional currency year;

(c) had as its first reversionary year its first fiscal period, if any, that begins after the particular taxpayer's last functional currency year;

(d) is subject to subsection (5) for each of its fiscal periods that is, or begins after, its first functional currency year and that ends before its first reversionary year;

(e) had as its elected functional currency in respect of each fiscal period described in paragraph (d) the elected functional currency of the particular taxpayer; and

(f) had as its last functional currency year its last fiscal period, if any, that ends before its first reversionary year.

Technical Notes (Dec. 2008): Subsection 261(6) deals with situations where a taxpayer (referred to for convenience as the "partner") that has made a functional currency election is or becomes a member of a partnership. Generally, the subsection attributes to the partnership the same tax reporting currency — and the same history of changes in tax reporting currency — as the partner.

Specifically, subsection 261(6) makes it such that section 261 applies as if the partnership were a taxpayer that

- had as its first functional currency year its first fiscal period (beginning after December 13, 2007) that ends six months or more after the day on which the partner filed its election under paragraph 261(3)(b) and that is a fiscal period during which the partner is a member of the partnership;
- had as its last Canadian currency year its last fiscal period that ends before its first functional currency year;
- had as its first reversionary year its first fiscal period that begins six months or more after the day on which the partner filed its notice of revocation under subsection 261(4);
- is subject to subsection 261(5) for each of its fiscal periods that begin after its last Canadian currency year and end before its first reversionary year;
- had as its elected functional currency in respect of each fiscal period referred to immediately above the elected functional currency of the partner in respect of any time in that fiscal period; and
- had as its last functional currency year its last fiscal period that ends before its first reversionary year.

Related Provisions: 96(1) — Income determination for partnership; 261(22) — Partnership transactions — anti-avoidance rules.

(6.1) Foreign affiliates — For the purposes of computing the foreign accrual property income of a foreign affiliate of a particular taxpayer, in respect of the particular taxpayer, for each taxation year that is a functional currency year or a reversionary year of the particular taxpayer, this section is to be applied as if

(a) the foreign affiliate were a taxpayer that

(i) had, as its first functional currency year, its first taxation year that

(A) is a taxation year at any time during which the foreign affiliate is a foreign affiliate of the particular taxpayer,

(B) begins after December 13, 2007, and

(C) ends at least six months after the day that is six months before the end of the particular taxpayer's first functional currency year,

(ii) had as its last Canadian currency year its last taxation year, if any, that ends before its first functional currency year,

(iii) had as its first reversionary year its first taxation year, if any, that begins after the particular taxpayer's last functional currency year,

(iv) is subject to subsection (5) for each of its taxation years that is, or begins after, its first functional currency year and that ends before its first reversionary year,

(v) had as its elected functional currency in respect of each taxation year described in subparagraph (iv) the elected functional currency of the particular taxpayer, and

(vi) had as its last functional currency year its last taxation year, if any, that ends before its first reversionary year; and

(b) the Canadian tax results of the foreign affiliate for each taxation year that is a functional currency year or a reversionary year of the foreign affiliate, within the meaning of paragraph (a), were its foreign accrual property income, in respect of the particular taxpayer, for that taxation year and any amount that is relevant in determining such foreign accrual property income.

Related Provisions: 261(5)(h) — Where foreign affiliate's taxation year is functional currency year.

(7) Converting Canadian currency amounts [— use last day of year] — In applying this Act to a taxpayer for a particular functional currency year of the taxpayer, the following amounts are to be converted from Canadian currency to the taxpayer's elected functional currency using the relevant spot rate for the last day of the taxpayer's last Canadian currency year:

(a) each particular amount that

(i) is, or is relevant to the determination of, an amount that may be deducted under subsection 37(1) or 66(4), element F in the definition "foreign accrual property income" in subsection 95(1), section 110.1 or 111 or subsection 126(2), 127(5), 129(1), 181.1(4) or 190.1(3), in the particular functional currency year, and

(ii) was determined for a Canadian currency year of the taxpayer;

(b) the cost to the taxpayer of a property that was acquired by the taxpayer in a Canadian currency year of the taxpayer;

(c) an amount that was required by section 53 to be added or deducted in computing, at any time in a Canadian currency year of the taxpayer, the adjusted cost base to the taxpayer of a capital property that was acquired by the taxpayer in such a year;

(d) an amount that

(i) is in respect of the taxpayer's undepreciated capital cost of depreciable property of a prescribed class, cumulative eligible capital in respect of a business, cumulative Canadian exploration expense (within the meaning assigned by subsection 66.1(6)), cumulative Canadian development expense (within the meaning assigned by subsection 66.2(5)), cumulative foreign resource expense in respect of a country other than Canada (within the meaning assigned by subsection 66.21(1)) or cumulative Canadian oil and gas property expense (within the meaning assigned by subsection 66.4(5)) (each of which is referred to in this paragraph as a "pool amount"), and

(ii) was added to or deducted from a pool amount of the taxpayer in respect of a Canadian currency year of the taxpayer;

(e) an amount that has been deducted or claimed as a reserve in computing the income of the taxpayer for its last Canadian currency year;

(f) an outlay or expense referred to in subsection 18(9) that was made or incurred by the taxpayer in respect of a Canadian currency year of the taxpayer, and any amount that was deducted in respect of the outlay or expense in computing the income of the taxpayer for such a year;

(g) an amount that was added or deducted in computing the taxpayer's paid-up capital in respect of a class of shares of its capital stock in a Canadian currency year of the taxpayer; and

(h) any amount (other than an amount referred to in any of paragraphs (a) to (g) or any of subsections (6), (6.1) and (8)) determined under the provisions of this Act in or in respect of a Canadian currency year of the taxpayer that is relevant in determining the Canadian tax results of the taxpayer for the particular functional currency year.

Technical Notes (Dec. 2008): Subsection 261(7) provides that, in applying the Act to a taxpayer for a particular functional currency year, certain amounts are to be converted from Canadian currency to the taxpayer's elected functional currency using the relevant spot rate for the last day of the taxpayer's last Canadian currency year.

In general, these are amounts — such as losses and other amounts carried forward — that were determined in or in respect of a taxation year preceding the taxpayer's first functional currency year but that are relevant in determining the taxpayer's Canadian tax results for the particular functional currency year.

Specifically, the amounts to be converted under subsection 261(7) are the following:

- Amounts that were determined for a Canadian currency year and are, or are relevant to the determination of, amounts that may be deducted in the particular functional currency year under subsection 37(1) or 66(4), section 110.1 or 111 or subsection 126(2), 127(5), 129(1), 181.1(4) or 190.1(3).
- The cost to the taxpayer of each property acquired in a Canadian currency year.
- Additions to and deductions from the taxpayer's adjusted cost of capital properties acquired in Canadian currency years, if section 53 required those to be made in Canadian currency years.
- Additions to and deductions from, in respect of Canadian currency years, what are termed "pool amounts". Pool amounts consist of the undepreciated capital cost of depreciable property, cumulative eligible capital, and the cumulative amounts of the various resource expenses recognized under the Act.
- Reserves deducted or claimed by the taxpayer for its last Canadian currency year.
- Outlays and expenses referred to in subsection 18(9) that were made or incurred by the taxpayer in respect of a Canadian currency year, and amounts deducted in respect of those outlays and expenses in computing the income of the taxpayer for such a year.
- Additions to and deductions from the taxpayer's paid-up capital, in respect of a class of shares of its capital stock, in Canadian currency years.
- Any other amount determined under the provisions of the Act in or in respect of a Canadian currency year of the taxpayer that is relevant in determining the Canadian tax results of the taxpayer for the particular functional currency year.

Amounts referred to in subsection 261(8) are excluded from the scope of subsection 261(7). This is because subsections 261(8) to (10) set out specific rules in relation to debt obligations.

Related Provisions: 261(11) — Conversion rules for amounts of tax payable; 261(12) — Application to reversionary year.

(8) Converting pre-transition debts — In determining, at any time in a particular functional currency year of a taxpayer, the amount for which a pre-transition debt of the taxpayer (other than a pre-transition debt denominated in the taxpayer's elected functional currency) was issued and its principal amount at the beginning of the taxpayer's first functional currency year,

(a) where the pre-transition debt is denominated in Canadian currency, those amounts are to be converted to the taxpayer's elected functional currency using the relevant spot rate for the last day of the taxpayer's last Canadian currency year; and

(b) where the pre-transition debt is denominated in a currency (referred to in this paragraph as the "debt currency") that is neither Canadian currency nor the taxpayer's elected functional currency, those amounts are to be converted from the debt currency to the taxpayer's elected functional currency using the relevant spot rate for the last day of the taxpayer's last Canadian currency year.

Technical Notes (Dec. 2008): As noted in the commentary to subsection 261(1), a "pre-transition debt" of a taxpayer is a debt obligation of the taxpayer that was issued by the taxpayer before the beginning of the taxpayer's first functional currency year.

Subsection 261(8) provides that, in determining, at any time in a particular functional currency year, the amount for which a pre-transition debt of the taxpayer was issued and its principal amount at the beginning of the taxpayer's first functional currency year, those amounts are to be converted to the taxpayer's elected functional currency using the relevant spot rate for the last day of the taxpayer's last Canadian currency year. (It should be noted that the principal amount is to be determined with due regard to subsection 248(27).)

This conversion rule is unnecessary in the case of, and does not apply to, a pre-transition debt denominated in the taxpayer's elected functional currency.

Related Provisions: 261(9) — Where denominated in other currency; 261(10) — Deferred amount relating to pre-transition debt; 261(12) — Application to reversionary year.

(9) Pre-transition debts — A pre-transition debt of a taxpayer that is denominated in a currency other than the taxpayer's elected functional currency is deemed to have been issued immediately before the taxpayer's first functional currency year for the purposes of

(a) determining the amount of the taxpayer's income, gain or loss, for a functional currency year of the taxpayer (other than an amount that subsection (10) deems to arise), that is attributable to a fluctuation in the value of a currency; and

(b) applying paragraph 80(2)(k) in respect of a functional currency year of the taxpayer.

Technical Notes (Dec. 2008): Subsection 261(9) applies in respect of a taxpayer's pre-transition debt that is denominated in a currency other than the taxpayer's elected functional currency. Under this subsection, that pre-transition debt is deemed to have been issued immediately before the taxpayer's first functional currency year for the purposes of

- determining the taxpayer's income, gain or loss, for a functional currency year (other than an amount that subsection 261(10) deems to arise), that is attributable to a fluctuation in the value of a currency, and
- applying paragraph 80(2)(k) in respect of a functional currency year.

For example, assume that a taxpayer issued a debt obligation before the taxpayer's first functional currency year and that this pre-transition debt is denominated in a currency (referred to for convenience as the "debt currency") other than the taxpayer's elected functional currency. Subsection 261(9) will be relevant in determining, under subsection 39(2), the taxpayer's capital gain or capital loss from the debt.

In applying subsection 39(2) (read in the manner directed by paragraph 261(5)(e)), the taxpayer's gain or loss on the debt obligation by virtue of a fluctuation in the value of the debt currency relative to the taxpayer's elected functional currency will, because of subsection 261(9), be measured as though the debt obligation had been issued immediately before the taxpayer's first functional currency year.

Thus, subsection 261(9) ensures that fluctuations in the value of the debt currency relative to the taxpayer's elected functional currency between the actual issuance time of the debt obligation and the end of the taxpayer's last Canadian currency year will be disregarded in computing the taxpayer's capital gain or capital loss under subsection 39(2) in respect of the debt obligation for a functional currency year of the taxpayer.

Paragraph 261(9)(b) provides a similar result for purposes of the debt forgiveness rules in section 80.

(10) Deferred amounts relating to pre-transition debts — If a taxpayer has, at any time in a taxation year that is a functional currency year or a reversionary year of the taxpayer, made a particular payment on account of the principal amount of a pre-transition debt of the taxpayer:

(a) where the taxpayer would have made a gain — or, if the pre-transition debt was not on account of capital, would have had income — (referred to in this paragraph as the "hypothetical gain or income") attributable to a fluctuation in the value of a currency if the pre-transition debt had been settled by the taxpayer's having paid, immediately before the end of its last Canadian currency year, an amount equal to the principal amount (expressed in the currency in which the pre-transition debt is denominated, which currency is referred to in this subsection as the "debt currency") at that time, the taxpayer is deemed to make a gain or to have income, as the case may be, for the taxation year equal to the amount determined by the formula

where

A is

(i) if the taxation year is a functional currency year of the taxpayer, the amount of the hypothetical gain or income converted to the taxpayer's elected functional currency using the relevant spot rate for the last day of the taxpayer's last Canadian currency year, and

(ii) if the taxation year is a reversionary year of the taxpayer, the amount determined under subparagraph (i) converted to Canadian currency using the relevant spot rate for the last day of the taxpayer's last functional currency year,

B is the amount of the particular payment (expressed in the debt currency), and

C is the principal amount of the pre-transition debt at the beginning of the taxpayer's first functional currency year (expressed in the debt currency); and

(b) where the taxpayer would have sustained a loss — or, if the pre-transition debt was not on account of capital, would have had a loss — (referred to in this paragraph as the "hypothetical loss") attributable to a fluctuation in the value of a currency if the pre-transition debt had been settled by the taxpayer's having paid, immediately before the end of its last Canadian currency year, an amount equal to the principal amount (expressed in the debt currency) at that time, the taxpayer is deemed to sustain or to have a loss in respect of the particular payment for the taxation year equal to the amount that would be determined by the formula in paragraph (a) if the reference in the description of A in that paragraph to "hypothetical gain or income" were read as a reference to "hypothetical loss".

Technical Notes (Dec. 2008): Subsection 261(10) applies if a taxpayer has, at any time in a functional currency year or reversionary year, made a payment on account of the principal amount of a pre-transition debt. A similar rule is provided in subsection 261(14) in respect of pre-reversion debts. (It should be noted that for both of these rules the principal amount is to be determined with due regard to subsection 248(27).)

The first step in applying subsection 261(10) is to test what would have happened if the taxpayer had settled the pre-transition debt by paying, immediately before the end of its last Canadian currency year, an amount equal to the principal amount at that time (expressed in the currency in which the pre-transition debt is denominated, which currency is referred to as the "debt currency"). If the taxpayer would have made a gain — or, if the pre-transition debt was not on account of capital, would have had income — attributable to a fluctuation in the value of a currency, paragraph 261(10)(a) applies. If the taxpayer would have sustained a capital loss or (if the debt was not on account of capital) had a loss because of a currency fluctuation, paragraph 261(10)(b) applies. Since the two paragraphs are generally comparable, only paragraph (a) is described in detail here.

Having determined that a gain or income (referred to as the "hypothetical gain or income") would have resulted, the amount of the hypothetical gain or income is prorated for the particular payment on account of principal. The following formula is used:

$$A \times B / C$$

where

A is

1. if the taxation year is a functional currency year of the taxpayer, the amount of the hypothetical gain or income converted to the taxpayer's elected functional currency using the relevant spot rate for the last day of the taxpayer's last Canadian currency year, and

2. if the taxation year is a reversionary year of the taxpayer, the amount determined under 1, converted to Canadian currency using the relevant spot rate for the last day of the taxpayer's last functional currency year,

B is the amount of the particular payment (expressed in the debt currency), and

C is the principal amount of the pre-transition debt at the beginning of the taxpayer's first functional currency year (expressed in the debt currency).

The resulting portion of the hypothetical gain or income is then treated as a gain or income, as the case may be, of the taxpayer for the particular functional currency year or reversionary year.

(11) Determination of amounts payable [under the Act] — Notwithstanding subsections (5) and (7), for the purposes of applying this Act in respect of a functional currency year (referred to in this subsection as the "particular taxation year") of a taxpayer,

(a) for the purposes of determining the taxpayer's payment obligations under paragraph 157(1)(a) or (1.1)(a),

(i) the estimated amounts, each of which is described in subparagraph 157(1)(a)(i) or (1.1)(a)(i), that are payable by the taxpayer for the particular taxation year are to be determined by converting those amounts, as determined in the taxpayer's elected functional currency, to Canadian currency using the relevant spot rate for the day on which those amounts are due,

(ii) the taxpayer's first instalment base (within the meaning assigned by subsection 157(4)) for the particular taxation year is to be determined

(A) if the particular taxation year is the taxpayer's first functional currency year, without reference to this section, and

(B) in any other case, as if the taxes payable by the taxpayer for the taxpayer's functional currency year (referred to in this paragraph as the "first base year") immediately preceding the particular taxation year were the total of

(I) the total of the taxpayer's payment obligations under paragraph 157(1)(a) or (1.1)(a), as determined with reference to this subparagraph or subparagraph (i) or (iii), as the case may be, in respect of the first base year, and

(II) the amount, if any, of the remainder of the taxes payable by the taxpayer under paragraph 157(1)(b) or (1.1)(b), as determined under paragraph (b), in respect of the first base year, and

(iii) the taxpayer's second instalment base (within the meaning assigned by subsection 157(4)) for the particular taxation year is to be determined

(A) if the particular taxation year is the taxpayer's first functional currency year or its taxation year that immediately follows its first functional currency year, without reference to this section, and

(B) in any other case, as if the taxes payable by the taxpayer for the taxpayer's functional currency year (referred to in this subparagraph as the "second base year")

immediately preceding the first base year were the total of

(I) the total of the taxpayer's payment obligations under paragraph 157(1)(a) or (1.1)(a), as determined with reference to this subparagraph or subparagraph (i) or (ii), as the case may be, in respect of the second base year, and

(II) the amount, if any, of the remainder of the taxes payable by the taxpayer under paragraph 157(1)(b) or (1.1)(b), as determined under paragraph (b), in respect of the second base year;

(b) the remainder of the taxes payable by the taxpayer under paragraph 157(1)(b) or (1.1)(b) for the particular taxation year is the amount, if any, determined by

(i) computing the amount, if any, by which

(A) the total of the taxes payable by the taxpayer under this Part and Parts VI, VI.1 and XIII.1 for the particular taxation year, as determined in the taxpayer's elected functional currency

exceeds

(B) the total of all amounts each of which is the amount determined by converting the amount of a payment obligation — determined by paragraph 157(1)(a) or (1.1)(a), as the case may be, with reference to subparagraph (a)(i), (ii) or (iii), as the case may be — of the taxpayer in respect of the particular taxation year to the taxpayer's elected functional currency using the relevant spot rate for the day on which the payment obligation was due, and

(ii) converting the amount, if any, determined by subparagraph (i) to Canadian currency using the relevant spot rate for the taxpayer's balance-due day for the particular taxation year;

(c) for the purposes of determining any amount (other than tax) that is payable by the taxpayer under this Part or Part VI, VI.1 or XIII.1 for the particular taxation year, the taxpayer's tax payable under the Part for the particular taxation year is deemed to be equal to the total of

(i) the total of the taxpayer's payment obligations under paragraph 157(1)(a) or (1.1)(a), in respect of the Part, as determined with reference to subparagraph (a)(i), (ii) or (iii), as the case may be, in respect of the particular taxation year, and

(ii) the amount, if any, of the remainder of the taxes payable by the taxpayer under paragraph 157(1)(b) or (1.1)(b), in respect of the Part, as determined under paragraph (b), in respect of the particular taxation year;

(d) amounts of tax that are payable under this Act (except under this Part and Parts VI, VI.1 and XIII.1) by the taxpayer for the particular taxation year are to be determined by converting those amounts, as determined in the taxpayer's elected functional currency, to Canadian currency using the relevant spot rate for the day on which those amounts are due;

(e) if a particular amount that is determined in the taxpayer's elected functional currency is deemed to be paid at any time on account of an amount payable by the taxpayer under this Act for the particular taxation year, the particular amount is to be converted to Canadian currency using the relevant spot rate for the day that includes that time;

(f) the following amounts are to be determined in the taxpayer's elected functional currency and converted to Canadian currency using the relevant spot rate for the taxpayer's balance-due day for the particular taxation year:

(i) amounts described in paragraph 163(1)(a) in respect of the particular taxation year, and

(ii) the amount of the taxpayer's taxable capital employed in Canada, for the purpose of applying section 235; and

(g) for greater certainty, all amounts payable by the taxpayer under this Act in respect of the particular taxation year are to be paid in Canadian currency.

Technical Notes (Dec. 2008): Subsection 261(11) contains rules for determining amounts payable under the Act by taxpayers that report their Canadian tax results in an elected functional currency (referred to in these notes as "functional currency reporters"). Most notably, the subsection sets out rules governing instalments payments and the computation of the remainder of taxes payable for functional currency years of a taxpayer. These rules are intended to provide a seamless transition into the functional currency regime for those taxpayers that are already subject to instalment obligations and to ensure continued ease of compliance.

Despite the functional currency regime, all taxpayers are required to pay amounts they owe under the Act in Canadian currency. This requirement is, for greater certainty, confirmed in paragraph 261(11)(c). Similarly, paragraph 261(11)(b) provides that if a particular amount that is determined in the taxpayer's elected functional currency is deemed to be paid at any time on account of an amount payable for a functional currency year of a taxpayer (e.g., a refundable investment tax credit), the particular amount is to be converted to Canadian currency using the relevant spot rate for the day that includes that time.

Subparagraph 261(11)(a)(i) provides, for the purposes of Divisions I and J of Part I of the Act, that taxes payable for a functional currency year of a taxpayer are to be determined in Canadian dollars by converting those amounts as expressed in the taxpayer's elected functional currency to Canadian dollars using the relevant spot rate for the taxpayer's balance-due day for the year. The expression of taxes payable in Canadian dollars ensures that any interest and penalty obligations that are derived from taxes payable are easily computed in Canadian dollars.

The other rules in paragraph 261(11)(a) deal with the calculation of instalments and the remainder of taxes payable under subsections 157(1) and (1.1). These rules establish the amount that a functional currency reporter is required to pay in Canadian currency on its instalment due dates and on its balance-due day for a particular taxation year. Although paragraph 261(11)(a) requires a functional currency reporter to compute and pay its instalments in Canadian currency, it also insulates the functional currency reporter from exchange risk by crediting instalment payments to the account of the taxpayer based on the elected functional currency equivalent of those amounts, using the relevant spot rate for the day those amounts are due, for the purpose of determining its remainder of taxes payable.

The application of proposed subsection 261(11) is illustrated by the following examples.

Assumptions for both scenarios:

- Xco is a Canadian resident corporation that has the U.S. dollar as its functional currency.
- Xco's taxation year-end is December 31st.
- Xco is not a small CCPC for the purposes of subsection 157(1.1).
- The relevant spot rate on February 28, 2009 for the exchange of US$ to Cdn$ is 1.10; the rate is the same on February 28, 2010.

Scenario 1 — New corporation; no instalment obligation

Assume that Xco was incorporated on February 1, 2008 and that it elects on or before June 30, 2008 (i.e., six months before the end of its 2008 taxation year) to report its Canadian tax results in U.S. dollars. Assume also that Xco has tax payable under Part I of the Act of US$1,000,000 for its 2008 taxation year and that it does not have any tax payable under any other Part of the Act.

In this example, Xco does not have an instalment base for a previous taxation year and therefore does not have an instalment obligation for its 2008 taxation year. To determine Xco's remainder of taxes payable under paragraph 157(1)(b) on its balance-due day (in this case, February 28, 2009), subparagraph 261(11)(a)(i) provides that the amount of taxes payable, as determined in the taxpayer's elected functional currency, is to be converted into Canadian currency using the relevant spot rate for that day. Since no instalments were made, subparagraph 261(11)(a)(v) is not relevant. As such, Xco's remainder of taxes payable under paragraph 157(1)(b), would be Cdn$1,100,000.

Scenario 2 — Instalments made in accordance with instalment base

Assume that Xco was incorporated in 2004 and that it elects, on or before June 30, 2009, to report its Canadian tax results in U.S dollars for its 2009 and subsequent taxation years. Further assume that:

- Xco's taxes payable in each of 2008 and 2007 for the purpose of computing its first and second instalment bases, respectively, for 2009 is Cdn$1,200,000;
- Xco remits Cdn$100,000 on or before each of its 12 instalment due dates; and
- Xco's total taxes payable for its 2009 taxation year under Parts I, VI, VI.1 and XIII.1, is US$1,500,000.

In computing its remainder of taxes payable on its 2009 balance-due day (February 28, 2010), Xco is required to:

(a) convert its taxes payable as computed in its elected functional currency to Canadian currency at the relevant spot rate for that day (1.10 × US$1,500,000 = Cdn$1,650,000) [see subparagraph 261(11)(a)(i)];

(b) convert each of the Cdn$100,000 instalment payments to its elected functional currency using the relevant spot rate for day the instalment was due (assume that this converts to a total amount of US$1,150,000, i.e. an average exchange rate of 1.0435) [see clause 261(11)(a)(v)(A)]; and

(c) convert each US$ amount referred to in (b) to Canadian currency using the relevant spot rate for Xco's balance-due day (1.10 × US$1,150,000 = $1,265,000) [see clause 261(11)(a)(v)(B)].

The difference between taxes payable of Cdn$1,650,000 and instalments paid of Cdn$1,265,000 is Cdn$385,000, and that represents Xco's remainder of taxes payable. In this scenario, Xco has been credited with Cdn$1,265,000 of instalments when it actually paid only Cdn$1,200,000. The difference of Cdn$65,000 is attributable to exchange rate fluctuations between the instalment due dates and the balance-due day.

For its 2010 taxation year, Xco will have a first instalment base equal to Cdn$1,650,000 ($137,500 monthly) and a second instalment base of Cdn$1,200,000 ($100,000 monthly).

(12) Application of subsecs. (7) and (8) to reversionary years — In applying this Act to a reversionary year of a taxpayer, subsections (7) and (8) are to be read as if the references in those subsections to

(a) "Canadian currency" were references to "the taxpayer's elected functional currency";

(b) "Canadian currency year" were references to "functional currency year";

(c) "functional currency year" were references to "reversionary year";

(d) "first functional currency year" were references to "first reversionary year";

(e) "last Canadian currency year" were references to "last functional currency year";

(f) "pre-transition debt" were references to "pre-reversion debt"; and

(g) "the taxpayer's elected functional currency" were references to "Canadian currency".

Technical Notes (Dec. 2008): Subsections 261(7) and (8) provide rules for converting Canadian currency amounts into elected functional currency amounts for the purposes of applying the Act for functional currency years of a taxpayer. Similarly, subsection 261(12) provides for rules for converting elected functional currency amounts into Canadian currency amounts for the purposes of applying the Act for reversionary years of a taxpayer.

Subsection 261(12) uses the rules in subsections 261(7) and (8) with applicable changes to suit the context of taxpayers who are reverting to Canadian currency tax reporting. These adapted rules are supplemented with the rules in subsections 261(13) and (14) relating to debt obligations.

(13) Pre-reversion debts — A pre-reversion debt of a taxpayer that is denominated in a currency other than Canadian currency is deemed to have been issued immediately before the taxpayer's first reversionary year for the purposes of

(a) determining the amount of the taxpayer's income, gain or loss, for a reversionary year of the taxpayer (other than an amount that subsection (14) deems to arise), that is attributable to a fluctuation in the value of a currency; and

(b) applying paragraph 80(2)(k) in respect of a reversionary year of the taxpayer.

Technical Notes (Dec. 2008): Subsection 261(13) applies in respect of a taxpayer's pre-reversion debt that is denominated in a currency other than Canadian currency. Under this subsection, such a pre-reversion debt is deemed to have been issued immediately before the taxpayer's first reversionary year for the purposes of

- determining the amount of a taxpayer's income, gain or loss, for a reversionary year of the taxpayer (other than an amount that subsection 261(14) deems to arise), that is attributable to a fluctuation in the value of a currency, and
- applying paragraph 80(2)(k) in respect of a reversionary year of the taxpayer.

Subsection 261(13) is the reversion equivalent of the transition rule in subsection 261(9). See the commentary under the latter subsection for an example of the intended application of these rules.

(14) Deferred amounts relating to pre-reversion debts — If a taxpayer has, at any time in a reversionary year of the taxpayer, made a particular payment on account of the principal amount of a pre-reversion debt of the taxpayer:

(a) where the taxpayer would have made a gain — or, if the pre-reversion debt was not on account of capital, would have had income — (referred to in this paragraph as the "hypothetical gain or income") attributable to a fluctuation in the value of a currency if the pre-reversion debt had been settled by the taxpayer's having paid, immediately before the end of its last functional currency year, an amount equal to the principal amount (expressed in the currency in which the pre-reversion debt is denominated, which currency is referred to in this subsection as the "debt currency") at that time, the taxpayer is deemed to make a gain or to have income, as the case may be, for the reversionary year equal to the amount determined by the formula

where

A is the amount of the hypothetical gain or income converted to Canadian currency using the relevant spot rate for the last day of the taxpayer's last functional currency year,

B is the amount of the particular payment (expressed in the debt currency), and

C is the principal amount of the pre-reversion debt at the beginning of the taxpayer's first reversionary year (expressed in the debt currency); and

(b) where the taxpayer would have sustained a loss — or, if the pre-reversion debt was not on account of capital, would have had a loss — (referred to in this paragraph as the "hypothetical loss") attributable to a fluctuation in the value of a currency if the pre-reversion debt had been settled by the taxpayer's having paid, immediately before the end of its last functional currency year, an amount equal to the principal amount (expressed in the debt currency) at that time, the taxpayer is deemed to sustain or to have a loss in respect of the particular payment for the reversionary year equal to the amount that would be determined by the formula in paragraph (a) if the reference in the description of A in that paragraph to "hypothetical gain or income" were read as a reference to "hypothetical loss".

Technical Notes (Dec. 2008): Subsection 261(14) applies if a taxpayer has, in a reversionary year, made a payment on account of the principal amount of a pre-reversion debt. These rules are analogous to the rules in subsection 261(10) that apply to pre-transition debts. (It should be noted that for both of these rules the principal amount is to be determined with due regard to subsection 248(27).) The terms "pre-transition debt" and "pre-reversion debt" are defined in subsection 261(1). Since a pre-reversion debt can include a pre-transition debt, subsections 261(10) and 261(14) can both apply to a pre-transition debt.

The first step in applying subsection 261(14) is to test what would have happened if the taxpayer had settled the pre-reversion debt by paying, immediately before the end of its last functional currency year, an amount equal to the principal amount at that time (expressed in the currency in which the pre-reversion debt is denominated, which currency is referred to as the "debt currency"). If the taxpayer would have made a gain — or, if the pre-reversion debt was not on account of capital, would have had income — attributable to a fluctuation in the value of a currency, paragraph 261(14)(a) applies. If the taxpayer would have sustained a capital loss or (if the debt was not on account of capital) had a loss because of a currency fluctuation, paragraph 261(14)(b) applies. Since the two paragraphs are generally comparable, only paragraph (a) is described in detail here.

Having determined that a gain or income (referred to as the "hypothetical gain or income") would have resulted, the amount of the hypothetical gain or income is prorated for the particular payment on account of principal. The following formula is used:

where

A is the amount of the hypothetical gain or income converted to Canadian currency using the relevant spot rate for the last day of the taxpayer's last functional currency year,

B is the amount of the particular payment (expressed in the debt currency), and

C is the principal amount of the pre-reversion debt at the beginning of the taxpayer's first reversionary year (expressed in the debt currency).

The resulting portion of the hypothetical gain or income is then treated as gain or income, as the case may be, of the taxpayer for the particular reversionary year.

(15) Amounts carried back — For the purposes of determining the amount that may be deducted, in respect of a particular amount that arises in a taxation year (referred to in this subsection as the "later year") of a taxpayer, under section 111 or subsection 126(2), 127(5), 181.1(4) or 190.1(3) in computing the taxpayer's Canadian tax results for a taxation year (referred to in this subsection as the "current year") that ended before the later year,

(a) if the later year is a functional currency year of the taxpayer and the current year is a Canadian currency year of the taxpayer, the following amounts (expressed in the taxpayer's elected functional currency) are to be converted to Canadian currency using the relevant spot rate for the last day of the taxpayer's last Canadian currency year:

(i) the particular amount, and

(ii) any amount so deducted in computing the taxpayer's Canadian tax results for another functional currency year of the taxpayer;

(b) if the later year is a reversionary year of the taxpayer and the current year is a functional currency year of the taxpayer,

(i) the following amounts (expressed in Canadian currency) are to be converted to the taxpayer's elected functional currency using the relevant spot rate for the last day of the taxpayer's last functional currency year:

(A) the particular amount, and

(B) any amount so deducted in computing the taxpayer's Canadian tax results for another reversionary year of the taxpayer, and

(ii) any amount (expressed in Canadian currency) so deducted in computing the taxpayer's Canadian tax results for a Canadian currency year of the taxpayer is to be converted to the taxpayer's elected functional currency using the relevant spot rate for the last day of the taxpayer's last Canadian currency year;

(c) if the later year is a reversionary year of the taxpayer and the current year is a Canadian currency year of the taxpayer, the following amounts (expressed in the taxpayer's elected functional currency) are to be converted to Canadian currency using the relevant spot rate for the last day of the taxpayer's last Canadian currency year:

(i) the amount that would be determined under clause (b)(i)(A) in respect of the particular amount if the current year were a functional currency year of the taxpayer, and

(ii) any amount so deducted in computing the taxpayer's Canadian tax results for a functional currency year of the taxpayer; and

(d) in any other case, this subsection does not apply.

Technical Notes (Dec. 2008): Subsection 261(15) replaces current subsection 261(10) and provides rules in respect of the carry-back of certain tax attributes to a prior taxation year, in certain circumstances. Those tax attributes are the ones found in section 111 and subsections 126(2), 127(5), 181.1(4) and 190.1(3).

Subsection 261(15) refers to the year in which the tax attributes arise as the "later year", and to the year to which the tax attributes are carried back as the "current year". If those two years are of different types in terms of the functional currency regime, the subsection applies special rules.

- Paragraph 261(15)(a) applies if the later year is a functional currency year and the current year is a Canadian currency year;
- Paragraph 261(15)(b) applies if the later year is a reversionary year and the current year is a functional currency year; and
- Paragraph 261(15)(c) applies if the later year is a reversionary year and the current year is a Canadian currency year.

Under paragraph 261(15)(a), if the later year is a functional currency year of the taxpayer and the current year is a Canadian currency year of the taxpayer, the following amounts (expressed in the taxpayer's elected functional currency) are to be converted to Canadian currency using the relevant spot rate for the last day of the taxpayer's last Canadian currency year:

1. the amount arising in the later year (the "particular amount"), and

2. any amount deducted, in respect of the particular amount, in computing the taxpayer's Canadian tax results for another functional currency year.

Paragraph 261(15)(b) provides that, if the later year is a reversionary year and the current year is a functional currency year, the following amounts (expressed in Canadian currency) are to be converted to the taxpayer's elected functional currency using the relevant spot rate for the last day of the taxpayer's last functional currency year:

1. the particular amount (which, once converted, is referred to in these notes as the "converted amount in respect of the particular amount"), and

2. any amount so deducted in computing the taxpayer's Canadian tax results for another reversionary year.

The paragraph also provides that any amount (expressed in Canadian currency) so deducted in computing the taxpayer's Canadian tax results for a Canadian currency year is to be converted to the taxpayer's elected functional currency using the relevant spot rate for the last day of the taxpayer's last Canadian currency year.

Paragraph 261(15)(c) applies if the later year is a reversionary year and the current year is a Canadian currency year. It provides that the following amounts (expressed in the taxpayer's elected functional currency) are to be converted to Canadian currency using the relevant spot rate for the last day of the taxpayer's last Canadian currency year:

- the amount that would be the "converted amount in respect of the particular amount" (see above) if the current year were a functional currency year of the taxpayer, and
- any amount so deducted in computing the taxpayer's Canadian tax results for a functional currency year.

Under paragraph 261(15)(c), an amount to be carried back from a reversionary year to a Canadian currency year is thus, in effect, first converted to the taxpayer's elected functional currency using the relevant spot rate for the last day of the taxpayer's last functional currency year and is then converted to Canadian currency using the relevant spot rate for the last day of the taxpayer's last Canadian currency year. This double conversion is consistent with the rules in subsections 261(7) and (12), which provide that, upon a taxpayer's entry into the functional currency tax reporting regime, the taxpayer's tax attributes are converted from Canadian currency to the taxpayer's elected functional currency using the relevant spot rate for the last day of the taxpayer's last Canadian currency year and that, upon the taxpayer's reversion to Canadian currency tax reporting, the taxpayer's tax attributes are converted to Canadian currency using the relevant spot rate for the last day of the taxpayer's last functional currency year.

Paragraph 261(15)(d) indicates that subsection 261(15) does not apply in any other case — that is, any case in which the later year and the current year are of the same type in terms of the functional currency regime.

(16) Windings-up — If a winding-up described in subsection 88(1) commences at any time (referred to in this subsection as the "commencement time") and the parent and the subsidiary referred to in that subsection would, in the absence of this subsection, have different tax reporting currencies at the commencement time, the following rules apply for the purposes of determining the subsidiary's Canadian tax results for its taxation years that end after the commencement time:

(a) where the subsidiary's tax reporting currency is Canadian currency,

(i) notwithstanding subsection (3), subsection (5) is deemed to apply to the subsidiary in respect of its taxation year that includes the commencement time and each of its subsequent taxation years, if any,

(ii) the subsidiary is deemed to have as its elected functional currency the parent's tax reporting currency, and

(iii) if the subsidiary's taxation year that includes the commencement time would, in the absence of this subsection, be a reversionary year of the subsidiary, this section is to be read with any modifications that the circumstances require; and

(b) where the subsidiary's tax reporting currency is not Canadian currency,

(i) the subsidiary is deemed to have filed, at the time that is six months and one day before the beginning of its taxation year that includes the commencement time, in prescribed form and manner, a notice of revocation described in subsection (4), and

(ii) if the parent's tax reporting currency is not Canadian currency,

(A) the subsidiary's first reversionary year is deemed to have ended at the particular time that is immediately after the time at which it began,

(B) a new taxation year of the subsidiary is deemed to have begun immediately after the particular time,

(C) notwithstanding subsection (3), subsection (5) is deemed to apply to the subsidiary in respect of its taxation year that includes the commencement time and each of its subsequent taxation years, if any, and

(D) the subsidiary is deemed to have as its elected functional currency the parent's tax reporting currency.

Technical Notes (Dec. 2008): Subsection 261(16) provides rules to deal with subsection 88(1) wind-ups where the parent and the subsidiary have different tax reporting currencies. (A companion rule in subsection 261(17) deals with amalgamations.) Subject to override by the anti-avoidance rule in subsection 261(18), subsection 261(16) generally conforms the tax reporting currencies of the parent and the subsidiary.

More specifically, subsection 261(16) applies where a winding-up described in subsection 88(1) commences and the parent and the subsidiary referred to in subsection 88(1) would otherwise have different tax reporting currencies when the winding-up commences (the "commencement time"). In such situations, one of two sets of rules apply for the purposes of determining the subsidiary's Canadian tax results for its taxation years that end after the commencement time.

The first set of rules, set out in paragraph 261(16)(a), applies where the subsidiary's tax reporting currency is Canadian currency. Those rules ensure that the subsidiary determines its Canadian tax results, starting with its taxation year that includes the commencement time, using the parent's elected functional currency. As the subsidiary's taxation year (referred to here as the "pre-wind-up year") that immediately precedes that taxation year will be the subsidiary's last Canadian currency year, subsections 261(7) to (10) will operate to convert its relevant Canadian currency amounts and its pre-transition debts into the parent's (and now the subsidiary's) elected functional currency using the relevant spot rate for the last day of the pre-wind-up year.

In most cases where paragraph 261(16)(a) applies, the subsidiary will in the past always have used Canadian dollars as its tax reporting currency. It is nonetheless possible that a subsidiary may have at some point elected to use the functional currency regime, and then reverted to Canadian dollars. A special rule provides that subsection 261(16) is to be read, in those cases, with any modifications that the circumstances require. The intended result is that subsidiaries that are otherwise in a reversionary year should be subject to the same transition rules as a subsidiary that is otherwise in a Canadian currency year.

The second set of rules, set out in paragraph 261(16)(b), applies where the subsidiary's tax reporting currency is not Canadian currency. Those rules contemplate two alternative scenarios: first, that the parent's tax reporting currency is Canadian currency; or, second, that the parent's tax reporting currency is a foreign currency that is different from the subsidiary's elected functional currency.

- In the first scenario, the subsidiary is deemed to have filed a notice under subsection 261(4) to revoke its functional currency tax reporting election, so that it determines its Canadian tax results for its taxation year that includes the commencement time (and any subsequent taxation years) using Canadian currency — the same tax reporting currency as the parent. As the subsidiary's pre-wind-up year will be its last functional currency year, subsection 261(12) will convert its relevant amounts and its pre-reversion debts into Canadian currency using the relevant spot rate for the last day of the pre-wind-up year.

- In the second scenario, these rules effect a conversion from one functional currency to another by first causing a reversion to Canadian currency and then causing a transition from Canadian currency to the elected functional currency of the parent.

  More specifically, the subsidiary is first deemed to have filed a notice under subsection 261(4) to revoke its existing functional currency tax reporting election. As a result, its last functional currency year (under that existing election) will be its pre-wind-up year. It will then have a reversionary year that will last only an instant in time, as a new taxation year will be deemed to have begun immediately after the time at which the reversionary year began. The subsidiary will then be required to determine its Canadian tax results for its taxation year that includes the commencement time, and any subsequent taxation years, using the parent's elected functional currency.

Related Provisions: 261(17) — Application to amalgamation; 261(18) — Anti-avoidance.

(17) Amalgamations — If a predecessor corporation and the new corporation, in respect of an amalgamation within the meaning of subsection 87(1), have different tax reporting currencies for their last and first taxation years, respectively, paragraphs (16)(a) and (b) apply, for the purposes of determining the predecessor corporation's Canadian tax results for its last taxation year, as if the tax reporting currencies referred to in those paragraphs were the tax reporting currencies referred to in this subsection and as if the references in those paragraphs to

(a) "subsidiary" were references to "predecessor corporation";

(b) "parent" were references to "new corporation"; and

(c) "taxation year that includes the commencement time" were references to "last taxation year".

Technical Notes (Dec. 2008): Subsection 261(17) deals with situations where a predecessor corporation and the new corporation, in respect of an amalgamation within the meaning of subsection 87(1), have different tax reporting currencies for their last and first taxation years, respectively. In those situations, subsection 261(17) provides rules that conform the tax reporting currencies of the predecessor and the new corporation. The analogous rules in subsection 261(16) that apply for wind-ups are used, with appropriate word substitutions, to effect this result.

As with the wind-up rules, these amalgamation rules are subject to override by the anti-avoidance rule in subsection 261(18).

Related Provisions: 261(18) — Anti-avoidance.

(18) Anti-avoidance — The Canadian tax results of a corporation for any one or more taxation years shall be determined using a particular currency if

(a) at any time (referred to in this subsection as the "transfer time") one or more properties are directly or indirectly transferred

(i) by the corporation to another corporation (referred to in this subsection as the "transferor" and the "transferee", respectively), or

(ii) by another corporation to the corporation (referred to in this subsection as the "transferor" and the "transferee", respectively);

(b) the transferor and the transferee are related at the transfer time or become related in the course of a series of transactions or events that includes the transfer;

(c) the transfer time

(i) is, or would in the absence of subsections (16) and (17) be, in a functional currency year of the transferor and the transferor and the transferee have, or would in the absence of those subsections have, different tax reporting currencies at the transfer time, or

(ii) is, or would in the absence of those subsections be, in a reversionary year of the transferor and is not in a reversionary year of the transferee;

(d) it can reasonably be considered that one of the main purposes of the transfer or of any portion of a series of transactions or events that includes the transfer is to change, or to enable the changing of, the currency in which the Canadian tax results in respect of the property, or property substituted for it, for a taxation year would otherwise be determined; and

(e) the Minister directs that those Canadian tax results be determined in the particular currency.

Technical Notes (Dec. 2008): Subsection 261(18) deals with transfers of property from one corporation to a related corporation for the purpose of changing, or enabling the changing of, the currency in which the Canadian tax results in respect of the property, or property substituted for it, for a taxation year would otherwise be determined. Although subsection 261(18) could affect transfers in the course of a winding-up or an amalgamation described in subsection 261(16) or (17), respectively — and has been mentioned in these notes in those contexts — it is not limited to such transfers.

The subsection in effect allows the Minister of National Revenue to direct that the Canadian tax results of a corporation for any one or more taxation years are to be determined using a certain currency (the "particular currency") if four conditions are met.

The first condition is that one or more properties must be at any time (the "transfer time") directly or indirectly transferred between the corporation and another corporation.

The second condition is that the corporations be related at the transfer time or become related in the course of a series of transactions or events that includes the transfer.

The third condition is that the transfer time is (or would in the absence of subsections 261(16) and (17) be) either

- in a functional currency year of the transferor, if the transferor and the transferee have different tax reporting currencies, or
- in a reversionary year of the transferor and not in a reversionary year of the transferee.

The fourth condition is that it must reasonably be considered that one of the main purposes of the transfer or of any portion of a series of transactions or events that includes the transfer is to change, or to enable the changing of, the currency in which the Canadian tax results in respect of the property, or property substituted for it, for a taxation year would otherwise be determined.

Related Provisions: 261(19) — Mergers; 261(22) — Partnership transactions.

(19) Mergers — For the purposes of subsection (18), if one corporate entity (referred to in this subsection as the "new corporation") is formed at a particular time by the amalgamation or other merger of two or more corporations (each of which is referred to in this subsection as a "predecessor corporation"),

(a) the predecessor corporation is deemed to have transferred to the new corporation at the time (referred to in this subsection as the "merger transfer time") that is immediately before the particular time each property that was held at the merger transfer time by the predecessor corporation and at the particular time by the new corporation;

(b) the new corporation is deemed to exist, and to be related to the predecessor corporation, at the merger transfer time; and

(c) the new corporation is deemed to have as its tax reporting currency at the merger transfer time its tax reporting currency at the particular time.

Technical Notes (Dec. 2008): Subsection 261(19) sets out rules for the purpose of proposed subsection 261(18). It applies in situations where one corporate entity (the "new corporation") is formed at a particular time by the amalgamation or other merger of two or more corporations (each of which is referred to as a "predecessor corporation"). Essentially these rules treat property of predecessor corporations as having been transferred to the new corporation, and so ensure that the rule in subsection 261(18) can apply.

Under subsection 261(19):

- the predecessor corporation is deemed to have transferred to the new corporation at the time (the "merger transfer time") that is immediately before the particular time each property that was held at the merger transfer time by the predecessor corporation and at the particular time by the new corporation,
- the new corporation is deemed to exist, and to be related to the predecessor corporation, at the merger transfer time, and
- the new corporation is deemed to have as its tax reporting currency at the merger transfer time its tax reporting currency at the particular time.

Related Provisions: 261(22) — Partnership transactions.

(20) Application of subsec. (21) — Subsection (21) applies in determining a taxpayer's income, gain or loss for a taxation year in respect of a transaction (referred to in this subsection and subsection (21) as a "specified transaction") if

(a) the specified transaction was entered into, directly or indirectly, at any time by the taxpayer and a corporation (referred to in this subsection as the "related corporation") to which the taxpayer is at that time related;

(b) the taxpayer and the related corporation had different tax reporting currencies at any time during the period (referred to in this subsection as the "accrual period") in which the income, gain or loss accrued; and

(c) it would, in the absence of this subsection and subsection (21), be reasonable to consider that a fluctuation at any time in the accrual period in the value of the taxpayer's tax reporting currency relative to the value of the related corporation's tax reporting currency

(i) increased the taxpayer's loss in respect of the specified transaction,

(ii) reduced the taxpayer's income or gain in respect of the specified transaction, or

(iii) caused the taxpayer to have a loss, instead of income or a gain, in respect of the specified transaction.

Technical Notes (Dec. 2008): Subsections 261(20) and (21) together introduce a rule to protect against potential abuses of the functional currency tax reporting regime. Subsection 261(20) sets out the conditions for the application of subsection 261(21), and the latter provides the operative rule.

Subsection 261(20) states that subsection 261(21) applies in determining a taxpayer's income, gain or loss for a taxation year in respect of a transaction (a "specified transaction") if three conditions are met:

The first condition is that the specified transaction was entered into, directly or indirectly, at any time by the taxpayer and a related corporation.

The second condition is that the taxpayer and the related corporation had different tax reporting currencies at any time during the period (the "accrual period") in which the income, gain or loss accrued.

The third condition is that it would, in the absence of subsections 261(20) and (21), be reasonable to consider that a fluctuation at any time in the accrual period in the value of the taxpayer's tax reporting currency relative to the value of the related corporation's tax reporting currency

- increased the taxpayer's loss in respect of the specified transaction,
- reduced the taxpayer's income or gain in respect of the specified transaction, or
- caused the taxpayer to have a loss, instead of income or a gain, in respect of the specified transaction.

Where subsection 261(21) applies, each fluctuation in value referred to above is, for the purposes of determining the taxpayer's income, gain or loss in respect of the specified transaction and notwithstanding any other provision of the Act, deemed not to have occurred.

Example

- Parentco is a Canadian corporation.
- Subco is a wholly-owned Canadian subsidiary of Parentco.
- Parentco and Subco both have calendar year taxation years.
- Parentco reports its Canadian tax results in Canadian dollars for its 2009 taxation year.
- Subco reports its Canadian tax results in U.S. dollars for its 2009 taxation year.
- On January 1, 2009, Parentco loans Cdn$1,000,000 to Subco. The loan is treated for tax purposes as being on capital account for both taxpayers.
- On December 31, 2009, Subco repays the loan.
- The rate of exchange for 1US$ is 1.25C$ at January 1, 2009 and 1.20C$ at December 31, 2009.

In this case, Parentco has no gain or loss on the loan repayment because it is a C$ reporter and the loan was denominated in C$. However, Subco would, but for subsections 261(20) and (21) have a capital loss, under subsection 39(2), of US$33,333 [(1,000,000 / 1.25) - (1,000,000 /1.20)].

The US$33,333 fluctuation in value has increased Subco's loss in respect of the loan and this is reasonably attributable to the exchange rate swing between Subco's tax reporting currency (US$) and Parentco's tax reporting currency (C$). As such, subsection 261(21) will apply to deem the fluctuation in value not to have occurred and Subco's US$33,333 loss will be denied.

Related Provisions: 261(22) — Partnership transactions.

(21) Income, gain or loss determinations — If this subsection applies, each fluctuation in value referred to in paragraph (20)(c) is, for the purposes of determining the taxpayer's income, gain or loss in respect of the specified transaction and notwithstanding any other provision of this Act, deemed not to have occurred.

Technical Notes (Dec. 2008): See under 261(20) above.

Related Provisions: 261(20) — Conditions for 261(21) to apply; 261(22) — Partnership transactions.

(22) Partnership transactions — For the purposes of this subsection and subsections (18) to (21),

(a) if a property is directly or indirectly transferred to or by a partnership, the property is deemed to have been transferred to or by (as the case may be) each member of the partnership; and

(b) if a partnership is a party to a transaction, each member of the partnership is deemed to be that party to that transaction.

Technical Notes (Dec. 2008): Subsection 261(22) provides rules for certain partnership transactions, for the purposes of subsections 261(18) to (22).

The first rule is that, if a property is directly or indirectly transferred to or by a partnership, the property is deemed to have been transferred to or by (as the case may be) each member of the partnership.

The second rule is that, if a partnership is a party to a transaction, each member of the partnership is deemed to be that party to that transaction.

Application: Bill C-10 (First Reading Feb. 6, 2009), s. 80, will amend s. 261 to read as above, applicable as follows:

(a) the definitions in subsec. 261(1) other than "Canadian tax results", subsecs. 261(3) to (14) and subsecs. 261(16) to (22) are applicable in respect of taxation years that begin after December 13, 2007, except that

(i) where a taxpayer has, on or before June 27, 2008, made an election under para. 261(3)(b),

(A) if the taxpayer makes a further election in writing, and files it with the Minister of National Revenue on or before the taxpayer's filing-due date for the taxpayer's taxation year that includes the day of Royal Assent, the relevant spot rate for a particular day is deemed, for the purposes of subsecs. 261(7) to (10), to be the average of the rates that would, in the absence of this subparagraph, be the relevant spot rates for each day in the 12-month period that ends on the particular day, and

(B) subsecs. 261(20) and (21) apply in respect of taxation years that begin after June 27, 2008; and

(ii) in applying para. 261(3)(b), if the day that is six months before the end of the particular taxation year referred to in that paragraph is before December 15, 2008, the reference in that paragraph to "the day that is six months before the end of the particular taxation year" is, in respect of that particular taxation year, to be read as a reference to "December 15, 2008".

(b) the definition "Canadian tax results" in subsec. 261(1) and subsec. 261(2) apply for all taxation years; and

(c) subsec. 261(15) applies after December 13, 2007.

Dept. of Finance news release 2008-084, Oct. 29, 2008: Government of Canada Extends the Functional Currency Election Deadline

The Honourable Jim Flaherty, Minister of Finance, today announced the extension, to December 15, 2008, of the deadline to elect into the new functional currency tax reporting regime, applicable to any such election that would otherwise be due before that date.

Bill C-28, the second Budget 2007 implementation bill, included amendments to the Income Tax Act to implement the Budget 2006 proposal to introduce functional currency tax reporting rules. In response to representations from stakeholders concerning the amended rules, this past June (2008-048) the Government proposed several technical revisions including:

- Amending the definition of "functional currency" to address concerns about its practical application to the situations of certain taxpayers; and
- Introducing symmetry in foreign exchange rate calculations used in the reporting of assets and debt obligations.

In light of these significant revisions, the Government also extended to October 31, 2008 the deadline to elect functional currency tax reporting, for any such election that would otherwise be due before that date.

Draft legislation to implement the announced changes is expected to be released for consultation in November. To ensure taxpayers have an opportunity to consider the details of the new rules prior to making a decision on whether or not to elect into the new regime, an extension of the October 31, 2008 deadline is necessary.

"Our government is committed to fairness and transparency and to providing an environment in which Canadian businesses can operate effectively," said Minister Flaherty. "We plan to release the draft functional currency legislation in November, and I think it only fair to extend the election deadline so that Canadian businesses can take better and more-informed decisions about tax measures respecting their particular operations."

Dept. of Finance news release 2008-048, June 27, 2008: Government of Canada Eases Tax Compliance Burden for Internationally-Engaged Canadian Businesses

The Honourable Jim Flaherty, Minister of Finance, today proposed changes to the Income Tax Act for Canadian businesses with foreign affiliates and those that report earnings in a foreign currency.

"Our government is committed to creating a corporate tax system that is both fair and internationally competitive," said Minister Flaherty. "The proposals I am announcing today will improve the tax system and will assist Canadian businesses in complying with the tax law."

Functional Currency Tax Reporting

Bill C-28 also included amendments to the Act that implemented the Budget 2006 proposal to introduce functional currency tax reporting rules. In response to representations from stakeholders concerning the amended rules, the Government is proposing several technical revisions. The revisions, which are described in detail in the attached annex, include:

- Extending the deadline to elect functional currency tax reporting to October 31, 2008;
- Amending the definition of "functional currency" to address concerns about its practical application to the situations of certain taxpayers; and
- Introducing symmetry in foreign exchange rate calculations used in the reporting of assets and debt obligations.

Minister Flaherty indicated that the Government will introduce legislation at an early opportunity to implement these proposed technical changes to the Income Tax Act.

Functional Currency Tax Reporting

Bill C-28, as enacted, also included amendments to the Act that implement the proposal first announced in Budget 2006 to introduce functional currency tax reporting rules. Those amendments are set out in new section 261 of the Act.

The Government has received comments from stakeholders in respect of the functional currency tax reporting rules. Those comments have pointed out certain technical deficiencies and practical difficulties with the rules. In response to these comments, the following changes are proposed:

- The definition of "functional currency" in subsection 261(1) of the Act would be amended to address concerns that have been raised by stakeholders about the practical application of paragraphs (b) and (c) of that definition to taxpayers' situations: e.g., the interpretation of the expressions "more often than any other currency" and "principal business activities" and the application of the definition in cases where the taxpayer (as a subsidiary) may not otherwise be required to prepare financial statements. Specifically, paragraphs (b) and (c) of that definition would be replaced with a new paragraph (b) that refers to the primary currency in which the taxpayer maintains its records and books of account for financial reporting purposes. As a consequence, the definitions "consolidated financial statements", "generally accepted accounting principles" and "legal-entity financial statements" in subsection 261(1) would be repealed;
- Because the changes referred to above to the definition of "functional currency" would open the application of section 261 to holding corporations, a rule would be introduced to protect against potential abuses of the functional currency tax reporting rules. That rule would apply where the taxpayer has amounts owing to or from, or other financial transactions with, directly or indirectly, a corporation resident in Canada that is related to the taxpayer and that, for the related corporation's taxation year ending in the calendar year in which the taxpayer's taxation year ends, reports its Canadian tax results in a different currency from that of the taxpayer. Where this is the case, any loss in respect of such amounts owing, or other financial transactions, would be denied to the taxpayer or the related corporation, as the case may be, to the extent that such loss would not have been available had the two corporations reported their Canadian tax results using Canadian currency;
- Section 261 would be amended in connection with the exchange rates that are required to be used for various calculations involving different currencies. Among other things, stakeholders have noted that, on electing into the functional currency rules, the existing provisions require that the current (or spot) foreign exchange rate on the last day of the last Canadian currency year be used in respect of debt obligations, while the "transitional exchange rate" (based on a 12-month average) is required to be used in respect of assets. This means that accrued foreign exchange gains and losses in respect of debt obligations are measured differently from those in respect of assets. This lack of symmetry can in some circumstances produce adverse results. Further, it has been noted that the use of the transitional exchange rate in these circumstances can produce anomalies in the calculation of foreign exchange gains and losses in respect of assets in cases where the asset is disposed of early in the initial functional currency year. Consequently, the 12-month average exchange rate concept would be replaced with the current (spot) rate concept for all purposes of section 261. As a result, the definitions "currency exchange rate", "reversionary exchange rate" and "transitional exchange rate" in subsection 261(1) would be repealed and references in section 261 to those definitions would be replaced with references to the Bank of Canada noon rate for the relevant date;
- The deadline for making an election to enter the functional currency tax reporting regime would be extended. Specifically, any such election that would otherwise be due on a date before October 31, 2008 would instead be due on October 31, 2008;
- Subsection 261(3) would be amended to remove the requirement in paragraph 261(3)(c) that the taxpayer continue to have the foreign currency qualify as its functional currency in all years subsequent to the election year. If the taxpayer is eligible and makes the functional currency election in subsection 261(3), then, subject to the provisions of subsections 261(11) to (18) which may otherwise require a reversion to Canadian currency tax reporting, it will continue to file under the functional currency regime in all future years using that same functional currency unless it elects out of functional currency tax reporting. An election out of functional currency tax reporting would be due six months before the end of its last functional currency year and would cause the taxpayer to revert to Canadian currency tax reporting. Furthermore, subsection 261(9), which applies where a taxpayer reverts to Canadian currency tax reporting, would be amended so that all conversions under that subsection from a functional currency to Canadian currency, whether in respect of events occurring in a Canadian currency year or a functional currency year, would be made using the Bank of Canada noon rate for the last day of the taxpayer's last functional currency year. A similar amendment would be made to subsection 261(10);

- The definition "qualifying currency" in subsection 261(1) would be amended to include the currency of Australia;
- Section 261 would be amended to specify that the filing deadline for the election to use functional currency tax reporting for the first taxation year of a corporation formed by an amalgamation to which subsection 87(1) applies be the filing-due date for the taxation year, of each predecessor corporation, that is deemed to have ended immediately before the amalgamation;
- The definition "Canadian tax results" in subsection 261(1) would be amended to include the amount of a taxpayer's "taxable income earned in Canada". This amendment would be applicable for all taxation years; and
- The reference in paragraph 261(4)(g) to "the references in section 95 and the references in regulations made for the purposes of that section" would be amended to refer to "the references in section 95 and the references in regulations made for the purposes of that section or section 113".

Except where otherwise indicated, it is proposed that these amendments to section 261 of the Act be applicable in respect of taxation years that begin after December 13, 2007 (which is generally the period of application of new section 261). However, where a taxpayer has, before today, validly made an election under subsection 261(3), the taxpayer may choose to have the current rules in subsections 261(5) and (6) apply in respect of that election. Furthermore, the rule described above in respect of related party loans and other financial transactions would, for taxpayers validly electing before today, apply only for taxation years beginning after today.

Federal Budget, Notice of Ways and Means Motion and Supplementary Information, Jan. 27, 2009: Previously Announced Measures

Budget 2009 confirms the Government's intention to proceed with the following previously-announced tax measures, as modified to take into account consultations and deliberations since their release: . . .

262. (1) Authority to designate stock exchange — The Minister of Finance may designate a stock exchange, or a part of a stock exchange, for the purposes of this Act.

Proposed Amendment — Guidelines for becoming a designated stock exchange

Dept. of Finance news release 2008-049, July 2, 2008: New Rules for Designated Stock Exchanges Offer More Choice, Lower Tax Barriers for Canadians

The Honourable Jim Flaherty, Minister of Finance, today released new guidelines for stock exchanges that seek to become Designated Stock Exchanges for income tax purposes. The guidelines will provide greater transparency and increased opportunities for investors, and will improve the ability of Canadian capital markets to respond to global market developments.

"With today's release of principles that will guide our government's official designation of domestic and foreign stock exchanges, Canadians can make informed investment decisions confident that securities trade on well-governed, regulated and transparent markets," said Minister Flaherty. "At the same time, foreign exchanges can now rely on clear rules in their efforts to attract Canadian investments."

In Budget 2007, the Government updated and streamlined the identification of stock exchanges for purposes of the Income Tax Act. The new three-tiered system includes Designated Stock Exchanges, Recognized Stock Exchanges and Stock Exchanges. Designation status is particularly important for Registered Retirement Savings Plan (RRSP) investors, as securities listed on designated exchanges are eligible RRSP investments. They are also eligible investments for Deferred Profit Sharing Plans, and will be eligible for the recently announced Tax-Free Savings Account.

The attached backgrounder follows through on the Budget 2007 commitment to formalize the process exchanges will be required to follow in applying for designation status and the principles-based criteria the Government will use in evaluating requests.

Also released today is a complete list of current Designated Stock Exchanges, which include all former prescribed exchanges under the previous Income Tax Act provisions. Under the income tax rules, any future additions to the list will be approved by the Minister of Finance. Approvals will follow the process and criteria set out today.

Backgrounder — Process for Designating Stock Exchanges

Introduction

With the integration of global financial markets, the rapid growth in Canadian Registered Retirement Savings Plan (RRSP) and Deferred Profit Sharing Plan (DPSP) assets, the removal of the foreign content limit on tax-deferred retirement assets enacted in 2005, and technological advances in securities trading systems, Canadian investors are increasingly looking to foreign securities listed on foreign stock exchanges for return enhancement and portfolio diversification. New domestic exchanges are also being created, expanding the range of publicly-listed Canadian securities available to Canadian investors. This has contributed to a rise in the number of requests from domestic and foreign stock exchanges to be qualified under the Income Tax Act for RRSP and DPSP purposes.

Budget 2007 updated the concept of "prescribed stock exchange", used for a variety of purposes under the Income Tax Act, in order to make the prescription process more transparent and flexible to meet evolving market needs. In place of the two former lists of prescribed stock exchanges (domestic and foreign), there are now three categories of stock exchange: Designated Stock Exchange, Recognized Stock Exchange and Stock Exchange. A description of each category of exchange and their Income Tax Act implications are presented in Annex 5 of Budget 2007 (www.budget.gc.ca/2007/bp/bpa5ae.html#stock).

Under the new system, securities listed on a Designated Stock Exchange are eligible to be held in an RRSP and a DPSP. Designated Stock Exchanges include all prescribed exchanges as of December 13, 2007, and additional exchanges designated by the Minister of Finance by way of public notice since this date (see Annex).

This document presents some of the considerations against which additional exchanges will be evaluated for designation status as well as the process under which exchanges can seek to be designated by the Minister of Finance.

The Minister of Finance's role is to ensure that investments, given their tax-deferred status for policy purposes, trade on well-governed, regulated and transparent markets. Designated Stock Exchanges must therefore be explicitly designated, by public notice, by the Minister of Finance. Designated Stock Exchanges are also considered to be Recognized Stock Exchanges and Stock Exchanges for the purposes of the Income Tax Act. Recognized Stock Exchanges are determined by definition under that Act. "Stock Exchange" is not defined in the tax law; it is intended that the general legal and commercial meaning of the term will apply.

The new designation process and the kinds of considerations described herein will expedite the review of applications from exchanges and provide more transparency around the factors used to evaluate such applications.

Designation status is not an endorsement or recommendation of individual securities listed and traded on the exchange.

Considerations to Qualify as a Designated Exchange

The Minister will consider all relevant information without limitation when evaluating an exchange's application for designation status. This will include the following considerations.

For domestic and foreign-based exchanges:

1. The exchange carries out the normal business of an exchange in listing securities, facilitating the trading, clearing, and settlement of these securities, monitoring and enforcing trades executed on its system, and offering transparent pricing information to the public.
2. The exchange has acceptable standards for new company listings, including standards that address the number of shareholders, the dispersion of ownership, and for the maintenance of a listing.
3. The exchange operates within a regulatory framework that meets acceptable standards in relation to investor protection, disclosure requirements, corporate governance, and market integrity, as may be espoused by the International Organization of Securities Commissions (IOSCO).
4. The exchange has an experienced management and governance team, a successful track record of operations, and sufficient financial resources to ensure long-term viability.
5. The exchange has a range of listings and adequate liquidity for investors to buy and sell securities at reasonable bid-ask spreads.

For foreign-based exchanges:

6. The host country of the exchange has commercial, legal and tax relations with Canada, for example, as demonstrated by having entered into a comprehensive tax information exchange agreement or a comprehensive tax treaty.
7. The host country is a member in good standing in the international financial community through membership in such organizations as the World Trade Organization, the International Monetary Fund, IOSCO, the Financial Action Task Force, or similar bodies.
8. The securities regulatory and juridical framework of the host country of the exchange provides rights and remedies to Canadian investors, including brokers acting on investors' behalf, which are comparable to those available to investors in Canada.
9. The exchange is recognized by the host government and other foreign governments, where applicable, for tax purposes comparable to those for designated exchanges under the Canadian Income Tax Act.
10. The host country of the exchange has a low risk of imposing capital restrictions or other impediments on the liquidation of investments and the repatriation of funds by foreign investors.

Designation Process

Request for Designation

Exchanges seeking designation should submit a written request from a senior representative of the exchange to the Minister of Finance at the address below. Submissions should include sufficient information about the exchange's governance, ownership, financial resources, trading systems and infrastructure, listings, listing standards, liquidity measures, regulatory framework, and other pertinent factors so as to enable the Department of Finance to assess the exchange's application against the guiding principles contained herein. If an exchange operates more than one tier, submissions are to indicate for which tier(s) the exchange is seeking designation status. Additional information may be requested as needed.

Notification

All requests for designation will be acknowledged in writing. Following the assessment process, exchanges designated by the Minister of Finance will be notified and the official name of the exchange, or tier(s) of the exchange, published on the Department of Finance's website.

Where the Minister of Finance declines an application for designation status, the exchange will be notified in writing. Exchanges may resubmit a request for designation if their circumstances change sufficiently to address any deficiencies, errors, or omissions identified in their initial application.

The Minister reserves the right to re-evaluate the circumstances of a previously designated exchange and, where justified, revoke its designation status.

Related Provisions: 55(6) — Reorganization share deemed listed on designated stock exchange; 87(10) — Share deemed listed on designated stock exchange following amalgamation; 248(1)"designated stock exchange" — Definition applicable to entire Act; Canada-U.S. Tax Treaty:Art. XXIX-A:5(f)(ii) — Designated stock exchange is "recognized stock exchange" for treaty purposes.

(2) Revocation of designation — The Minister of Finance may revoke the designation of a stock exchange, or a part of a stock exchange, designated under subsection (1).

(3) Timing — A designation under subsection (1) or a revocation under subsection (2) shall specify the time at and after which it is in effect, which time may, for greater certainty, precede the time at which the designation or revocation is made.

(4) Publication — The Minister of Finance shall cause to be published, by posting on the Internet website of the Department of Finance or by any other means that the Minister of Finance considers appropriate, the names of those stock exchanges, or parts of stock exchanges, as the case may be, that are or at any time were designated under subsection (1).

(5) Transition — The Minister of Finance is deemed to have designated under subsection (1) each stock exchange and each part of a stock exchange that was, immediately before the day on which this section came into force, a prescribed stock exchange, with effect on and after that day.

Regulations: 3200, 3201 (prescribed stock exchanges before Dec. 14, 2007).

History [s. 262]: S. 262 added by 2007, c. 35, s. 67, applicable after December 13, 2007.

Grandfathering of Various Amendments Announced on April 26, 1995: 1998, c. 19, s. 247 reads as follows:

247. (1) Exception to coming-into-force — Subsections 73(4), 74(5), subsection 18(13) of the Act, as enacted by subsection 79(2) and subsections 89(1), (2) and (6), 94(1) and (2), 95(1), 116(3) to (5), 120(1) and 124(1) and (2) do not apply to the disposition of property by a person or partnership (in this subsection and subsection (2) referred to as the "transferor") that occurred before 1996

(a) to a person who was obliged on April 26, 1995 to acquire the property pursuant to the terms of an agreement in writing made on or before that day; or

(b) in a transaction, or as part of a series of transactions, the arrangements for which, evidenced in writing, were substantially advanced before April 27, 1995, other than a transaction or series a main purpose of which can reasonably be considered to have been to enable an unrelated person to obtain the benefit of

(i) any deduction in computing income, taxable income, taxable income earned in Canada or tax payable under the Act, or

(ii) any balance of undeducted outlays, expenses or other amounts.

(2) Election — Notwithstanding subsection (1), subsection 18(13) of the Act, as enacted by subsection 79(2), and the other subsections of this Act referred to in subsection (1) apply to a disposition in respect of which the transferor has filed with the Minister of National Revenue before the end of the third month after the month in which this Act is assented to [i.e., before October 1998 — ed.] an election in writing to have those subsections apply.

(3) Interpretation — For the purpose of subsection (1),

(a) a person shall be considered not to be obliged to acquire property where the person can be excused from the obligation if there is a change to the Act or if there is an adverse assessment under the Act;

(b) an "unrelated person" means any person who was not, or a partnership any member of which was not, related (otherwise than because of paragraph 251(5)(b) of the Act) to the transferor at the time of the disposition; and

(c) a person is deemed to be related to a partnership of which that person is a majority interest partner.

Letter from Dept. of Finance, Dec. 11, 2000:

Dear [xxx]

Thank you for your letter dated October 3, 2000 on behalf of [xxx] requesting that it be prescribed as a financial institution for the purpose of the Large Corporations Tax ("LCT") in Part I.3 of the Income Tax Act (the "Act").

It is our understanding that the principal business of [xxx] will be to provide loans to [xxx] investors [xxx]. We also understand that [xxx] will be in direct competition with banks and other corporations that are financial institutions for LCT purpose [xxx].

Based on these understandings, we are prepared to recommend that [xxx] be prescribed as a financial institution for the purposes of the LCT. We ask [xxx] to advise us, however, if the nature of the company's business changes, so that its status for LCT purposes can be re-examined.

You have advised that there are no current or anticipated arm's length holders of shares or debt in [xxx] that would potentially lose entitlement to an LCT investment allowance if [xxx] were prescribed. Based on this, we are prepared to recommend that [xxx] be prescribed as of its date of incorporation, September 25, 2000. This recommendation will be made on the condition that no debt (other than long-term debt within the meaning of subsection 181(1) of the Act) issued by [xxx] is held by an unrelated corporation (other than a financial institution within the meaning of that subsection) prior to December 1, 2001.

I cannot offer any assurance that either the Minister of Finance or Cabinet will agree with the recommendation that we intend to make in this regard. Nonetheless, I hope that this statement of our position is helpful.

Yours sincerely,

Brian Ernewein, Director, Tax Legislation Division, Tax Policy Branch

Letter from Dept. of Finance, March 6, 2001:

Dear [xxx]

I am writing in response to your letter dated December 18, 1998 on behalf of [xxx] requesting that it be prescribed as a financial institution for the purpose of the Large Corporations Tax ("LCT") in Part I.3 of the Income Tax Act (the "Act"). As you are aware, the need for additional information to develop a clearer understanding of [xxx] business necessitated several exchanges of information between your colleagues and [xxx] principal and my officials. Nonetheless, I apologize for the delay in concluding our decision in this case.

It is our understanding that the principal business of [xxx] is to provide loans to individuals and corporations for investment in SEC-approved U.S. mutual funds and other securities. We also understand that [xxx] competes with banks, trust companies, credit unions and other prescribed financial institutions for clients. We understand that [xxx] income is primarily comprised of the spread between its interest revenue on these loans and the interest cost of its own financing.

Based on these understandings, we are prepared to recommend that [xxx] be prescribed as a financial institution for the purposes of the LCT. We ask [xxx] to advise us, however, if the nature of the company's business changes, so that its status for LCT purposes can be re-examined.

You have advised that some of [xxx] funding is received from third party corporations that would potentially lose entitlement to an LCT investment allowance if [xxx] were prescribed. The Department's policy is to recommend prescribing a corporation on a fully prospective basis with an additional delay where necessary to protect third party investors. Based on the information you have provided, we are prepared to recommend that [xxx] be prescribed as of January 1, 2002.

I cannot offer any assurance that either the Minister of Finance or Cabinet will agree with the recommendation that we intend to make in this regard. Nonetheless, I hope that this statement of our position is helpful.

Yours sincerely,

Brian Ernewein, Director, Tax Legislation Division, Tax Policy Branch

Letter from Dept. of Finance, April 9, 2001:

Dear [xxx]

Thank you for your letter dated November 13, 2000 requesting that [xxx] be prescribed as a financial institution for the purpose of the Large Corporations Tax ("LCT") in Part I.3 of the Income Tax Act (the "Act").

It is our understanding that the principal business of [xxx] is to provide loans to individuals and closely-held private entities to finance automobiles, real estate and general consumer and commercial needs. We understand that [xxx] income is primarily comprised of the spread between its interest revenue on these loans and the interest cost of its own financing. You advised that [xxx] competes with banks and other prescribed financial institutions such as automotive credit corporations and other retail and small business lenders. You have indicated that [xxx] does not carry on any leasing business.

Based on these understandings, we are prepared to recommend that [xxx] be prescribed as a financial institution for the purposes of the LCT. We ask that [xxx] advise us, however, if the nature of the company's business changes, so that its status for LCT purposes can be re-examined.

The Department's policy is to recommend prescribing a corporation on a fully prospective basis with additional time delays where necessary to protect third party investors. According to the documentation you provided [xxx] does not have any third party investors that would lose an investment allowance as a result of [xxx] being prescribed as a financial institution. Based on this, we are prepared to recommend that [xxx] be prescribed with effect from the beginning of its taxation year beginning January 1, 2002. This recommendation will be made on the condition that no debt (other than long-term debt within the meaning of subsection 181(1) of the Act) issued by [xxx] is held by an unrelated corporation (other than a financial institution within the meaning of that subsection) prior to January 1, 2002. For greater certainty, the existence of banker's acceptances drawn by [xxx] would not be considered to violate this condition since they are effectively considered for LCT purposes to be held by the accepting bank rather than the third party investors who buy them.

Since prescription must be formally effected through a regulation approved by Cabinet, I cannot offer any assurance that either the Minister of Finance or Cabinet will agree with the recommendation that we intend to make in this regard. Nonetheless, I hope that this statement of our position is helpful.

Yours sincerely,

Brian Ernewein, Director, Tax Legislation Division, Tax Policy Branch

Letter from Dept. of Finance, April 29, 2002:

Dear [xxx]

This is further to your letter of September 25, 2001, in which you advise of your client's change in name from [xxx]. As you note, our letter of December 10, 1998 confirmed our intention to recommend that [xxx] be prescribed for the purposes of paragraph (g) of the definition "financial institution" in subsection 181(1) of the Income Tax Act, and you now request that this recommendation reflect this name change.

We understand from your letter that [xxx] continues to conduct the same business activities as were carried on prior to this name change, and upon which our earlier decision was made to recommend that [xxx] be prescribed. We also understand from the Certificate of Name Change, enclosed with your letter, that this change was effective [xxx]. Given these understandings, we confirm that our recommendation to treat [xxx] as a financial institution will reflect this name change as of the date it took effect.

As you know, I cannot offer any assurance that the Minister of Finance will agree with the recommendations that we intend to make in this regard. Nonetheless, I hope that this statement of our position is helpful.

Yours sincerely,

Brian Ernewein, Director, Tax Legislation Division, Tax Policy Branch

Letter from Dept. of Finance, Jan. 14, 2003:

Dear [xxx]

Thank you for your letters dated October 2, 2001 and October 31, 2002, in which you request that two companies — one of which is not yet incorporated, and to which you refer as "[xxx] Newco" — be prescribed under paragraph (g) of the definition of "financial institution" in subsection 181(1) of the Income Tax Act (the Act).

As you may know, the proposals announced on December 20, 2002 to amend the Act provide for, among other things, a fundamental change in the manner in which corporations are identified under paragraph (g) as being financial institutions. Rather than listing these corporations in a regulation, this new approach is to list them in a schedule to the Act. It is proposed that this change be made effective after December 22, 1997. As a result, requests to be prescribed under this paragraph with effective dates after December 22, 1997 — as is the case with your request — will be treated as requests to be listed in the schedule to the Act.

It is our understanding that the principal business of Newco will be to carry out the functions of a credit card issuer pursuant to an agreement with a sister corporation, [xxx] will continue to be liable to the credit card company and its members as the named issuer, and cardmember agreements will remain between [xxx] and the cardholders. Newco will, however, own the indebtedness under such credit card accounts, and borrow funds from related corporations to finance its loans to cardholders.

In respect of the other corporation [xxx] of [xxx] we understand that it currently operates as a "private label" credit card issuer and acquirer for Canadian retailers. It raises funds from related corporations.

We also understand that [xxx] Newco and [xxx] will, in carrying on their credit card businesses, be in direct competition with banks and other corporations that are financial institutions for Part I.3 purposes.

Based on these understandings, we are prepared to recommend that [xxx] Newco and [xxx] be listed in the schedule to the Act for the purposes of paragraph (g) of the definition "financial institution" in subsection 181(1). However, we ask that each of [xxx] and [xxx] Newco (once incorporated) provide us with a note explaining that it will advise us if the nature of the company's business changes, so that its treatment as a financial institution under paragraph (g) can be re-examined.

I understand from your letter and conversations you have had with Ryan Hall of this Division that you have asked that [xxx] be listed with effect for taxation years ending after December 30, 2002, and that [xxx] Newco be listed effective as of its date of incorporation. As you know, the Department's policy is to recommend listing a corporation on a fully prospective basis with additional time delays where necessary to protect third party investors. You have advised that, upon its incorporation, there will be no arm's length holders of debt in Newco that would potentially lose entitlement to a Part I.3 investment allowance if it were listed. Based on this and that [xxx] Newco has not yet been incorporated, we are prepared to recommend that [xxx] Newco be listed as of its date of incorporation. With respect to [xxx] we are prepared to recommend that it be listed as a financial institution effective for taxation years beginning after 2002, given your assurance that it has not raised any public debt. Both recommendations will be made on the condition that no debt (other than long-term debt within the meaning of subsection 181(1) of the Act) issued by either corporation is held by an unrelated corporation (other than a financial institution within the meaning of that subsection) prior to December 31, 2003.

Further, this recommendation will only be made in respect of [xxx] Newco if it is incorporated before December 31, 2003, following which time any request to list this company will be assessed anew.

To facilitate this request, we ask that the incorporation date and the name of the [xxx] Newco be provided to us shortly after its incorporation.

I cannot offer any assurance that the Minister of Finance will agree with the recommendations that we intend to make in this regard. Nonetheless, I trust this statement of our position is helpful.

Yours sincerely,

Brian Ernewein, Director, Tax Legislation Division, Tax Policy Branch

Letter from Dept. of Finance, May 16, 2003:

Dear [xxx]

Thank you for your letter of March 25, 2003, concerning the proposed treatment of [xxx] as a financial institution for the purposes of paragraph (g) of the definition "financial institution" in subsection 181(1) of the Income Tax Act. As you note in your letter, the proposed amendments to the Act released on December 20, 2002 provide that [xxx] change in status will be effective after December 30, 2000. You now ask that we recommend changing the proposed measures so that [xxx] change in status will not be effective until after December 31, 2002.

Our letter of June 30, 2000, which responded to your letter of June 30, 1999, indicated our intention to recommend that [xxx] be prescribed as a financial institution, effective for its taxation year ending December 31, 2000 and subsequent years. However, we made our recommendation conditional upon no debt (other than long term debt as defined in subsection 181(1)) having been issued by [xxx] and held by an unrelated corporation (other than a financial institution as defined in that subsection) prior to June 30, 2001.

You explain that [xxx] has not issued debt in the public market, given its understanding that doing so before actually becoming a prescribed (now listed) financial institution would jeopardize its prescription request. As we understand it, it would seem as though [xxx] operated as if it would not be treated as a financial institution as of either December 31, 2000 or June 30, 2001. Rather, it would appear as though [xxx] and other members of its corporate group, have operated since December 31, 2000 as if [xxx] would not be treated as a financial institution until measures were adopted to that effect. As we understand it, certain investments made from within the group to [xxx] during this time would not qualify as investment allowance inclusions if the effective date of [xxx] change in status as currently proposed were to be adopted. As a result, you explain that the corporate group would incur greater tax liability under Part I.3 for the 2000, 2001, and 2002 taxation years than would be the case if [xxx] were not treated as a financial institution for these years.

Given that these extraordinary circumstances were in part created by the delay in finalizing the process by which to list [xxx] as a financial institution, we consider that it would be appropriate to recommend the change you have requested. To that end, we intend to recommend that the proposed amendment to the Act be changed so that [xxx] will be listed effective after 2002.

I cannot offer any assurance that either the Minister of Finance or Cabinet will agree with the recommendation that we intend to make in this regard. Nonetheless, I trust that this statement of our position is helpful.

Yours sincerely,

Brian Ernewein, Director, Tax Legislation Division, Tax Policy Branch

Letter from Dept. of Finance, Oct. 22, 2003:

Dear [xxx]

I am writing further to your letter of August 15, 2002, as well as [xxx] facsimile to Ryan Hall, of the Tax Legislation Division, dated November 6, 2002, concerning [xxx] (the corporation). As you know, we provided the corporation with two letters dated April 9, and May 15, 2001 indicating our intention to recommend that the corporation be treated as a financial institution for the purposes of paragraph (g) of the definition "financial institution" in subsection 181(1) of the Income Tax Act effective January 1, 2002, and the proposed technical amendments to the Act released December 20, 2002 incorporate this recommendation. You now advise that the corporation has changed its name to [xxx], effective May 1, 2002, and request that the proposed amendments be updated to reflect this change.

Given our understanding that this name change does not materially affect the activities of the corporation as a financial institution, we are prepared to recommend that the proposed amendments be modified as requested.

I trust that this statement of our position is helpful.

Yours sincerely,

Brian Ernewein, Director, Tax Legislation Division, Tax Policy Branch

[Similar letters dated Oct. 15, 2003 and Oct. 22, 2003 to two other corporations — ed.]

Letter from Dept. of Finance, Dec. 23, 2003:

Dear [xxx]

Thank you for your letter dated August 30, 2002, in which you request that [xxx] (the Company) be treated as a financial institution for the purposes of paragraph (g) of the definition "financial institution" in subsection 181(1) of the Income Tax Act (the "Act").

As you know, the proposed amendments to the Act announced in December 2002 provide for, among other things, a fundamental change in the manner in which corporations are identified under paragraph (g) as being financial institutions. Rather than listing these corporations in a regulation, this new approach is to list them in a schedule to the Act. It is proposed that this change be made effective after December 22, 1997. As a result, requests to be prescribed under this paragraph with effective dates after December 22, 1997 — as is the case with your request — will be treated as requests to be listed in the schedule.

We understand that the Company carries on a nation-wide business of originating and acquiring residential mortgages, scrutinizing and selling mortgage loans in the capital market, investing in and servicing a portfolio of mortgage loans and mortgage-backed securities, and originating construction loans and lines of credit for medium and large homebuilders. You describe the income earned from these activities as falling within three categories: gains on the sale of mortgage-backed securities or pools of mortgage loans; portfolio income derived from the spread between the yields on its mortgage loans, lines of credit, and securities held on its balance sheet and the costs of liabilities used to fund these income sources; and fee income from originating mortgages and lines of credit, as well as for servicing the mortgage loans or securitizations.

You advise that the Company is in direct competition with banks and other corporations treated as financial institutions for the purposes of Part I.3 of the Act, particularly those corporations carrying on residential mortgage businesses.

Based on the foregoing, we are prepared to recommend that the Company be listed in the schedule. However, we ask that the Company provide us with written assurances that it will advise the Department if the nature of the Company's business changes, so that its treatment as a financial institution for these purposes may be re-examined.

I understand from conversations your colleague, [xxx] has had with Ryan Hall of this Division that the Company requests that it be listed with effect for the 2003 and subsequent taxation years. The Department's policy is to recommend listing a corporation on a fully prospective basis with additional time delays where necessary to protect third party investors. [xxx] has advised that there are no current or anticipated arm's length holders of debt in the Company that would potentially lose entitlement to a Part I.3 investment allowance if it were listed. Based on this, and the date of your request, we are prepared to recommend that the Company be listed with effect as requested. However, this recommendation will be made provided no debt issued by the Company (other than long-term debt within the meaning of subsection 181(1)) is held by any unrelated corporation (other than a financial institution within the meaning of that subsection) prior to July 2004.

I cannot offer any assurance that the Minister of Finance will agree with the recommendations that we intend to make in this regard. Nonetheless, I trust this statement of our position is helpful.

Yours sincerely

Brian Ernewein, Director, Tax Legislation Division, Tax Policy Branch

Letter from Dept. of Finance, April 27, 2004:

Dear [xxx]

Thank you for your letter of June 25, 2003, in which you request that two companies — both of which are not yet incorporated, and to which you refer as [xxx] and [xxx] — be listed as financial institutions under paragraph (g) of the "financial institution" definition in subsection 181(1) of the Income Tax Act.

As you know, the proposed amendments to the Act announced in December 2002 and reiterated in February 2004 provide for, among other things, a fundamental change in the manner in which corporations are identified under paragraph (g) as being financial institutions. Rather than listing these corporations in a regulation, this new approach is to list them in a schedule to the Act. It is proposed that this change be made effective after December 22, 1997. As a result, requests to be treated as financial institutions under this paragraph with effective dates after December 22, 1997 — as is the case with your request — will be treated as requests to be listed in the schedule.

We understand from your letter and discussions with Ryan Hall, of this Division, that this request is made in the context of a proposed tax structure, in which two corporations [xxx] would borrow funds (which would not qualify as "long-term debt" for the purposes of Part I.3 of the Act) from third-party lenders through a partnership ("Partnership A"). [xxx] which the above-noted legislative proposals add to the schedule to the Act effective after December 30, 2001, would also be a partner of Partnership A until at least July 2004. Partnership A would in turn incorporate another corporation ([xxx]), with which Partnership A would form another partnership ("Partnership B"). Partnership A would contribute the borrowed funds to Partnership B, which in turn would loan the funds to various related financial institutions resident in Canada ("the related financial institutions").

Although you advise that the structure is not intended to produce income tax benefits under Part I of the Act, adopting the proposed structure would increase the Part I.3 tax liability of the corporate group, which presently borrows third-party funds through a related financial institution. By virtue of being a financial institution, this related financial institution does not include in its taxable capital indebtedness that is not long-term debt, as defined for Part I.3 purposes. [xxx] on the other hand, would include such borrowings in their taxable capital, since they would not be financial institutions under any of the paragraphs in the "financial institution" definition, including under subparagraph (g)(ii) of the definition.

Although ostensibly outside the technical scope of the definition, you suggest that [xxx] fall within the policy intent of subparagraph (g)(ii), given that all of their assets are interests in a tiered partnership structure of which the underlying assets are indebtedness of financial institutions with which [xxx] are related. While you suggest in your letter that there may be a basis in law to argue that Partnerships A and B can be disregarded in determining whether [xxx] are financial institutions under the subparagraph, it would appear (judging from the position taken by the Canada Revenue Agency in its technical interpretation numbered 9712385, to which you refer) that CRA considers the better view to be that the assets of a partnership of which a corporation is a member are not considered in applying subparagraph (g)(ii) to the corporation. Listing [xxx] would therefore seem to be the only way in which, under the proposed structure, the corporations could attain financial institution status for Part I.3 purposes.

Looking only at the policy underlying Part I.3, we agree that it would be appropriate in the present case to disregard Partnerships A and B in determining whether [xxx] are financial institutions under subparagraph (g)(ii), and are prepared to recommend that the corporations be listed strictly on that basis. We therefore ask that each corporation, once incorporated, provide us with a note undertaking to advise the Department if its assets or those of Partnerships A and B change such that it may no longer be reasonably said that all or substantially all of its assets, whether held directly or through the partnerships, are shares or debt of a related financial institution, so that its status under paragraph (g) can be re-examined.

You request that both corporations be listed with effect from the date of their incorporation. As you know, the Department's policy is to recommend listing a corporation on a fully prospective basis with additional time delays where necessary to protect third-party investors. You have advised that, upon their incorporation, no arm's length party will hold debt in either of [xxx] that would potentially lose entitlement to a Part I.3 investment allowance if either of the corporations were listed. Based on this and the fact that they have not yet been incorporated, we are prepared to recommend that [xxx] be listed as of their date of incorporation. These recommendations will be made provided no debt (other than long-term debt, as defined for Part I.3 purposes) issued by either corporation is held by an unrelated corporation (other than a financial institution, as defined for Part I.3 purposes) prior to July 2004.

Further, this recommendation will only be made in respect of either corporation if it is incorporated before December 31, 2004, following which time any request for financial institution status will be assessed anew.

To facilitate this request, we ask that the incorporation dates and names of the corporations be provided to us shortly after their incorporation.

I cannot offer any assurance that the Minister of Finance will agree with the recommendations that we intend to make in this regard. Nonetheless, I trust this statement of our position is helpful.

Yours sincerely,

Brian Ernewein, Director, Tax Legislation Division, Tax Policy Branch

Letter from Dept. of Finance, May 18, 2004:

Dear [xxx]

Thank you for your letter of September 26, 2003, in which you request that [xxx] be listed as a financial institution for the purposes of paragraph (g) of the "financial institution" definition in subsection 181(1) of the Income Tax Act.

As you know, the proposed amendments to the Act announced in December 2002 and reiterated in February 2004 provide for, among other things, a fundamental change in the manner in which corporations are identified under paragraph (g) as being financial institutions. Rather than listing these corporations in a regulation, this new approach is to list them in a schedule to the Act. It is proposed that this change be made effective after December 22, 1997. As a result, requests to be treated as financial institutions under this paragraph with effective dates after December 22, 1997 — as is the case with your request — will be treated as requests to be listed in the schedule.

We understand from your letter and discussions with Ryan Hall, of this Division, that [xxx] business consists of providing loans to [xxx], and that these operations are financed solely by borrowings from a resident corporation that is a financial institution for Part I.3 purposes. We also understand that [xxx] in carrying on its business competes directly with other financial institutions.

Based on these understandings, we are prepared to recommend that [xxx] be listed in the schedule to the Act for the purposes of paragraph (g) of the definition "financial institution" in subsection 181(1). However, we ask that [xxx] provide us with written assurances that it will advise the Department if the nature of its business changes, so that its treatment as a financial institution for these purposes may be re-examined.

You request in your letter that [xxx] be listed effective April 8, 2002. As you know, however, the Department's policy is to recommend listing a corporation on a fully prospective basis with additional time delays where necessary to protect third-party investors. You have advised that no arm's length party will hold debt in [xxx] that would potentially lose entitlement to a Part I.3 investment allowance upon [xxx] being listed. Based on this, we are prepared to recommend that [xxx] be listed effective for the 2004 and subsequent taxation years. This recommendation will be made provided no debt (other than long-term debt, as defined for Part I.3 purposes) issued by [xxx] is held by an unrelated corporation (other than a financial institution, as defined for Part I.3 purposes) prior to 2005.

I cannot offer any assurance that the Minister of Finance will agree with the recommendations that we intend to make in this regard. Nonetheless, I trust this statement of our position is helpful.

Yours sincerely,

Brian Ernewein, Director, Tax Legislative Division, Tax Policy Branch

Letter from Dept. of Finance, May 23, 2007:

Dear [xxx]

Thank you for your letter of April 24, 2007 regarding the amalgamation of Ford Credit Canada Limited (FCCL) and its subsidiaries, Ford Credit Canada Leasing (Leasing) and PRIMUS Automotive Financial Services Canada Company (PRIMUS), which took place on January 1, 2007. We understand that, prior to amalgamation, FCCL was in the financing business and it was a prescribed financial institution for the purposes of paragraph 181(1)(g) of the Income Tax Act. You request that the successor corporation, also named FCCL (or for the purpose of this letter, FCCL II), remain on the list of prescribed financial institutions for the purposes of paragraph 8604(s) of the Income Tax Regulations.

You indicate that FCCL II has continued the business carried on by FCCL before 2007 and that FCCL II did not, as a result of the amalgamation, acquire any assets not originally owned by FCCL that are not used in a financing business. However, FCCL II did, as a result of the amalgamation, acquire shares and debts of a wholly-owned subsidiary and some nominal assets, such as office furniture.

This being the case, I am prepared to recommend that the successor corporation, FCCL II, remain on the list of prescribed financial institutions. We ask FCCL II to advise us, however, should the nature of its business change, so that its status pursuant to subsection 181(1)(g) can be re-examined at that time.

I cannot offer any assurance that either the Minister of Finance or Cabinet will agree with the recommendation that we intend to make in this regard. Nonetheless, I hope that this statement of our position is helpful.

Yours sincerely,

Gerard Lalonde, A/Director, Tax Legislation Division, Tax Policy Branch

7. Short title — This Act may be cited as the Income Tax Application Rules.

PART I — INCOME TAX APPLICATION RULES, 1971

Interpretation

8. Definitions — In this Act,

"amended Act" means, according to the context in which that expression appears,

(a) the Income Tax Act, chapter 148 of the Revised Statutes of Canada, 1952, as amended by section 1 of chapter 63 of the Statutes of Canada, 1970-71-72, and by any subsequent Act, and

(b) the Income Tax Act, as amended from time to time;

"former Act" means the Income Tax Act, chapter 148 of the Revised Statutes of Canada, 1952, as it was before being amended by section 1 of chapter 63 of the Statutes of Canada, 1970-71-72.

Definitions [ITAR 8]: "Income Tax Act, chapter 148 of the Revised Statutes of Canada, 1952" — ITAR 69.

Application of 1970-71-72, c. 63, s. 1

9. Application of 1970-71-72, c. 63, s. 1 — Subject to the amended Act and this Act, section 1 of chapter 63 of the Statutes of Canada, 1970-71-72, applies to the 1972 and subsequent taxation years.

Related Provisions: ITAR 65.1 — Part XV of amended Act.

Definitions [ITAR 9]: "amended Act" — ITAR 8; "taxation year" — ITA 249.

9.1 [Repealed under former Act]

Application of Part XIII of Amended Act

10. (1)–(3) [Repealed under former Act]

(4) Application of Part XIII of amended Act — Where an amount is paid or credited by a person resident in Canada to a non-resident person

(a) who is resident in a prescribed country, and

(b) with whom the person resident in Canada was dealing at arm's length, as, on account or in lieu of payment of or in satisfaction of, interest payable on any bond, debenture, mortgage, note or similar obligation issued before 1976 by the person resident in Canada to the non-resident person, for the purposes of computing the tax under Part XIII of the amended Act payable by the non-resident person on the amount, the reference in subsection 212(1) of that Act to "25%" shall be read as a reference to "15%".

Regulations: 1600 (prescribed country).

(5) [Repealed]

History: Subsec. 10(5) repealed by 2007, c. 35, s. 69, applicable after 2007. It formerly read:

(5) Certificates of exemption — Any certificate of exemption issued by the Minister under subsection 106(9) of the former Act that was in force on December 31, 1971 shall, for the purposes of subparagraph 212(1)(b)(iv) of the amended Act,

(a) be deemed to have been issued under subsection 212(14) of the amended Act; and

(b) be deemed

(i) in respect of interest payable on any bond, debenture or similar obligation acquired on or before December 31, 1971 by the person to whom the certificate was issued, to have been in force on January 1, 1972 and thereafter without interruption, except that if the person to whom the certificate was issued has ceased at any time after 1971 to be exempt, under the laws of the country of which the person is a resident, from the payment of income tax to the government of that country, the certificate ceases to be in force

(iii) in respect of interest described in subparagraph (i), on the day on which the person first so ceased to be exempt.

(6) Limitation on non-resident's tax rate — Notwithstanding any provision of the amended Act, where an agreement or convention between the Government of Canada and the government of any other country that has the force of law in Canada provides that where an amount is paid or credited, or deemed to be paid or credited, to a resident of that other country the rate of tax imposed thereon shall not exceed a specified rate,

(a) any reference in Part XIII of the amended Act to a rate in excess of the specified rate shall, in respect of such an amount, be read as a reference to the specified rate; and

(b) except where the amount can reasonably be attributed to a business carried on by that person in Canada, that person shall, for the purpose of the agreement or convention in respect of the amount, be deemed not to have a permanent establishment in Canada.

16. Construction of certain references — In any enactment, a reference by number to any provision of the Income Tax Act that, according to the context in which the reference appears, is a reference to

(a) a provision of Part IV of the former Act,

(b) a provision of Part VIII of the former Act, or

(c) a provision of the amended Act having the same number as a provision described in paragraph (a) or (b), shall, for greater certainty, be read as a reference to the provision described in paragraph (a), (b) or (c), as the case may be, and not to any other provision of the Income Tax Act or the Income Tax Act, chapter 148 of the Revised Statutes of Canada, 1952, having the same number.

Definitions [ITAR 16]: "amended Act" — ITAR 8; "enactment" — ITAR 12; "former Act" — ITAR 8; "Income Tax Act, chapter 148 of the Revised Statutes of Canada, 1952" — ITAR 69.

I.T. Application Rules: 69 (meaning of "chapter 148 of ...").

17. (1) Income War Tax Act, s. 8 — A taxpayer may deduct from the tax otherwise payable under Part I of the amended Act for a taxation year such amount as would, if the Income War Tax Act applied to the taxation year, be deductible from tax because of subsections 8(6), (7) and (7A) of the Income War Tax Act.

(2) S.C. 1947, c. 63, s. 16 — There may be deducted in computing income for a taxation year under Part I of the amended Act an amount that would be deductible under section 16 of chapter 63 of the Statutes of Canada, 1947, from income as defined by the Income War Tax Act if that Act applied to the taxation year.

(3) Idem — There may be deducted from the tax for a taxation year otherwise payable under Part I of the amended Act an amount that would be deductible under section 16 of chapter 63 of the Statutes of Canada, 1947, from the total of taxes payable under the Income War Tax Act and The Excess Profits Tax Act, 1940, if those Acts applied to the taxation year.

(4) Retrospection — Where there is a reference in the amended Act to any act, matter or thing done or existing before a taxation year, it shall be deemed to include a reference to the act, matter or thing, even though it was done or existing before the commencement of that Act.

(5) Amount not previously included as income — Where, on the application of a method adopted by a taxpayer for computing income from a business, other than a business that is a profession, or farm or property for a taxation year to which the amended Act applies, an amount received in the year would not be included in computing the taxpayer's income for the year because on the application of that method it would have been included in computing the taxpayer's income for the purposes of the Income Tax Act or the Income Tax Act, chapter 148 of the Revised Statutes of Canada, 1952, for a preceding taxation year in respect of which it was receivable, if the amount was not included in computing the income for the preceding year, it shall be included in computing the income for the year in which it was received.

I.T. Application Rules: 69 (meaning of "chapter 148 of ...").

(6) S.C. 1949 (2nd S.), c. 25, s. 53 — There may be deducted in computing income for a taxation year under Part I of the amended Act an amount that would be deductible under section 53 of chapter 25 of the Statutes of Canada, 1949 (Second Session), in computing income under The 1948 Income Tax Act if that Act applied to the taxation year.

(7) Idem — There may be deducted from the tax for a taxation year otherwise payable under Part I of the amended Act an amount that would be deductible under section 53 of chapter 25 of the Statutes of Canada, 1949 (Second Session) from the tax payable under Part I of The 1948 Income Tax Act if that Act applied to the taxation year.

(8) Registered pension plan — A reference in the amended Act to a registered pension plan shall, in respect of a period while the plan was an approved superannuation or pension fund or plan, be construed as a reference to that approved superannuation or pension fund or plan.

18. (1) General depreciation provisions — Where the capital cost to a taxpayer of any depreciable property that was acquired by him before 1972 was required by any provision of the old law to be determined for the purpose of computing the amount of any deduction under any such provision in respect of that property, or would have been required by any provision of the old law to be determined for that purpose if any deduction under any such provision had been claimed by the taxpayer in respect of that property, the amount of the capital cost so required to be determined or that would have been so required to be determined, as the case may be, shall be deemed, for all purposes of the amended Act, to be the capital cost to the taxpayer of that property.

(2) Idem — Where a taxpayer has acquired depreciable property before the beginning of the 1949 taxation year, for the purposes of section 13 of the amended Act and any regulations made under paragraph 20(1)(a) of that Act an amount equal to the total of

(a) all deductions allowed in computing the taxpayer's income for the purpose of the Income War Tax Act as "special depreciation", "extra depreciation" or allowances in lieu of depreciation for property the taxpayer had at the beginning of the 1949 taxation year (except deductions allowed under subparagraph 6(1)(n)(ii) of that Act), and

(b) ½ of all amounts allowed to the taxpayer under subparagraph 6(1)(n)(ii) of that Act for property that the taxpayer had at the beginning of the 1949 taxation year, shall be deemed to have been allowed to the taxpayer under regulations made under paragraph 20(1)(a) of the amended Act in computing income for a taxation year before the 1949 taxation year.

(3) Provisoes not applicable — The second and third provisoes to paragraph 6(1)(n) of the Income War Tax Act do not apply to sales made after the beginning of the 1949 taxation year.

(4) Reference to depreciation — Reference in this section to depreciation shall be deemed to include a reference to allowances in respect of depreciable property of a taxpayer made under paragraph 5(1)(a) of the Income War Tax Act.

(5) Deduction deemed depreciation — An amount deducted under paragraph 5(1)(u) of the Income War Tax Act in respect of amounts of a capital nature shall, for the purpose of this section, be deemed to be depreciation taken into account in ascertaining the taxpayer's income for the purpose of that Act or in ascertaining the taxpayer's loss for the taxation year for which it was deducted.

Special Transitional Rules

19. (1) Income maintenance payments — Notwithstanding section 9, paragraph 6(1)(f) of the amended Act does not apply in respect of amounts received by a taxpayer in a taxation year that were payable to the taxpayer in respect of the loss, in consequence of an event occurring before 1974, of all or any part of the taxpayer's income from an office or employment, under a plan, described in that paragraph, that was established before June 19, 1971.

(2) Effect of certain changes made in plan established before June 19, 1971 — For the purposes of this section, a plan described in paragraph 6(1)(f) of the amended Act that was in existence before June 19, 1971 does not cease to be a plan established before that date solely because of changes made therein on or after that date for the purpose of ensuring that the plan qualifies as one entitling the employer of persons covered under the plan to a reduction, as provided for by subsection 50(2) of the Unemployment Insurance Act, in the amount of the employer's premium payable under that Act in respect of insured persons covered under the plan.

20. (1) Depreciable property — Where the capital cost to a taxpayer of any depreciable property acquired by the taxpayer before 1972 and owned by the taxpayer without interruption from December 31, 1971 until such time after 1971 as the taxpayer disposed of it is less than the fair market value of the property on valuation day and less than the proceeds of disposition thereof otherwise determined,

(a) for the purposes of section 13 of the amended Act, subdivision c of Division B of Part I of that Act and any regulations made under paragraph 20(1)(a) of that Act, the taxpayer's proceeds of disposition of the property shall be deemed to be an amount equal to the total of its capital cost to the taxpayer and the amount, if any, by which the proceeds of disposition thereof otherwise determined exceed the fair market value of the property on valuation day;

(b) where the property has, by one or more transactions or events (other than the death of a taxpayer to which subsection 70(5) of the amended Act applies) between persons not dealing at arm's length, become vested in another taxpayer

(i) for the purposes of the amended Act (other than, where paragraph 13(7)(e) of that Act applies in determining the capital cost to that other taxpayer of the property, for the purposes of paragraphs 8(1)(j) and (p) and sections 13 and 20 of that Act), that other taxpayer shall be deemed to have acquired the property at a capital cost equal to the proceeds deemed to have been received for the property by the person from whom that other taxpayer acquired the property, and

(ii) for the purposes of this subsection, that other taxpayer shall be deemed to have acquired the property before 1972 at a capital cost equal to the capital cost of the property to the taxpayer who actually owned the property at the end of 1971, and to have owned it without interruption from December 31, 1971 until such time after 1971 as that other taxpayer disposed of it; and

(c) where the disposition occurred because of an election under subsection 110.6(19) of the amended Act,

(i) for the purposes of that Act (other than paragraphs 8(1)(j) and (p) and sections 13 and 20 of that Act), the taxpayer is deemed to have reacquired the property at a capital cost equal to

(A) where the amount designated in respect of the property in the election did not exceed 110% of the fair market value of the property at the end of February 22, 1994, the taxpayer's proceeds of disposition determined under paragraph (a) in respect of the disposition of the property that immediately preceded the reacquisition minus the amount, if any, by which the amount designated in respect of the property in the election exceeded that fair market value, and

(B) in any other case, the amount otherwise determined under subsection 110.6(19) of that Act to be the cost to the taxpayer of the property immediately after the reacquisition referred to in that subsection minus the amount by which the fair market value of the property on valuation day exceeded the capital cost of the property at the time it was last acquired before 1972, and

(ii) for the purposes of this subsection, the taxpayer's capital cost of the property after the reacquisition shall be deemed to be equal to the taxpayer's capital cost of the property before the reacquisition and the taxpayer shall be considered to have owned the property without interruption from December 31, 1971 until such time after February 22, 1994 as the taxpayer disposes of it.

(1.1) Where depreciable property disposed of to spouse, common-law partner, trust or child — Subsection (1) does not apply in any case where

(a) subsection 70(6) or 73(1) of the amended Act applies in respect of the disposition by a taxpayer of any depreciable property of a prescribed class to the spouse, common-law partner, trust or transferee, as the case may be, referred to therein, and

(b) subsection 70(9) of the amended Act applies in respect of the disposition by a taxpayer of any depreciable property of a prescribed class to a child referred to therein, except that where the spouse, common-law partner, trust, transferee or child, as the case may be, subsequently disposes of the property at any time, subsection (1) applies as if the spouse, common-law partner, trust, transferee or child, as the case may be, had acquired the property before 1972 and owned it without interruption from December 31, 1971 until that time.

History: Subsec. 20(1.1) amended by 2000, c. 12, s. 147, to replace "spouse" with "spouse, common-law partner", applicable to 2001 et seq., in force July 31, 2000, subject to subsec. 147(3) of 2000, c. 12, which provides:

> (3) Where a taxpayer and a person have jointly elected pursuant to section 144 of this Act [reproduced in the History note to 248(1)"common-law partner" — ed.] in respect of the 1998, 1999 or 2000 taxation years, [this amendment] applies to the taxpayer and the person in respect of the applicable taxation year and subsequent taxation years.

(1.11) Extended meaning of "child" — For the purposes of subsection (1.1), "child" of a taxpayer includes

(a) a child of the taxpayer's child;

(b) a child of the taxpayer's child's child; and

(c) a person who, at any time before attaining the age of 21 years, was wholly dependent on the taxpayer for support and of whom the taxpayer had, at that time, in law or in fact, the custody and control.

Related Provisions: ITA 70(10) — Extended meaning of "child".

(1.2) Other transfers of depreciable property — Where, because of a transaction or an event in respect of which any of subsections 70(5), 85(1), (2) and (3), 87(2), section 88, subsections 97(2), 98(3) and (5) and 107(2) of the amended Act applies, a taxpayer has at any particular time after 1971 acquired any depreciable property of a prescribed class from a person who acquired the property before 1972 and owned it without interruption from December 31, 1971 until the particular time, for the purposes of subsection (1) the taxpayer shall be deemed to have acquired the property before 1972 and to have owned it without interruption from December 31, 1971 until such time after 1971 as the taxpayer disposed of it.

Interpretation Bulletins: IT-209R: Inter vivos gifts of capital property to individuals directly or through trusts; IT-217R: Depreciable property owned on December 31, 1971 (archived); IT-488R2: Winding-up of 90%-owned taxable Canadian corporation (archived).

(1.3) Transfers before 1972 not at arm's length — Without restricting the generality of section 18, where any depreciable property has been transferred before 1972 in circumstances such that subsection 20(4) of the former Act would, if that provision applied to transfers of property made in the 1972 taxation year, apply, paragraph 69(1)(b) of the amended Act does not apply to the transfer and subsection 20(4) of the former Act applies thereto.

(1.4) Depreciable property received as dividend in kind — The capital cost to a taxpayer, as of any particular time after 1971, of any depreciable property (other than depreciable property referred to in subsection (1.3) or deemed by subparagraph (1)(b)(ii) to have been acquired by the taxpayer before 1972) acquired by the taxpayer before 1972 as, on account of, in lieu of payment of or in satisfaction of, a dividend payable in kind (other than a stock dividend) in respect of a share owned by the taxpayer of the capital stock of a corporation, shall be deemed to be the fair market value of that property at the time the property was so received.

(2) Recapture of capital cost allowances — In determining a taxpayer's income for a taxation year from farming or fishing, subsection 13(1) of the amended Act does not apply in respect of the disposition by the taxpayer of property acquired by the taxpayer before 1972 unless the taxpayer has elected to make a deduction for that or a preceding taxation year, in respect of the capital cost of property acquired by the taxpayer before 1972, under regulations made under paragraph 20(1)(a) of that Act other than a regulation providing solely for an allowance for computing income from farming or fishing.

(3) Depreciable property of partnership of prescribed class — For the purposes of the amended Act, where a partnership had, on December 31, 1971, partnership property that was depreciable property of a prescribed class,

(a) the capital cost to the partnership of each property of that class shall be deemed to be an amount determined as follows:

(i) determine, for each person who, by reason of having been a member of the partnership on the later of June 18, 1971 and the day the partnership was created, and thereafter without interruption until December 31, 1971, can reasonably be regarded as having had an interest in the property of that class on December 31, 1971, the person's acquisition cost in respect of property of that class,

(ii) determine, for each such person, the amount that is that proportion of the person's acquisition cost in respect of property of that class that 100% is of the person's percentage in respect of property of that class,

(iii) select the amount determined under subparagraph (ii) for a person described therein that is not greater than any amount so determined for any other such person,

(iv) determine that proportion of the amount selected under subparagraph (iii) (in this subsection referred to as the "capital cost of that class") that the fair market value on December 31, 1971 of that property is of the fair market value on that day of all property of that class, and the amount determined under subparagraph (iv) is the capital cost to the partnership of that property;

(b) for the purposes of sections 13 and 20 of the amended Act and any regulations made under paragraph 20(1)(a) of that Act, the undepreciated capital cost to the partnership of property of that class as of any time after 1971 shall be computed as though the amount, if any, by which the capital cost of that class to the partnership exceeds the undepreciated cost to the partnership of that class had been allowed to the partnership in respect of property of that class under regulations made under paragraph 20(1)(a) of the amended Act in computing income for taxation years before that time;

(c) in computing the income for the 1972 and subsequent taxation years of each person who was a member of the partnership on June 18, 1971 and thereafter without interruption until December 31, 1971, there may be deducted such amount as the person claims for the year, not exceeding the amount, if any, by which the total of

(i) the lesser of

(A) the amount, if any, by which the amount that was the capital cost to the person of all property of that class exceeds the percentage, equal to the person's percentage in respect of property of that class, of the capital cost of that class to the partnership, and

(B) the amount that was the undepreciated capital cost to the person of property of that class as of December 31, 1971, and

(ii) the amount, if any, by which

(A) the undepreciated capital cost to the person of property of that class as of December 31, 1971, less the amount, if any, determined under subparagraph (i) in respect of property of that class,

exceeds

(B) the percentage, equal to the person's percentage in respect of property of that class, of the undepreciated cost to the partnership of that class, exceeds the total of all amounts deducted under this paragraph in computing the person's income for preceding taxation years; and, for the purposes of section 3 of the amended Act, the amount so claimed shall be deemed to be a deduction permitted by subdivision e of Division B of Part I of that Act; and

(d) notwithstanding paragraph (c), a person who became a member of the partnership after June 18, 1971 and who was a member of the partnership thereafter without interruption until December 31, 1971 shall be deemed to be a person described in paragraph (c) and the amount that may be claimed thereunder as a deduction in computing the person's income for any taxation year shall not exceed 10% of the total of the amounts determined under subparagraphs (c)(i) and (ii).

(4) Definitions — In subsection (3),

"acquisition cost" of a person who was a member of a partnership on December 31, 1971 in respect of depreciable property of a prescribed class that was partnership property of the partnership on December 31, 1971 means the total of the undepreciated capital cost to that person of property of that class as of December 31, 1971 and the total depreciation allowed to the person before 1972 in respect of property of that class;

"percentage" of a member of a partnership in respect of any depreciable property of a prescribed class that was partnership property of the partnership on December 31, 1971 means the interest of the member of the partnership in property of that class, expressed as a percentage of the total of the interests of all members of the partnership in property of that class on that day;

"undepreciated cost to the partnership" of any class of depreciable property means an amount determined as follows:

(a) determine, for each person who, because of having been a member of the partnership on the later of June 18, 1971 and the day the partnership was created, and thereafter without interruption until December 31, 1971, can reasonably be regarded as having had an interest in property of that class on December 31, 1971, the amount, if any, by which the undepreciated capital cost to the person of property of that class as of December 31, 1971 exceeds the amount, if any, determined under subparagraph (3)(c)(i) for the person in respect of property of that class,

(b) determine, for each such person, the amount that is that proportion of the amount determined under paragraph (a) that 100% is of the person's percentage in respect of property of that class, and

(c) select the amount determined under paragraph (b) for a person described therein that is not greater than any amount so determined for any other such person, and the amount selected under paragraph (c) is the undepreciated cost to the partnership of that class.

(5) Other depreciable property of partnership — For the purposes of the amended Act, where a partnership had, on December 31, 1971, any particular partnership property that was depreciable property other than depreciable property of a prescribed class,

(a) the cost to the partnership of the particular property shall be deemed to be the amount that would be determined under paragraph (3)(a) to be the capital cost thereof if

(i) the particular property constituted a prescribed class of property, and

(ii) the acquisition cost of each person described therein in respect of the particular property were its actual cost to the person or the amount at which the person was deemed by subsection 20(6) of the former Act to have acquired it, as the case may be;

(b) for the purposes of sections 13 and 20 of the amended Act and any regulations made under paragraph 20(1)(a) of that Act, the undepreciated capital cost of property of any class as of any particular time after 1971 shall be computed as if the amount, if any, by which

(i) the amount determined under paragraph (a) to have been the cost to the partnership of the particular property,

exceeds

(ii) the amount that would be determined under the definition "undepreciated cost to the partnership" in subsection (4) to be the undepreciated cost to the partnership of any class of depreciable property comprising the particular property if

(A) paragraph (a) of that definition were read without reference to the words "the later of June 18, 1971 and the day the partnership was created, and thereafter without interruption until",

(B) the amount determined under subparagraph (3)(c)(i) for any person in respect of that class were nil, and

(C) the undepreciated capital cost to each person described in the definition "acquisition cost" in subsection (4) of the particular property as of December 31, 1971 were the amount, if any, by which the amount assumed by subparagraph (a)(ii) to have been the acquisition cost of the person in respect of the property exceeds the total of all amounts allowed to the person in respect of the property under regulations made under paragraph 11(1)(a) of the former Act in computing income for taxation years ending before 1972, had been allowed to the partnership in respect of the particular property under regulations made under paragraph 20(1)(a) of the amended Act in computing income for taxation years ending before the particular time; and

(c) in computing the income for the 1972 and subsequent taxation years of each person who was, on December 31, 1971, a member of the partnership, there may be deducted such amount as the person claims for the year, not exceeding the amount, if any, by which

(i) the amount by which

(A) the amount assumed by clause (b)(ii)(C) to have been the undepreciated capital cost to the person of the particular property as of December 31, 1971

exceeds

(B) a percentage of the amount determined under subparagraph (b)(ii) in respect of the particular property, equal to the percentage that would be the person's percentage (within the meaning assigned by subsection (4)) in respect of the particular property if that property constituted a prescribed class,

exceeds

(ii) the total of all amounts deducted under this paragraph in computing the person's income for preceding taxation years;

and for the purposes of section 3 of the amended Act the amount so claimed shall be deemed to be a deduction permitted by subdivision e of Division B of Part I of that Act.

21. (1) Goodwill and other nothings — Where as a result of a disposition occurring after 1971 a taxpayer has or may become entitled to receive an amount (in this section referred to as the "actual amount") in respect of a business carried on by the taxpayer throughout the period beginning January 1, 1972 and ending immediately after the disposition occurred, for the purposes of section 14 of the amended Act the amount that the taxpayer has or may become entitled to receive shall be deemed to be the total of

(a) an amount equal to a percentage, equal to 40% plus the percentage (not exceeding 60%) obtained when 5% is multiplied by the number of full calendar years ending in the period and before the transaction occurred, of the amount, if any, by which the actual amount exceeds the portion thereof referred to in subparagraph (b)(i), and

(b) an amount equal to the lesser of

(i) the percentage, described in paragraph (a), of such portion, if any, of the actual amount as may reasonably be considered as being the consideration received by him for the disposition of, or for allowing the expiration of, a government right, and

(ii) the amount, if any, by which the portion described in subparagraph (i) exceeds the greater of

(A) the total of all amounts each of which is an outlay or expenditure made or incurred by the taxpayer as a result of a transaction that occurred before 1972 for the purpose of acquiring the government right, or the taxpayer's original right in respect of the government right, to the extent that the outlay or expenditure was not otherwise deducted in computing the income of the taxpayer for any taxation year and would, if made or incurred by the taxpayer as a result of a transaction that occurred after 1971, be an eligible capital expenditure of the taxpayer, and

(B) the fair market value to the taxpayer as at December 31, 1971 of the taxpayer's specified right in respect of the government right, if no outlay or expenditure was made or incurred by the taxpayer for the purpose of acquiring the right or, if an outlay or expenditure was made or incurred, if that outlay or expenditure would have been an eligible capital expenditure of the taxpayer if it had been made or incurred as a result of a transaction that occurred after 1971.

(2) Idem — Where the taxpayer and the person by whom the actual amount has become payable to the taxpayer were not dealing with each other at arm's length, for the purposes of computing the income of that person the portion of the actual amount in excess of the amount deemed by subsection (1) to be the amount that has become payable to the taxpayer shall be deemed not to have been an outlay, expense or cost, as the case may be, of that person.

Interpretation Bulletins: IT-268R4: Inter vivos transfer of farm property to child. See also list at end of ITAR 21.

(2.1) Idem — Where after 1971 a taxpayer has acquired a particular government right referred to in subsection (1)

(a) from a person with whom the taxpayer was not dealing at arm's length, or

(b) under an agreement with a person with whom the taxpayer was not dealing at arm's length, if under the terms of the agreement that person allowed the right to expire so that the taxpayer could acquire a substantially similar right from the authority that had issued the right to that person, and an actual amount subsequently becomes payable to the taxpayer as consideration for the disposition by the taxpayer of, or for the taxpayer allowing the expiration of, the particular government right or any other government right acquired by the taxpayer for the purpose of effecting the continuation, without interruption, of rights that are substantially similar to the rights that the taxpayer had under the particular government right, for the purpose of section 14 of the amended Act, the amount that has so become payable to the taxpayer shall be deemed to be the amount that would, if that person and the taxpayer had at all times been the same person, be determined under subsection (1) to be the amount that would have become so payable to the taxpayer.

Interpretation Bulletins: See list at end of ITAR 21.

(2.2) Amalgamations — For the purposes of this section, an amalgamation (within the meaning of section 87 of the amended Act) of two or more Canadian corporations shall be deemed to be a transaction between persons not dealing at arm's length.

(3) Definitions — In this section,

"government right" of a taxpayer means a right or licence

(a) that enables the taxpayer to carry on a business activity in accordance with a law of Canada or of a province or Canadian municipality, to an extent to which the taxpayer would otherwise be unable to carry it on in accordance therewith,

(b) that was granted or issued by Her Majesty in right of Canada or a province or a Canadian municipality, or by a department, board, agency or any other body authorized by or under a law of Canada, a province or a Canadian municipality to grant or issue such a right or licence, and

(c) that was acquired by the taxpayer

(i) as a result of a transaction that occurred before 1972, or

(ii) at a particular time for the purpose of effecting the continuation, without interruption, of rights that are substantially similar to the rights that the taxpayer had under a government right held by the taxpayer before the particular time;

"original right" of a taxpayer in respect of a government right means a right or licence

(a) described in the definition "government right" in this subsection, and

(b) acquired by the taxpayer as a result of a transaction that occurred before 1972 for a purpose other than the purpose described in subparagraph (c)(ii) of that definition, if the government right was acquired by the taxpayer for the purpose of effecting the continuation, without interruption, of rights that are substantially similar to the rights that the taxpayer had under the right or licence;

"specified right" of a taxpayer in respect of a government right means a right owned by a taxpayer on December 31, 1971 that was

(a) an original right, or

(b) a government right that was acquired by the taxpayer in substitution for the original right or that was one of a series of government rights acquired by the taxpayer for the purpose of effecting the continuation, without interruption, of rights that are substantially similar to the rights that the taxpayer had under the original right.

(3) Rules applicable [to professional business] — For the purposes of computing the income of a taxpayer for a taxation year ending after 1971 from a business that is a profession,

(a) there may be deducted such amount as the taxpayer claims, not exceeding the lesser of

(i) the amount deducted under this paragraph in computing the taxpayer's income from the business for the preceding taxation year, and

(ii) the taxpayer's investment interest in the business at the end of the year;

(b) where the taxation year is the taxpayer's 1972 taxation year, the amount deducted under paragraph (a) in computing the taxpayer's income for the preceding taxation year from the business shall be deemed to be an amount equal to the taxpayer's 1971 receivables in respect of the business;

(c) there shall be included the amount deducted under paragraph (a) in computing the taxpayer's income for the preceding taxation year from the business; and

(d) there shall be included amounts received by the taxpayer in the year on account of debts in respect of the business that were established by the taxpayer to have become bad debts before the end of the 1971 fiscal period of the business.

(4) Application of para. (3)(a) — Paragraph (3)(a) does not apply to allow a deduction in computing the income of a taxpayer from a business that is a profession

(a) for the taxation year in which the taxpayer died; or

(b) for any taxation year, if,

(i) in the case of a taxpayer who at no time in that year was resident in Canada, the taxpayer ceased to carry on the business, or

(ii) in the case of any other taxpayer, the taxpayer ceased to be resident in Canada and ceased to carry on the business at any time in that year or the following year.

Interpretation Bulletins: IT-242R: Retired partners; IT-278R2: Death of a partner or of a retired partner. See also list at end of ITAR 23.

(4.1) Certain persons deemed to be carrying on business by means of partnership — For the purposes of paragraph (a) of the definition "investment interest" in subsection (5),

(a) where subsection 98(1) of the amended Act applies, the persons who are deemed not to have ceased to be members of a partnership because of that subsection shall be deemed to be carrying on business in Canada by means of that partnership; and

(b) a taxpayer who has a residual interest in a partnership (within the meaning assigned by section 98.1 of the amended Act) shall be deemed to be carrying on business in Canada by means of that partnership.

(5) Definitions — In this section,

"investment interest" in a business at the end of a taxation year means

(a) in the case of a taxpayer other than a corporation, the total of all amounts each of which is an amount in respect of a proprietorship or partnership by means of which the taxpayer carried on that business in Canada in the year, equal to,

(i) in respect of each such proprietorship, the amount, if any, by which

(A) the total of such of the amounts that were included in computing the taxpayer's income for that or a preceding taxation year as were receivable by the taxpayer at the end of the fiscal period of the proprietorship ending in the taxation year,

exceeds

(B) the amount claimed under paragraph 20(1)(l) of the amended Act as a reserve for doubtful debts in computing the taxpayer's income from the business for the fiscal period of the proprietorship ending in the year, and

(ii) in respect of each such partnership, the adjusted cost base to the taxpayer of the taxpayer's interest in the partnership immediately after the end of the fiscal period of the partnership ending in the year,

(b) in the case of a taxpayer that is a corporation, the lesser of

(i) the amount thereof that would be determined under paragraph (a) in respect of the corporation if that paragraph applied to a taxpayer that is a corporation, and

(ii) that proportion of its 1971 receivables in respect of the business that

(A) the amount, if any, by which 10 exceeds the number of its taxation years ending after 1971 and either before or coincidentally with the taxation year,

is of

(B) 10;

Interpretation Bulletins: See list at end of ITAR 23.

"1971 receivables" in respect of a business of a taxpayer means the total of

(a) all amounts that became receivable by the taxpayer in respect of property sold or services rendered in the course of the business (within the meaning given that expression in section 34 of the amended Act) in taxation years ending before 1972 and that were not included in computing the taxpayer's income for any such taxation year, other than debts that were established by the taxpayer to have become bad debts before the end of the 1971 fiscal period of the business, and

(b) the total of all amounts each of which is an amount, in respect of each partnership by means of which the taxpayer carried on that business before 1972, equal to such portion of the total that would be determined under paragraph (a) in respect of the partnership, if the references in that paragraph to "the taxpayer" were read as references to "the partnership", as is designated by the taxpayer in the taxpayer's return of income under Part I of the amended Act for the year to be attributable to the taxpayer, except that where the total of the portions so designated by all members of the partnership is less than the total that would be so determined under paragraph (a) in respect of the partnership, the Minister may designate the portion of that total that is attributable to the taxpayer, in which case the portion so designated by the Minister in respect of the taxpayer shall be deemed to be the portion so designated by the taxpayer.

(1.1) Principal amount of certain obligations — For the purposes of subsection 39(3) and section 80 of the amended Act, the principal amount of any debt or other obligation of a taxpayer to pay an amount that was outstanding on January 1, 1972 (in this subsection referred to as an "obligation") shall be deemed to be the lesser of

(a) the principal amount, otherwise determined for the purposes of the amended Act, of the obligation, and

(b) the fair market value, on valuation day, of the obligation, and in applying paragraph 39(3)(a) of the amended Act to an obligation, the reference in that paragraph to "the amount for which the obligation was issued" shall be read as a reference to "the lesser of the principal amount of the obligation and the amount for which the obligation was issued".

(3) Cost of acquisition of capital property owned on Dec. 31, 1971 — For the purpose of computing the adjusted cost base to a taxpayer of any capital property (other than depreciable property or an interest in a partnership) that was owned by the taxpayer on December 31, 1971 and thereafter without interruption until such time as the taxpayer disposed of it, its cost to the taxpayer shall be deemed to be the amount that is neither the greatest nor the least of the following three amounts, namely:

(a) its actual cost to the taxpayer or, if the property was an obligation, its amortized cost to the taxpayer on January 1, 1972,

(b) its fair market value on valuation day, and

(c) the amount, if any, by which the total of

(i) the taxpayer's proceeds of disposition of the property, determined without reference to subsection 13(21.1) of the amended Act,

(ii) all amounts required by subsection 53(2) of the amended Act to be deducted in computing its adjusted cost base to the taxpayer immediately before the disposition, and

(iii) all amounts described in clause (5)(c)(ii)(B) that are relevant in computing its adjusted cost base to the taxpayer immediately before the disposition, exceeds the total of

(iv) all amounts required by subsection 53(1) of the amended Act (other than paragraphs 53(1)(f.1) to (f.2)) to be added in computing its adjusted cost base to the taxpayer immediately before the disposition, and

(v) all amounts described in clause (5)(c)(i)(B) that are relevant in computing its adjusted cost base to the taxpayer immediately before the disposition, except that where two or more of the amounts determined under paragraphs (a) to (c) in respect of any property are the same amount, that amount shall be deemed to be its cost to the taxpayer.

(5) Where property disposed of in transaction not at arm's length — Where any capital property (other than depreciable property or an interest in a partnership) that was owned by a taxpayer (in this subsection referred to as the "original owner") on June 18, 1971 has, by one or more transactions or events between persons not dealing at arm's length, become vested in another taxpayer (in this subsection referred to as the "subsequent owner") and the original owner has not elected under subsection (7) in respect of the property, notwithstanding the provisions of the amended Act, for the purposes of computing, at any particular time after 1971, the adjusted cost base of the property to the subsequent owner,

(a) the subsequent owner shall be deemed to have owned the property on June 18, 1971 and thereafter without interruption until the particular time;

(b) for the purposes of this section, the actual cost of the property to the subsequent owner or, if the property was an obligation, its amortized cost to him on January 1, 1972 shall be deemed to be the amount that was its actual cost or its amortized cost on January 1, 1972, as the case may be, to the original owner; and

(c) where the property became vested in the subsequent owner after 1971, there shall be added to the cost to the subsequent owner of the property (as determined under subsection (3)) the amount, if any, by which

(i) the total of all amounts each of which is

(A) a capital gain (other than any amount deemed by subsection 40(3) of the amended Act to be a capital gain) from the disposition after 1971 of the property by a person who owned the property before it so became vested in the subsequent owner,

(B) an amount required by subsection 53(1) of the amended Act to be added in computing the adjusted cost base of the property to a person (other than the subsequent owner) described in clause (A),

(C) an amount determined under paragraph 88(1)(d) of the amended Act in computing the cost of the property to the subsequent owner or a person who owned the property before it became vested in the subsequent owner, or

(D) an amount by which a gain otherwise determined of a person who owned the property before it became so vested in the subsequent owner was reduced because of paragraph 40(2)(b) or (c) of the amended Act,

exceeds

(ii) the total of amounts each of which is

(A) a capital loss or an amount that would, but for paragraph 40(2)(e) and subsection 85(4) of the amended Act (as that Act read in its application to property disposed of on or before April 26, 1995) and paragraphs 40(2)(e.1) and (e.2) and subsection 40(3.3) of the amended Act, be a capital loss from the disposition to a corporation after 1971 of the property by a person who owned the property before it became vested in the subsequent owner, or

(B) an amount required by subsection 53(2) of the amended Act to be deducted in computing the adjusted cost base of the property to a person (other than the subsequent owner) described in clause (A), and there shall be deducted from the cost to the subsequent owner of the property the amount, if any, by which the total determined under subparagraph (ii) exceeds the total determined under subparagraph (i).

(5.1) Idem — For the purposes of subsection (5), an amalgamation (within the meaning assigned by section 87 of the amended Act) of two or more Canadian corporations shall be deemed to be a transaction between persons not dealing at arm's length.

(5.2) Transfer of capital property to a corporation — For the purposes of subsection (5), where a taxpayer has disposed of capital property after May 6, 1974 to a corporation in respect of which an election under section 85 of the amended Act was made, the disposition shall be deemed to be a transaction between persons not dealing at arm's length.

(6) Reacquired property — Where a taxpayer has, at any time after June 18, 1971 and before 1972, disposed of any property owned by the taxpayer on that day and has, within 30 days after that time, reacquired the same property or acquired a substantially identical property, for the purposes of this section

(a) the taxpayer shall be deemed to have owned the property so reacquired or the substantially identical property so acquired, as the case may be, on June 18, 1971 and thereafter without interruption until the time when the taxpayer so reacquired or acquired it, as the case may be;

(b) where the property was property so reacquired, its actual cost or its amortized cost on January 1, 1972, as the case may be, to the taxpayer shall be determined as if the taxpayer had not so disposed of and so reacquired it; and

(c) where the property was substantially identical property so acquired, its actual cost or its amortized cost on January 1, 1972, as the case may be, to the taxpayer shall be deemed to be the amount that was the actual cost or the amortized cost on January 1, 1972, as the case may be, to the taxpayer of the property so disposed of by the taxpayer.

(7) Election re cost — Where, but for this subsection, the cost to an individual of any property actually owned by the individual on December 31, 1971 would be determined under subsection (3) or (4) otherwise than because of subsection (5) and the individual has so elected, in prescribed manner and not later than the day on or before which the individual is required by Part I of the amended Act to file a return of income for the first taxation year in which the individual disposes of all or any part of the property, other than

(a) personal-use property of the individual that was not listed personal property or real property,

(b) listed personal property, if the individual's gain or loss, as the case may be, from the disposition thereof was, because of subsection 46(1) or (2) of the amended Act, nil,

(c) the individual's principal residence, if the individual's gain from the disposition thereof was, because of paragraph 40(2)(b) of the amended Act, nil,

(d) personal-use property of the individual that was real property (other than the individual's principal residence), if the individual's gain from the disposition thereof was, because of subsection 46(1) or (2) of the amended Act, nil, or

(e) any other property, the proceeds of disposition of which are equal to its fair market value on valuation day, the cost to the individual of each capital property (other than depreciable property, an interest in a partnership or any property described in any of paragraphs (a) to (e) that was disposed of by the individual before that taxation year) actually owned by the individual on December 31, 1971 shall be deemed to be its fair market value on valuation day.

(8) Identical properties — For the purposes of computing, at any particular time after 1971, the adjusted cost base to a taxpayer of any capital property (other than depreciable property or an interest in a partnership) that was owned by the taxpayer on December 31, 1971 and thereafter without interruption until the particular time, if the property was one of a group of identical properties owned by the taxpayer on December 31, 1971,

(a) section 47 of the amended Act does not apply;

(b) where the property was an obligation,

(i) for the purpose of paragraph (3)(a), its amortized cost to the taxpayer on January 1, 1972 shall be deemed to be that proportion of the total of the amortized costs to the taxpayer on January 1, 1972 of all obligations of that group that the principal amount of the obligation is of the total of the principal amounts of all obligations of that group, and

(ii) for the purpose of paragraph (3)(b), its fair market value on valuation day shall be deemed to be that proportion of the fair market value on that day of all obligations of that group that the principal amount of the obligation is of the total of the principal amounts of all obligations of that group;

(c) where the property was not an obligation,

(i) for the purpose of paragraph (3)(a), its actual cost to the taxpayer shall be deemed to be the quotient obtained when the total of the actual costs to the taxpayer of all properties of that group is divided by the number of properties of that group, and

(ii) for the purpose of paragraph (3)(b), its fair market value on valuation day shall be deemed to be the quotient obtained when the fair market value on that day of all properties of that group is divided by the number of properties of that group;

(d) for the purpose of distinguishing any such property from an otherwise identical property acquired and disposed of by the taxpayer before 1972, properties acquired by the taxpayer at any time shall be deemed to have been disposed of by the taxpayer before properties acquired by the taxpayer after that time; and

(e) for the purposes of distinguishing any such property from an otherwise identical property acquired by the taxpayer after 1971, properties owned by the taxpayer on December 31, 1971 shall be deemed to have been disposed of by the taxpayer before properties acquired by the taxpayer at a later time.

(8.1) Idem — For the purposes of subsection (8), any property of a life insurance corporation that would, but for this subsection, be identical to any other property of the corporation shall be deemed not to be identical to that other property unless both properties are

(a) included in the same segregated fund of the corporation;

(b) non-segregated property used in the year in, or held in the course of, carrying on a life insurance business in Canada; or

(c) non-segregated property used in the year in, or held in the course of, carrying on an insurance business in Canada, other than a life insurance business.

Interpretation Bulletins: IT-387R2: Meaning of "identical properties".

(8.2) Idem — For the purposes of subsection (8), any bond, debenture, bill, note or other similar obligation issued by a debtor is identical to any other such obligation issued by that debtor if both are identical in respect of all rights (in equity or otherwise, either immediately or in the future and either absolutely or contingently) attaching thereto, except as regards the principal amount thereof.

Interpretation Bulletins: IT-387R2: Meaning of "identical properties".

(8.3) Idem — Where a corporation resident in Canada has, after 1971, received a stock dividend in respect of a share owned on June 18, 1971 and December 31, 1971 by it or by a corporation with which it did not deal at arm's length of the capital stock of a foreign affiliate of that corporation and the share or shares received as the stock dividend are identical to the share in respect of which the stock dividend was received, the share or shares received as the stock dividend may, at the option of the corporation, be deemed for the purposes of subsection (5) to be capital property owned by it on June 18, 1971 and for the purposes of this subsection, paragraph (3)(c) and subsection (8) to be capital property owned by it on June 18, 1971 and December 31, 1971 and not to be property acquired by the corporation after 1971 for the purposes of paragraph (8)(e).

(8.4) Idem — Where a corporation resident in Canada has, after 1971, received a stock dividend in respect of a share acquired by it after June 18, 1971 from a person with whom it was dealing at arm's length and owned by it on December 31, 1971 of the capital stock of a foreign affiliate of that corporation and the share or shares received as the stock dividend are identical to the share in respect of which the stock dividend was received, the share or shares received as the stock dividend may, at the option of the corporation, be deemed for the purposes of this subsection, paragraph (3)(c) and subsection (8) to be capital property owned by it on December 31, 1971 and not to be property acquired by the corporation after 1971 for the purposes of paragraph (8)(e).

(8.5) Amalgamation — For the purposes of subsections (8.3) and (8.4), where there has been an amalgamation (within the meaning of section 87 of the amended Act), the new corporation shall be deemed to be the same corporation as, and a continuation of, each predecessor corporation.

(9) Cost of interest in partnership — For the purpose of computing, at any particular time after 1971, the adjusted cost base to a taxpayer of an interest in a partnership of which he was a member on December 31, 1971 and thereafter without interruption until the particular time, the cost to the taxpayer of the interest shall be deemed to be the amount that is neither the greatest nor the least of the following three amounts, namely:

(a) its actual cost to the taxpayer as of the particular time,

(b) the amount determined under subsection (9.1) in respect of the interest as of the particular time, and

(c) the amount, if any, by which the total of the fair market value of the interest at the particular time and all amounts required by subsection 53(2) of the amended Act to be deducted in computing its adjusted cost base to the taxpayer immediately before the particular time exceeds the total of all amounts required by subsection 53(1) of the amended Act to be added in computing its adjusted cost base to the taxpayer immediately before the particular time, except that where two or more of the amounts determined under paragraphs (a) to (c) in respect of the interest are the same amount, that amount shall be deemed to be its cost to the taxpayer.

Forms: ; T2065: Determination of adjusted cost base of a partnership interest.

(9.1) Determination of amount for purposes of subsec. (9) — For the purposes of subsection (9), the amount determined under this subsection in respect of a taxpayer's interest in a partnership as of a particular time is the amount, if any, by which the total of

(a) the taxpayer's share, determined at the beginning of the first fiscal period of the partnership ending after 1971, of the tax equity of the partnership at the particular time,

(b) such part of any contribution of capital made by the taxpayer to the partnership (otherwise than by way of loan) before 1972 and after the beginning of the partnership's first fiscal period ending after 1971, as cannot reasonably be regarded as a gift made to, or for the benefit of, any other member of the partnership who was related to the taxpayer, and

(c) the amount of any consideration that became payable by the taxpayer after 1971 to any other person to acquire, after 1971, any right in respect of the partnership, the sole purpose of the acquisition of which was to increase the taxpayer's interest in the partnership,

exceeds the total of

(d) all amounts received by the taxpayer before 1972 and after the beginning of the partnership's first fiscal period ending after 1971 as, on account of, in lieu of payment of or in satisfaction of, a distribution of the taxpayer's share of the partnership profits or partnership capital, and

(e) all amounts each of which is an amount in respect of the disposition by the taxpayer after 1971 and before the particular time of a part of the taxpayer's interest in the partnership, equal to such portion of the adjusted cost base to the taxpayer of the interest immediately before the disposition as may reasonably be regarded as attributable to the part so disposed of.

(9.2) Where interest acquired before 1972 and after beginning of 1st fiscal period ending after 1971 — Where a taxpayer has, before 1972 and after the beginning of the first fiscal period of a partnership ending after 1971, acquired an interest in the partnership from another person, subsection (9.1) applies as if, for the purposes of paragraphs (a), (b) and (d) thereof, the taxpayer had had in respect of the interest, throughout the period beginning at the beginning of that fiscal period and ending at the time the taxpayer acquired the interest, the same position in relation to the partnership as the taxpayer would have had in relation thereto if, throughout that period, the taxpayer had been the owner of the interest.

(9.3) Amounts deemed to be required to be deducted in respect of interest in partnership — For the purpose of computing, at any particular time after 1971, the adjusted cost base to a taxpayer of an interest in a partnership of which the taxpayer was a member on December 31, 1971 and thereafter without interruption until the particular time, the lesser of

(a) the amount, if any, by which

(i) the total of all amounts in respect of the interest determined under paragraph (9.1)(d)

exceeds

(ii) the total of

(A) the taxpayer's share, determined at the beginning of the first fiscal period of the partnership ending after 1971, of the tax equity of the partnership at the particular time, and

(B) the amount in respect of the interest determined under paragraph (9.1)(b), and

(b) the amount, if any, by which

(i) the total of all amounts in respect of the interest determined as of the particular time under paragraphs (14)(e) to (g)

exceeds

(ii) the total of all amounts in respect of the interest determined as of the particular time under paragraphs (14)(a) to (d), shall be deemed to be required by subsection 53(2) of the amended Act to be deducted.

(9.4) Application of section 53 of amended Act in respect of interest in partnership — For the purpose of computing, at any particular time after 1971, the adjusted cost base to a taxpayer of an interest in a partnership of which the taxpayer was a member on December 31, 1971 and thereafter without interruption until the particular time,

(a) the reference in clause 53(1)(e)(i)(B) of the amended Act to "relating to" shall be read as a reference to "relating to section 14 or to"; and

(b) clause 53(2)(c)(i)(B) of the amended Act shall be read as follows:

"(B) paragraphs 12(1)(o) and (z.5), 18(1)(m) and 20(1)(v.1), section 31, subsection 40(2), section 55 and subsections 69(6) and (7) of this Act, paragraphs 20(1)(gg) and 81(1)(r) and (s) of the Income Tax Act, chapter 148 of the Revised Statutes of Canada, 1952, and the provisions of the Income Tax Application Rules relating to section 14, and"

History: Para. 26(9.4)(b) amended by 1997, c. 25, s. 72, applicable for the purpose of computing the adjusted cost base of property after 1996. Para. (b) formerly read:

(b) clause 53(2)(c)(i)(B) of the amended Act shall be read as follows:

"(B) paragraphs 12(1)(o), 18(1)(m) and 20(1)(v.1), section 31, subsection 40(2), section 55 and subsections 69(6) and (7) of this Act, paragraphs 20(1)(gg) and 81(1)(r) and (s) of the Income Tax Act, chapter 148 of the Revised Statutes of Canada, 1952, and the provisions of the Income Tax Application Rules relating to section 14, and"

(10) Where paragraph 128.1(1)(b) applies — Where subsection 48(3) of the amended Act, as it read in its application before 1993, or paragraph 128.1(1)(b) of the amended Act applies for the purpose of determining the cost to a taxpayer of any property, this section does not apply for that purpose.

History: ITAR 26(10) amended by 1994, c. 21, s. 118, applicable after 1992 except that, where a corporation elects in accordance with para. 111(4)(a) of 1994, c. 21 (see subsec. 250(5.1)), the amended subsec. applies to the corporation from the time the corporation was first granted articles of continuation (or similar constitutional documents) in any jurisdiction. That subsec. formerly read:

(10) Where subsec. 48(3) applies — Where subsection 48(3) of the amended Act applies for the purpose of determining the cost to a taxpayer of any property, this section does not apply for that purpose.

(11) Fair market value of publicly-traded securities — For the purposes of this section, the fair market value on valuation day of any property prescribed to be a publicly-traded share or security shall be deemed to be the greater of the amount, if any, prescribed in respect of that property and the fair market value of that property, otherwise determined, on valuation day.

Regulations: 4400 (prescribed property); Sch. VII (list of fair market values of publicly-traded securities).

(11.1) Fair market value of share of foreign affiliate — For the purposes of computing the fair market value

(a) on December 31, 1971, or

(b) at any subsequent time for the purposes of subsection (4), of any shares owned by a taxpayer resident in Canada of the capital stock of a foreign affiliate of the taxpayer, the fair market value at that time of any asset owned by the foreign affiliate at that time

(c) that was subsequently acquired by the taxpayer from the foreign affiliate

(i) as a dividend payable in kind,

(ii) as a benefit the amount of which was deemed by paragraph 80.1(4)(b) of the amended Act to have been received by the taxpayer as a dividend from the foreign affiliate, or

(iii) as consideration for the settlement or extinguishment of an obligation described in subsection 80.1(5) of the amended Act, and

(d) in respect of which subsection 80.1(4) or (5), as the case may be, of the amended Act applies because of an election described in that subsection made by the taxpayer, shall be deemed to be the principal amount of that asset.

(11.2) Idem — For the purposes of computing the fair market value on December 31, 1971 of any shares owned by a taxpayer resident in Canada of the capital stock of a foreign affiliate of the taxpayer, the fair market value on that day of any asset owned by the foreign affiliate on that day

(a) that was subsequently acquired by the taxpayer from the foreign affiliate as described in paragraph 80.1(6)(a) or (b) of the amended Act, and

(b) in respect of which subsection 80.1(1) of the amended Act applies because of an election described in subsection 80.1(6) of that Act made by the taxpayer, shall be deemed to be the principal amount of that asset.

(12) Definitions — In this section,

"amortized cost" to a taxpayer of any obligation on January 1, 1972 means

(a) the principal amount of the obligation, if its actual cost to the taxpayer was less than 100% but not less than 95% of that principal amount and the obligation was issued before November 8, 1969,

(b) the actual cost to the taxpayer of the obligation, if the actual cost to the taxpayer thereof was less than 105% but not less than 100% of the principal amount thereof, and

(c) in any other case, the actual cost to the taxpayer of the obligation, plus that proportion of the discount or minus that proportion of the premium, as the case may be, in respect thereof that

(i) the number of full months in the period commencing with the day the taxpayer last acquired the obligation and ending with valuation day,

is of

(ii) the number of full months in the period commencing with the day the taxpayer last acquired the obligation and ending with the date of its maturity;

Interpretation Bulletins: IT-319: Cost of obligations owned on December 31, 1971 (archived).

"capital property" of a taxpayer means any depreciable property of the taxpayer, and any property (other than depreciable property) any gain or loss from the disposition of which would, if the property were disposed of after 1971, be a capital gain or a capital loss, as the case may be, of the taxpayer;

"discount" in respect of any obligation owned by a taxpayer means the amount, if any, by which the principal amount thereof exceeds its actual cost to the taxpayer determined without reference to subsection (3);

"eligible capital property" of a taxpayer means any property, ½ of any amount payable to the taxpayer as consideration for the disposition of which would, if the property were disposed of after 1971, be an eligible capital amount in respect of a business within the meaning assigned by subsection 14(1) of the amended Act;

"obligation" means a bond, debenture, bill, note, mortgage, hypothecary claim or agreement of sale;

History: The definition "obligation" in subsec. 26(12) amended by 2001, c. 17, subsec. 232(1), in force June 14, 2001. It formerly read:

"obligation" means a bond, debenture, bill, note, mortgage or agreement of sale;

"premium" in respect of any obligation owned by a taxpayer means the amount, if any, by which its actual cost to the taxpayer determined without reference to subsection (3) exceeds the principal amount thereof;

"tax equity" of a partnership at any particular time means the amount, if any, by which the total of amounts each of which is

(a) the amount of any money of the partnership on hand at the beginning of its first fiscal period ending after 1971,

(b) the cost amount to the partnership, at the beginning of that fiscal period, of any partnership property other than capital property or eligible capital property,

(c) an amount in respect of any property (other than depreciable property) that was, at the beginning of that fiscal period, capital property of the partnership, equal to,

(i) where the property was disposed of before 1972, the proceeds of disposition thereof,

(ii) where the property was disposed of after 1971 and before the particular time, the amount determined under this section to be its cost to the partnership for the purposes of computing its adjusted cost base to the partnership immediately before it was disposed of, and

(iii) in any other case, the amount determined under this section to be its cost to the partnership for the purposes of computing its adjusted cost base to the partnership immediately before the particular time,

(d) an amount in respect of any prescribed class of depreciable property of the partnership, equal to the amount, if any, by which the total of the undepreciated capital cost to the partnership of property of that class as of January 1, 1972 exceeds the capital cost to the partnership of property of that class acquired by it after the beginning of that fiscal period and before 1972,

(e) an amount in respect of any other depreciable property of the partnership at the beginning of that fiscal period, equal to the amount by which

(i) the actual cost of the property to the partnership, or the amount at which the partnership was deemed to have acquired the property under subsection 20(6) of the Act as it read in its application to the 1971 taxation year, as the case may be,

exceeds

(ii) the total of all amounts in respect of the cost of the property that were allowed under paragraph 11(1)(a) of the Act as it read in computing the income from the partnership of the members thereof for taxation years ending before 1972,

(f) an amount in respect of any property that was, at the beginning of that fiscal period, partnership property that was depreciable property, equal to

(i) where the property was disposed of before 1972, the proceeds of disposition thereof minus the amount, if any, by which the lesser of

(A) the proceeds of disposition thereof, and

(B) the capital cost of the property,

exceeds

(C) in respect of depreciable property of a prescribed class, the undepreciated capital cost of all of the property of that class at the time of the disposition, or

(D) in respect of any other depreciable property, the amount that would be determined under paragraph (e) if the words "at the beginning of that fiscal period" were read as "at the time of the disposition",

(ii) where the property was disposed of after 1971 and before the particular time, the amount, if any, by which the lesser of

(A) the proceeds of disposition thereof, and

(B) the fair market value of the property on valuation day, exceeds the capital cost to the partnership of the property, and

(iii) in any other case, the amount, if any, by which

(A) the lesser of the fair market value of the property on valuation day and its fair market value at the particular time

exceeds

(B) the capital cost to the partnership of the property, or

(g) an amount in respect of any business carried on by the partnership in its 1971 fiscal period and thereafter without interruption until the particular time, equal to the amount, if any, by which

(i) 2 times the eligible capital amounts (within the meaning assigned by section 14 of the amended Act) in respect of the business (computed without reference to section 21 of this Act) that would have become payable to the partnership would exceed

(ii) the amount that would be deemed by subsection 21(1) to be the amount that had become payable to the partnership

if the partnership had disposed of the business at the particular time for an amount equal to its fair market value at that time, exceeds the total of all amounts each of which is the amount of any debt owing by the partnership, or any other obligation of the partnership to pay an amount, that was outstanding at the beginning of the partnership's first fiscal period ending after 1971, minus such part, if any, thereof as would, if the amount had been paid by the partnership in that fiscal period, have been deductible in computing its income for that fiscal period.

(13) Meaning of "actual cost" — For the purposes of this section, the "actual cost" to a person of any property means, except as expressly otherwise provided in this section, the amount, if any, by which

(a) its cost to the person computed without regard to the provisions of this section

exceeds

(b) such part of that cost as was deductible in computing the person's income for any taxation year ending before 1972.

Interpretation Bulletins: IT-93: Capital property owned on December 31, 1971 — meaning of actual cost and amortized cost (archived).

(14) Idem — For the purposes of this section, the "actual cost" to a taxpayer, as of any particular time after 1971, of an interest in a partnership of which the taxpayer was a member on December 31, 1971 and thereafter without interruption until the particular time means the amount, if any, by which the total of

(a) the cost to the taxpayer of the interest, computed as of the particular time without regard to the provisions of this section,

(b) the total of all amounts each of which is an amount in respect of a fiscal period of the partnership that ended before 1972, equal to the total of

(i) the amount that the taxpayer's income from the partnership for the taxation year of the taxpayer in which the period ended would have been, if the former Act had been read without reference to subsection 83(5) of that Act, and

(ii) the taxpayer's share, determined at the end of the period, of all profits made from dispositions in the period of capital assets that were partnership property of the partnership, to the extent that those profits were not included in computing the income or loss, as the case may be, from the partnership, of any member thereof,

(c) where the taxpayer had, before 1972, made a contribution of capital to the partnership otherwise than by way of loan, such part of the contribution as cannot reasonably be regarded as a gift made to, or for the benefit of, any other member of the partnership who was related to the taxpayer, and

(d) where, by means of the partnership, the taxpayer carried on before 1972 a business that was a profession, the amount that the taxpayer's 1971 receivables (within the meaning assigned by subsection 23(5)) in respect of the business would have been if, before 1972, the taxpayer had carried on no businesses except by means of the partnership,

exceeds the total of

(e) all amounts each of which is an amount in respect of the disposition by the taxpayer before the particular time of a part of the taxpayer's interest in the partnership, equal to such portion of,

(i) where the disposition was made before 1972, the actual cost to the taxpayer of the interest, and

(ii) in any other case, the adjusted cost base to the taxpayer of the interest immediately before the disposition, as can reasonably be regarded as attributable to the part so disposed of,

(f) all amounts each of which is an amount in respect of a fiscal period of the partnership that ended before 1972, equal to the total of

(i) the amount that would have been the taxpayer's loss from the partnership for the taxation year of the taxpayer in which the period ended if the former Act had been read without reference to subsection 83(5) of that Act,

(ii) the taxpayers' share, determined at the end of the period, of all losses sustained from dispositions in the period of capital assets that were partnership property of the partnership, to the extent that those losses were not included in computing the loss or income, as the case may be, from the partnership, of any member thereof, and

(iii) the taxpayer's share, determined at the end of the period, of such of the drilling and exploration expenses, including all general geological and geophysical expenses incurred by the partnership while the taxpayer was a member thereof, on or in respect of exploring or drilling for petroleum or natural gas in Canada as were incurred in the period and after 1948, to the extent that those expenses were not deducted in computing the taxpayer's income from the partnership for the taxpayer's 1971 or any preceding taxation year, and

(g) all amounts received by the taxpayer before 1972 as, on account of, in lieu of payment of or in satisfaction of, a distribution of the taxpayer's share of the partnership profits or partnership capital.

(15) Idem — For the purposes of this section and subsection 88(2.1) of the amended Act, the "actual cost" to a taxpayer, as of any particular time after 1971, of any shares (in this subsection referred to as "new shares") of any class of the capital stock of a new corporation formed as a result of an amalgamation of two or more corporations (within the meaning of section 85I of the former Act as it read in its application to the 1971 taxation year) that were

(a) owned by the taxpayer on December 31, 1971, and thereafter without interruption until the particular time, and

(b) acquired by the taxpayer by the conversion, because of the amalgamation, of shares of the capital stock of a predecessor corporation into shares of the capital stock of the new corporation, means that proportion of the actual cost to the taxpayer of any shares owned by the taxpayer that were so converted because of the amalgamation that the fair market value, immediately after the amalgamation, of the new shares of that class so acquired by the taxpayer is of the fair market value, immediately after the amalgamation, of all of the shares of the capital stock of the new corporation so acquired by the taxpayer.

(16) Idem — For the purposes of this section, the "actual cost" to an individual, as of any particular time after 1971, of any share of the capital stock of a corporation that was

(a) owned by the individual on December 31, 1971 and thereafter without interruption until the particular time, and

(b) acquired by the individual in a taxation year before 1972 under an agreement referred to in subsection 85A(1) of the former Act as it read in its application to that taxation year, means an amount equal to the greater of

(c) the actual cost to the individual of the share computed without regard to this subsection, and

(d) the fair market value of the share at the time the individual so acquired it.

(17) Idem — For the purposes of this section and subsection 88(2.1) of the amended Act, the "actual cost" to a taxpayer, as of any particular time after 1971, of any capital property received by the taxpayer before 1972 and owned by the taxpayer thereafter without interruption until the particular time means,

(a) where the property was so received as, on account of, in lieu of payment of or in satisfaction of, a dividend payable in kind (other than a stock dividend) in respect of a share owned by the taxpayer of the capital stock of a corporation, the fair market value of that property at the time the property was so received;

(b) where the property so received was a share of the capital stock of a corporation received by the taxpayer as a stock dividend, the amount that, because of the receipt of the share, was deemed by subsection 81(3) of the former Act to have been received by the taxpayer as a dividend; and

(c) where the property was so received from a pension fund or plan, an employees profit sharing plan, a retirement savings plan, a deferred profit sharing plan or a supplementary unemployment benefit plan, the fair market value of that property at the time the property was so received.

(17.1) Application — Where a taxpayer is deemed to have acquired a property because of subsection 138(11.3) of the amended Act, this section does not apply in respect of any subsequent disposition or deemed disposition of the property.

Interpretation Bulletins: IT-88R2: Stock dividends.

(18) Transfer of farm land by a farmer to [the farmer's] child at death — Where

(a) a taxpayer owned, on December 31, 1971 and thereafter without interruption until the taxpayer's death, any land referred to in subsection 70(9) of the amended Act,

(b) the land has, on or after the death of the taxpayer and as a consequence thereof, been transferred or distributed to a child of the taxpayer who was resident in Canada immediately before the death of the taxpayer, and

(c) it can be shown, within the period ending 36 months after the death of the taxpayer or, where written application therefor has been made to the Minister by the legal representative of the taxpayer within that period, within such longer period as the Minister considers reasonable in the circumstances, that the land has become vested indefeasibly in the child,

the following rules apply:

(d) paragraph 70(9)(b) of the amended Act does not apply for the purpose of determining the cost to the child of the land or part thereof, as the case may be, and

(e) subsection (5) applies in respect of the transfer or distribution of the land to the child as if the references in that subsection to "June 18, 1971" were references to "December 31, 1971".

Related Provisions: ITAR 26(20) — Extended meaning of "child".

Interpretation Bulletins: IT-349R3: Intergenerational transfers of farm property on death; IT-449R: Meaning of "vested indefeasibly" (archived).

(19) Inter vivos transfer of farm land by a farmer to child — Where a taxpayer owned, on December 31, 1971, and thereafter without interruption until a transfer thereof by the taxpayer to the taxpayer's child, in circumstances to which subsection 73(3) of the amended Act applies, land referred to in that subsection,

(a) paragraph 73(3)(d) of the amended Act does not apply for the purpose of determining the cost to the child of the land; and

(b) subsection (5) shall apply in respect of the transfer of the land to the child as if the references in that subsection to "June 18, 1971" were references to "December 31, 1971".

Related Provisions: ITAR 26(20) — Extended meaning of "child".

Interpretation Bulletins: IT-268R4: Inter vivos transfer of farm property to child.

(20) Extended meaning of "child" — For the purposes of subsections (18) and (19), "child" of a taxpayer includes

(a) a child of the taxpayer's child;

(b) a child of the taxpayer's child's child; and

(c) a person who, at any time before attaining the age of 21 years, was wholly dependent on the taxpayer for support and of whom the taxpayer had, at that time, in law or in fact, the custody and control.

Related Provisions: ITA 70(10) — Extended meaning of "child".

(21) Shares received on amalgamation — Where, after May 6, 1974, there has been an amalgamation (within the meaning assigned by section 87 of the amended Act) of two or more corporations (each of which is in this subsection referred to as a "predecessor corporation") to form one corporate entity (in this subsection referred to as the "new corporation"), and

(a) any shareholder (except any predecessor corporation) owned shares of the capital stock of a predecessor corporation on December 31, 1971 and thereafter without interruption until immediately before the amalgamation,

(b) any shares referred to in paragraph (a) were shares of one class of the capital stock of a predecessor corporation (in this subsection referred to as the "old shares"),

(c) no consideration was received by the shareholder for the disposition of the old shares on the amalgamation other than shares of one class of the capital stock of the new corporation (in this subsection referred to as the "new shares"), and

(c.1) the cost of the new shares received by the shareholder because of the amalgamation was determined otherwise than because of paragraph 87(4)(e) of the amended Act, notwithstanding any other provision of this Act or of the amended Act, for the purposes of subsection 88(2.1) of the amended Act and of determining the cost to the taxpayer and the adjusted cost base to the taxpayer of the new shares,

(d) the property that was the old shares shall be deemed not to have been disposed of by the shareholder because of the amalgamation but to have been altered, in form only, because of the amalgamation and to have continued in existence in the form of the new shares, and

(e) the property that is the new shares shall be deemed not to have been acquired by the shareholder because of the amalgamation but to have been in existence prior thereto in the form of the old shares that were altered, in form only, because of the amalgamation.

Related Provisions: ITAR 26(30) — Disposition by non-resident of taxable Canadian property.

(22) Options received on amalgamations — Where, after May 6, 1974, there has been an amalgamation (within the meaning assigned by section 87 of the amended Act) of two or more corporations (each of which is in this subsection referred to as a "predecessor corporation") to form one corporate entity (in this subsection referred to as the "new corporation") and a taxpayer has acquired an option to acquire capital property that was shares of the capital stock of the new corporation (in this subsection referred to as the "new option") as sole consideration for the disposition on the amalgamation of an option to acquire shares of the capital stock of a predecessor corporation (in this subsection referred to as the "old option") owned by the taxpayer on December 31, 1971 and thereafter without interruption until immediately before the amalgamation, notwithstanding any other provision of this Act or of the amended Act, for the purposes of subsection 88(2.1) of the amended Act and of determining the cost to the taxpayer and the adjusted cost base to the taxpayer of the new option,

(a) the property that was the old option shall be deemed not to have been disposed of by the taxpayer because of the amalgamation but to have been altered, in form only, because of the amalgamation and to have continued in existence in the form of the new option; and

(b) the property that is the new option shall be deemed not to have been acquired by the taxpayer because of the amalgamation but to have been in existence prior thereto in the form of the old option that was altered, in form only, because of the amalgamation.

(23) Obligations received on amalgamations — Where, after May 6, 1974, there has been an amalgamation (within the meaning assigned by section 87 of the amended Act) of two or more corporations (each of which is in this subsection referred to as a "predecessor corporation") to form one corporate entity (in this subsection referred to as the "new corporation") and a taxpayer has acquired a capital property that was a bond, debenture, note, mortgage, hypothecary claim or other similar obligation of the new corporation (in this subsection referred to as the "new obligation") as sole consideration for the disposition on the amalgamation of a bond, debenture, note, mortgage, hypothecary claim or other similar obligation respectively of a predecessor corporation (in this subsection referred to as the "old obligation") owned by the taxpayer on December 31, 1971 and thereafter without interruption until immediately before the amalgamation, notwithstanding any other provision of this Act or of the amended Act, for the purposes of subsection 88(2.1) of the amended Act and of determining the cost to the taxpayer and the adjusted cost base to the taxpayer of the new obligation,

(a) the property that was the old obligation shall be deemed not to have been disposed of by the taxpayer because of the amalgamation but to have been altered, in form only, because of the amalgamation and to have continued in existence in the form of the new obligation; and

(b) the property that is the new obligation shall be deemed not to have been acquired by the taxpayer because of the amalgamation but to have been in existence prior thereto in the form of the old obligation that was altered, in form only, because of the amalgamation.

History: The opening words of subsec. 26(23) amended by 2001, c. 17, subsec. 232(2), to add "hypothecary claim" (in two places), in force June 14, 2001. The opening words formerly read:

(24) Convertible properties — Where there has been an exchange to which subsection 51(1) of the amended Act applies on which a taxpayer has acquired shares of one class of the capital stock of a corporation (in this subsection referred to as the "new shares") in exchange for a share, bond, debenture or note of the corporation (in this subsection referred to as the "old property") owned by the taxpayer on December 31, 1971 and thereafter without interruption until immediately before the time of the exchange, notwithstanding any other provision of this Act or of the amended Act, for the purposes of subsection 88(2.1) of the amended Act and, where the exchange occurred after May 6, 1974, for the purposes of determining the cost to the taxpayer and the adjusted cost base to the taxpayer of the new shares,

(a) the property that was the old property shall be deemed not to have been disposed of by the taxpayer because of the exchange but to have been altered, in form only, because of the exchange and to have continued in existence in the form of the new shares; and

(b) the property that is the new shares shall be deemed not to have been acquired by the taxpayer because of the exchange but to have been in existence prior thereto in the form of the old property that was altered, in form only, because of the exchange.

Interpretation Bulletins: IT-146R3: Shares entitling shareholders to choose taxable or other kinds of dividends.

(25) Bond conversion — Where, after May 6, 1974, there has been an exchange to which section 51.1 of the amended Act applies on which a taxpayer has acquired a bond of a debtor (in this subsection referred to as the "new bond") in exchange for another bond of the same debtor (in this subsection referred to as the "old bond") owned by the taxpayer on December 31, 1971 and thereafter without interruption until immediately before the exchange, notwithstanding any other provision of this Act or of the amended Act, for the purposes of subsection 88(2.1) of the amended Act and of determining the cost to the taxpayer and the adjusted cost base to the taxpayer of the new bond,

(a) the property that was the old bond shall be deemed not to have been disposed of by the taxpayer because of the exchange but to have been altered, in form only, because of the exchange and to have continued in existence in the form of the new bond; and

(b) the property that is the new bond shall be deemed not to have been acquired by the taxpayer because of the exchange but to have been in existence prior thereto in the form of the old bond that was altered, in form only, because of the exchange.

(26) Share for share exchange — Where, after May 6, 1974, there has been an exchange to which subsection 85.1(1) of the amended Act applies on which a taxpayer has acquired shares of any particular class of the capital stock of a corporation (in this subsection referred to as the "new shares") in exchange for shares of any particular class of the capital stock of another corporation (in this subsection referred to as the "old shares") owned by the taxpayer on December 31, 1971 and thereafter without interruption until immediately before the exchange, notwithstanding any other provision of this Act or of the amended Act, for the purposes of subsection 88(2.1) of the amended Act and of determining the cost to the taxpayer and the adjusted cost base to the taxpayer of the new shares,

(a) the property that was the old shares shall be deemed not to have been disposed of by the taxpayer because of the exchange but to have been altered, in form only, because of the exchange and to have continued in existence in the form of the new shares; and

(b) the property that is the new shares shall be deemed not to have been acquired by the taxpayer because of the exchange but to have been in existence prior thereto in the form of the old shares that were altered, in form only, because of the exchange.

Interpretation Bulletins: IT-450R: Share for share exchange.

(27) Reorganization of capital — Where, after May 6, 1974, there has been a reorganization of the capital of a corporation to which section 86 of the amended Act applies on which a taxpayer has acquired shares of a particular class of the capital stock of the corporation (in this subsection referred to as the "new shares") as the sole consideration for the disposition on the reorganization of shares of another class of the capital stock of the corporation (in this subsection referred to as the "old shares") owned by the taxpayer on December 31, 1971 and thereafter without interruption until immediately before the reorganization and the cost to the taxpayer of the new shares was determined otherwise than because of subsection 86(2) of the amended Act, notwithstanding any other provision of this Act or of the amended Act, for the purposes of subsection 88(2.1) of the amended Act and of determining the cost to the taxpayer and the adjusted cost base to the taxpayer of the new shares,

(a) the property that was the old shares shall be deemed not to have been disposed of by the taxpayer because of the reorganization but to have been altered, in form only, because of the reorganization and to have continued in existence in the form of the new shares; and

(b) the property that is the new shares shall be deemed not to have been acquired by the taxpayer by virtue of the reorganization but to have been in existence prior thereto in the form of the old shares that were altered, in form only, because of the reorganization.

Advance Tax Rulings: ATR-22R: Estate freeze using share exchange.

(28) Idem — Where a taxpayer acquired a property (in this subsection referred to as the "first property") in circumstances to which any of subsections (5) and (21) to (27) applied and subsequently acquires, in exchange for or in consideration for the disposition of the first property, another property in circumstances to which any of subsections (21) to (27) would apply if the taxpayer had owned the first property on December 31, 1971 and thereafter without interruption until the time of the subsequent acquisition, for the purposes of applying subsections (21) to (27) in respect of that subsequent acquisition, the taxpayer shall be deemed to have owned the first property on December 31, 1971 and thereafter without interruption until the time of the subsequent acquisition.

History: Subsec. 26(28) added by 1994, c. 7, Sch. II (1991, c. 49), s. 200, applicable to acquisitions of property occurring after July 13, 1990, except that, where the taxpayer so elected by notifying the Minister of National Revenue in writing either before 1993 or in the taxpayer's return of income under Part I of the Act for the taxation year in which the taxpayer disposed of the property, the subsec. applies to acquisitions occurring after May 6, 1974 and before July 14, 1990 with respect to property that was owned by the taxpayer on July 13, 1990.

Interpretation Bulletins: IT-450R: Share for share exchange.

(29) Effect of election under subsection 110.6(19) — Where subsection 110.6(19) of the amended Act applies to a particular property, for the purposes of determining the cost and the adjusted cost base to a taxpayer of any property at any time after February 22, 1994, the particular property shall be deemed not to have been owned by any taxpayer on December 31, 1971.

Related Provisions: ITAR 26(30) — Disposition by non-resident of taxable Canadian property.

27, 28. [Repealed under former Act]

29. (1) Deduction from income of petroleum or natural gas corporation — A corporation whose principal business is production, refining or marketing of petroleum, petroleum products or natural gas or exploring or drilling for petroleum or natural gas may deduct, in computing its income for a taxation year, the lesser of

(a) the total of such of the drilling and exploration expenses, including all general geological and geophysical expenses, incurred by it on or in respect of exploring or drilling for petroleum or natural gas in Canada as were incurred during the calendar years 1949 to 1952, to the extent that they were not deductible in computing income for a previous taxation year, and

(b) of that total, an amount equal to its income for the taxation year if no deduction were allowed under this section or section 65, 66 or 66.1 of the amended Act minus the deductions allowed for the year under subsections (9), (10) and (25) of this section and sections 112 and 113 of the amended Act.

Related Provisions: ITA 87(1.2) — New corporation deemed continuation of predecessor; ITAR 29(31) — Multiple deductions.

History: Para. 29(1)(b) substituted by 1994, c. 7, Sch. II (1991, c. 49), subsec. 201(1), applicable to taxation years ending after February 17, 1987. That para. formerly read:

(b) of that total, an amount that would be equal to its income for the taxation year if no deduction were allowed under this section or section 65, 66 or 66.1 of the amended Act, minus the deductions allowed for the year under subsections (9), (10) and (25) of this section, sections 112 and 113 of the amended Act and subsections 66(6) and (7) and 66.1(4) and (5) of the Income tax Act, chapter 148 of the Revised Statutes of Canada, 1952.

(2) Deduction from income of mining corporation — A corporation whose principal business is mining or exploring for minerals may deduct, in computing its income for a taxation year, the lesser of

(a) the total of such of the prospecting, exploration and development expenses incurred by it in searching for minerals in Canada as were incurred during 1952, to the extent that they were not deductible in computing income for a preceding taxation year, and

(b) of that total, an amount equal to its income for the taxation year if no deduction were allowed under this section or section 65, 66 or 66.1 of the amended Act minus the deductions allowed for the year under subsections (9), (10) and (25) of this section and sections 112 and 113 of the amended Act, if the corporation has filed certified statements of those expenses and has satisfied the Minister that it has been actively engaged in prospecting and exploring for minerals in Canada by means of qualified persons and has incurred the expenses for those purposes.

History: Para. 29(2)(b) substituted by 1994, c. 7, Sch. II (1991, c. 49), subsec. 201(2), applicable to taxation years ending after February 17, 1987. That para. formerly read:

(b) of that total, an amount that would be equal to its income for the taxation year if no deduction were allowed under this section or section 65, 66 or 66.1 of the amended Act, minus the deductions allowed for the year under subsections (9), (10) and (25) of this section, sections 112 and 113 of the amended Act and subsections 66(6) and (7) and 66.1(4) and (5) of the Income Tax Act, chapter 148 of the Revised Statutes of Canada, 1952,

(3) Deduction from income of petroleum or natural gas corporation or mining corporation — A corporation whose principal business is

(a) production, refining or marketing of petroleum, petroleum products or natural gas, or exploring or drilling for petroleum or natural gas, or

(b) mining or exploring for minerals,

may deduct, in computing its income for a taxation year, the lesser of

(c) the total of such of

(i) the drilling and exploration expenses, including all general geological and geophysical expenses, incurred by it on or in respect of exploring or drilling for petroleum or natural gas in Canada, and

(ii) the prospecting, exploration and development expenses incurred by it in searching for minerals in Canada, as were incurred after 1952 and before April 11, 1962, to the extent that they were not deductible in computing income for a previous taxation year, and

(d) of that total, an amount equal to its income for the taxation year if no deduction were allowed under this section or section 65, 66 or 66.1 of the amended Act minus the deductions allowed for the year under subsections (1), (2), (9), (10) and (25) of this section and sections 112 and 113 of the amended Act.

Related Provisions: ITAR 29(31) — Multiple deductions.

History: Para. 29(3)(d) substituted by 1994, c. 7, Sch. II (1991, c. 49), subsec. 201(3), applicable to taxation years ending after February 17, 1987. That para. formerly read:

(d) of that total, an amount that would be equal to its income for the taxation year if no deduction were allowed under this section or section 65, 66 or 66.1 of the amended Act, minus the deductions allowed for the year under subsections (1), (2), (9), (10) and (25) of this section, sections 112 and 113 of the amended Act and subsections 66(6) and (7) and 66.1(4) and (5) of the Income Tax Act, chapter 148 of the Revised Statutes of Canada, 1952.

(4) Deduction from income of petroleum corporation, etc. — A corporation whose principal business is

(a) production, refining or marketing of petroleum, petroleum products or natural gas, or exploring or drilling for petroleum or natural gas,

(b) mining or exploring for minerals,

(c) processing mineral ores for the purpose of recovering metals therefrom,

(d) a combination of

(i) processing mineral ores for the purpose of recovering metals therefrom, and

(ii) processing metals recovered from the ores so processed,

(e) fabricating metals, or

(f) operating a pipeline for the transmission of oil or natural gas, may deduct, in computing its income for a taxation year, the lesser of

(g) the total of such of

(i) the drilling and exploration expenses, including all general geological and geophysical expenses, incurred by it on or in respect of exploring or drilling for petroleum or natural gas in Canada, and

(ii) the prospecting, exploration and development expenses incurred by it on searching for minerals in Canada,

as were incurred after April 10, 1962 and before 1972, to the extent that they were not deductible in computing income for a previous taxation year, and

(h) of that total, an amount equal to its income for the taxation year if no deduction were allowed under this subsection or section 65, 66 or 66.1 of the amended Act minus the deductions allowed for the year under subsection 66(2) and sections 112 and 113 of the amended Act.

Related Provisions: ITAR 29(31) — Multiple deductions.

History: Para. 29(4)(h) substituted by 1994, c. 7, Sch. II (1991, c. 49), subsec. 201(4), applicable to taxation years ending after February 17, 1987. That para. formerly read:

(h) of that total, an amount that would be equal to its income for the taxation year if no deduction were allowed under this subsection or section 65, 66 or 66.1 of the amended Act, minus the deductions allowed for the year under subsection 66(2) and sections 112 and 113 of the amended Act and subsections 66(6) and (7) and 66.1(4) and (5) of the Income Tax Act, Revised Statutes of Canada, 1952.

(5) Application of para. (4)(g) — In applying paragraph 4(g) to a corporation described in paragraph (4)(f), the reference in paragraph (4)(g) to "April 10, 1962" shall be read as a reference to "June 13, 1963".

(6), (7), (8) [Repealed]

History: Subsecs. 29(6) to (8) repealed by 1997, c. 25, s. 73, applicable to renunciations made

(a) after 2006, in respect of a payment or loan received by a joint exploration corporation before March 6, 1996;

(b) after 2006, in respect of a payment or loan received by a joint exploration corporation after March 5, 1996 under an agreement in writing made

(i) by the corporation before March 6, 1996, or

(ii) by another corporation before March 6, 1996, where

(A) the other corporation controlled the corporation at the time the agreement was made, or

(B) the other corporation undertook, at the time the agreement was made, to form the corporation; and

(c) after March 5, 1996, in any other case.

Subsecs. (6) to (8) formerly read:

(6) Joint exploration corporation may renounce expenses — A joint exploration corporation may, in any particular taxation year or within 6 months after the end of that year, elect in prescribed form to renounce in favour of another corporation described in subsection (4) an agreed portion of the total of such of

(a) the drilling and exploration expenses, including all general geological and geophysical expenses, incurred by the joint exploration corporation on or in respect of exploring or drilling for petroleum or natural gas in Canada, and

(b) the prospecting, exploration and development expenses incurred by the joint exploration corporation in searching for minerals in Canada, as were incurred by the joint exploration corporation during a period after 1956 and before April 11, 1962 throughout which the other corporation was a shareholder corporation, to the extent that the total of those expenses exceeds any amount deductible under subsection (3) in respect thereof by the joint exploration corporation in computing its income for any taxation year preceding the particular year, and on the election the agreed portion

(c) shall be deemed, for the purposes of subsection (4) of this section and sections 66, 66.1 and 66.2 of the amended Act, to be expenses described in paragraphs (a) and (b) of this subsection incurred by the other corporation during its taxation year in which the particular taxation year ends, and

(d) shall be subtracted from the total described in paragraph (3)(c) in determining the amount deductible by the joint exploration corporation under subsection (3) in computing its income.

(7) Idem — A joint exploration corporation may, in any particular taxation year or within 6 months from the end of that year, elect in prescribed form to renounce in favour of another corporation described in subsection (4) an agreed portion of the total of such of

(a) the drilling and exploration expenses, including all general geological and geophysical expenses, incurred by the joint exploration corporation on or in respect of exploring or drilling for petroleum or natural gas in Canada, and

(b) the prospecting, exploration and development expenses incurred by the joint exploration corporation in searching for minerals in Canada, as were incurred by the joint exploration corporation during a period after April 10, 1962 and before 1972 throughout which the other corporation was a shareholder corporation, to the extent that the total of those expenses exceeds any amount deductible under subsection (4) in respect thereof by the joint exploration corporation in computing its income for any taxation year preceding the particular year, and on the election the agreed portion

(c) shall be deemed, for the purposes of subsection (4) of this section and sections 66, 66.1 and 66.2 of the amended Act, to be expenses described in paragraphs (a) and (b) of this subsection incurred by the other corporation during its taxation year in which the particular taxation year ends, and

(d) shall be subtracted from the total described in paragraph (4)(g) in determining the amount deductible by the joint exploration corporation under subsection (4) in computing its income.

(8) Definitions — For the purposes of subsections (6) and (7),

"agreed portion" in respect of a corporation that was a shareholder corporation of a joint exploration corporation means such amount as is agreed on between the joint exploration corporation and the other corporation not exceeding

(a) the payments referred to in paragraph (c) of the definition "shareholder corporation" in this subsection made by the other corporation to the joint exploration corporation during the period it was a shareholder corporation in respect of the expenses incurred by the joint exploration corporation referred to in paragraphs (6)(a) and (b) or (7)(a) and (b), as the case may be,

minus

(b) the total of the amounts, if any, previously renounced by the joint exploration corporation under subsection (6) or (7), as the case may be, in favour of the other corporation;

"joint exploration corporation" means a corporation

(a) whose principal business is of a class described in paragraph (3)(a) or (b), and

(b) that has not at any time since its incorporation had more than 10 shareholders (not including any individual holding a share for the sole purpose of qualifying as a director);

a "shareholder corporation" of a joint exploration corporation means a corporation that for the period in respect of which the expression is being applied

(a) was a shareholder of the joint exploration corporation,

(b) was a corporation whose principal business was of a class described in subsection (4), and

(c) made payments to the joint exploration corporation in respect of the expenses incurred by the joint exploration corporation referred to in paragraphs (6)(a) and (b) or (7)(a) and (b), as the case may be.

(9) Deduction from income from businesses of associations, etc. — There may be deducted in computing the income of a taxpayer for a taxation year from the businesses of all associations, partnerships or syndicates formed for the purpose of exploring or drilling for petroleum or natural gas and of which the taxpayer was a member or partner, the lesser of

(a) the total of the taxpayer's share of such of the drilling and exploration expenses, including all general geological and geophysical expenses, incurred by all those associations, partnerships or syndicates while the taxpayer was a member or partner thereof, on or in respect of exploring or drilling for petroleum or natural gas in Canada as were incurred after 1948 and before April 11, 1962, to the extent that they were not deductible in computing the taxpayer's income for a preceding taxation year, and

(b) of that total, an amount equal to the taxpayer's income from the businesses of all those associations, partnerships or syndicates for the taxation year, computed before making any deduction under this section or section 65, 66, or 66.1 of the amended Act.

(10) Idem — There may be deducted in computing the income of a taxpayer for the taxation year from the businesses of all associations, partnerships or syndicates formed for the purpose of exploring or drilling for petroleum or natural gas and of which the taxpayer was a member or partner, the lesser of

(a) the total of the taxpayer's share of such of the drilling and exploration expenses, including all general geological and geophysical expenses incurred by all those associations, partnerships or syndicates while the taxpayer was a member or partner thereof, on or in respect of exploring or drilling for petroleum or natural gas in Canada as were incurred after April 10, 1962 and before 1972, to the extent that they were not deductible in computing the taxpayer's income for a previous taxation year, and

(b) of that total, an amount equal to the taxpayer's income from the businesses of all those associations, partnerships or syndicates for the taxation year computed before making any deduction under this section or section 65, 66, or 66.1 of the amended Act, minus the deduction allowed for the year under subsection (9) of this section.

Related Provisions: 127.52(1)(e) — Limitation on deduction for minimum tax purposes.

(11) Deduction from income of corporation — A corporation, other than a corporation described in subsection (4), may deduct, in computing its income for a taxation year, the lesser of

(a) the total of such of

(i) the drilling and exploration expenses, including all general geological and geophysical expenses, incurred by it on or in respect of exploring or drilling for petroleum or natural gas in Canada, and

(ii) the prospecting, exploration and development expenses incurred by it in searching for minerals in Canada,

as were incurred after April 10, 1962 and before 1972, to the extent that they were not deductible in computing income for a preceding taxation year, and

(b) of that total, an amount that would be equal to the total of

(i) its income for the taxation year from operating an oil or gas well in Canada in which the corporation has an interest,

(ii) its income for the taxation year from royalties in respect of an oil or gas well in Canada,

(iii) any amount included in computing its income for the taxation year because of subsection (17), and

(iv) the amount, if any, included under paragraph 59(3.2)(b) or (c) of the amended Act in computing its income for the year,

if no deduction were allowed under this section or section 65, 66 or 66.1 of the amended Act minus the deductions allowed for the year under subsections (9) and (10) of this section and subsection 66(2) of the amended Act.

History: Subpara. 29(11)(b)(iv) substituted applicable to 1985 et seq., and that portion of 29(11)(b) following subpara. (iv) substituted applicable to taxation years ending after February 17, 1987, by 1994, c. 7, Sch. II (1991, c. 49), subsecs. 201(5), (6). Those portions formerly read:

(iv) the total described in clause 66(3)(b)(ii)(C) of the Income Tax Act, chapter 148 of the Revised Statutes of Canada, 1952, as it read in its application to the 1984 and preceding taxation years in respect of the corporation for the year, if no deduction were allowed under this section, section 65, 66 or 66.1 of the amended Act, minus the deductions allowed for the year under subsections (9) and (10) of this section, subsection 66(2) of the amended Act and subsections 66(6) and (7) and 66.1(4) and (5) of the Income Tax Act, chapter 148 of the Revised Statutes of Canada, 1952.

(12) Deduction by individual of exploration expenses — There may be deducted, in computing an individual's income for a taxation year, the lesser of

(a) the total of such of

(i) the drilling and exploration expenses, including all general geological and geophysical expenses, incurred by the individual on or in respect of exploring or drilling for petroleum or natural gas in Canada, and

(ii) the individual's share of the drilling and exploration expenses, including all general geological and geophysical expenses incurred by all associations, partnerships or syndicates described in subsection (9), while the individual was a member or partner thereof, on or in respect of exploring or drilling for petroleum or natural gas in Canada,

as were incurred after April 10, 1962 and before 1972, to the extent that they were not deductible in computing the individual's income for a preceding taxation year, and

(b) of that total, an amount that would be equal to the total of

(i) the individual's income for the taxation year from a business that consisted of the operation of an oil or gas well in Canada in which the individual had an interest,

(ii) the individual's income for the taxation year from royalties in respect of an oil or gas well in Canada,

(iii) any amount included in computing the individual's income for the taxation year because of subsection (17), and

(iv) the amount, if any, included under paragraph 59(3.2)(b) or (c) of the amended Act in computing the individual's income for the year, if no deduction were allowed under this section or section 65, 66 or 66.1 of the amended Act, minus the deductions allowed for the year under subsections (9) and (10) of this section.

Related Provisions: 127.52(1)(e) — Limitation on deduction for minimum tax purposes.

History: Subpara. 29(12)(b)(iv) substituted by 1994, c. 7, Sch. II (1991, c. 49), subsec. 201(7), applicable to 1985 et seq. That subpara. formerly read:

(iv) the total described in clause 66(3)(b)(ii)(C) of the Income Tax Act, chapter 148 of the Revised Statutes of Canada, 1952, as it read in its application to the 1984 and preceding taxation years in respect of an individual for the year,

(13) Limitation re payments for exploration and drilling rights — In computing a deduction under subsection (1), (3) or (9), no amount shall be included in respect of a payment for or in respect of a right, licence or privilege to explore for, drill for or take petroleum or natural gas, acquired before April 11, 1962, other than an annual payment not exceeding $1 per acre.

(14) Exploration and drilling rights; payments deductible — Where an association, partnership or syndicate described in subsection (9) or a corporation or individual has, after April 10, 1962 and before 1972, acquired under an agreement or other contract or arrangement a right, licence or privilege to explore for, drill for or take in Canada petroleum, natural gas or other related hydrocarbons (except coal) under which agreement, contract or arrangement there was not acquired any other right to, over or in respect of the land in respect of which such right, licence or privilege was so acquired except the right

(a) to explore for, drill for or take materials and substances (whether liquid or solid and whether hydrocarbons or not) produced in association with the petroleum, natural gas or other related hydrocarbons (except coal) or found in any water contained in an oil or gas reservoir, or

(b) to enter on, use and occupy as much of the land as is necessary for the purpose of exploiting the right, licence or privilege, an amount paid in respect of the acquisition thereof that was paid

(c) before 1972, shall, for the purposes of subsections (4), (7), (10), (11) and (12), be deemed to be a drilling or exploration expense on or in respect of exploring or drilling for petroleum or natural gas in Canada incurred at the time of its payment,

(d) after 1971 and before May 7, 1974, shall, for the purposes of the amended Act, be deemed to be Canadian exploration and development expenses (within the meaning assigned by subsection 66(15) of the amended Act) incurred at the time of its payment, and

(e) after May 6, 1974, shall, for the purposes of the amended Act, be deemed to be a Canadian development expense (within the meaning assigned by paragraph 66.2(5)(a) of the amended Act) incurred at the time of its payment.

(15) Idem — In applying subsection (14) for the purposes of subsection (7), the expression "after April 10, 1962 and before 1972" in subsection (14) shall be read as "after April 10, 1962 and before April 27, 1965".

(16) Receipts for exploration or drilling rights included in income — Where a right, licence or privilege to explore for, drill for or take in Canada petroleum, natural gas or other related hydrocarbons (except coal) was disposed of after April 10, 1962 and before October 23, 1968

(a) by a corporation described in subsection (4),

(b) by a corporation, other than a corporation described in subsection (4), that was at the time of acquisition of the right, licence or privilege a corporation described in subsection (4), or

(c) by an association, partnership or syndicate described in subsection (9), any amount received by the corporation, association, partnership or syndicate as consideration for the disposition thereof shall be included in computing its income for its fiscal period in which the amount was received, unless the corporation, association, partnership or syndicate

(d) acquired the right, licence or privilege by inheritance or bequest, or

(e) acquired the right, licence or privilege before April 11, 1962 and disposed of it before November 9, 1962.

(17) Idem — Where a right, licence or privilege to explore for, drill for or take in Canada petroleum, natural gas or other related hydrocarbons (except coal) that was acquired after April 10, 1962 and before 1972 by an individual or a corporation other than a corporation described in subsection (4), was subsequently disposed of before October 23, 1968, any amount received by the taxpayer as consideration for the disposition thereof shall be included in computing the taxpayer's income for the taxation year in which the amount was received, unless the right, licence or privilege was acquired by the taxpayer by inheritance or bequest.

(18) Idem — Subsections (16) and (17) do not apply to any disposition by an association, partnership or syndicate described in subsection (9) or a corporation or an individual of any right, licence or privilege described in subsection (14) or (16) unless the right, licence or privilege was acquired by the association, partnership, syndicate or corporation or individual, as the case may be, under an agreement, contract or arrangement described in subsection (14).

(19) Idem — For the purposes of subsections (16) and (17),

(a) where an association, partnership or syndicate described in subsection (9) or a corporation or an individual has disposed of any interest in land that includes a right, licence or privilege described in subsection (14) that was acquired under an agreement, contract or arrangement described in that subsection, the proceeds of disposition of the interest shall be deemed to be proceeds of disposition of the right, licence or privilege; and

(b) where an association, partnership or syndicate described in subsection (9) or a corporation or an individual has acquired a right, licence or privilege described in subsection (14) under an agreement, contract or arrangement described in that subsection and subsequently disposes of any interest

(i) in such right, licence or privilege, or

(ii) in the production of wells situated on the land to which the right, licence or privilege relates, the proceeds of disposition of the interest shall be deemed to be proceeds of disposition of the right, licence or privilege.

(20) Idem — Subsections (11), (12) and (17) do not apply in computing the income for a taxation year of a taxpayer whose business includes trading or dealing in rights, licences or privileges to explore for, drill for or take in Canada petroleum, natural gas or other related hydrocarbons (except coal).

(21) Bonus payments — Notwithstanding subsection (13), where a corporation whose principal business is of the class described in paragraph (3)(a) or (b) or an association, partnership or syndicate formed for the purpose of exploring or drilling for petroleum or natural gas has after 1952 paid an amount (other than a rental or royalty) to the government of Canada or a province for

(a) the right to explore for petroleum or natural gas on a specified parcel of land in Canada (which right is, for greater certainty, declared to include a right of the type commonly referred to as a "licence", "permit" or "reservation"), or

(b) a legal lease of the right to take or remove petroleum or natural gas from a specified parcel of land in Canada, and before April 11, 1962 acquired the rights in respect of which the amount was so paid and, before any well came into production on the land in reasonable commercial quantities, the corporation, association, partnership or syndicate surrendered all the rights so acquired (including, in respect of a right of the kind described in paragraph (a), all rights thereunder to any lease and all rights under any lease made thereunder) without receiving any consideration therefor or repayment of any part of the amount so paid, the amount so paid shall, for the purposes of subsections (3), (4), (7), (9) and (10) of this section, and for the purposes of subsections 66(1),(10) and (10.1) and the definitions "Canadian exploration and development expenses" in subsection 66(15) and "Canadian exploration expense" in subsection 66.1(6) of the amended Act, be deemed to have been a drilling or exploration expense on or in respect of exploring or drilling for petroleum or natural gas in Canada or a Canadian exploration expense described in paragraph (a) of the definition "Canadian exploration expense" in subsection 66.1(6) of the amended Act, as the case may be, incurred by the corporation, association, partnership or syndicate during the taxation year in which the rights were so surrendered.

(22) Idem — In applying the provisions of subsection (25) to determine the amount that may be deducted by a successor corporation in computing its income for a taxation year, where the predecessor corporation has paid an amount (other than a rental or royalty) to the government of Canada or a province for

(a) the right to explore for petroleum or natural gas on a specified parcel of land in Canada (which is, for greater certainty, declared to include a right of the type commonly referred to as a "licence", "permit" or "reservation"), or

(b) a legal lease of the right to take or remove petroleum or natural gas from a specified parcel of land in Canada,

if, before the predecessor corporation was entitled, by virtue of subsection (21), to any deduction in computing its income for a taxation year in respect of the amount so paid, the property of the predecessor corporation was acquired by the successor corporation before April 11, 1962 in the manner set out in subsection (25), and the successor corporation did, before any well came into production in reasonable commercial quantities on the land referred to in paragraph (a) or (b), surrender all the rights so acquired by the predecessor corporation (including in respect of a right of the kind described in paragraph (a), all rights thereunder to any lease and all rights under any lease made thereunder) without receiving any consideration therefor or payment of any part of the amount so paid by the predecessor corporation, the amount so paid by the predecessor corporation shall be added to the amount determined under paragraph 25(c).

(23) Expenses incurred for specified considerations not deductible — For the purposes of this section and section 53 of chapter 25 of the Statutes of Canada, 1949 (Second Session), it is declared that expenses incurred before 1972 by a corporation, association, partnership or syndicate on or in respect of exploring or drilling for petroleum or natural gas in Canada or in searching for minerals in Canada do not and never did include expenses so incurred by that corporation, association, partnership or syndicate under an agreement under which it undertook to incur those expenses in consideration for

(a) shares of the capital stock of a corporation that owned or controlled the mineral rights;

(b) an option to purchase shares of the capital stock of a corporation that owned or controlled the mineral rights; or

(c) a right to purchase shares of the capital stock of a corporation that was to be formed for the purpose of acquiring or controlling the mineral rights.

(24) Exception — Notwithstanding subsection (23), a corporation whose principal business is

(a) production, refining or marketing of petroleum, petroleum products or natural gas or exploring or drilling for petroleum or natural gas, or

(b) mining or exploring for minerals,

may deduct, in computing its income for a taxation year, the lesser of

(c) the total of such of

(i) the drilling and exploration expenses, including all general geological and geophysical expenses, incurred by it on or in respect of exploring or drilling for petroleum or natural gas in Canada, and

(ii) the prospecting, exploration and development expenses incurred by it in searching for minerals in Canada,

as were incurred after 1953 and before 1972,

(iii) under an agreement under which it undertook to incur those expenses for a consideration mentioned in paragraph (23)(a), (b) or (c), and

(iv) to the extent that they were not deductible in computing income for a preceding taxation year, and

(d) of that total, an amount equal to its income for the taxation year if no deduction were allowed under this subsection or subsection (4) or under section 65, 66 or 66.1 of the amended Act minus the deductions allowed for the year under subsection 66(2) and sections 112 and 113 of the amended Act, but where a corporation has incurred expenses in respect of which this subsection authorizes a deduction from income for a taxation year, no deduction in respect of those expenses may be made in computing the income of any other corporation or from the business of an association, partnership or syndicate for any taxation year.

Related Provisions: ITAR 29(25) — Successor rule.

History: Para. 29(24)(d) substituted by 1994, c. 7, Sch. II (1991, c. 49), subsec. 201(8), applicable to taxation years ending after February 17, 1987. That para. formerly read:

(d) of that total, an amount that would be equal to its income for the taxation year if no deduction were allowed under this subsection or subsection (4) or section 65, 66, or 66.1 of the amended Act, minus the deductions allowed for the year under subsection 66(2) and sections 112 and 113 of the amended Act and subsections 66(6) and (7) and 66.1(4) and (5) of the Income Tax Act, chapter 148 of the Revised Statutes of Canada, 1952,

(25) Successor rule — Notwithstanding subsection (24) and subject to subsections 66.7(6) and (7) of the amended Act, where a corporation (in this subsection referred to as the "successor") whose principal business is

(a) production, refining or marketing of petroleum, petroleum products or natural gas, or exploring or drilling for petroleum or natural gas, or

(b) mining or exploring for minerals,

has, at any time after 1954, acquired a particular Canadian resource property (whether by way of a purchase, amalgamation, merger, winding-up or otherwise) from another person whose principal business was a business described in paragraph (a) or (b), there may be deducted by the successor in computing its income for a taxation year an amount not exceeding the total of all amounts each of which is an amount determined in respect of an original owner of the particular property that is the lesser of

(c) the total of

(i) the drilling and exploration expenses, including all general geological and geophysical expenses, incurred before 1972 by the original owner on or in respect of exploring or drilling for petroleum or natural gas in Canada, and

(ii) the prospecting, exploration and development expenses incurred before 1972 by the original owner in searching for minerals in Canada, to the extent that those expenses

(iii) were not otherwise deducted in computing the income of the successor for the year, were not deducted in computing the income of the successor for any preceding taxation year and were not deductible by the original owner or deducted by any predecessor owner of the particular property in computing income for any taxation year, and

(iv) would, but for the provisions of any of this subsection and paragraphs (1)(b), (2)(b), (3)(d), (4)(h) and (24)(d), have been deductible in computing the income of the original owner or any predecessor owner of the particular property for the taxation year preceding the taxation year in which the particular property was acquired by the successor, and

(d) the amount, if any, by which

(i) the part of its income for the year that may reasonably be regarded as being attributable to

(A) the amount included in computing its income for the year under paragraph 59(3.2)(c) of the amended Act that can reasonably be regarded as being attributable to the disposition by it in the year or a preceding taxation year of any Canadian resource properties owned by the original owner and each predecessor owner of the particular property before the acquisition of the particular property by the successor to the extent that the proceeds of the disposition have not been included in determining an amount under this clause or clause 66.7(1)(b)(i)(A) or (3)(b)(i)(A) or paragraph 66.7(10)(g) of the amended Act for a preceding taxation year, or

(B) production from the particular property, computed as if no deduction were allowed under this section or subdivision e of Division B of Part I of the amended Act,

exceeds

(ii) the total of all other amounts deducted under this subsection and subdivision e of Division B of Part I of the amended Act for the year that can reasonably be regarded as attributable to the part of its income for the year described in subparagraph (i) in respect of the particular property.

Related Provisions: ITA 66(15) — "predecessor owner"; ITA 66.6 — No application on acquisition from tax-exempt person; ITA 66.7 — Successor rules; ITA 66.7(2.3) — Successor of foreign resource expense — income deemed not attributable to production from Canadian resource property.

History: Subpara. 29(25)(c)(iii) substituted by 1994, c. 7, Sch. II (1991, c. 49), subsec. 201(9), applicable to taxation years ending after February 17, 1987. That subpara. formerly read:

(iii) were not deducted by the successor in computing its income for a preceding taxation year, and were not deductible by the original owner or deducted by any predecessor owner of the particular property in computing income for any taxation year, and

Forms: T2010: Election to deduct resource expenses upon acquisition of resource property by a corporation.

(25.1) Definitions — For the purposes of subsection (25), the terms "Canadian resource property", "original owner", "predecessor owner" and "production" have the same meanings assigned by subsection 66(15) of the amended Act.

(26) Processing or fabricating corporation — A reference in subsection (3), (21), (24) or (25) to a corporation whose principal business is mining or exploring for minerals shall, for the purposes of this section, be deemed to include a reference to a corporation whose principal business is

(a) processing mineral ores for the purpose of recovering metals therefrom,

(b) a combination of

(i) processing mineral ores for the purpose of recovering metals therefrom, and

(ii) processing metals recovered from the ores so processed, or

(c) fabricating metals,

but in applying the provisions of this section to any such corporation the references, respectively, in subsections (3), (21), (24) and (25) to the years 1952, 1953 and 1954 shall be read as a reference in each case to the year 1956.

(27) Meaning of "drilling and exploration expenses" — For the purposes of this section, "drilling and exploration expenses" incurred on or in respect of exploring or drilling for petroleum or natural gas in Canada include expenses incurred on or in respect of

(a) drilling or converting a well for the disposal of waste liquids from a petroleum or natural gas well in Canada;

(b) drilling for water or gas for injection into a petroleum or natural gas formation in Canada; and

(c) drilling or converting a well for the injection of water or gas to assist in the recovery of petroleum or natural gas from another well in Canada.

(28) Deduction from expenses — For the purposes of this section, there shall be deducted in computing

(a) drilling and exploration expenses incurred by a taxpayer on or in respect of exploring or drilling for petroleum or natural gas in Canada, and

(b) prospecting, exploration and development expenses incurred by a taxpayer in searching for minerals in Canada, any amount paid to the taxpayer before 1972 under the Northern Mineral Exploration Assistance Regulations made under an appropriation Act that provides for payments in respect of the Northern Mineral Grants Program, and there shall be included in computing such expenses any amount, except an amount in respect of interest, paid by the taxpayer before 1972 under those Regulations to Her Majesty in right of Canada.

(29) [Repealed under former Act]

(30) Inclusion in "drilling and exploration expenses" — For the purposes of this section, "drilling and exploration expenses" incurred on or in respect of exploring or drilling for petroleum or natural gas in Canada include an annual payment made for the preservation of a right, licence or privilege described in subsection (14).

(31) General limitation — Where a corporation, association, partnership or syndicate has incurred expenses the deduction of which from income is authorized under more than one provision of this section, it is not entitled to make the deduction under more than one provision but is entitled to select the provision under which to make the deduction.

(32) Deduction for provincial tax — Where a corporation whose principal business is production, refining or marketing of petroleum, petroleum products or natural gas or exploring or drilling for petroleum or natural gas could have deducted an amount in respect of expenditures of the corporation in connection with exploration or drilling for petroleum or natural gas incurred in a preceding taxation year from the tax payable under a provincial statute for the 1952 or a subsequent taxation year if the provincial statute were applicable to that year, the corporation may deduct from the tax otherwise payable by it under Part I of the amended Act for the year an amount not exceeding the amount that would have been so deductible.

(33) Definition of "provincial statute" — For the purposes of subsection (32), "provincial statute" means a statute imposing a tax on the incomes of corporations enacted by the legislature of a province in 1949 and, for the purpose of that subsection, an amount deductible thereunder for one year shall, for the purpose of computing the deduction for a subsequent year, be deemed to have been deductible under the provincial statute.

(34) Expenses deductible under certain enactments deemed not otherwise deductible — Where expenses are or have been, under this section, section 8 of the Income War Tax Act, section 16 of chapter 63 of the Statutes of Canada, 1947, section 16 of chapter 53 of the Statutes of Canada, 1948, section 53 of chapter 25 of the Statutes of Canada, 1949 (Second Session) or section 83A of the former Act, deductible from or in computing a taxpayer's income, or where any amount is or has been deductible in respect of expenses under any of those provisions from taxes otherwise payable, it is declared that no amount in respect of the same expenses is or has been deductible under any other authority in computing the income or from the income of that taxpayer or any other taxpayer for any taxation year.

(2), (3) [Repealed under former Act]

(4) Idem — In applying the provisions of subsection 29(25) to determine the amount that may be deducted by the successor or second successor corporation, as the case may be, in computing its income under Part I of the amended Act for a taxation year, where a predecessor corporation has paid an amount (other than a rental or royalty) to the government of Canada or a province for

(a) the right to explore for petroleum or natural gas on a specified parcel of land in Canada (which right is, for greater certainty, declared to include a right of the type commonly referred to as a "licence", "permit" or "reservation"), or

(b) a legal lease of the right to take or remove petroleum or natural gas from a specified parcel of land in Canada, and before April 11, 1962 acquired the rights in respect of which the amount was so paid, if, before the predecessor corporation was entitled because of subsection 29(21) to any deduction in computing its income for a taxation year in respect of the amount so paid, the property of the predecessor corporation was acquired by the successor or second successor corporation, as the case may be, and at any time, before any well came into production in reasonable commercial quantities on the land referred to in paragraph (a) or (b), the successor or second successor corporation, as the case may be, surrendered all the rights so acquired by the predecessor corporation (including, in respect of a right of the kind described in paragraph (a), all rights thereunder to any lease and all rights under any lease made thereunder) without receiving any consideration therefor or payment of any part of the amount so paid by the predecessor corporation, the amount so paid by the predecessor corporation shall be added at that time to the amount determined under subparagraph 29(25)(c)(i).

(5), (6) [Repealed under former Act]

(7) Definition of "amalgamation" — In this section, "amalgamation" has the meaning assigned by section 85I of the former Act.

35. (1) Foreign affiliates — Section 26 does not apply in determining for the purposes of section 91 of the amended Act the amount of any taxable capital gain or allowable capital loss of a foreign affiliate of a taxpayer.

(2) Idem — Any corporation that was a foreign affiliate of a taxpayer on January 1, 1972 shall be deemed, for the purposes of subdivision i of Division B of Part I of the amended Act, to have become a foreign affiliate of the taxpayer on that day.

(3) [Repealed under former Act]

(4) Idem — Any corporation that was deemed to be a foreign affiliate of a taxpayer at any time prior to May 7, 1974 because of an election made by the taxpayer in accordance with subparagraph 95(1)(b)(iv) of the amended Act, as it read before being amended by chapter 26 of the Statutes of Canada, 1974-75-76, shall be deemed to have been a foreign affiliate of the taxpayer at that time.

37–39. [Repealed under former Act]

40. (1) Payments out of pension funds, etc. — In the case of

(a) a single payment

(i) out of or under a superannuation or pension fund or plan

(A) on the death, withdrawal or retirement from employment of an employee or former employee,

(B) on the winding-up of the fund or plan in full satisfaction of all rights of the payee in or under the fund or plan, or

(C) to which the payee is entitled because of an amendment to the plan although the payee continues to be an employee to whom the plan applies,

(ii) upon retirement of an employee in recognition of long service and not made out of or under a superannuation fund or plan,

(iii) under an employees profit sharing plan in full satisfaction of all rights of the payee in or under the plan, to the extent that the amount thereof would otherwise be included in computing the payee's income for the year in which the payment was received, or

(iv) under a deferred profit sharing plan on the death, withdrawal or retirement from employment of an employee or former employee, to the extent that the amount thereof would otherwise be included in computing the payee's income for the year in which the payment was received,

(b) a payment or payments made by an employer to an employee or former employee on or after retirement in respect of loss of office or employment, if made in the year of retirement or within one year after that year, or

(c) a payment or payments made as a death benefit, if made in the year of death or within one year after that year, the payment or payments made in a taxation year ending after 1971 and before 1974 may, at the option of the taxpayer by whom it is or they are received, be deemed not to be income of the taxpayer for the purpose of Part I of the amended Act, in which case the taxpayer shall pay, in addition to any other tax payable for the year, a tax on the payment or total of the payments equal to the proportion thereof that

(d) the total of the taxes otherwise payable by the employee under that Part for the 3 years immediately preceding the taxation year (before making any deduction under section 120, 121 or 126 or subsection 127(3) of the amended Act),

(e) the total of the employee's incomes for those 3 years.

(2) Employee not resident in Canada — Where a taxpayer has elected that a payment or payments of one of the classes described in paragraphs (1)(a) to (c) in respect of an employee or former employee who was not resident in Canada throughout the whole of the 3 years referred to in paragraph (1)(e) shall be deemed not to be income of the taxpayer for the purpose of Part I of the amended Act, the tax payable under this section is that proportion of the amount on which the tax is payable that

(a) the total of the taxes that would have been payable by the employee under that Part for the 3 years referred to in paragraph (1)(e) (before making any deduction under section 120, 121 or 126 or subsection 127(3) of the amended Act) if the employee had been resident in Canada throughout those years and the employee's incomes for those years had been from sources in Canada,

(b) the total of the employee's incomes for those 3 years, and, in such a case, the election is not valid unless the taxpayer has filed with the election, a return of the employee's incomes for each of the 3 years in the same form and containing the same information as the return that the employee, or the employee's legal representative, would have been required to file under that Part if the employee had been resident in Canada in those years.

(3) Determination of amount of payment — In determining the amount of any payment or payments made in a taxation year out of or under a superannuation or pension fund or plan, under a deferred profit sharing plan or as a retiring allowance that is deemed, for the purposes of this section, not to be income of the taxpayer by whom it is or they are received, there shall be subtracted from the amount of the payment or payments so made

(a) the total of all amounts deductible under paragraph 60(j) of the amended Act in computing the taxpayer's income for that year; and

(b) any amount deductible under paragraph 60(m) of the amended Act because of that payment or those payments in computing the taxpayer's income for that year.

(4) Idem — In determining the amount of any payment or payments made in a taxation year as a death benefit that is deemed, for the purpose of this section, not to be income of the taxpayer by whom it is or they are received, there shall be subtracted from the amount of the payment or payments so made any amount deductible under paragraph 60(m) of the amended Act because of that payment or those payments in computing the taxpayer's income for that year.

(5) Maximum amount for election — For the purpose of determining the amount of any payment or payments of one or more of the classes described in subsection (1) made in a taxation year that may be deemed, for the purposes of this section, not to be income of the taxpayer by whom it is or they are received, the maximum amount in respect of which an election may be made by the taxpayer under subsection (1) for the taxation year in respect of such payment or payments is,

(a) in the case of a payment or payments of a class described in subsection (1) made to the taxpayer on the death of an employee or former employee in respect of whom the payment or payments are made, the amount of the payment or the total amount of the payments, as the case may be, minus any amount subtracted therefrom under subsection (3) or (4);

(b) in the case of one or more single payments of a class described in subparagraph (1)(a)(i), (iii) or (iv), other than a payment described in paragraph (a) of this subsection, the lesser of

(i) the amount of the payment or the total amount of the payments, as the case may be, minus any amount subtracted therefrom under subsection (3), and

(ii) the amount by which

(A) the product obtained by multiplying $1,500 by the number of consecutive 12 month periods included in the period throughout which the taxpayer was a member of any plan or plans described in subparagraph (1)(a)(i), (iii) or (iv) (in this subsection referred to as a "retirement plan"),

(I) out of or under which a payment was made to the taxpayer in the taxation year or a preceding taxation year ending after April 26, 1965, and

(II) to which an employer of the taxpayer has made a contribution on behalf of the taxpayer,

exceeds

(B) the total of all amounts each of which is an amount that, because of a payment to the taxpayer after April 26, 1965,

(I) out of or under a retirement plan to which the employer referred to in subclause (A)(II) made a contribution on behalf of the taxpayer, or

(II) by the employer referred to in subclause (A)(II), was deemed not to be income of the taxpayer for the purpose of Part I of the amended Act for a preceding taxation year because of an election made by the taxpayer under subsection (1); and

(c) in the case of a payment or payments of the class described in subparagraph (1)(a)(ii) or paragraph (1)(b), other than a payment described in paragraph (a) or (b) of this subsection, the lesser of

(i) the amount of the payment or the total amount of the payments, as the case may be, minus any amount subtracted therefrom pursuant to subsection (3), and

(ii) the amount by which

(A) the product obtained by multiplying $1,000 by the number of years during which the taxpayer was an employee of the employer who made the payment

exceeds

(B) the total of

(I) the total of all amounts each of which is an amount that, because of a payment to the taxpayer after April 26, 1965 by an employer referred to in clause (A) or a payment to the taxpayer after that date out of or under a retirement plan to which such an employer made a contribution on behalf of the taxpayer, was deemed not to be income of the taxpayer for the purpose of Part I of the amended Act for a preceding taxation year by reason of an election made by the taxpayer under subsection (1), and

(II) the total of all amounts each of which is an amount that, because of a payment to the taxpayer after April 26, 1965 out of or under a retirement plan to which an employer referred to in clause (A) made a contribution on behalf of the taxpayer, may be deemed, by subsection (1), not to be income of the taxpayer for the purpose of that Part for the taxation year.

(6) Idem — For the purpose of subsection (5),

(a) where all or substantially all of the property used in carrying on the business of a person who was an employer of an employee (in this subsection referred to as the "former employer")

(i) has been purchased by a person who, because of the purchase, or

(ii) has been acquired by bequest or inheritance, or because of an amalgamation (within the meaning assigned by section 85I of the former Act), by a person who, by reason of the acquisition, became an employer of the employee, and who subsequently made a payment of a class described in paragraph (5)(c) in respect of the employee or former employee, the employee or former employee shall be deemed to have been an employee of that employer throughout the period he or she was an employee of the former employer; and

(b) a taxpayer may, in computing the number of years during which the taxpayer was a member of a superannuation or pension fund or plan (in this subsection referred to as the "subsequent plan"), include the number of years during which the taxpayer was a member of another plan (in this subsection referred to as the "former plan") if the taxpayer had received an amount out of or under the former plan all or part of which amount was deductible under paragraph 60(j) of the amended Act in computing the taxpayer's income for the taxation year in which the amount was received, because of the fact that all or part of the amount, as the case may be, was paid by the taxpayer to or under the subsequent plan as described in clause 60(j)(i)(A) of the Income Tax Act, chapter 148 of the Revised Statutes of Canada, 1952, as it read in its application to the 1978 and preceding taxation years.

(7) Limitation — This section applies in respect of any payment or payments described in subparagraph (1)(a)(i) or (iv) made in a taxation year ending after 1973, except that the amount of the payment or the total amount of the payments, as the case may be, shall be deemed to be the lesser of the amount thereof otherwise determined and the total of the amounts that the taxpayer would have received out of or under the plan described in subparagraph (1)(a)(i) or (iv), as the case may be, if

(a) the taxpayer had withdrawn from the plan on January 1, 1972;

(b) there had been no change in the terms and conditions of the plan after June 18, 1971 and before January 2, 1972; and

(c) any term or condition of the plan that would, in the event that the taxpayer had withdrawn from the plan on January 1, 1972, have reduced the amount of any payment or payments that would, if the taxpayer remained a member of the plan for a specified period of time after December 31, 1971, have been made to the taxpayer in respect of years ending before 1972 were not a term or condition of the plan.

(8) Application rule — For the purposes of paragraphs (1)(d) and (2)(a), there may be deducted from the total referred to in those paragraphs 9% of the portion of that total that is attributable to the 1974, 1975 or 1976 taxation year.

41–48. [Repealed under former Act]

49. (1) Tax deemed payable under amended Act — Where, because of section 40, any tax is payable in addition to or in lieu of any amount of tax payable under Part I of the amended Act for a taxation year, that tax shall be deemed to be payable under Part I of the amended Act for that taxation year.

(2) Application of section 13 — In applying section 13 to section 40, subsection 13(1) shall be read without reference to the words "subject to this Act and unless the context otherwise requires".

(3) Computation of tax deemed payable under amended Act — In computing, under section 40 of this Act or any of section 39 and sections 41 to 48 of the Income Tax Act, chapter 148 of the Revised Statutes of Canada, 1952, any tax that is payable in addition to or in lieu of any amount of tax payable under Part I of the amended Act by an individual for a taxation year,

(a) a reference to section 120 of the amended Act does not include a reference to paragraph 33(1)(a) of the former Act; and

(b) for the purposes of paragraph 33(1)(a) of the former Act and subsection 120(1) of the amended Act, all of the income of the individual for that or any preceding taxation year shall be deemed to have been income earned in the year in a province.

50. (1) Status of certain corporations — For the purposes of the amended Act, a corporation that was, throughout that portion of its 1972 taxation year that is in 1972, a private corporation, a Canadian-controlled private corporation or a public corporation shall be deemed to have been throughout that taxation year a private corporation, a Canadian-controlled private corporation or a public corporation, as the case may be.

(2) Election to be public corporation — For the purposes of the definition "public corporation" in subsection 89(1) of the amended Act, where at any particular time before 1973 a corporation elected in the manner referred to in subparagraph (b)(i) of that definition to be a public corporation and at any time after 1971 and before the time of the election the corporation complied with the conditions referred to in that subparagraph, the corporation shall,

(a) at such time after 1971 and before the particular time as is specified in the election to be the effective date thereof, or

(b) where no time described in paragraph (a) is specified in the election to be the effective date thereof, at the particular time, be deemed to have elected in the manner referred to in that subparagraph to be a public corporation and to have complied with the conditions referred to therein.

(3) Designation by Minister — For the purposes of the definition "public corporation" in subsection 89(1) of the amended Act, where at any particular time before March 22, 1972 the Minister, by notice in writing to a corporation, designated the corporation to be a public corporation or not to be a public corporation, as the case may be, and at the time of the designation the corporation complied with the conditions referred to in subparagraph (b)(i) or (c)(i) of that definition, as the case may be, the corporation shall, at such time as is specified by the Minister in the notice, be deemed

(a) to have been designated by the Minister, by notice in writing to the corporation, to be a public corporation or not to be a public corporation, as the case may be; and

(b) to have complied with the conditions referred to in subparagraph (b)(i) or (c)(i) of that definition, as the case may be.

51–56.1 [Repealed under former Act]

57. (1)–(8) [Repealed under former Act]

(9) Capital dividend account — In computing a specified personal corporation's capital dividend account at any time after the end of its 1972 taxation year, there shall be added to the total of the amounts described in paragraphs (a) and (b) of the definition "capital dividend account" in subsection 89(1) of the amended Act the total of its net capital gains (within the meaning assigned by subsection 51(3) of the Income Tax Application Rules, 1971, Part III of Chapter 63 of the Statutes of Canada, 1970-71-72, as it read before October 29, 1985) for its 1972 taxation year and that proportion of the total of its incomes for that year, other than

(a) any taxable capital gains of the corporation for the year from dispositions of property, and

(b) any amounts that were, because of subsection 57(3) of the Income Tax Application Rules, 1971, Part III of chapter 63 of the Statutes of Canada, 1970-71-72, as it read before October 29, 1985 or under the provisions of subsection 67(1) of the former Act that applied because of subsection 57(12) of those Rules as it read before that date, required to be included in computing the income of the specified personal corporation for its 1972 taxation year, that the number of days in that portion of the 1972 taxation year that is in 1972 is of the number of days in the whole year.

Related Provisions: ITAR 69 (meaning of "Income Tax Application Rules, 1971, Part III of chapter 63 of the Statutes of Canada, 1970-71-72").

(10) [Repealed under former Act]

(11) Meaning of "specified personal corporation" — For the purposes of this section, a corporation is a specified personal corporation if

(a) part of its 1972 taxation year was before and part thereof after the beginning of 1972; and

(b) during the whole of the period beginning on the earlier of June 18, 1971 and the beginning of its 1972 taxation year and ending at the end of its 1972 taxation year, it was a personal corporation within the meaning assigned by section 68 of the former Act.

57.1 [Repealed under former Act]

58. (1) Credit unions — For the purpose of computing the income of a credit union for the 1972 and subsequent taxation years,

(a) property of the credit union that is a bond, debenture, mortgage or agreement of sale owned by it at the beginning of its 1972 taxation year shall be valued at its actual cost to the credit union,

(i) plus a reasonable amount in respect of the amortization of the amount by which the principal amount of the property at the time it was acquired by the credit union exceeds its actual cost to the credit union, or

(ii) minus a reasonable amount in respect of the amortization of the amount by which its actual cost to the credit union exceeds the principal amount of the property at the time it was acquired by the credit union;

(b) property of the credit union that is a debt owing to the credit union (other than property described in paragraph (a) or a debt that became a bad debt before its 1972 taxation year) acquired by it before the beginning of its 1972 taxation year shall be valued at any time at the amount thereof outstanding at that time;

(c) any depreciable property acquired by the credit union in a taxation year ending before 1972 shall be deemed to have been acquired by it on the last day of its 1971 taxation year at a capital cost equal to

(i) in the case of any building or automotive equipment owned by it on the last day of its 1971 taxation year, the amount, if any, by which the depreciable cost to the credit union of the building or equipment, as the case may be, exceeds the product obtained when the number of full taxation years in the period beginning on the first day of the taxation year following the taxation year in which the building or equipment, as the case may be, was acquired by it and ending with the last day of its 1971 taxation year is multiplied by, in the case of a building, 2½%, and in the case of equipment, 15%, of its depreciable cost (and for the purposes of this subparagraph, a capital improvement or capital addition to a building owned by a credit union shall be deemed not to be part of the building but to be a separate and distinct building acquired by it, if the cost to the credit union of the improvement or addition, as the case may be, exceeded $10,000),

(ii) in the case of any leasehold interest, the proportion of the capital cost thereof to the credit union (determined without regard to this subparagraph) that

(A) the number of months in the period commencing with the first day of the credit union's 1972 taxation year and ending with the day on which the leasehold interest expires

is of

(B) the number of months in the period beginning with the day on which the credit union acquired the leasehold interest and ending with the day on which the leasehold interest expires, and

(iii) in the case of any property (other than a building, automotive equipment or leasehold interest) acquired by the credit union after 1961, the amount, if any, by which the depreciable cost to the credit union of such property exceeds the product obtained when the number of full taxation years beginning with the first day of the taxation year following the taxation year in which the property was acquired by it and ending with the last day of its 1971 taxation year is multiplied by ½ the relevant percentage of the depreciable cost to the credit union of the property; and

(d) the undepreciated capital cost to the credit union as of the first day of its 1972 taxation year of depreciable property of a prescribed class acquired by it before that taxation year is the total of the amounts determined under paragraph (c) to be the capital costs to it as of that day of all property of that class.

(1.1) Exception — For the purpose of computing a capital gain from the disposition of depreciable property acquired by a credit union in a taxation year ending before 1972, the capital cost of the property shall be its capital cost determined without reference to paragraph (1)(c).

(2)–(3.1) [Repealed under former Act]

(3.2) Determination of maximum cumulative reserve at end of taxation year — Notwithstanding the definition "maximum cumulative reserve" in subsection 137(6) of the amended Act, for the purposes of section 137 of the amended Act a credit union's maximum cumulative reserve at the end of any particular year is the amount, if any, by which its maximum cumulative reserve at that time, determined under that definition without regard to this subsection, exceeds the lesser of

(a) its maximum cumulative reserve, determined under that definition without regard to this subsection, at the end of its 1971 taxation year, and

(b) the amount, if any, by which its 1971 reserve exceeds the total of the amounts deemed by subsection 58(2) of the Income Tax Application Rules, 1971, Part III of chapter 63 of the Statutes of Canada, 1970-71-72, to have been deducted by it in computing its income for its 1971 taxation year.

Related Provisions: ITAR 69 (meaning of "Income Tax Application Rules, 1971, Part III of chapter 63 of the Statutes of Canada, 1970-71-72").

(3.3) Idem — Notwithstanding subsection (3.2), where at any time after May 6, 1974 there has been an amalgamation (within the meaning assigned by section 87 of the amended Act) of two or more credit unions to form a new credit union, the maximum cumulative reserve of the new credit union shall be deemed to be the amount by which its maximum cumulative reserve, determined under the definition of that term in subsection 137(6) of the amended Act, exceeds the total of all amounts, if any, each of which is the lesser of the amounts referred to in paragraphs (3.2)(a) and (b) in respect of each of the predecessor corporations.

(3.4) Idem — Notwithstanding subsection (3.2), where a credit union (in this subsection referred to as the acquirer) has, at any time after May 6, 1974, acquired otherwise than by way of amalgamation all or substantially all of the assets of another credit union, the maximum cumulative reserve of the acquirer shall be the amount by which the acquirer's maximum cumulative reserve, determined under the definition of that term in subsection 137(6) of the amended Act, exceeds the total of

(a) the lesser of the amounts determined under paragraphs (3.2)(a) and (b) in respect of the acquirer, and

(b) the lesser of the amounts determined under paragraphs (3.2)(a) and (b) in respect of the other credit union.

(4), (4.1) [Repealed under former Act]

(5) Definitions — In this section,

"depreciable cost" to a credit union of any property means the actual cost to it of the property or the amount at which it is deemed by subsection 13(7) of the amended Act to have acquired the property, as the case may be;

"relevant percentage" in relation to a prescribed class of property is the percentage prescribed in respect of that class by any regulations made under paragraph 11(1)(a) of the former Act;

"1971 reserve" of a credit union means the amount, if any, by which the total of all amounts each of which is

(a) the amount of any money of the credit union on hand at the beginning of its 1972 taxation year,

(b) an amount in respect of any property described in paragraph (1)(a) or (b), equal to the amount at which it is required by those paragraphs to be valued at the beginning of its 1972 taxation year,

(c) an amount in respect of depreciable property of a prescribed class owned by the credit union on the first day of its 1972 taxation year, equal to the amount determined under paragraph (1)(d) to be the undepreciated capital cost thereof to the credit union as of that day, or

(d) an amount in respect of any capital property (other than depreciable property) owned by the credit union at the beginning of its 1972 taxation year, equal to its cost to the credit union computed without reference to the provisions of section 26, exceeds the total of all amounts each of which is

(e) the amount of any debt owing by the credit union or of any other obligation of the credit union to pay an amount, that was outstanding at the beginning of its 1972 taxation year, excluding, for greater certainty, any share in the credit union of any member thereof, or

(f) the amount, as of the beginning of the credit union's 1972 taxation year, of any share in the credit union of any member thereof.

63–64.3 [Repealed under former Act]

65. [Repealed]

History: S. 65 repealed by 2005, c. 30, s. 19, applicable to months that end after 2004. The section formerly read:

65. (1) Part XI of amended Act — Where, at any particular time after June 18, 1971 and before July 1, 1972, a taxpayer described in section 205 of the amended Act has acquired a foreign property that was

(a) a share of the capital stock of a corporation that would be a mutual fund corporation if paragraph 131(8)(a) of the amended Act were read without reference to the words "that was a public corporation",

(b) a unit of a trust that would be a mutual fund trust if subsection 132(6) of the amended Act were read without reference to paragraph 132(6)(c), or

(c) an interest, as a beneficiary under a trust, in property held subject to the trust by a trust company incorporated under the laws of Canada or a province, if

(i) throughout the 1971 taxation year of the trust,

(A) all the property of the trust was held in trust for the benefit of not less than 20 beneficiaries, and

(I) not less than 20 of the beneficiaries were taxpayers described in paragraph 205(a) or (c) of the amended Act, or

(II) not less than 100 of the beneficiaries were taxpayers described in paragraph 205(b) of the amended Act,

(B) not less than 80% of all the property of the trust consisted of shares, bonds, mortgages, marketable securities or cash, and

(C) not more than 10% of all the property of the trust consisted of shares, bonds, mortgages or other securities of any one corporation or debtor other than Her Majesty in right of Canada or of a province or a Canadian municipality,

(ii) not less than 95% of the income of the trust for its 1971 taxation year was derived from investments described in clause (i)(B),

(iii) the total value of all such interests owned by all beneficiaries mentioned in clause (i)(A) to which any one employer has made or may make contributions did not exceed, at any time in the 1971 taxation year of the trust, 25% of the value of all the property of the trust at that time, and

(iv) the total value of all such interests owned by all beneficiaries mentioned in subclause (i)(A)(II) to which any one taxpayer has paid or may pay premiums does not exceed, at any time in the 1971 taxation year of the trust, 25% of the value of all the property of the trust at that time, the property shall, to the extent that the cost to the taxpayer thereof does not exceed the amount, if any, by which the taxpayer's foreign investment limit exceeds the total of the costs to it of all foreign properties described in paragraphs (a) to (c) acquired by the taxpayer after June 18, 1971 and before the particular time, be deemed

(d) for the purposes of Part XI of the amended Act, to have been acquired before June 19, 1971 and not to have been acquired after June 18, 1971, and

(e) where the taxpayer was a trust governed by a registered retirement savings plan, notwithstanding the definition "qualified investment" in subsection 146(1) of the amended Act, to have been a qualified investment for the purposes of section 146 of that Act.

(1.1) Idem — Where, at any particular time after October 13, 1971 and before July 1, 1972, a taxpayer to whom Part XI of the amended Act applies has acquired a foreign property that was a share of the capital stock of a corporation that would be an investment corporation if subparagraph 130(3)(a)(i) of the amended Act were read without reference to the words "that was a public corporation", for the purposes of subsection (1) the share so acquired shall be deemed to be a share described in paragraph (1)(a).

(2) Definition of "foreign investment limit" — In subsection (1), "foreign investment limit" of a taxpayer means the total of

(a) the taxpayer's income from property for its 1971 taxation year,

(b) where the taxpayer was, throughout its 1971 taxation year, a taxpayer described in paragraph 205(a) of the amended Act, all amounts each of which is such portion of any amount paid or contributed by any person to or under the plan in 1971 as was deductible in computing that person's income for the 1971 taxation year under paragraph 11(1)(g) or (h) of the former Act, or as would have been deductible in computing that income under paragraph 11(1)(i) of the former Act if that paragraph were read (except for the purposes of subparagraph 11(1)(i)(iii) of that Act) without reference to subparagraph 11(1)(i)(ii) of that Act,

(c) where the taxpayer was, throughout its 1971 taxation year, a trust governed by a registered retirement savings plan, all amounts each of which is such portion of any premium paid in 1971 by the annuitant under the plan as was deductible under subsection 79B(5) of the former Act in computing the annuitant's income for the 1971 taxation year, and

(d) where the taxpayer was, throughout its 1971 taxation year, a trust governed by a deferred profit sharing plan, all amounts each of which is such portion of any amount paid by an employer to a trustee under the plan as was deductible under subsection 79C(7) of the former Act in computing the employer's income for the 1971 taxation year.

(3) Foreign property acquired by registered retirement savings plan — Where, at any particular time after 1971 and before July 1, 1974, a trust governed by a registered retirement savings plan acquired a foreign property described in paragraph (1)(a) or (b) or a foreign property that would be described in paragraph (1)(c) if the references in that paragraph to the "1971 taxation year" of the trust were read as references to the "1972 and 1973 taxation years" of the trust, the property shall, to the extent that the cost to the trust thereof did not exceed the amount, if any, by which the trust's foreign reinvestment limit exceeded the total of the cost to it of all such foreign properties so acquired by it after 1971 and before the particular time, be deemed

(a) for the purposes of Part XI of the amended Act, to have been acquired before June 19, 1971 and not to have been acquired after June 18, 1971; and

(b) notwithstanding the definition "qualified investment" in subsection 146(1) of the amended Act, to have been a qualified investment for the purposes of section 146 of that Act.

(4) Definition of "foreign reinvestment limit" — In subsection (3), "foreign reinvestment limit" of a trust governed by a registered retirement savings plan means such portion of the total of

(a) the trust's income from property for its 1972 and 1973 taxation years,

(b) all amounts each of which is such portion of any premium paid by the annuitant under the plan as was deductible under subsection 146(5) of the amended Act in computing the annuitant's income for the 1972 or 1973 taxation year,

(c) all amounts each of which is a capital gains dividend (within the meaning assigned by subsection 131(1) of the amended Act) received by the trust in its 1972 or 1973 taxation year, and

(d) 2 times the total of all amounts each of which is, because of subsection 104(21) of the amended Act, deemed to be a taxable capital gain of the trust for its 1972 or 1973 taxation year, as was, under the terms and conditions of the plan as fixed on or before June 18, 1971, required to be invested by the trust in foreign property described in paragraph (1)(a) or (b) or foreign property that would be described in paragraph (1)(c) if the references in that paragraph to the "1971 taxation year" of the trust were read as references to the "1971 and 1972 taxation years" of the trust.

(5) Shares of a mutual fund corporation received on amalgamation — Where, after May 25, 1976, there has been an amalgamation (within the meaning assigned by section 87 of the amended Act) of two or more mutual fund corporations (each of which corporations is in this subsection referred to as a "predecessor corporation") to form one corporate entity (in this subsection referred to as the "new corporation"), and

(a) any shareholder that is a taxpayer described in any of paragraphs 205(a), (b) or (c) of the amended Act owned shares of the capital stock of a predecessor corporation (in this subsection referred to as the "old shares") on June 18, 1971 and thereafter without interruption until immediately before the amalgamation,

(b) any shares referred to in paragraph (a) were foreign property (within the meaning assigned by subsection 206(1) of the amended Act) immediately before the amalgamation, and

(c) no consideration was received by the shareholder for the disposition of the old shares on the amalgamation, other than shares of the capital stock of the new corporation (in this subsection referred to as the "new shares"),

notwithstanding any other provision of this Act or of the amended Act, for the purpose of subsection 206(2) of the amended Act, the taxpayer shall be deemed not to have acquired the new shares after June 18, 1971.

All that portion of subsec. 65(5) following para. (a) substituted by 1994, c. 7, Sch. II (1991, c. 49), s. 202, applicable to periods occurring after October 1985. That portion formerly read:

(b) any shares referred to in paragraph (a) were foreign property (within the meaning assigned by subsection 206(2) of the amended Act) immediately before the amalgamation, and

(c) no consideration was received by the shareholder for the disposition of the old shares on the amalgamation other than shares of the capital stock of the new corporation (in this subsection referred to as the "new shares"), notwithstanding any other provision of this Act or the amended Act, for the purposes of subsection 206(1) of the amended Act, the taxpayer is deemed to have acquired the new shares prior to June 18, 1971.

65.1 Part XV of amended Act — For greater certainty,

(a) section 9 does not apply in respect of the repeal, by section 1 of chapter 63 of the Statutes of Canada, 1970-71-72, of Part V of the former Act and the substitution therefor, by that section, of Part XV of the amended Act, and

(b) in its application in respect of any offence described in subsection 239(1) of the amended Act that was committed before December 23, 1971, paragraph 239(1)(f) of the amended Act shall be read as follows:

"(f) a fine of not less than $25 and not more than $10,000 plus, in an appropriate case, an amount not exceeding double the amount of the tax that should have been shown to be payable or that was sought to be evaded, or".

INCOME TAX REGULATIONS

CONSOLIDATED REGULATIONS OF CANADA, CHAPTER 945

(CONSOLIDATED AS OF DECEMBER 31, 1977)

PROCLAIMED IN FORCE AUGUST 15, 1979, AS AMENDED TO FEBRUARY 9, 2009

Notes: Editorial annotations have been added in square brackets to update references to the ITA where the numbering of the provision has changed as a result of the R.S.C. 1985, c. 1 (5th Supp.) consolidation implemented in 1994. (See Reg. 700(3) as an example.)

Editorial annotations have also been added in square brackets to indicate revised text per S.C. 2005, c. 38, s. 28, which states that the expressions are "to be read" that way. (See Reg. 501 as an example.)

1. Short title — These Regulations may be cited as the Income Tax Regulations.

2. Interpretation — In these Regulations, "Act" means the Income Tax Act.

PART I — TAX DEDUCTIONS

History: Part I was consolidated by the Consolidated Regulations of Canada, chapter 945, proclaimed in force August 15, 1979, by P.C. 1979-1934, July 19, 1979, Canada Gazette, Part II, August 8, 1979.

100. Interpretation — (1) [Definitions] — In this Part and in Schedule I,

"employee" means any person receiving remuneration;

"employer" means any person paying remuneration;

"estimated deductions" means, in respect of a taxation year, the total of the amounts estimated to be deductible by an employee for the year under any of paragraphs 8(1)(f), (h), (h.1), (i) and (j) of the Act and determined by the employee for the purpose of completing the form referred to in subsection 107(2);

History: "Estimated deductions" amended by P.C. 1994-372, subsec. 1(1), March 10, 1994, Canada Gazette, Part II, March 23, 1994, effective January 1, 1993.

"Estimated deductions" amended by P.C. 1989-2105, subsec. 1(2), October 19, 1989, Canada Gazette, Part II, November 8, 1989, effective July 1, 1988.

"Estimated deductions" substituted by P.C. 1983-1137, subsec. 1(1), April 14, 1983, Canada Gazette, Part II, April 27, 1983, effective from January 1, 1982.

"Estimated deductions" added by P.C. 1980-3375, s. 1, December 11, 1980, Canada Gazette, Part II, December 24, 1980, in force January 1, 1981.

102. Periodic payments — (1) [Amount to be withheld] — Except as otherwise provided in this Part, the amount to be deducted or withheld by an employer

(a) from any payment of remuneration (in this subsection referred to as the "payment") made to an employee in his taxation year where he reports for work at an establishment of the employer in a province, in Canada beyond the limits of any province or outside Canada, and

(b) for any pay period in which the payment is made by the employer shall be determined for each payment in accordance with the following rules:

(c) an amount that is a notional remuneration for the year in respect of

(i) a payment to the employee, and

(ii) the amount, if any, of gratuities referred to in paragraph (a.1) of the definition "remuneration" in subsection 100(1)

is deemed to be the amount determined by the formula

$$A \times B$$

where

A is the amount that is deemed for the purpose of this paragraph to be the mid-point of the applicable range of remuneration for the pay period, as provided in Schedule I, in which falls the total of

(A) the payment referred to in subparagraph (i) made in the pay period, and

(B) the amount of gratuities referred to in subparagraph (ii) declared by the employee for the pay period, and

B is the maximum number of such pay periods in that year;

(d) if the employee is not resident in Canada at the time of the payment, no personal credits will be allowed for the purposes of this subsection and, if the employee is resident in Canada at the time of the payment, the employee's personal credits for the year are deemed to be the mid-point of the range of amounts of personal credits for a taxation year as provided for in section 2 of Schedule I;

(e) an amount (in this subsection referred to as the "notional tax for the year") shall be computed in respect of that employee by

(i) calculating the amount of tax payable for the year, as if that amount were calculated under subsection 117(2) of the Act and adjusted annually pursuant to section 117.1 of the Act, on the amount determined in accordance with paragraph (c) as if that amount represented the employee's amount taxable for that year, and deducting the aggregate of

(ii) the amount determined in accordance with paragraph (d) multiplied by the appropriate percentage for the year,

(iii) an amount equal to

(A) the amount determined in accordance with paragraph (c) multiplied by the employee's premium rate for the year under the Employment Insurance Act, not exceeding the maximum amount of the premiums payable by the employee for the year under that Act, multiplied by

(B) the appropriate percentage for the year, and

(iv) an amount equal to

(A) the product obtained when the difference between the amount determined in accordance with paragraph (c) and the amount determined under section 20 of the Canada Pension Plan for the year is multiplied by the employee's contribution rate for the year under the Canada Pension Plan or under a provincial pension plan as defined in subsection 3(1) of that Act, not exceeding the maximum amount of such contributions payable by the employee for the year under the plan,

multiplied by

(B) the appropriate percentage for the year;

(f) the amount determined in accordance with paragraph (e) shall be increased by, where applicable, the tax as determined under subsection 120(1) of the Act;

(g) where the amount of notional remuneration for the year is income earned in the Province of Quebec, the amount determined in accordance with paragraph (e) shall be reduced by an amount that is the aggregate of

(i) the amount that is deemed to be paid under subsection 120(2) of the Act as if there were no other source of income or loss for the year, and

(ii) the amount by which the amount referred to in subparagraph (i) is increased by virtue of section 27 of the Federal-Provincial Fiscal Arrangements Act; and

(h) [Revoked]

(i) the amount to be deducted or withheld shall be computed by

(i) dividing the amount of the notional tax for the year by the maximum number of pay periods for the year in respect of the appropriate pay period, and

(ii) rounding the amount determined under subparagraph (i) to the nearest multiple of five cents or, if such amount is equidistant from two such multiples, to the higher multiple.

(2) [Commission employees] — Where an employee has elected pursuant to subsection 107(2) and has not revoked such election, the amount to be deducted or withheld by the employer from any payment of remuneration (in this subsection referred to as the "payment") that is

(a) a payment in respect of commissions or is a combined payment of commissions and salary or wages, or

(b) a payment in respect of salary or wages where that employee receives a combined payment of commissions and salary or wages, made to that employee in his taxation year where he reports for work at an establishment of the employer in a province, in Canada beyond the limits of any province or outside Canada, shall be determined for each payment in accordance with the following rules:

(c) an employee's "estimated annual taxable income" shall be determined by using the formula

where

A is the amount of that employee's total remuneration in respect of the year as recorded by the employee on the form referred to in subsection 107(2), and

B is the amount of that employee's expenses in respect of the year as recorded by that employee on that form;

(d) if the employee is not resident in Canada at the time of the payment, no personal credits will be allowed for the purposes of this subsection and if the employee is resident in Canada at the time of the payment, the employee's personal credits for the year shall be the total claim amount as recorded by that employee on the return for the year referred to in subsection 107(1);

(e) an amount (in this subsection referred to as the "notional tax for the year") shall be calculated in respect of that employee by using the formula

$$C - [(D + E + F) \times G] + H - I$$

where

C is the amount of tax payable for the year, calculated as if that amount of tax were computed under subsection 117(2) of the Act and adjusted annually pursuant to section 117.1 of the Act, on the amount determined under paragraph (c) as if that amount represented the employee's amount taxable for that year,

D is the amount determined in accordance with paragraph (d),

E is the amount determined in the description of A in paragraph (c) multiplied by the employee's premium rate for the year under the Employment Insurance Act, not exceeding the maximum amount of the premiums payable by the employee for the year under that Act,

F is the amount determined in the description of A in paragraph (c) less the amount for the year determined under section 20 of the Canada Pension Plan multiplied by the employee's contribution rate for the year under that Act or under a provincial pension plan as defined in section 3 of that Act, not exceeding the maximum amount of such contributions payable by the employee for the year under the plan,

G is the appropriate percentage for the year,

H is, where applicable, the tax as determined under subsection 120(1) of the Act,

I is, where the amount of total remuneration for the year is income earned in the Province of Quebec, an amount equal to the aggregate of

(i) the amount that would be deemed to have been paid under subsection 120(2) of the Act with respect to the employee if the notional tax for the year for the employee were determined without reference to the elements H, I and J in this formula and if that tax were that employee's tax payable under Part I of the Act for that year, as if there were no other source of income or loss for the year, and

(ii) the amount by which the amount referred to in subparagraph (i) is increased by virtue of section 27 of the Federal-Provincial Fiscal Arrangements Act;

(f) the employee's notional rate of tax for a year is calculated by dividing the amount determined under paragraph (e) by the amount referred to in the description of A in paragraph (c) in respect of that employee and expressed as a decimal fraction rounded to the nearest hundredth, or where the third digit is equidistant from two consecutive one-thousandths, to the higher thereof;

(g) the amount to be deducted or withheld in respect of any payment made to that employee shall be determined by multiplying the payment by the appropriate decimal fraction determined pursuant to paragraph (f).

Remission Orders: Income Earned in Quebec Income Tax Remission Order, P.C. 1989-1204 (reduction in withholdings for certain income related to Quebec).

(2) [Bonus] — Where a payment in respect of a bonus is made by an employer to an employee whose total remuneration from the employer (including the bonus) may reasonably be expected to exceed $5,000 in the taxation year of the employee in which the payment is made, the amount to be deducted or withheld therefrom by the employer is

(a) the amount determined under section 102 in respect of an assumed remuneration equal to the aggregate of

(i) the amount of regular remuneration paid by the employer to the employee in the pay period in which the remuneration is paid, and

(ii) an amount equal to the bonus payment divided by the number of pay periods in the taxation year of the employee in which the payment is made

minus

(b) the amount determined under section 102 in respect of the amount of regular remuneration paid by the employer to the employee in the pay period

multiplied by

(c) the number of pay periods in the taxation year of the employee in which the payment is made.

(3) [Retroactive pay increase] — Where a payment in respect of a retroactive increase in remuneration is made by an employer to an employee whose total remuneration from the employer (including the retroactive increase) may reasonably be expected to exceed $5,000 in the taxation year of the employee in which the payment is made, the amount to be deducted or withheld therefrom by the employer is

(a) the amount determined under section 102 in respect of the new rate of remuneration

minus

(b) the amount determined under section 102 in respect of the previous rate of remuneration

multiplied by

(c) the number of pay periods in respect of which the increase in remuneration is retroactive.

(4) [Lump sum payment] — Subject to subsection (5), where a lump sum payment is made by an employer to an employee who is a resident of Canada,

(a) if the payment does not exceed $5,000, the employer shall deduct or withhold therefrom, in the case of an employee who reports for work at an establishment of the employer

(i) in Quebec, 5 per cent,

(ii) in any other province, 7 per cent, or

(iii) in Canada beyond the limits of any province or outside Canada, 10 per cent,

(iv)–(xiv) [Repealed]

of such payment in lieu of the amount determined under section 102;

(b) if the payment exceeds $5,000 but does not exceed $15,000, the employer shall deduct or withhold therefrom, in the case of an employee who reports for work at an establishment of the employer

(i) in Quebec, 10 per cent,

(ii) in any other province, 13 per cent, or

(iii) in Canada beyond the limits of any province or outside Canada, 20 per cent,

(iv)–(xiv) [Repealed]

of such payment in lieu of the amount determined under section 102; and

(c) if the payment exceeds $15,000, the employer shall deduct or withhold therefrom, in the case of an employee who reports for work at an establishment of the employer

(i) in Quebec, 15 per cent,

(ii) in any other province, 20 per cent, or

(iii) in Canada beyond the limits of any province or outside Canada, 30 per cent, of such payment in lieu of the amount determined under section 102.

(iv)–(xiv) [Repealed]

(6) ["Lump sum payment"] — For the purposes of subsection (4), a "lump sum payment" means a payment that is

(a) a payment described in subparagraph 40(1)(a)(i) or (iii) or paragraph 40(1)(c) of the Income Tax Application Rules,

(b) a payment under a deferred profit sharing plan or a plan referred to in section 147 of the Act as a "revoked plan", except a payment referred to in subparagraph 147(2)(k)(v) of the Act,

(c) a payment made during the lifetime of an annuitant referred to in the definition "annuitant" in subsection 146(1) of the Act out of or under a registered retirement savings plan of that annuitant, other than

(i) a periodic annuity payment, or

(ii) a payment made by a person who has reasonable grounds to believe that the payment may be deducted under subsection 146(8.2) of the Act in computing the income of any taxpayer,

(d) a payment out of or under a plan referred to in subsection 146(12) of the Act as an "amended plan" other than

(i) a periodic annuity payment, or

(ii) where paragraph 146(12)(a) of the Act applied to the plan after May 25, 1976, a payment made in a year subsequent to the year in which that paragraph applied to the plan,

(d.1) a payment made during the lifetime of an annuitant referred to in the definition "annuitant" in subsection 146.3(1) of the Act under a registered retirement income fund of that annuitant, other than a payment to the extent that it is in respect of the minimum amount (within the meaning assigned by subsection 146.3(1) of the Act) under the fund for a year,

(e) a retiring allowance,

(f) a payment of an amount as, on account or in lieu of payment of, or in satisfaction of, proceeds of the surrender, cancellation or redemption of an income-averaging annuity contract, or

(g) a payment described in paragraph (n) of the definition "remuneration" in subsection 100(1).

(3) [Home Buyers' Plan] — No amount shall be deducted or withheld from a payment made by a person during the lifetime of an annuitant referred to in paragraph (a) of the definition "annuitant" in subsection 146(1) of the Act out of or under a registered retirement savings plan of the annuitant where, at the time of the payment, the annuitant has certified in prescribed form to the person that

(a) a written agreement has been entered into to acquire a home by either

(i) the annuitant, or

(ii) a disabled person who is related to the annuitant and who is entitled to the credit for mental or physical impairment under subsection 118.3 (1) of the Act;

(b) the annuitant intends that the home be used as a principal place of residence in Canada for the annuitant or the disabled person, as the case may be, within one year after its acquisition;

(c) the home has not been previously owned by the annuitant, the annuitant's spouse or common-law partner, the disabled person or the spouse or common-law partner of that person;

(d) the annuitant was resident in Canada;

(e) the total amount of the payment and all other such payments received by the annuitant in respect of the home at or before the time of payment does not exceed $20,000;

(f) except where the annuitant certifies that he or she is a disabled person entitled to the credit for mental or physical impairment under subsection 118.3(1) of the Act or certifies that the payment is being withdrawn for the benefit of such a disabled person, the annuitant is a qualifying homebuyer at the time of the certification; and

(g) where the annuitant has withdrawn an eligible amount, within the meaning assigned by subsection 146.01(1) of the Act, before the calendar year of the certification, the total of all eligible amounts received by the annuitant before that calendar year does not exceed the total of all amounts previously designated under subsection 146.01(3) of the Act or included in computing the annuitant's income under subsection 146.01(4) or (5) of the Act.

(2) ["Qualifying educational program"] — For the purpose of subsection (1), a "qualifying educational program" means a qualifying educational program at a designated educational institution (as those expressions are defined in subsection 118.6(1) of the Act), except that a reference to a "qualifying educational program" shall be read

(a) without reference to paragraphs (a) and (b) of that definition; and

(b) as if the reference to"3 consecutive weeks" in that definition were a reference to "3 consecutive months".

History: The word "spouse" replaced with "spouse or common-law partner" in para. 104.1(1)(a), by P.C. 2001-957, para. 14(c), May 31, 2001, Canada Gazette, Part II, June 20, 2001, applicable to 2001 et seq., except that if a taxpayer and a person have jointly elected pursuant to s. 144 of the Modernization of Benefits and Obligations Act (S.C. 2000, c. 12), in respect of the 1998, 1999 or 2000 taxation year, the amendment applies to the taxpayer and the person in respect of the applicable taxation year et seq.

S. 104.1 added by P.C. 1998-2256, s. 2, December 16, 1998, Canada Gazette, Part II, January 6, 1999, applicable to payments made after 1998.

105. Non-residents — (1) Every person paying to a non-resident person a fee, commission or other amount in respect of services rendered in Canada, of any nature whatever, shall deduct or withhold 15 per cent of such payment.

(2) Subsection (1) does not apply to a payment described in the definition "remuneration" in subsection 100(1).

Proposed Amendment — Reg. 105(2)

(2) Subsection (1) does not apply to a payment

(a) described in the definition "remuneration" in subsection 100(1); or

(b) made to a registered non-resident insurer (within the meaning assigned by section 804) or to an authorized foreign bank.

Application: The February 13, 2003 draft regulations (foreign bank branches), s. 1, (pre-published in the Canada Gazette, Part I, February 15, 2003), will amend subsec. 105(2) to read as above, applicable after June 27, 1999.

Regulatory Impact Analysis Statement: Subsection 105(2) excludes certain payments from the withholding requirement under Part I of the Act. This subsection is amended to exclude payments made to an authorized foreign bank and a registered non-resident insurer.

Letter from Dept. of Finance, Nov. 19, 2001:

Dear [xxx]:

I am writing in reply to your fax letter of October 17, 2001 to Joseph Lam of this Division, regarding the income taxation of foreign bank branches, particularly under Income Tax Regulation 105. That provision requires tax to be withheld from amounts paid to a non-resident in respect of services.

In your letter, you explain that your client currently operates in Canada through a wholly owned subsidiary and renders services to its customers in Canada. Also, your client is in the process of establishing an "authorized foreign bank" (the "Branch") within the meaning of subsection 248(1) of the Income Tax Act. You are concerned that after the establishment of the Branch the application of Regulation 105 would require substantial revision of the existing service agreements of your clients, which is a prohibitively expensive exercise. You further explain that effective January 1, 2002 your client will make periodic instalment payments with respect to its Part I tax liabilities and will maintain a significant presence in Canada.

Therefore, you request confirmation (a) that Regulation 105(1) is not intended to apply to authorized foreign banks and (b) that our Department will introduce amendments to explicitly provide that no withholding is required.

In response to your request, we would like to explain that Regulation 105 in its present form applies to all payments for services paid to non-residents. However, we recognize that such a withholding requirement under Regulation 105 is excessive in the case of authorized foreign banks. Therefore, it is our general intention to propose to moderate the requirements. Although the details of any proposals remain to be determined, they should generally provide exemption to the resident payer from the withholding obligation. It is also our intention to recommend that the changes be effective after June 27, 1999 coinciding with the other aspects of the taxation rules of authorized foreign bank.

While our views on this issue are subject to further refinement and I can offer no assurance that the Minister will accept our recommendations, we expect that measures along the lines I have described will be included in the next package of draft income tax technical amendments.

I trust that the above will satisfy your requirements.

Yours sincerely,

Brian Ernewein, Director, Tax Legislation Division, Tax Policy Branch

Letter from Dept. of Finance, Oct. 23, 2001:

Dear [xxx]:

I am writing in reply to your letter of October 10, 2001 to Joseph Lam of this Division, regarding the income taxation of foreign bank branches, particularly under Income Tax Regulation 105. That provision requires tax to be withheld from amounts paid to a non-resident in respect of services.

In your letter, you express your concerns that the withholding obligation in Regulation 105 is inequitable and results in financial hardship to your client. You explain that the fees being paid are earned in the Canadian banking business of your client, in respect of which your client makes regular tax instalments, and the additional withholding burden would adversely impact the cash flows of your client. As a result, you request legislative relief to address this type of situation and a comfort letter that our Department intends to recommend that this legislation be retroactive to the business commencement date of a foreign bank branch.

In response to your representation, we recognize that the current withholding requirement under Regulation 105 is probably excessive from a policy perspective. Therefore, it is our general intention to propose to moderate the requirements. Although the details of any proposals remain to be determined, they should generally provide exemption to the resident payer from the withholding obligation. It is also our intention to recommend that the changes be effective after June 27, 1999, which coincides with the other aspects of the taxation rules of authorized foreign banks.

While our views on this issue are subject to further refinement and I can offer no assurance that the Minister will accept our recommendations, we expect that measures along the lines I have described will be included in the next package of draft income tax technical amendments.

I trust that the above will satisfy your requirements.

Yours sincerely,

Brian Ernewein, Director, Tax Legislation Division, Tax Policy Branch

105.1 Fishermen's election — (1) Notwithstanding section 100, in this section,

"amount of remuneration" paid to a fisherman means

(a) where a boat crewed by one or more fishermen engaged in making a catch is owned, together with the gear, by a person, other than a member of the crew, to whom the catch is to be delivered for subsequent sale or other disposition, such portion of the proceeds from the disposition of the catch that is payable to the fisherman in accordance with an arrangement under which the proceeds of disposition of the catch are to be distributed (in this section referred to as a "share arrangement");

(b) where the boat or gear used in making a catch is owned or leased by a fisherman who alone or with another individual engaged under a contract of service makes the catch, such portion of the proceeds from the disposition of the catch that remains after deducting therefrom

(i) the amount in respect of any portion of the catch not caught by the fisherman or the other individual,

(ii) the amount payable to the other individual under the contract of service, and

(iii) the amount of such proportionate share of the catch as is attributable to the expenses of the operation of the boat or its gear pursuant to their share arrangement;

(c) where a crew includes the owner of the boat or gear (in this paragraph referred to as the "owner") and any other fisherman engaged in making a catch, such portion of the proceeds from the disposition of the catch that remains after deducting therefrom

(i) in the case of an owner,

(A) the amount in respect of that portion of the catch not caught by the crew or an owner,

(B) the aggregate of all amounts each of which is an amount payable to a crew member (other than the owner) pursuant to their share arrangement or to an individual engaged under a contract of service, and

(C) the amount of such proportionate share of the catch as is attributable to the expenses of the owner's operation of the boat or its gear pursuant to their share arrangement, or

(ii) in the case of any other crew member, such proceeds from the disposition of the catch as is payable to him in accordance with their share arrangement; or

(d) in any other case, the proceeds of disposition of the catch payable to the fisherman;

"catch" means a catch of shell fish, crustaceans, aquatic animals or marine plants caught or taken from any body of water;

"crew" means one or more fishermen engaged in making a catch;

"fisherman" means an individual engaged in making a catch other than under a contract of service.

(2) Every person paying at any time in a taxation year an amount of remuneration to a fisherman who, pursuant to paragraph 153(1)(n) of the Act, has elected for the year in prescribed form in respect of all such amounts shall deduct or withhold 20% of each such amount paid to the fisherman while the election is in force.

(1.1) [Payment to non-resident actor — NR4] — Every person who pays or credits an amount, or provides a benefit to or on behalf of a person who is either a non-resident individual who is an actor or that is a corporation related to such an individual, for the provision in Canada of acting services of the actor in a film or video production, shall, in addition to any other return required by the Act or these Regulations, make an information return in prescribed form in respect of such payment, credit or benefit.

Related Provisions: ITA 215(5.1)–(5.2) — Withholding tax.

History: Subsec. 202(1.1) added by P.C. 2005-694, s. 1, May 3, 2005, Canada Gazette, Part II, May 18, 2005, in force May 18, 2005.

(2) [Various payments to non-residents] — Every person resident in Canada who pays or credits, or is deemed by Part I or Part XIII of the Act to pay or credit, to a non-resident person an amount as, on account or in lieu of payment of, or in satisfaction of,

(a) a payment of a superannuation or pension benefit,

(b) a payment of any allowance or benefit described in any of subparagraphs 56(1)(a)(ii) to (vi) of the Act,

(c) a payment by a trustee under a registered supplementary unemployment benefit plan,

(d) a payment out of or under a registered retirement savings plan or a plan referred to in subsection 146(12) of the Act as an amended plan,

(e) a payment under a deferred profit sharing plan or a plan referred to in subsection 147(15) of the Act as a revoked plan,

(f) a payment under an income-averaging annuity contract, any proceeds of the surrender, cancellation, redemption, sale or other disposition of an income-averaging annuity contract, or any amount deemed by subsection 61.1(1) of the Act to have been received by the non-resident person as proceeds of the disposition of an income-averaging annuity contract,

(g) an annuity payment not described in any other paragraph of this subsection or subsection (1),

(h) a payment or a portion thereof, to which paragraph 212(1)(p) of the Act applies, out of or under a fund, plan, or trust that was on December 31, 1985 a registered home ownership savings plan (within the meaning assigned by paragraph 146.2(1)(h) of the Act as it read in its application to the 1985 taxation year),

Proposed Amendment — Reg. 202(2)(h)

(h) a payment to which paragraph 212(1)(p) of the Act applies,

Application: Bill C-10 (First Reading Feb. 6, 2009), s. 83, will amend para. 202(2)(h) to read as above, applicable to 2009 et seq.

Technical Notes (Dec. 2008): Section 202 provides rules setting out the circumstances under which information returns are required in connection with payments to non-residents. Paragraph 202(2)(h) requires the filing of a return in connection with payments made to non-residents out of a registered home ownership savings plan (RHOSP).

With the elimination of RHOSPs in 1986, paragraph 202(2)(h) is now obsolete and is repealed. In its place, new paragraph 202(2)(h) is introduced to require an issuer of a trusteed tax-free savings account (TFSA) who makes a payment of a taxable amount under paragraph 212(1)(p) of the Act to a non-resident beneficiary of the trust, after the death of the holder of the TFSA and before the end of the tax-exempt period, to file an information return reporting the amount.

(i) a payment out of or under a registered retirement income fund,

(j) a payment that is or that would be, if paragraph 212(1)(r) of the Act were read without reference to subparagraph 212(1)(r)(ii), a payment described in that paragraph in respect of a registered education savings plan,

(k) a grant under a program prescribed for the purposes of paragraph 212(1)(s) of the Act,

(l) a payment described in paragraph 212(1)(j) of the Act in respect of a retirement compensation arrangement, or

(m) a payment described in paragraph 212(1)(v) of the Act, shall, in addition to any other return required by the Act or these Regulations, make an information return in prescribed form in respect of such amount.

(4) [Non-resident payer deemed resident in Canada] — A non-resident person who is deemed, under subsection 212(13) of the Act, to be a person resident in Canada for the purposes of section 212 of the Act shall be deemed, in the same circumstances, to be a person resident in Canada for the purposes of subsections (1) and (2).

(5) [Partnership payer deemed resident in Canada] — A partnership that is deemed, under paragraph 212(13.1)(a) of the Act, to be a person resident in Canada for the purposes of Part XIII of the Act shall be deemed, in the same circumstances, to be a person resident in Canada for the purposes of subsections (1) and (2).

(6) [Non-resident payer carrying on business in Canada] — A non-resident person who is deemed, under subsection 212(13.2) of the Act, to be a person resident in Canada for the purposes of Part XIII of the Act shall be deemed, in the same circumstances, to be a person resident in Canada for the purposes of subsections (1) and (2).

(7) [Filing deadline] — Subject to subsection (8), an information return required under this section shall be filed on or before March 31 and shall be in respect of the preceding calendar year.

Related Provisions: ITA 162(7.01) — Penalty for late filing.

(8) [Filing deadline — trust or estate] — Where an amount referred to in subsection (1) or (2) is income of or from an estate or trust, the information return required under this section in respect thereof shall be filed within 90 days from the end of the taxation year of the estate or trust in which the amount was paid or credited and shall be in respect of that taxation year.

Related Provisions: ITA 162(7.01) — Penalty for late filing.

Interpretation Bulletins: IT-531: Eligible funeral arrangements.

(3) [Exceptions] — Subsection (1) does not require a trust to make a return for a taxation year at the end of which it is

(a) governed by a deferred profit sharing plan or by a plan referred to in subsection 147(15) of the Act as a revoked plan;

(b) governed by an employees profit sharing plan;

(c) a registered charity;

(d) governed by an eligible funeral arrangement;

(d.1) a cemetery care trust; or

(e) governed by a registered education savings plan.

Proposed Addition — Reg. 204(3)(f)

(f) governed by a TFSA or by an arrangement that is deemed by paragraph 146.2(9)(a) of the Act to be a TFSA.

Application: Bill C-10 (First Reading Feb. 6, 2009), s. 84, will add para. 204(3)(f), applicable to 2009 et seq.

Technical Notes (Dec. 2008): Section 204 generally requires that a person receiving income, gains or profits in a fiduciary capacity file an information return in respect of such amounts within 90 days from the end of the taxation year in which the amounts arose.

Paragraph 204(3)(f) is added so that this requirement does not apply to a trust governed by a tax-free savings account (TFSA) or by an arrangement that is deemed by paragraph 146.2(9)(a) of the Act to be a TFSA. TFSA trusts are required to file information returns under the reporting rules in section 223 that apply specifically to TFSA issuers.

If a trust governed by a former TFSA continues to exist after the tax-exempt period provided under paragraph 146.2(9)(a), the filing exclusion would no longer apply and thus the trust would be required to begin filing regular trust returns under section 204.

204.1 (1) Interpretation — The following definitions apply in this section.

"public investment trust", at any time, means a public trust all or substantially all of the fair market value of the property of which is, at that time, attributable to the fair market value of property of the trust that is

(a) units of public trusts;

(b) partnership interests in public partnerships (as defined in subsection 229.1(1));

(c) shares of the capital stock of public corporations; or

(d) any combination of properties referred to in paragraphs (a) to (c).

"public trust", at any time, means a mutual fund trust the units of which are, at that time, listed on a designated stock exchange in Canada.

(2) Required information disclosure — A trust that is, at any time in a taxation year of the trust, a public trust shall, within the time required by subsection (3),

(a) make public, in prescribed form, information in respect of the trust for the taxation year by posting that prescribed form, in a manner that is accessible to the general public, on the Internet website of CDS Innovations Inc.; and

(b) notify the Minister in writing as to when the posting of the prescribed form, as required by paragraph (a), has been made.

Related Provisions: Reg. 229.1(2) — Parallel rule for public partnerships.

(3) Required disclosure time — The time required for a public trust to satisfy the requirements of subsection (2) in respect of the public trust for a taxation year of the public trust is

(a) subject to paragraph (b), on or before the day that is 60 days after the end of the taxation year; and

(b) where the public trust is, at any time in the taxation year, a public investment trust, on or before the day that is 67 days after the end of the calendar year in which the taxation year ends.

History: S. 204.1 added by 2007, c. 35, s. 72, applicable to information in respect of taxation years that end after July 3, 2007.

205. Date returns to be filed — (1) All returns required under this Part shall be filed with the Minister without notice or demand and, unless otherwise specifically provided, on or before the last day of February in each year and shall be in respect of the preceding calendar year.

Related Provisions: ITA 162(7.01) — Penalty for late filing; Reg. 202(7), (8), 203(2), 204(2), 205(2) — Exceptions.

(2) [Where business discontinued] — Where a person who is required to make a return under this Part discontinues his business or activity, the return shall be filed within 30 days of the day of the discontinuance of the business or activity and shall be in respect of any calendar year or a portion thereof prior to the discontinuance of the business or activity for which a return has not previously been filed.

Definitions [Reg. 205]: "business" — ITA 248(1); "calendar year" — Interpretation Act 37(1)(a); "Minister", "person" — ITA 248(1).

205.1 Electronic filing — A person who is required to make an information return under this Part, or who files an information return on behalf of a person who is required to make an information return under this Part, shall file the information return with the Minister in an electronic format if more than 500 such returns are to be filed for the calendar year.

Proposed Amendment — Reg. 205.1 [temporary]

205.1 Electronic filing — (1) A person who is required to make an information return under this Part, or who files an information return on behalf of a person who is required to make an information return under this Part, shall transmit the information return to the Minister in the prescribed electronic form if more than 500 information returns are to be filed by that person for the calendar year.

(2) Every transmission referred to in subsection (1) shall include, in the prescribed electronic form, a summary of the information returns contained in the transmission.

(3) For the purposes of subsections 162(7) to (8) of the Act, failure to make a transmission as required by subsections (1) and (2) is deemed to be failure to file an information return as and when required by the Act or these Regulations.

Application: The May 2, 2005 draft regulations (pre-published in Canada Gazette, Part I, May 7, 2005), s. 1, will amend s. 215.1 to read as above, applicable to 2001 et seq.

Regulatory Impact Analysis Statement: Section 205.1 was added to the Income Tax Regulations (the Regulations) in 1999. Until 2001, as a transitional measure, the Canada Revenue Agency (CRA) did not issue penalties for the failure to comply with this new requirement. In 2001, taxpayers were notified that the penalties provided for in subsection 162(7) of the Income Tax Act (the Act) would be applied for the failure to file these large returns electronically.

At that time, and for the first time, CRA officials realized that a strict interpretation of the provisions of section 205.1, taken with the penalty provisions of subsection 162(7) of the Act, would result in the imposition of minimum penalties of $5,000 per day, to a maximum of $1.25 million, for the failure by a taxpayer to file returns electronically.

Owing to the obvious excess of this penalty, the CRA limited the penalty to $100 per day, to a maximum of $2,500, by characterizing the transmission itself as one information return and applying the provisions of subsection 162(7) against that return. This penalty reduction was made using the authority of the Minister to waive all or part of a penalty, as set out in subsection 220(3.1) of the Act.

This amendment to section 205.1 will make it clear in law that the "failure" that will attract a penalty is the failure to file the "package" of returns electronically; it is not the failure to file each of the individual information returns included in the package.

Alternatives

No alternative was considered to these amendments.

This is the only manner in which the Regulations can be amended to address the unintended consequence of the failure to comply with section 205.1.

Benefits and costs

There are no costs of these amendments to taxpayers, tax practitioners or the CCRA.

Taxpayers will benefit, as this amendment clarifies the original intent of the CRA with respect to a failure to comply with section 205.1. Taxpayers will also benefit since the "reduced penalty" will no longer be subject to the discretionary application of a Ministerial waiver.

Proposed Amendment — Reg. 205.1 — Mandatory electronic filing where 50 slips or more

Federal Budget, Supplementary Information, Jan. 27, 2009: Mandatory filing of return by electronic transmission

(21) That, for information returns that are prescribed for the purposes of this paragraph and required to be filed after 2009, the Act be amended to provide that every person (other than a registered charity) or partnership who fails to file such an information return when required by the Act or the Income Tax Regulations is liable to a penalty of the greater of

(a) $100; and

(b) where the taxpayer is required to file on a day one or more such information returns and the number of those information returns of a particular type so required to be filed is

(i) less than 51, $10 for each day during which the failure continues, not exceeding 100 days,

(ii) more than 50 but less than 501, $15 for each day during which the failure continues, not exceeding 100 days,

(iii) more than 500 but less than 2,501, $25 for each day during which the failure continues, not exceeding 100 days,

(iv) more than 2,500 but less than 10,001, $50 for each day during which the failure continues, not exceeding 100 days, and

(v) more than 10,000, $75 for each day during which the failure continues, not exceeding 100 days.

(22) That for information returns that are prescribed for the purposes of this paragraph and required to be filed electronically after 2009, the Act be amended to provide that every person (other than a registered charity) or partnership who fails to file such an information return by way of electronic filing is liable to a penalty of, where the number of those information returns of a particular type so required to be filed is

(a) more than 50 but less than 251, $250;

(b) more than 250 but less than 501, $500;

(c) more than 500 but less than 2,501, $1500; and

(d) more than 2500, $2,500.

Federal Budget, Supplementary Information, Jan. 27, 2009: Mandatory Electronic Filing

Taxpayers are currently allowed to file their income tax information with the CRA in electronic format if they meet certain criteria acceptable to the CRA. The CRA will increase efficiencies in the implementation of its programs by requiring such electronic filing in certain circumstances. . . .

[Mandatory electronic filing of certain corporate tax returns — see under ITA 150.1(2) — ed.]

Second, the number of any particular type of income tax information return that can be filed by a taxpayer before the taxpayer is, under an existing income tax provision [Reg. 205.1(1) — ed.], required to file those information returns electronically, will be reduced to 50 from 500. This measure will most often apply in practice in respect of T4 information returns for employment income. [This change does not appear in the Notice of Ways and Means Motion above because it will amend the Regulations; the NWMM describes only changes to the Act — ed.]

This measure will apply in respect of information returns required to be filed after 2009.

Penalties

In addition to the new electronic filing requirements described above, Budget 2009 proposes to introduce a penalty for filing a corporate income tax return in an incorrect format, and to reduce the penalties applicable for late filed or incorrectly filed information returns....

[Penalty for corporations that do not file electronically — see under ITA 150.1(2) — ed.]

Penalty for Filing Information Returns Late or in an Incorrect Format

There is an existing penalty [ITA 162(7) — ed.] that has general application to taxpayers who fail to comply with any duties and obligations imposed under the Income Tax Act, including those who fail to file information returns as and when required. This penalty is calculated as the greater of $100 per failure and $25 times the number of days, not exceeding 100, during which the failure continues. This penalty can be excessive in cases where a large number of similar returns are required to be filed, but are filed late. Under the current rules, for example, an employer who filed 500 T4 information returns one day late would be liable to a penalty of $50,000.

This penalty will be reduced, so that taxpayers who fail to file electronically under the electronic information return requirements, or who file information returns late, are not unduly penalized. The penalties will be calculated based on the number of any particular type of information return that is filed in the incorrect format or that is filed late.

For information returns that are filed in the incorrect format, the penalty is proposed to be set at the following amounts:

- $250 — where the taxpayer is required to file more than 50 but less than 251 returns;
- $500 — where the taxpayer is required to file more than 250 but less than 501 returns;
- $1,500 — where the taxpayer is required to file more than 500 but less than 2,501 returns; and
- $2,500 — where the taxpayer is required to file more than 2,500 returns.

For information returns that are filed late, the penalty is proposed to be set at the greater of $100 and the following amounts:

- $10 per day — where the taxpayer is required to file less than 51 returns;
- $15 per day — where the taxpayer is required to file more than 50 but less than 501 returns;
- $25 per day — where the taxpayer is required to file more than 500 but less than 2,501 returns;
- $50 per day — where the taxpayer is required to file more than 2,500 but less than 10,001 returns; and
- $75 per day — where the taxpayer is required to file more than 10,000 returns.

The penalty for late-filed information returns will be limited to 100 days, meaning that it will be capped at between $1,000 and $7,500 (depending on the number of returns that are required to be filed).

These penalties will apply to information returns required to be filed after 2009.

Related Provisions: ITA 162(7) — Penalty for failure to comply; ITA 162(7.02) — Penalty for failure to file electronically; ITA 244(22) — Electronic filing permitted.

214.1 [RRSP contributions — annual return] — (1) The issuer of a registered retirement savings plan shall make an information return in prescribed form in respect of the amounts that have been paid by the annuitant, or by the spouse or common-law partner of the annuitant, under the plan in a contribution year

(a) as consideration for any contract referred to in paragraph (a) of the definition "retirement savings plan" in subsection 146(1) of the Act to pay a retirement income; or

(b) as a contribution or deposit referred to in paragraph (b) of that definition for the purpose stated in that paragraph.

(2) For greater certainty and for the purposes of subsection (1), amounts that have been paid do not include amounts that have been paid or transferred under the plan in accordance with subsection 146(16) of the Act, or those that have been transferred under the plan in accordance with any of subsections 146(21), 146.3(14), 147(19) or 147.3(1), (4) or (5) to (7) of the Act.

(3) The return shall be filed with the Minister on or before the 1st day of May of the year in which the contribution year ends and shall be in respect of the contribution year.

(4) The following definitions apply in this section.

"contribution year" means the period beginning on 61st day of one year and ending on the 60th day of the following year.

"issuer" has the same meaning as in subsection 146(1) of the Act, with any modifications that the circumstances require.

History: S. 2141.1 added by P.C. 2005-694, s. 2, May 3, 2005, Canada Gazette, Part II, May 18, 2005, applicable to payments or transfers received after March 1, 2004, by the issuers of registered retirement saving plans.

Definitions [Reg. 214.1]: "amount" — ITA 248(1); "contribution year", "issuer" — Reg. 214.1(3); "Minister", "prescribed" — ITA 248(1); "registered retirement savings plan" — ITA 146(1), 248(1).

215. Registered retirement income funds — (1) In this section, "annuitant" and "carrier" have the meanings assigned by subsection 146.3(1) of the Act.

Proposed Amendment — Reg. 221(2)

Application: Bill C-10 (First Reading Feb. 6, 2009), s. 88, will amend subsec. 221(2) to substitute "204, 205 or 207.01" for "204 or 205", applicable to 2009 et seq.

Technical Notes (Dec. 2008): Subsection 221(2) requires any of certain types of corporations and trusts to file an information return whenever the corporation or trust claims that its shares or units are a qualified investment for registered retirement savings plans (RRSPs) or other registered plans.

Subsection 221(2) is amended to extend the requirement for filing an information return to a corporation or a trust that claims that its shares or units are a qualified investment for tax-free savings accounts (TFSAs). This amendment, which applies to the 2009 and subsequent taxation years, is consequential on the introduction of TFSAs.

Related Provisions: Reg. 205.1 — Electronic filing required if more than 500 returns.

History: S. 222 repealed by P.C. 2000-183, s. 1, February 17, 2000, Canada Gazette, Part II, March 1, 2000, applicable to taxation years beginning after 1995.

223. Registered home ownership savings plans — (1) Every person who, before May 23, 1985, pays an amount out of or under a registered home ownership savings plan to a resident of Canada as a beneficiary under the plan shall make an information return in prescribed form.

History: Subsec. 223(1) substituted by P.C. 1986-1103, subsec. 2(1), May 8, 1986, Canada Gazette, Part II, May 28, 1986.

Subsec. 223(1) substituted by P.C. 1983-3585, subsec. 6(1), November 17, 1983, Canada Gazette, Part II, November 24, 1983.

(2) Every trustee or depositary that is party to a registered home ownership savings plan the registration of which is revoked during a taxation year pursuant to subsection 146.2(7) or (7.1) of the Act shall make an information return in prescribed form with respect to any amount that is deemed by subsection 146.2(8) of the Act to have been received by the beneficiary of that plan.

History: Subsec. 223(2) substituted by P.C. 1983-3585, subsec. 6(1), November 17, 1983, Canada Gazette, Part II, November 24, 1983.

(3) Every trustee or depositary that is party to a registered home ownership savings plan, the beneficiary of which is a resident of Canada and has been deemed by subsection 146.2(9) of the Act to have received an amount during a taxation year and before May 23, 1985, shall make an information return in prescribed form.

History: Subsec. 223(3) substituted by P.C. 1986-1103, subsec. 2(2), May 8, 1986, Canada Gazette, Part II, May 28, 1986.

Subsec. 223(3) substituted by P.C. 1983-3585, subsec. 6(1), November 17, 1983, Canada Gazette, Part II, November 24, 1983.

(3.1) Every trustee or depositary that, after May 22, 1985 and before 1986, was a party to a registered home ownership savings plan, any of the income of which is required by subsection 146.2(22) of the Act to be included in computing the income of a taxpayer for the 1985 taxation year, shall make an information return in prescribed form.

History: Subsec. 223(3.1) added by P.C. 1986-1103, subsec. 2(2), May 8, 1986, Canada Gazette, Part II, May 28, 1986.

(4) Every trustee of a trust governed by a registered home ownership savings plan shall make an information return in prescribed form, where in a taxation year a taxpayer who is a beneficiary under the plan

(a) is required pursuant to subsection 146.2(12) or (15) of the Act to include an amount in computing his income; or

(b) is allowed pursuant to subsection 146.2(13) or (16) of the Act to deduct an amount in computing his income.

(5) In this section

"beneficiary" has the meaning assigned by paragraph 146.2(1)(a) of the Act as it read in its application to the 1985 taxation year;

"depositary" has the meaning assigned by subparagraph 146.2(1)(d)(ii) of the Act as it read in its application to the 1985 taxation year;

"registered home ownership savings plan" has the meaning assigned by paragraph 146.2(1)(h) of the Act as it read in its application to the 1985 taxation year.

History: The definitions "beneficiary" and "depositary" substituted and "registered home ownership savings plan" added by P.C. 1986-1103, subsec. 2(3), May 8, 1986, Canada Gazette, Part II, May 28, 1986.

Subsec. 223(5) added by P.C. 1983-3585, subsec. 6(2), November 17, 1983, Canada Gazette, Part II, November 24, 1983.

Proposed Amendment — Reg. 223

223. TFSAs — (1) An issuer of a TFSA shall make an information return for each calendar year in prescribed form in respect of the TFSA.

(2) An issuer of a TFSA who makes a payment of an amount that is required because of paragraph 146.2(9)(b) of the Act to be included in computing the income of a taxpayer for a taxation year shall make an information return in prescribed form.

Related Provisions: Reg. 209 — Two copies to be sent (or one emailed) to taxpayer.

(3) An issuer of a TFSA that governs a trust shall notify the holder of the TFSA in prescribed form and manner before March of a calendar year if, at any time during the preceding calendar year,

(a) the trust acquires or disposes of property that is a non-qualified investment for the trust; or

(b) property held by the trust becomes or ceases to be a non-qualified investment for the trust.

Application: Bill C-10 (First Reading Feb. 6, 2009), s. 89, will replace s. 223 with the above, applicable to 2009 et seq.

Technical Notes (Dec. 2008): Section 223 provides rules setting out the circumstances under which information returns are required in connection with registered home ownership savings plans (RHOSPs).

With the elimination of RHOSPs in 1986, section 223 is now obsolete and is repealed. In its place, new section 223 is introduced to provide reporting rules for issuers of tax-free savings accounts (TFSAs).

New subsection 223(1) requires the issuer of a TFSA (including an arrangement that is deemed to be a TFSA by paragraph 146.2(9)(a) of the Act) to file an annual information return in respect of the TFSA. The return is required to be filed on or before the last day of February of the following calendar year (by virtue of existing subsection 205(1)).

This information contained in the return will be used for calculating TFSA contribution room, identifying TFSA overcontributions and other potential non-compliance situations, and collecting statistical information for program evaluation.

New subsection 223(2) requires an issuer of a trusteed TFSA who, after the death of the holder of the TFSA and before the end of the tax-exempt period, makes a payment from the trust of an amount that is taxable under paragraph 146.2(9)(b) of the Act to file an information return reporting the amount. For further details, refer to the commentary on paragraph 146.2(9)(b).

New subsection 223(3) applies if, at any time, a TFSA trust acquires or disposes of a non-qualified investment or property held by a TFSA trust becomes or ceases to be a non-qualified investment. Subsection 223(3) requires the issuer of the TFSA to so notify the holder of the TFSA in prescribed form and manner on or before the last day of February of the following year. This notification requirement is intended to ensure that the holder is provided with sufficient information to comply with their tax obligations under Part XI.01 of the Act in connection with the non-qualified investment. It is expected that the issuer will be required to report the same information to the CRA on the TFSA annual information return.

231. Information respecting tax shelters — (1) [Definitions] — In this section, "promoter" in respect of a tax shelter and "tax shelter" have the meanings assigned by subsection 237.1(1) of the Act.

(2)–(5) [Repealed]

(6) [Prescribed benefit] — For the purposes of paragraph (b) of the definition "tax shelter" in subsection 237.1(1) of the Act, "prescribed benefit" in respect of an interest in a property means any amount that may reasonably be expected, having regard to statements or representations made in respect of the interest, to be received or enjoyed by a person (in this subsection referred to as "the purchaser") who acquires the interest, or a person with whom the purchaser does not deal at arm's length, which receipt or enjoyment would have the effect of reducing the impact of any loss that the purchaser may sustain in respect of the interest, and includes such an amount

(a) that is, either immediately or in the future, owed to any other person by the purchaser or a person with whom the purchaser does not deal at arm's length, to the extent that

(i) liability to pay that amount is contingent,

(ii) payment of that amount is or will be guaranteed by, security is or will be provided by, or an agreement to indemnify the other person to whom the amount is owed is or will be entered into by

(A) a promoter in respect of the interest,

(B) a person with whom the promoter does not deal at arm's length, or

(C) a person who is to receive a payment (other than a payment made by the purchaser) in respect of the guarantee, security or agreement to indemnify,

(iii) the rights of that other person against the purchaser, or against a person with whom the purchaser does not deal at arm's length, in respect of the collection of all or part of the purchase price are limited to a maximum amount, are enforceable only against certain property, or are otherwise limited by agreement, or

(iv) payment of that amount is to be made in a foreign currency or is to be determined by reference to its value in a foreign currency and it may reasonably be considered, having regard to the history of the exchange rate between the foreign currency and Canadian currency, that the aggregate of all such payments, when converted to Canadian currency at the exchange rate expected to prevail at the date on which each such payment would be required to be made, will be substantially less than that aggregate would be if each such payment was converted to Canadian currency at the time that each such payment became owing,

(b) that the purchaser or a person with whom the purchaser does not deal at arm's length is entitled at any time to, directly or indirectly, receive or have available

(i) as a form of assistance from a government, municipality or other public authority, whether as a grant, subsidy, forgiveable loan, deduction from tax or investment allowance, or as any other form of assistance, or

(ii) by reason of a revenue guarantee or other agreement in respect of which revenue may be earned by the purchaser or a person with whom the purchaser does not deal at arm's length, to the extent that the revenue guarantee or other agreement may reasonably be considered to ensure that the purchaser or person will receive a return of all or a portion of the purchaser's outlays in respect of the interest,

Proposed Amendment — Reg. 231(6)(b)

Federal budget, Supplementary Information, Feb. 18, 2003: In order to avoid a double counting of tax credits in the formula used to determine if a property or an arrangement is a tax shelter, it is proposed that the definition of "prescribed benefits" in paragraph 231(6)(b) of the Income Tax Regulations be amended to exclude any federal tax credit already taken into account in determining whether tax credits and deductions exceed net cost. Provincial tax credits would continue to be considered prescribed benefits.

[The rest of this proposal was enacted; see ITA 237.1(1)"gifting arrangement" and "tax shelter" — ed.]

(c) that is the proceeds of disposition to which the purchaser may be entitled by way of an agreement or other arrangement under which the purchaser has a right, either absolutely or contingently, to dispose of the interest (otherwise than as a consequence of the purchaser's death), including the fair market value of any property that the agreement or arrangement provides for the acquisition of in exchange for all or any part of the interest, and

(d) that is owed to a promoter, or a person with whom the promoter does not deal at arm's length, by the purchaser or a person with whom the purchaser does not deal at arm's length in respect of the interest, but, except as otherwise provided in subparagraph (b)(ii), does not include profits earned in respect of the interest.

Related Provisions: ITA 261(5)(f)(i) — Functional currency reporting — meaning of "Canadian currency" in Reg. 231(6)(a)(iv); Reg. 231(6.1) — Inclusion of certain limited-recourse amounts.

(6.1) [Prescribed benefit] — For the purpose of paragraph (b) of the definition "tax shelter" in subsection 237.1(1) of the Act, "prescribed benefit" in respect of an interest in a property includes an amount that is a limited-recourse amount because of subsection 143.2(1), (7) or (13) of the Act, but does not include an amount of indebtedness that is a limited-recourse amount

(a) solely because it is not required to be repaid within 10 years from the time the indebtedness arose where the debtor would, if the interest were acquired by the debtor immediately after that time, be

(i) a partnership

(A) at least 90% of the fair market value of the property of which is attributable to the partnership's tangible capital property located in Canada, and

(B) at least 90% of the value of all interests in which are held by limited partners (within the meaning assigned by subsection 96(2.4) of the Act) of the partnership, except where it is reasonable to conclude that one of the main reasons for the acquisition of one or more properties by the partnership, or for the acquisition of one or more interests in the partnership by limited partners, is to avoid the application of this subsection, or

(ii) a member of a partnership having fewer than six members, except where

(A) the partnership is a member of another partnership,

(B) there is a limited partner (within the meaning assigned by subsection 96(2.4) of the Act) of the partnership,

(C) less than 90% of the fair market value of the partnership's property is attributable to the partnership's tangible capital property located in Canada, or

(D) it is reasonable to conclude that one of the main reasons for the existence of one of two or more partnerships, one of which is the partnership, or the acquisition of one or more properties by the partnership, is to avoid the application of this section to the member's indebtedness,

(b) of a partnership

(i) where

(A) the indebtedness is secured by and used to acquire the partnership's tangible capital property located in Canada (other than rental property, within the meaning assigned by subsection 1100(14), leasing property, within the meaning assigned by subsection 1100(17), or specified energy property, within the meaning assigned by subsection 1100(25)), and

(B) the person to whom the indebtedness is repayable is a member of the Canadian Payments Association, and

(ii) throughout the period during which any amount is outstanding in respect of the indebtedness,

(A) at least 90% of the fair market value of the property of which is attributable to tangible capital property located in Canada of the partnership,

(B) at least 90% of the value of all interests in which are held by limited partners (within the meaning assigned by subsection 96(2.4) of the Act) that are corporations, and

(C) the principal business of each such limited partner is related to the principal business of the partnership, except where it is reasonable to conclude that one of the main reasons for the acquisition of one or more properties by the partnership, or for the acquisition of one or more interests in the partnership by limited partners, is to avoid the application of this subsection, or

(c) of a corporation where the amount is a bona fide business loan made to the corporation for the purpose of financing a business that the corporation operates and the loan is made pursuant to a loan program of the Government of Canada or of a province the purpose of which is to extend financing to small- and medium-sized businesses.

(7) [Prescribed property] — For the purposes of the definition "tax shelter" in subsection 237.1(1) of the Act, "prescribed property" in relation to a tax shelter means property that is a registered pension plan, a registered retirement savings plan, a deferred profit sharing plan, a registered retirement income fund, a registered education savings plan or a property in respect of which paragraph 40(2)(i) of the Act is applicable.

300. Capital element of annuity payments — (1) For the purposes of paragraphs 32.1(3)(b) and 60(a) of the Act, where an annuity is paid under a contract (other than an income-averaging annuity contract or an annuity contract purchased pursuant to a deferred profit sharing plan or pursuant to a plan referred to in subsection 147(15) of the Act as a "revoked plan") at a particular time, that part of the annuity payment determined in prescribed manner to be a return of capital is that proportion of a taxpayer's interest in the annuity payment that the adjusted purchase price of the taxpayer's interest in the contract at that particular time is of his interest, immediately before the commencement under the contract of payments to which paragraph 56(1)(d) of the Act applies, in the total of the payments

(a) to be made under the contract, in the case of a contract for a term of years certain; or

(b) expected to be made under the contract, in the case of a contract under which the continuation of the payments depends in whole or in part on the survival of an individual.

History: Subsec. 300(1) substituted by P.C. 1983-3530, subsec. 1(1), November 17, 1983, Canada Gazette, Part II, November 24, 1983, applicable to taxation years commencing after 1982.

Subsec. 300(1) substituted by P.C. 1982-1421, subsec. 1(1), May 13, 1982, Canada Gazette, Part II, May 26, 1982, effective with respect to annuity contracts under which annuity payments commence after 1979 except that in its application to annuity contracts under which payments commence before 1982 it shall be read as follows:

300. (1) For the purposes of paragraphs 32.1(3)(b) and 60(a) of the Act, if an annuity is paid under a contract, the amount deemed to be a return of capital is that proportion of each annuity payment that the consideration for, or purchase price of, the contract is of the total of the payments

(a) to be made under the contract, in the case of a contract for a term of years certain; or

(b) expected to be made, in the case of a contract under which the continuation of the payments depends in whole or in part on the survival of an individual.

(1.1) For the purposes of subsections (1) and (2), "annuity payment" does not include any portion of a payment under a contract the amount of which cannot be reasonably determined immediately before the commencement of payments under the contract except where the payment of such portion cannot be so determined because the continuation of the annuity payments under the contract depends in whole or in part on the survival of an individual.

History: Subsec. 300(1.1) added by P.C. 1982-1421, subsec. 1(1), May 13, 1982, Canada Gazette, Part II, May 26, 1982, effective with respect to annuity contracts under which annuity payments commence after 1981.

(2) For the purposes of this section and section 305,

(a) where the continuance of the annuity payments under any contract depends in whole or in part on the survival of an individual, the total of the payments expected to be made under the contract

(i) shall, in the case of a contract that provides for equal payments and does not provide for a guaranteed period of payment, be equal to the product obtained by multiplying the aggregate of the annuity payments expected to be received throughout a year under the contract by the complete expectations of life using the table of mortality known as the 1971 Individual Annuity Mortality Table as published in Volume XXIII of the Transactions of the Society of Actuaries, or

(ii) shall, in any other case, be calculated in accordance with subparagraph (i) with such modifications as the circumstances may require;

(b) except as provided in subsections (3) and (4), "adjusted purchase price" of a taxpayer's interest in an annuity contract at a particular time means the amount that would be determined at that time in respect of that interest under paragraph 148(9)(a) [148(9)"adjusted cost basis"] of the Act if that paragraph were read without reference to subparagraph (viii) [k] thereof;

(c) where the continuance of the annual payments under any contract depends on the survival of a person, the age of that person on any date as of which a calculation is being made shall be determined by subtracting the calendar year of his birth from the calendar year in which such date occurs; and

(d) where the continuance of the annual payments under any contract depends on the survival of a person, and where, in the event of the death of that person before the annual payments aggregate a stated sum, the contract provides that the unpaid balance of the stated sum shall be paid, either in a lump sum or instalments, then, for the purpose of determining the expected term of the contract, the contract shall be deemed to provide for the continuance of the payments thereunder for a minimum term certain equal to the nearest integral number of years required to complete the payment of the stated sum;

(e) [Revoked]

(3) Where

(a) an annuity contract is a life annuity contract entered into before November 17, 1978 under which the annuity payments commence on the death of an individual,

(a.1) [Revoked]

(b) an annuity contract (other than an annuity contract described in paragraph (a)) is

(i) a life annuity contract entered into before October 23, 1968, or

(ii) any other annuity contract entered into before January 4, 1968, under which the annuity payments commence

(iii) on the expiration of a term of years, and

(iv) before the later of January 1, 1970 or the tax anniversary date of the annuity contract, the adjusted purchase price of a taxpayer's interest in the annuity contract shall be

(c) the lump sum, if any, that the person entitled to the annuity payments might have accepted in lieu thereof, at the date the annuity payments commence;

(d) if no lump sum described in paragraph (c) is provided for in the contract, the sum ascertainable from the contract as the present value of the annuity at the date the annuity payments commence; and

(e) if no lump sum described in paragraph (c) is provided for in the contract and no sum is ascertainable under paragraph (d),

(i) in the case of a contract issued under the Government Annuities Act, the premiums paid, accumulated with interest at the rate of four per cent per annum to the date the annuity payments commence, and

(ii) in the case of any other contract, the present value of the annuity payments at the date on which payments under the contract commence, computed by applying

(A) a rate of interest of four per cent per annum where the payments commence before 1972 and 5½ per cent per annum where the payments commence after 1971, and

(B) the provisions of subsection (2) where the payments depend on the survival of a person.

(4) Where an annuity contract would be described in paragraph (3)(b) if the reference in subparagraph (iv) thereof to "before the later of" were read as a reference to "on or after the later of", the adjusted purchase price of a taxpayer's interest in the annuity contract at a particular time shall be the greater of

(a) the aggregate of

(i) the amount that would be determined in respect of that interest under paragraph (3)(c), (d) or (e), as the case may be, if the date referred to therein was the tax anniversary date of the contract and not the date the annuity payments commence, and

(ii) the adjusted purchase price that would be determined in respect of that interest if the words "and after the tax anniversary date" were inserted in each of subparagraphs 148(9)(a)(i) to (iii.1) and (vi) [148(9)"adjusted cost basis"A to D and H] of the Act immediately following the words "before that time" in each of those subparagraphs; and

301. Life annuity contracts — (1) For the purposes of this Part and section 148 of the Act, "life annuity contract" means any contract under which a person authorized under the laws of Canada or a province to carry on in Canada an annuities business agrees to make annuity payments to an individual (in this section referred to as "the annuitant") or jointly to two or more individuals (each of whom is referred to as "the annuitant" in this section), which payments are, by the terms of the contract,

(a) to be paid annually or at more frequent periodic intervals;

(b) to commence on a specified day; and

(c) to continue throughout the lifetime of the annuitant or one or more of the annuitants.

Proposed Amendment — Life annuity contracts

Letter from Dept. of Finance, Sept. 12, 2002:

Dear [xxx]

This is in reply to your letter dated June 12, 2002 concerning third-party life annuity contracts and the definition of adjusted cost basis (ACB) found in subsection 148(9) of the Income Tax Act (the Act).

In your letter you have recommended that the definition "adjusted cost basis" in subsection 148(9) of the Act be amended to replace the term "life annuity contract" currently found therein with the term "annuity contract". You have indicated that the term "life annuity contract", as defined in subsection 301(1) of the Income Tax Regulations (the Regulations), is overly restrictive because it excludes certain third-party life annuity contracts under which annuity payments are dependent on the life of an individual but the annuitants are either not individuals or are not the individual on whose life the annuity payments are dependent. You have pointed out that subsection 12.2(1) of the Act may inappropriately require an income inclusion in respect of interests in such third-party life annuity contracts because mortality gains and losses affect the determination of the accumulating fund in respect of the interest but not the ACB of the interest.

You have also requested that the amendments be effective for the 1981 and subsequent taxation years (the effective date for subsection 12.2(1)), in order to reflect the historical industry practice which, in your view, provides the appropriate tax result.

We agree with your conclusion that the definition "life annuity contract" in subsection 301(1) is overly restrictive and can result in inappropriate income inclusions under subsection 12.2(1) of the Act. We do, however, envision a different solution to this issue than that which you have suggested. In particular, we propose to recommend to the Minister of Finance that the definition "life annuity contract" in subsection 301(1) of the Regulations be amended to include life annuity contracts under which the annuitant is a partnership or a person as well as life annuity contracts under which the annuity payments are based on the life of an individual who is not the annuitant. We also propose to recommend to the Minister of Finance that the proposed amendments to the definition "life annuity contract" in subsection 301(1) of the Regulations be made applicable to taxation years that end after 1996. However, in calculating the adjusted cost basis to a policyholder of the policyholder's interest in a life insurance policy for taxation years that end after 1996, the proposed amendments will be made applicable, for the purposes of applying the definition "adjusted cost basis" in subsection 148(9) of the Act, to taxation years that end after 1980.

If the recommendation is accepted we will begin the process of submitting the amendments to the Income Tax Regulations for approval and promulgation.

Thank you for bringing this matter to our attention.

Yours sincerely,

Len Farber
General Director, Tax Legislation Division, Tax Policy Branch

History: All that portion of subsec. 301(1) preceding para. (a) substituted by P.C. 1983-3530, s. 2, November 17, 1983, Canada Gazette, Part II, November 24, 1983, effective November 12, 1981.

(2) [Interpretation] — For the purposes of subsection (1), a contract shall not fail to be a life annuity contract by reason that

(a) the contract provides that the annuity payments may be assigned by the annuitant or owner;

(b) the contract provides for annuity payments to be made for a period ending upon the death of the annuitant or for a specified period of not less than 10 years, whichever is the lesser;

(c) the contract provides for annuity payments to be made for a specified period or throughout the lifetime of the annuitant, whichever is longer, to the annuitant and thereafter, if the specified period is the longer, to a specified person;

(d) the contract provides, in addition to the annuity payments to be made throughout the lifetime of the annuitant, for a payment to be made upon the annuitant's death;

(e) the contract provides that the date

(i) on which the annuity payments commence, or

(ii) on which the contract holder becomes entitled to proceeds of the disposition, may be changed with respect to the whole contract or any portion thereof at the option of the annuitant or owner; or

(f) the contract provides that all or a portion of the proceeds payable at any particular time under the contract may be received in the form of an annuity contract other than a life annuity contract.

303. (1) Where in a taxation year the rights of a holder under an annuity contract cease upon termination or cancellation of the contract and

(a) the aggregate of all amounts, each of which is an amount in respect of the contract that was included in computing the income of the holder for the year or any previous taxation year by virtue of subsection 12(3) of the Act

exceeds the aggregate of

(b) such proportion of the amount determined under paragraph (a) that the annuity payments made under the contract before the rights of the holder have ceased is of the total of the payments expected to be made under the contract, and

(c) the aggregate of all amounts, each of which is an amount in respect of the contract that was deductible in computing the income of the holder for the year or any previous year by virtue of subsection (2), the amount of such excess may be deducted by the holder under subsection 20(19) of the Act in computing his income for the year.

History: Para. 303(1)(b) substituted by P.C. 1983-3530, s. 4, November 17, 1983, Canada Gazette, Part II, November 24, 1983, effective commencing November 12, 1981.

(2) For the purposes of subsection 20(19) of the Act, where an annuity contract was acquired after December 19, 1980 and annuity payments under the contract commenced before 1982, the amount that may be deducted by a holder under that subsection in respect of an annuity contract for a taxation year is that proportion of

(a) the aggregate of all amounts, each of which is an amount that was included in computing the income of the holder for any previous taxation year by virtue of subsection 12(3) of the Act in respect of the contract

that

(b) the aggregate of all annuity payments received by the holder in the year in respect of the contract

is of

(c) the total of the payments determined under paragraph 300(1)(a) or (b) in respect of the holder's interest in the contract.

304. Prescribed annuity contracts — (1) For the purposes of this Part and subsections 12.2(1), (3) and (4) and paragraph 148(2)(b) of the Act, prescribed annuity contract for a taxation year means

Proposed Amendment — Reg. 304(1) opening words — Application to ITA 94.2(11)

Technical Notes to ITA 94.2(11), July 18, 2005: [...] the interest in the policy was, on the anniversary day (as defined in subsection 12.2(11)) of the policy that occurs in the taxation year, an exempt policy (as defined in subsection 12.2(11)) or a prescribed annuity contract (as defined in section 304 of the Income Tax Regulations — in this regard, it is intended that amendments be proposed to section 304 to reflect this change) [...].

(a) an annuity contract purchased pursuant to a registered pension plan, a registered retirement savings plan, a deferred profit sharing plan or a plan referred to in subsection 147(15) of the Act as a revoked plan;

Proposed Amendment — Reg. 304(1)(a)

(a) an annuity contract that is, or is issued pursuant to, an arrangement described in any of paragraphs 148(1)(a) to (b.2) and (d) of the Act;

Application: Bill C-10 (First Reading Feb. 6, 2009), s. 90, will amend para. 304(1)(a) to read as above, applicable to annuity contracts issued after 2008.

Technical Notes (Dec. 2008): Section 304 prescribes certain annuity contracts for exclusion from the rules in section 12.2 of the Act that require income from life insurance policies to be reported on an accrual basis. Paragraph 304(1)(a) provides an exclusion for annuity contracts purchased pursuant to a registered retirement savings plan (RRSP) or any of certain other registered plans.

Paragraph 304(1)(a) is amended to extend the exclusion from the accrual rules to annuity contracts issued as a tax-free savings account (TFSA) or a registered retirement income fund (RRIF). This change is implemented by referring to annuity contracts issued as or pursuant to an arrangement described in any of paragraphs 148(1)(a) to (b.2) or (d) of the Act (which exclude TFSA, RRIF and other registered plan annuity contracts from the rules in subsection 148(1) that require an income inclusion on the disposition of a life insurance policy). Paragraph 304(1)(a) is also amended to update the language for consistency with subsection 148(1).

(b) an annuity contract described in paragraph 148(1)(c) or (e) of the Act; and

(c) an annuity contract

(i) under which annuity payments have commenced in the taxation year or a preceding taxation year,

(ii) issued by a corporation described in any of paragraphs 39(5)(b) to (d) or clause 146(1)(j)(ii)(B) [146(1)"retirement savings plan"(b)(ii)] of the Act, a life insurance corporation, a registered charity or a corporation (other than a mutual fund corporation or a mortgage investment corporation) the principal business of which is the making of loans (which corporation or charity is in this section referred to as an "issuer"),

Proposed Amendment — Reg. 304(1)(c)(ii)

(ii) issued by a life insurance corporation, a registered charity, a corporation referred to in any of paragraphs (a) to (c) of the definition "specified financial institution" in subsection 248(1) of the Act or subparagraph (b)(ii) of the definition "retirement savings plan" in subsection 146(1) of the Act or a corporation (other than a mutual fund corporation or a mortgage investment corporation) the principal business of which is the making of loans (which corporation or charity is referred to in this section as the "issuer"),

Application: The June 1, 1995 draft regulations (securities held by financial institutions), s. 1, will amend subpara. 304(1)(c)(ii) to read as above, applicable after February 22, 1994.

Technical Notes: Section 304 prescribes certain annuity contracts for exclusion from the rules in the Income Tax Act that require income from insurance policies to be reported on an accrual basis. Paragraph 304(1)(c) provides an exclusion for an annuity under which payments have commenced if a number of other conditions are also satisfied. Subparagraph 304(1)(c)(ii) requires that the annuity have been issued by a person specified in that provision. Acceptable issuers include corporations described in any of paragraphs 39(5)(b) to (d) of the Act — banks, trust companies and credit unions.

Subsection 39(5) of the Act is being amended to replace several of its paragraphs by a reference to "financial institutions" (as defined in subsection 142.2(1) of the Act). Consequently, subparagraph 304(1)(c)(ii) is amended to refer to corporations referred to in any of paragraphs (a) to (c) of the definition of "specified financial institution" in subsection 248(1) of the Act, which are the same corporations as were referred to in paragraphs 39(5)(b) to (d).

(iii) each holder of which

(A) is an individual, other than a trust that is neither a trust described in paragraph 104(4)(a) of the Act (in this paragraph referred to as a "specified trust") nor a testamentary trust,

(B) is an annuitant under the contract, and

(C) throughout the taxation year, dealt at arm's length with the issuer,

(iv) the terms and conditions of which require that, from the time the contract meets the requirements of this paragraph,

(A) all payments made out of the contract be equal annuity payments made at regular intervals but not less frequently than annually, subject to the holder's right to vary the frequency and quantum of payments to be made out of the contract in any taxation year without altering the present value at the beginning of the year of the total payments to be made in that year out of the contract,

(B) the annuity payments thereunder continue for a fixed term or

(I) if the holder is an individual (other than a trust), for the life of the first holder or until the day of the later of the death of the first holder and the death of any of the spouse, common-law partner, former spouse, former common-law partner, brothers and sisters (in this subparagraph referred to as "the survivor") of the first holder, or

(II) if the holder is a specified trust, for the life of the spouse or common-law partner who is entitled to receive the income of the trust,

Proposed Amendment — Reg. 304(1)(c)(iv)(B)(II)

Letter from Dept. of Finance, July 29, 2002:

Dear [xxx]

Thank you for your letter dated May 6, 2002, concerning section 304 of the Income Tax Regulations (the "Regulations") and its application to alter ego trusts.

Section 304 defines a "prescribed annuity contract" for a taxation year for the purposes of subsection 12.2(1) and paragraph 148(2)(b) of the Income Tax Act (the "Act"). Alter ego trusts and joint spousal and common-law partner trusts are trusts described in paragraph 104(4)(a) of the Act and as you mentioned in your letter, these trusts would appear to qualify as a specified trust eligible to hold prescribed annuities under clause 304(l)(c)(iii)(A) of the Regulations.

However, it would appear that an alter ego trust would not be able to acquire an annuity contract that is a prescribed annuity contract because subclauses 304(1)(c)(iv)(B)(II) and 304(l)(c)(iv)(C)(II) require, in the case of a specified trust, that the terms of the contract determine annuity payments by reference to the "spouse or common-law partner who is entitled to receive the income of the trust". Alter ego trusts do not comply with those subclauses because, in the case of alter ego trusts, the annuity payments would be determined by reference to the individual who is entitled to receive the income of the trust and not by reference to the spouse or common-law partner. As a result, you have requested that those subclauses be amended to allow alter ego trusts to hold prescribed annuity contracts.

From a policy perspective, it appears appropriate to permit an alter ego trust to be eligible to hold a prescribed annuity contract if all the other conditions of section 304 of the Regulations are met. This treatment would be in accordance with the treatment of the other trusts described in paragraph 104(4)(a) of the Act. Consequently, we are prepared to recommend to the Minister of Finance that amendments be made to subclauses 304(1)(c)(iv)(B)(II) and 304(l)(c)(iv)(C)(II) of the Regulations to permit an alter ego trust to hold a prescribed annuity contract. Further, we intend to recommend that the amendments apply to the taxation years that begin after 2001.

Of course, I can offer no assurance that the Minister of Finance will agree with the recommendation that I have described. Nonetheless, I hope that this statement of our position is helpful.

Thank you for bringing this matter to our attention.

Yours sincerely,

Brian Ernewein, Director, Tax Legislation Division, Tax Policy Branch

Proposed Amendment — Reg. 304(1)(c)(iv)(B)

Letter from Dept. of Finance, June 27, 2003:

Dear [xxx]

Thank you for your letter dated October 22, 2002, concerning section 304 of the Income Tax Regulations (the "Regulations") and its application to last survivor annuity contracts held by joint spousal or common-law partner trusts.

Section 304 defines a "prescribed annuity contract" for a taxation year for the purposes of subsection 12.2(1) and paragraph 148(2)(b) of the Income Tax Act (the "Act"). Alter ego trusts and joint spousal or common-law partner trusts are trusts described in paragraph 104(4)(a) of the Act and, as you mentioned in your letter and as confirmed by the Department in a comfort letter sent to your attention dated July 29, 2002, these trusts qualify as a specified trust under clause 304(1)(c)(iii)(A) of the Regulations.

However, a last survivor annuity contract, the annuity payments of which are determined by reference to the later of the death of an individual and the death of the individual's spouse or common-law partner who is entitled to receive the income of the trust, is not included in the definition of "prescribed annuity contract" in section 304 of the Regulations when held by a specified trust.

From a policy perspective, it appears appropriate for a last survivor annuity contract held by a specified trust to be prescribed as a prescribed annuity contract if all the other conditions of section 304 of the Regulations are met and the last survivor is the person that established the trust or the survivor as defined in that section. This treatment would be in accordance with the treatment under section 304 of the Regulation of last survivor annuity contracts held by individuals.

Consequently, we are prepared to recommend to the Minister of Finance that amendments be made to section 304 of the Regulations to ensure that last survivor annuity contracts held by specified trusts as defined in section 304 of the Regulations be prescribed annuity contracts if all the other conditions of that section are met and the last survivor is the person that established the trust or the survivor as defined in that section.

You also mentioned in your letter that clause 304(1)(c)(iv)(B) of the Regulations does not provide for the situation where testamentary trusts (which are not specified trusts) hold annuity contracts that do not continue for a fixed term. From a policy perspective and in order to be consistent with clause 304(1)(c)(iv)(C) of the Regulations, we are prepared to recommend an amendment to the Regulations to prescribe this type of annuity contract under clause 304(1)(c)(iv)(B) where the payments continue for the life of any beneficiary entitled to receive the income from the trust.

Further, we intend to recommend that these proposed amendments apply to the 2000 and following taxation years.

Of course, I can offer no assurance that the Minister of Finance will agree with the recommendation that I have described. Nonetheless, I hope that this statement of our position is helpful.

Thank you for bringing this matter to our attention.

Yours sincerely,

Brian Ernewein, Director, Tax Legislation Division, Tax Policy Branch

(II) if the holder is a specified trust, the spouse or common-law partner who is entitled to receive the income of the trust,

Proposed Amendment — Reg. 304(1)(c)(iv)(C)(II)

Letter from Dept. of Finance, July 29, 2002: See under Reg. 304(1)(c)(iv)(B)(II).

(III) if the holder is a testamentary trust other than a specified trust, the youngest beneficiary under the trust,

(IV) where the contract is held jointly, the younger of the first holders, or

(V) in any other case, the first holder, would, if he survived, attain the age of 91 years,

(D) no loans exist under the contract and the holder's rights under the contract not be disposed of otherwise than on the holder's death or, if the holder is a specified trust, on the death of the spouse or common-law partner who is entitled to receive the income of the trust, and

(E) no payments be made out of the contract other than as permitted by this section,

(v) none of the terms and conditions of which provide for any recourse against the issuer for failure to make any payment under the contract, and

(vi) where annuity payments under the contract have commenced

(A) before 1987, in respect of which a holder thereof has notified the issuer in writing, before the end of the taxation year, that the contract is to be treated as a prescribed annuity contract,

(B) after 1986, in respect of which a holder thereof has not notified the issuer in writing, before the end of the taxation year in which the annuity payments under the contract commenced, that the contract is not to be treated as a prescribed annuity contract, or

(C) after 1986, in respect of which a holder thereof has notified the issuer in writing, before the end of the taxation year in which the annuity payments under the contract commenced, that the contract is not to be treated as a prescribed annuity contract and a holder thereof has rescinded the notification by so notifying the issuer in writing before the end of the taxation year.

Proposed Amendment — Reg. 304(1)

Dept. of Finance news release 1996-100, Dec. 19, 1996: An annuity contract issued as a RRIF will not be subject to the accrual rules under section 12.2 of the Act.

This amendment will be implemented by way of an amendment to subsection 304(1) of the Regulations. It is contemplated that it will apply to taxation years that begin after 1986, given that the original amendments to the Act that gave rise to the need for this amendment applied after 1986.

(2) Notwithstanding subsection (1), an annuity contract shall not fail to be a prescribed annuity contract by reason that

(a) where the contract provides for a joint and last survivor annuity or is held jointly, the terms and conditions thereof provide that there will be a decrease in the amount of the annuity payments to be made under the contract from the time of death of one of the annuitants thereunder;

(b) the terms and conditions thereof provide that where the holder thereof dies at or before the time he attains the age of 91 years, the contract will terminate and an amount will be paid out of the contract not exceeding the amount, if any, by which the total premiums paid under the contract exceeds the total annuity payments made under the contract;

(c) where the annuity payments are to be made over a term that is guaranteed or fixed, the terms and conditions thereof provide that as a consequence of the death of the holder thereof during the guaranteed or fixed term any payments that, but for the death of the holder, would be made during the term may be commuted into a single payment; or

(d) the terms and conditions thereof, as they read on December 1, 1982 and at all subsequent times, provide that the holder participates in the investment earnings of the issuer and that the amount of such participation is to be paid within 60 days after the end of the year in respect of which it is determined.

(3) For the purposes of this section, the annuitant under an annuity contract is deemed to be the holder of the contract where

(a) the contract is held by another person in trust for the annuitant; or

(b) the contract was acquired by the annuitant under a group term life insurance policy under which life insurance was effected on the life of another person in respect of, in the course of, or by virtue of the office or employment or former office or employment of that other person.

(4) In this section, "annuitant" under an annuity contract, at any time, means a person who, at that time, is entitled to receive annuity payments under the contract.

(5) For the purpose of this section, "spouse" and "former spouse" of a particular individual include another individual who is a party to a void or voidable marriage with the particular individual.

305. Unallocated income accrued before 1982 — (1) For the purposes of section 12.2 and paragraph 56(1)(d.1) of the Act, the amount at any time of "unallocated income accrued in respect of the interest before 1982, as determined in prescribed manner", in respect of a taxpayer's interest in an annuity contract (other than an interest last acquired after December 1, 1982) or in a life insurance policy referred to in subsection (3), means the amount, if any, by which

(a) the accumulating fund at December 31, 1981 in respect of the interest

exceeds the aggregate of

(b) his adjusted cost basis (within the meaning assigned by paragraph 148(9)(a) [148(9)"adjusted cost basis"] of the Act) at December 31, 1981 in respect of the interest; and

(c) that proportion of the amount, if any, by which the amount determined under paragraph (a) exceeds the amount determined under paragraph (b) that

(i) the aggregate of all amounts each of which is the amount of an annuity payment received before that time in respect of the interest

is of

(ii) the taxpayer's interest, immediately before the commencement of payments under the contract, in the total of the annuity payments

(A) to be made under the contract, in the case of a contract for a term of years certain, or

(B) expected to be made under the contract, in the case of a contract under which the continuation of the payments depends in whole or in part on the survival of an individual.

(2) For the purposes of paragraph (1)(c), "annuity payment" does not include any portion of a payment under a contract the amount of which cannot be reasonably determined immediately before the commencement of payments under the contract except where such portion cannot be so determined because the continuation of the annuity payments under the contract depends in whole or in part on the survival of an individual.

(3) For the purposes of this section, an interest in an annuity contract to which subsection 12.2(9) of the Act applies shall be deemed to be a continuation of the interest in the life insurance policy in respect of which it was issued.

History: S. 305 added by P.C. 1983-3530, s. 5, November 17, 1983, Canada Gazette, Part II, November 24, 1983, applicable to taxation years commencing after 1982.

306. Exempt policies — (1) For the purposes of this Part and subsection 12.2(11) of the Act, "exempt policy" at any time means a life insurance policy (other than an annuity contract or a deposit administration fund policy) in respect of which the following conditions are met at that time:

(a) if that time is a policy anniversary of the policy, the accumulating fund of the policy at that time (determined without regard to any policy loan) does not exceed the total of the accumulating funds at that time of the exemption test policies issued at or before that time in respect of the policy;

(b) assuming that the terms and conditions of the policy do not change from those in effect on the last policy anniversary of the policy at or before that time and, where necessary, making reasonable assumptions about all other factors (including, in the case of a participating life insurance policy within the meaning assigned by subsection 138(12) of the Act, the assumption that the amounts of dividends paid will be as shown in the dividend scale), it is reasonable to expect that the condition in paragraph (a) will be met on each policy anniversary of the policy on which the policy could remain in force after that time and before the date determined under subparagraph (3)(d)(ii) with respect to the exemption test policies issued in respect of the policy;

(c) the condition in paragraph (a) was met on all policy anniversaries of the policy before that time; and

(d) the condition in paragraph (b) was met at all times on and after the first policy anniversary of the policy and before that time.

Interpretation Bulletins: IT-87R2: Policyholders' income from life insurance policies.

(2) For the purposes of subsection (1), a life insurance policy that is an exempt policy on its first policy anniversary shall be deemed to have been an exempt policy from the time of its issue until that anniversary.

(3) For the purposes of this section and section 307, a separate exemption test policy shall be deemed to have been issued to a policyholder in respect of a life insurance policy

(a) on the date of issue of the life insurance policy, and

(b) on each policy anniversary of the life insurance policy where the amount of the benefit on death thereunder exceeds 108 per cent of the amount of the benefit on death thereunder on the later of the date of its issue and the date of its preceding anniversary, if any,

and, for the purpose of determining whether the accumulating fund of the life insurance policy on any particular policy anniversary meets the condition in paragraph (1)(a), each such exemption test policy shall be deemed

(c) to have a benefit on death that is uniform throughout the term of the exemption test policy and equal to

(i) where the exemption test policy is the first such policy issued in respect of the life insurance policy, the amount on that policy anniversary of the benefit on death of the life insurance policy less the total of all amounts each of which is the amount on that policy anniversary of the benefit on death of another exemption test policy issued on or before that policy anniversary in respect of the life insurance policy, and

(ii) in any other case, the amount by which the benefit on death of the life insurance policy on the date the exemption test policy was issued exceeds 108 per cent of the amount of the benefit on death of the life insurance policy on the later of the date of issue of the life insurance policy and the date of its preceding policy anniversary, if any;

(d) to pay the amount of its benefit on death on the earlier of

(i) the date of death of the person whose life is insured under the life insurance policy, and

(ii) the later of

(A) ten years after the date of issue of the life insurance policy, and

(B) the date that the person whose life is insured would, if he survived, attain the age of 85 years; and

(e) to be a life insurance policy in Canada issued by a life insurer that carried on its life insurance business in Canada.

(4) Notwithstanding subsections (1) to (3),

(a) where at any particular time the amount of the benefit on death of a life insurance policy is reduced, an amount equal to such reduction (such amount is in this paragraph referred to as "the reduction") shall be applied at that time to reduce the amount of the benefit on death of exemption test policies issued before that time in respect of the life insurance policy (other than the exemption test policy issued in respect thereof pursuant to paragraph (3)(a)), in the order in which the dates of their issuance are proximate to the particular time, by an amount equal to the lesser of

(i) the portion, if any, of the reduction not applied to reduce the benefit on death of one or more other such exemption test policies, and

(ii) the amount, immediately before that time, of the benefit on death of the relevant exemption test policy;

(b) where on the tenth or on any subsequent policy anniversary of a life insurance policy, the accumulating fund thereof (computed without regard to any policy loan then outstanding in respect of the policy) exceeds 250 per cent of the accumulating fund thereof on its third preceding policy anniversary (computed without regard to any policy loan then outstanding in respect of the policy), each exemption test policy deemed by subsection (3) to have been issued before that time in respect of the life insurance policy shall be deemed to have been issued on the later of the date of that third preceding policy anniversary and the date on which it was deemed by subsection (3) to have been issued; and

(c) where at one or more times after December 1, 1982

(i) a prescribed premium has been paid by a taxpayer in respect of an interest in a life insurance policy (other than an annuity contract or a deposit administration fund policy) last acquired on or before that date, or

(ii) an interest in a life insurance policy (other than an annuity contract or a deposit administration fund policy) issued on or before that date has been acquired by a taxpayer from the person who held the interest continuously since that date, the policy shall be deemed to have been an exempt policy from the date of its issue until the earliest of those times that occurred after December 1, 1982; and

(d) a life insurance policy that ceases to be an exempt policy (other than by reason of its conversion into an annuity contract) on a policy anniversary shall be deemed to be an exempt policy on that anniversary

(i) if, had that anniversary occurred 60 days after the date on which it did in fact occur, the policy would have been an exempt policy on that later date, or

(ii) if the person whose life is insured under the policy dies on that anniversary or within 60 days thereafter.

History: Subsecs. 306(1), (2) and (3) replaced by P.C. 1994-940, s. 2, June 2, 1994, Canada Gazette, Part II, June 15, 1994, applicable

(a) with respect to a life insurance policy issued after March 26, 1992, other than a policy for which written application was made on or before March 26, 1992; and

(b) with respect to a life insurance policy amended at any time after March 26, 1992 to increase the amount of the benefit on death.

S. 306 added by P.C. 1983-3530, s. 5, November 17, 1983, Canada Gazette, Part II, November 24, 1983, applicable to taxation years commencing after 1982.

307. Accumulating funds — (1) For the purposes of this Part and section 12.2, paragraph 56(1)(d.1) and section 148 of the Act, "accumulating fund" at any particular time means,

(a) in respect of a taxpayer's interest in an annuity contract (other than a contract issued by a life insurer), the amount that is the greater of

(i) the amount, if any, by which the cash surrender value of his interest at that time exceeds the amount payable, if any, in respect of a loan outstanding at that time made under the contract in respect of the interest, and

(ii) the amount, if any, by which

(A) the present value at that time of future payments to be made out of the contract in respect of his interest

exceeds the aggregate of

(B) the present value at that time of future premiums to be paid under the contract in respect of his interest, and

(C) the amount payable, if any, in respect of a loan outstanding at that time, made under the contract in respect of his interest;

(b) in respect of a taxpayer's interest in a life insurance policy (other than an exemption test policy or an annuity contract to which paragraph (1)(a) applies), the product obtained when,

(i) where the policy is not a deposit administration fund policy and the particular time is immediately after the death of any person on whose life the life insurance policy is issued or effected, the aggregate of the maximum amounts that could be determined by the life insurer immediately before the death in respect of the policy under paragraph 1401(1)(c) and subparagraph 1401(1)(d)(i) if the mortality rates used were adjusted to reflect the assumption that the death would occur at the time and in the manner that it did occur, and

(ii) in any other case, the maximum amount that could be determined at that particular time by the life insurer under paragraph 1401(1)(a), computed as though there were only one deposit administration fund policy, or under paragraph 1401(1)(c), as the case may be, in respect of the policy is multiplied by

(iii) the taxpayer's proportionate interest in the policy, assuming for the purposes of this paragraph that the life insurer carried on its life insurance business in Canada, its taxation year ended at the particular time and the policy was a life insurance policy in Canada; and

(c) in respect of an exemption test policy,

(i) where the policy was issued at least 20 years before the particular time, the amount that would be determined at that particular time by the life insurer under clause 1401(1)(c)(ii)(A) in respect of the policy if the insurer's taxation year ended at that particular time, and

(ii) in any other case, the product obtained when the amount that would be determined under subparagraph (i) in respect of the policy on its twentieth policy anniversary is multiplied by the quotient obtained when the number of years since the policy was issued is divided by 20.

(2) For the purposes of subsection (1), when computing the accumulating fund of an interest described in

(a) paragraph (1)(a), the amounts determined under clauses (1)(a)(ii)(A) and (B) shall be computed using,

(i) where an interest rate for a period used by the issuer when the contract was issued in determining the terms of the contract was less than any rate so used for a subsequent period, the single rate that would, if it applied for each period, have produced the same terms, and

(ii) in any other case, the rates used by the issuer when the contract was issued in determining the terms of the contract;

(b) paragraph (1)(b), where an interest rate used for a period by a life insurer in computing the relevant amounts in paragraph 1403(1)(a) or (b) is determined under paragraph 1403(1)(c), (d) or (e), as the case may be, and that rate is less than an interest rate so determined for a subsequent period, the single rate that could, if it applied for each period, have been used in determining the premiums for the policy shall be used; and

(c) paragraph (1)(c)

(i) the rates of interest and mortality used and the age of the person whose life is insured shall be the same as those used in computing the amounts described in paragraph 1403(1)(a) or (b) in respect of the life insurance policy in respect of which the exemption test policy was issued except that

(A) where the life insurance policy is one to which paragraph 1403(1)(e) applies and the amount determined under subparagraph 1401(1)(c)(i) in respect of that policy is greater than the amount determined under subparagraph 1401(1)(c)(ii) in respect thereof, the rates of interest and mortality used may be those used in computing the cash surrender values of that policy, and

(B) where an interest rate for a period otherwise determined under this subparagraph in respect of that interest is less than an interest rate so determined for a subsequent period, the single rate that could, if it applied for each period, have been used in determining the premiums for the life insurance policy shall be used, and

(ii) notwithstanding subparagraph (i),

(A) where the rates referred to in subparagraph (i) do not exist, the minimum guaranteed rates of interest used under the life insurance policy to determine cash surrender values and the rates of mortality under the Commissioners 1958 Standard Ordinary Mortality Table, as published in Volume X of the Transactions of the Society of Actuaries, relevant to the person whose life is insured under the life insurance policy shall be used, or

(B) where, in respect of the life insurance policy in respect of which the exemption test policy was issued, the period over which the amount determined under clause 1401(1)(c)(ii)(A) does not extend to the date determined under subparagraph 306(3)(d)(ii), the weighted arithmetic mean of the interest rates used to determine such amount shall be used for the period that is after that period and before that date.

(3) Notwithstanding paragraph (2)(c),

(a) in the case of a life insurance policy issued after April 30, 1985, no rate of interest used for the purpose of determining the accumulating fund in respect of an exemption test policy issued in respect thereof shall be less than 4 per cent per annum; and

(b) in the case of a life insurance policy issued before May 1, 1985, no rate of interest used for the purpose of determining the accumulating fund in respect of an exemption test policy issued in respect thereof shall be less than 3 per cent per annum.

(4) For the purposes of paragraph (1)(c),

(a) where on the date of issue of an exemption test policy the person whose life is insured has attained the age of 75 years, the references in paragraph (1)(c) to "20" and "twentieth" shall be read as references to "10" and "tenth" respectively; and

(b) where on the date of issue of an exemption test policy the person whose life is insured has attained the age of 66 years but not the age of 75 years, the references in paragraph (1)(c) to "20" and "twentieth" shall be read as references to

(i) the number obtained when the number of years by which the age of the person whose life is insured exceeds 65 years is subtracted from 20, and

(ii) the adjectival form of the number obtained by performing the computation described in subparagraph (i), respectively.

(5) In this section, any amount determined by reference to section 1401 shall be determined

(a) without regard to section 1402;

(b) as if each reference therein to the term "policy loan" were read as if that term had the meaning assigned by paragraph 148(9)(e) [148(9)"policy loan"] of the Act; and

(c) as if clauses 1401(1)(c)(i)(B) and 1401(1)(c)(ii)(C) were read without reference to the expression "or the interest thereon that has accrued to the insurer at the end of the year".

308. Net cost of pure insurance and mortality gains and losses — (1) For the purposes of subparagraph 20(1)(e.2)(ii) and paragraph (a) of the description of L in the definition "adjusted cost basis" in subsection 148(9) of the Act, the net cost of pure insurance for a year in respect of a taxpayer's interest in a life insurance policy is the product obtained when the probability, computed on the basis of the rates of mortality under the 1969-75 mortality tables of the Canadian Institute of Actuaries published in Volume XVI of the Proceedings of the Canadian Institute of Actuaries or on the basis described in subsection (1.1), that a person who has the same relevant characteristics as the person whose life is insured will die in the year is multiplied by the amount by which

(a) the benefit on death in respect of the taxpayer's interest at the end of the year

exceeds

(b) the accumulating fund (determined without regard to any policy loan outstanding) in respect of the taxpayer's interest in the policy at the end of the year or the cash surrender value of such interest at the end of the year, depending on the method regularly followed by the life insurer in computing net cost of pure insurance.

Interpretation Bulletins: IT-87R2: Policyholders' income from life insurance policies; IT-309R2: Premiums on life insurance used as collateral.

(1.1) Where premiums for a particular class of life insurance policy offered by a life insurer do not depend directly on smoking or sex classification, the probability referred to in subsection (1) may be determined using rates of mortality otherwise determined provided that for each age for such class of life insurance policy, the expected value of the aggregate net cost of pure insurance, calculated using such rates of mortality, is equal to the expected value of the aggregate net cost of pure insurance, calculated using the rates of mortality under the 1969-75 mortality tables of the Canadian Institute of Actuaries published in Volume XVI of the Proceedings of the Canadian Institute of Actuaries.

(2) Subject to subsection (4), for the purposes of this section and subparagraph 148(9)(a)(v.1) [148(9)"adjusted cost basis"G] of the Act, a "mortality gain" immediately before the end of any calendar year after 1982 in respect of a taxpayer's interest in a life annuity contract means such reasonable amount in respect of his interest therein at that time that the life insurer determines to be the increase to the accumulating fund in respect of the interest that occurred during that year as a consequence of the survival to the end of the year of one or more of the annuitants thereunder.

(3) Subject to subsection (4), for the purposes of this section and subparagraph 148(9)(a)(xi) [148(9)"adjusted cost basis"(c)] of the Act, a "mortality loss" immediately before a particular time after 1982 in respect of an interest in a life annuity contract disposed of immediately after that particular time as a consequence of the death of an annuitant thereunder means such reasonable amount that the life insurer determines to be the decrease, as a consequence of the death, in the accumulating fund in respect of the interest assuming that, in determining such decrease, the accumulating fund immediately after the death is determined in the manner described in subparagraph 307(1)(b)(i).

(4) In determining an amount for a year in respect of an interest in a life annuity contract under subsection (2) or (3), the expected value of the mortality gains in respect of the interest for the year shall be equal to the expected value of the mortality losses in respect of the interest for the year and the mortality rates for the year used in computing those expected values shall be those that would be relevant to the interest and that are specified under such of paragraphs 1403(1)(c), (d) and (e) as are applicable.

S.C. 1984, c. 1, subsec. 82(4) provides that s. 308 is deemed to have been validly made on November 17, 1983, with effect as indicated above as if para. 148(9)(a) of the Income Tax Act as amended by 1984, c. 1, had been in force on that date.

309. Prescribed premiums and prescribed increases — (1) For the purposes of subsections 12.2(9) and 89(2) of the Act, section 306 and this section, a premium at any time under a life insurance policy is a "prescribed premium" if the total amount of one or more premiums paid at that time under the policy exceeds the amount of premium that, under the policy, was scheduled to be paid at that time and that was fixed and determined on or before December 1, 1982, adjusted for such of the following transactions and events that have occurred after that date in respect of the policy:

(a) a change in underwriting class;

(b) a change in premium due to a change in frequency of premium payments within a year that does not alter the present value, at the beginning of the year, of the total premiums to be paid under the policy in the year;

(c) an addition or deletion of accidental death or guaranteed purchase option benefits or disability benefits that provide for annuity payments or waiver of premiums;

(d) a premium adjustment as a result of interest, mortality or expense considerations, or of a change in the benefit on death under the policy relating to an increase in the Consumer Price Index (as published by Statistics Canada under the authority of the Statistics Act) where such adjustment

(i) is made by the life insurer on a class basis pursuant to the policy's terms as they read on December 1, 1982, and

(ii) is not made as a result of the exercise of a conversion privilege under the policy;

(e) a change arising from the provision of an additional benefit on death under a participating life insurance policy (within the meaning assigned by paragraph 138(12)(k) [138(12)"participating life insurance policy"] of the Act) as, on account or in lieu of payment of, or in satisfaction of

(i) policy dividends or other distributions of the life insurer's income from its participating life insurance business as determined under section 2402, or

(ii) interest earned on policy dividends that are held on deposit by the life insurer;

(f) redating lapsed policies within the reinstatement period referred to in subparagraph 148(9)(c)(vi) [148(9)"disposition"(g)] of the Act or redating for policy loan indebtedness;

(g) a change in premium due to a correction of erroneous information contained in the application for the policy;

(h) payment of a premium after its due date, or payment of a premium no more than 30 days before its due date, as established on or before December 1, 1982; and

(i) the payment of an amount described in subparagraph 148(9)(e.1)(i) [148(9)"premium"(a)] of the Act.

(2) For the purposes of subsections 12.2(9) and 89(2) of the Act, a "prescribed increase" in a benefit on death under a life insurance policy has occurred at any time where the amount of the benefit on death under the policy at that time exceeds the amount of the benefit on death at that time under the policy that was fixed and determined on or before December 1, 1982, adjusted for such of the following transactions and events that have occurred after that date in respect of the policy:

(a) an increase resulting from a change described in paragraph (1)(e);

(b) a change as a result of interest, mortality or expense considerations, or an increase in the Consumer Price Index (as published by Statistics Canada under the authority of the Statistics Act) where such change is made by the life insurer on a class basis pursuant to the policy's terms as they read on December 1, 1982;

(c) an increase in consequence of the prepayment of premiums (other than prescribed premiums) under the policy where such increase does not exceed the aggregate of the premiums that would otherwise have been paid;

(d) an increase in respect of a policy for which

(i) the benefit on death was, at December 1, 1982, a specific mathematical function of the policy's cash surrender value or factors including the policy's cash surrender value, and

(ii) that function has not changed since that date, unless any part of such increase is attributable to a prescribed premium paid in respect of a policy or to income earned on such a premium; and

(e) an increase that is granted by the life insurer on a class basis without consideration and not pursuant to any term of the contract.

(3) For the purposes of subsections (1) and (2), a life insurance policy that is issued as a result of the exercise of a renewal privilege provided under the terms of another policy as they read on December 1, 1982 shall be deemed to be a continuation of that other policy.

(4) For the purposes of subsection (2), a life insurance policy that is issued as a result of the exercise of a conversion privilege provided under the terms of another policy as they read on December 1, 1982 shall be deemed to be a continuation of that other policy except that any portion of the policy relating to the portion of the benefit on death, immediately before the conversion, that arose as a consequence of an event occurring after December 1, 1982 and described in paragraph (1)(e) shall be deemed to be a separate life insurance policy issued at the time of the conversion.

PART IV — TAXABLE INCOME EARNED IN A PROVINCE BY A CORPORATION

History: Part IV was consolidated by the Consolidated Regulations of Canada, chapter 945, proclaimed in force August 15, 1979, by P.C. 1979-1934, July 19, 1979, Canada Gazette, Part II, August 8, 1979.

I.T. Technical News: 38 (interprovincial tax planning arrangements).

400. Interpretation — (1) ["Taxable income..."] — For the purposes of paragraph 124(4)(a) [124(4)"taxable income earned in the year in a province"] of the Act, a corporation's "taxable income earned in the year in a province" means the aggregate of the taxable incomes of the corporation earned in the year in each of the provinces.

Proposed Amendment — Reg. 400(1), (1.1)

400. (1) ["Taxable income earned in the year in a province"] — In applying the definition "taxable income earned in the year in a province" in subsection 124(4) of the Act for a corporation's taxation year

(a) the prescribed rules referred to in that definition are the rules in this Part; and

(b) the amount determined under those prescribed rules means the total of all amounts each of which is the taxable income of the corporation earned in the taxation year in a particular province as determined under this Part.

Technical Notes (Dec. 2008): Subsection 400(1) is amended to refer to the definition of "taxable income earned in the year in a province" in subsection 124(4) of the Act. Subsection 400(1) clarifies that the prescribed rules referred to in that definition are contained in Part IV.

(1.1) [International banking centre] — In this Part, a corporation's taxable income for a taxation year is equal to the total of

(a) the corporation's taxable income for the taxation year (determined without reference to this subsection) or the corporation's taxable income earned in Canada for the taxation year, as the case may be, and

(b) the positive or negative amount determined by the formula

where

A is the total of all amounts that are, because of the application of section 33.1 of the Act, not required to be added in computing the corporation's income for the taxation year, and

B is the total of all amounts that are, because of the application of section 33.1 of the Act, not allowed to be deducted in computing the corporation's income for the taxation year.

Technical Notes (Dec. 2008): New subsection 400(1.1) provides that the amount that is not added or deducted, in respect of a corporation's income or loss for a year from its international banking centre (IBC) business, in computing its income for the year is to be added or deducted to its taxable income for the year. This ensures that a corporation's taxable income for a taxation year is calculated prior to claiming the IBC exemption for the purpose of Part IV.

Application: Bill C-10 (First Reading Feb. 6, 2009), subsec. 91(1), will amend subsec. 400(1) to read as above and add subsec. (1.1), applicable to 2009 et seq.

Canada-Ontario Memorandum of Agreement Concerning a Single Administration of Ontario Corporate Tax, Oct. 2006: 4.1. Canada undertakes to . . . (b) ensure that geographic-based federal measures that reduce the common tax base do not impact provincial and territorial revenues of jurisdictions other than those where the measure applies. It is proposed that Part IV of the Regulations made pursuant to the Federal [Income Tax] Act be amended to include a special provision in the allocation formula for international banking centres (IBCs) [see ITA 33.1 — ed.] ensuring that taxable income is allocated prior to claiming the IBC deduction in each province or territory other than Quebec and British Columbia.

Related Provisions: Reg. 413.1 — International banking centre — taxable income earned in a province.

History: Subsec. 400(1) substituted by P.C. 1981-808, s. 1, March 26, 1981, Canada Gazette, Part II, April 8, 1981, applicable to the 1980 and subsequent taxation years.

Subsec. 400(1) substituted by P.C. 1978-3101, s. 1, October 12, 1978, Canada Gazette, Part II, October 25, 1978, applicable to the 1978 and subsequent taxation years.

(2) [Permanent establishment] — For the purposes of this Part, "permanent establishment" in respect of a corporation means a fixed place of business of the corporation, including an office, a branch, a mine, an oil well, a farm, a timberland, a factory, a workshop or a warehouse, and

(a) where the corporation does not have any fixed place of business it means the principal place in which the corporation's business is conducted;

(b) where a corporation carries on business through an employee or agent, established in a particular place, who has general authority to contract for his employer or principal or who has a stock of merchandise owned by his employer or principal from which he regularly fills orders which he receives, the corporation shall be deemed to have a permanent establishment in that place;

(c) an insurance corporation is deemed to have a permanent establishment in each province and country in which the corporation is registered or licensed to do business;

(d) where a corporation, otherwise having a permanent establishment in Canada, owns land in a province, such land shall be deemed to be a permanent establishment;

(e) where a corporation uses substantial machinery or equipment in a particular place at any time in a taxation year it shall be deemed to have a permanent establishment in that place;

Proposed Addition — Reg. 400(2)(e.1)

(e.1) if, but for this paragraph, a corporation would not have a permanent establishment, the corporation is deemed to have a permanent establishment at the place designated in its incorporating documents or bylaws as its head office or registered office;

Application: Bill C-10 (First Reading Feb. 6, 2009), subsec. 91(2), will add para. 400(2)(e.1), applicable to 2009 et seq.

Technical Notes (Dec. 2008): Subsection 400(2) provides for the definition of "permanent establishment" for the purpose of determining whether a corporation's taxable income for a taxation year is allocated to a particular province under Part IV.

New paragraph 400(2)(e.1) provides that, where a corporation does not have any permanent establishment, the corporation is deemed to have a permanent establishment in the jurisdiction in which its head office or registered office is located.

Canada-Ontario Memorandum of Agreement Concerning a Single Administration of Ontario Corporate Tax, Oct. 2006: 4.1. Canada undertakes to . . . (a) work with the provinces and territories to establish a timetable to implement, no later than the beginning of the first taxation year of TCA [Tax Collection Agreement] administration [April 2009 — ed.], the following provisions: . . .

ii. permanent establishment definition — it is proposed that Part IV of the Regulations made pursuant to the Federal [Income Tax] Act be amended so that a corporation with no other permanent establishment would have a permanent establishment in the place designated in its charter or bylaws as being its head office or registered office; . . .

(f) the fact that a corporation has business dealings through a commission agent, broker or other independent agent or maintains an office solely for the purchase of merchandise shall not of itself be held to mean that the corporation has a permanent establishment; and

(g) the fact that a corporation has a subsidiary controlled corporation in a place or a subsidiary controlled corporation engaged in trade or business in a place shall not of itself be held to mean that the corporation is operating a permanent establishment in that place.

402. General rules — (1) Where, in a taxation year, a corporation had a permanent establishment in a particular province and had no permanent establishment outside that province, the whole of its taxable income for the year shall be deemed to have been earned therein.

(2) Where, in a taxation year, a corporation had no permanent establishment in a particular province, no part of its taxable income for the year shall be deemed to have been earned therein.

(3) Except as otherwise provided, where, in a taxation year, a corporation had a permanent establishment in a province and a permanent establishment outside that province, the amount of its taxable income that shall be deemed to have been earned in the year in the province is

(a) in any case other than a case specified in paragraph (b) or (c), ½ the aggregate of

(i) that proportion of its taxable income for the year that the gross revenue for the year reasonably attributable to the permanent establishment in the province is of its total gross revenue for the year, and

(ii) that proportion of its taxable income for the year that the aggregate of the salaries and wages paid in the year by the corporation to employees of the permanent establishment in the province is of the aggregate of all salaries and wages paid in the year by the corporation;

(b) in any case where the gross revenue for the year of the corporation is nil, that proportion of its taxable income for the year that the aggregate of the salaries and wages paid in the year by the corporation to employees of the permanent establishment in the province is of the aggregate of all salaries and wages paid in the year by the corporation; and

(c) in any case where the aggregate of the salaries and wages paid in the year by the corporation is nil, that proportion of its taxable income for the year that the gross revenue for the year reasonably attributable to the permanent establishment in the province is of its total gross revenue for the year.

(4) [Attribution to permanent establishment] — For the purpose of determining the gross revenue for the year reasonably attributable to a permanent establishment in a province or country other than Canada, within the meaning of subsection (3), the following rules shall apply:

(a) where the destination of a shipment of merchandise to a customer to whom the merchandise is sold is in the particular province or country, the gross revenue derived therefrom shall be attributable to the permanent establishment in the province or country;

(b) except as provided in paragraph (c), where the destination of a shipment of merchandise to a customer to whom the merchandise is sold is in a province or country other than Canada in which the taxpayer has no permanent establishment, if the person negotiating the sale may reasonably be regarded as being attached to the permanent establishment in the particular province or country, the gross revenue derived therefrom shall be attributable to that permanent establishment;

(c) where the destination of a shipment of merchandise to a customer to whom the merchandise is sold is in a country other than Canada in which the taxpayer has no permanent establishment,

(i) if the merchandise was produced or manufactured or produced and manufactured, entirely in the particular province by the taxpayer, the gross revenue derived therefrom shall be attributable to the permanent establishment in the province, or

(ii) if the merchandise was produced or manufactured, or produced and manufactured, partly in the particular province and partly in another place by the taxpayer, the gross revenue derived therefrom attributable to the permanent establishment in the province shall be that proportion thereof that the salaries and wages paid in the year to employees of the permanent establishment in the province where the merchandise was partly produced or manufactured (or partly produced and manufactured) is of the aggregate of the salaries and wages paid in the year to employees of the permanent establishments where the merchandise was produced or manufactured (or produced and manufactured);

(d) where a customer to whom merchandise is sold instructs that shipment be made to some other person and the customer's office with which the sale was negotiated is located in the particular province or country, the gross revenue derived therefrom shall be attributable to the permanent establishment in the province or country;

(e) except as provided in paragraph (f), where a customer to whom merchandise is sold instructs that shipment be made to some other person and the customer's office with which the sale was negotiated is located in a province or country other than Canada in which the taxpayer has no permanent establishment, if the person negotiating the sale may reasonably be regarded as being attached to the permanent establishment in the particular province or country, the gross revenue derived therefrom shall be attributable to that permanent establishment;

(f) where a customer to whom merchandise is sold instructs that shipment be made to some other person and the customer's office with which the sale was negotiated is located in a country

other than Canada in which the taxpayer has no permanent establishment,

(i) if the merchandise was produced or manufactured, or produced and manufactured, entirely in the particular province by the taxpayer, the gross revenue derived therefrom shall be attributable to the permanent establishment in the province, or

(ii) if the merchandise was produced or manufactured, or produced and manufactured, partly in the particular province and partly in another place by the taxpayer, the gross revenue derived therefrom attributable to the permanent establishment in the province shall be that proportion thereof that the salaries and wages paid in the year to employees of the permanent establishment in the province where the merchandise was partly produced or manufactured (or partly produced and manufactured) is of the aggregate of the salaries and wages paid in the year to employees of the permanent establishments where the merchandise was produced or manufactured (or produced and manufactured);

(g) where gross revenue is derived from services rendered in the particular province or country, the gross revenue shall be attributable to the permanent establishment in the province or country;

(h) where gross revenue is derived from services rendered in a province or country other than Canada in which the taxpayer has no permanent establishment, if the person negotiating the contract may reasonably be regarded as being attached to the permanent establishment of the taxpayer in the particular province or country, the gross revenue shall be attributable to that permanent establishment;

(i) where standing timber or the right to cut standing timber is sold and the timber limit on which the timber is standing is in the particular province or country, the gross revenue from such sale shall be attributable to the permanent establishment of the taxpayer in the province or country; and

(j) gross revenue which arises from leasing land owned by the taxpayer in a province and which is included in computing its income under Part I of the Act shall be attributable to the permanent establishment, if any, of the taxpayer in the province where the land is situated.

Interpretation Bulletins: IT-177R2: Permanent establishment of a corporation in a province.

(4.1) For the purposes of subsections (3) and (4), where, in a taxation year,

(a) the destination of a shipment of merchandise to a customer to whom the merchandise is sold by a corporation is in a country other than Canada or the customer to whom merchandise is sold by a corporation instructs that the shipment of merchandise be made by the corporation to another person and the customer's office with which the sale was negotiated is located in a country other than Canada,

(b) the corporation has a permanent establishment in the other country, and

(c) the corporation is not subject to taxation on its income under the laws of the other country, or its gross revenue derived from the sale is not included in computing the income or profit or other base for income or profits taxation by the other country, because of

(i) the provisions of any taxing statute of the other country, or

(ii) the operation of any tax treaty or convention between Canada and the other country,

the following rules apply:

(d) with respect to the gross revenue derived from the sale,

(i) paragraphs 4(a) and (d) do not apply,

(ii) that portion of paragraph 4(c) preceding subparagraph (i) thereof shall be read as follows:

"(c) where the destination of a shipment of merchandise to a customer to whom the merchandise is sold is in a country other than Canada," and

(iii) that portion of paragraph 4(f) preceding subparagraph (i) thereof shall be read as follows:

"(f) where a customer to whom the merchandise is sold instructs that shipment be made to some other person and the customer's office with which the sale was negotiated is located in a country other than Canada,"; and

(e) for the purposes of subparagraph (3)(a)(ii), paragraph (3)(b) and subparagraphs (4)(c)(ii) and (f)(ii), salaries and wages paid in the year to employees of any permanent establishment of the corporation located in that other country shall be deemed to be nil.

History: Subsec. 402(4.1) added by P.C. 1994-662, s. 1, April 28, 1994, Canada Gazette, Part II, May 18, 1994, applicable to taxation years commencing after 1992, and where the corporation so elects by notifying the Minister of National Revenue in writing by November 30, 1994, to taxation years ending after 1991.

(5) For the purposes of subsection (3), "gross revenue" does not include interest on bonds, debentures or mortgages, dividends on shares of capital stock, or rentals or royalties from property that is not used in connection with the principal business operations of the corporation.

(6) For the purposes of subsection (3), where part of the corporation's operations were conducted in partnership with one or more other persons

(a) the corporation's gross revenue for the year, and

(b) the salaries and wages paid in the year by the corporation, shall include, in respect of those operations, only that proportion of

(c) the total gross revenue of the partnership for its fiscal period ending in or coinciding with the year, and

(d) the total salaries and wages paid by the partnership in its fiscal period ending in or coinciding with the year, respectively, that

(e) the corporation's share of the income or loss of the partnership for the fiscal period ending in or coinciding with the year,

is of

(f) the total income or loss of the partnership for the fiscal period ending in or coinciding with the year.

(7) Where a corporation pays a fee to another person under an agreement pursuant to which that other person or employees of that other person perform services for the corporation that would normally be performed by employees of the corporation, the fee so paid shall be deemed to be salary paid in the year by the corporation and that part of the fee that may reasonably be regarded as payment in respect of services rendered at a particular permanent establishment of the corporation shall be deemed to be salary paid to an employee of that permanent establishment.

(8) For the purposes of subsection (7), a fee does not include a commission paid to a person who is not an employee of the corporation.

402.1 Transitional — Taxable income earned in the 1978 taxation year in the Northwest Territories — Where in its 1978 taxation year a corporation had a permanent establishment in the Northwest Territories, its taxable income earned in the year in the Northwest Territories is that proportion of the amount thereof otherwise determined in accordance with this Part that the number of days in that portion of the 1978 taxation year of the corporation that is in 1978 is of the number of days in the whole of that taxation year.

Proposed Amendment — Reg. 402.1

402.1 Central paymaster — (1) In this Part, if an individual (referred to in this section as the "employee") is employed by a person (referred to in this section as the "employer") and performs a service in a particular province for the benefit of or on behalf of a corporation that is not the employer, an amount that may reasonably be regarded as equal to the amount of salary or wages earned by the employee for the service (referred to in this section as the "particular salary") is deemed to be salary paid by the corporation to an employee of the corporation in the corporation's taxation year in which the particular salary is paid if

(a) at the time the service is performed,

(i) the corporation and the employer do not deal at arm's length, and

(ii) the corporation has a permanent establishment in the particular province;

(b) the service

(i) is performed by the employee in the normal course of the employee's employment by the employer,

(ii) is performed for the benefit of or on behalf of the corporation in the ordinary course of a business carried on by the corporation, and

(iii) is of a type that could reasonably be expected to be performed by employees of the corporation in the ordinary course of the business referred to in subparagraph (ii); and

(c) the amount is not otherwise included in the aggregate, determined for the purposes of this Part, of the salaries and wages paid by the corporation.

(2) In this Part, an amount deemed under subsection (1) to be salary paid by a corporation to an employee of the corporation for a service performed in a particular province is deemed to have been paid,

(a) if the service was performed at one or more permanent establishments of the corporation in the particular province, to an employee of the permanent establishment or establishments; or

(b) if paragraph (a) does not apply, to an employee of any other permanent establishment (as is reasonably determined in the circumstances) of the corporation in the particular province.

(3) In determining under this Part the amount of salaries and wages paid in a year by an employer, there shall be deducted the total of all amounts each of which is a particular salary paid by the employer in the year.

(4) Despite subparagraph (1)(a)(i), this section applies to a corporation and an employer that deal at arm's length if the Minister determines that the corporation and the employer have entered into an arrangement the purpose of which is to reduce, through the provision of services as described in subsection (1), the total amount of income tax payable by the corporation under a law of the particular province referred to in subsection (1).

(5) For the purposes of this section, a partnership is deemed to be a corporation and the corporation's taxation year is deemed to be the partnership's fiscal period.

Application: Bill C-10 (First Reading Feb. 6, 2009), s. 93, will replace s. 402.1 with the above, applicable to 2009 et seq.

Technical Notes (Dec. 2008): Existing sections 402.1 and 402.2 applied special rules for certain corporations' 1978 and 1980 taxation years. Those sections are now redundant, and are replaced by a new, unrelated section 402.1. The new section applies in certain cases where an individual employed provides services for the benefit of a corporation that is not the employer.

New subsections 402.1(1) and (2) generally provide that the salary or wages earned by an employee for the performing of a service in a particular province for the benefit of a corporation that is not the employer are deemed to be salary or wages paid by the corporation to an employee of its permanent establishments in the province if the corporation and the employer do not deal at arm's length and the corporation has a permanent establishment in the province.

Subsection 402.1(3) provides that the amount of salaries and wages paid in a taxation year by the employer that is deemed to be paid by the corporation is deducted from the employer's salaries and wages paid in the year.

Subsection 402.1(4) provides that new section 402.1 applies to a corporation and an employer that deal at arm's length if the Minister of National Revenue determines that they have entered into an arrangement for the provisions of services in a particular province by the employer for the benefit of the corporation the purpose of which is to reduce the corporation's income tax in the province.

Subsection 402.1(5) provides that a partnership is deemed to be a corporation for the purpose of section 402.1 and its fiscal period is deemed to be the corporation's taxation year.

403. Insurance corporations — (1) Notwithstanding subsections 402(3) and (4), the amount of taxable income that shall be deemed to have been earned in a taxation year in a particular province by an insurance corporation is that proportion of its taxable income for the year that the aggregate of

(a) its net premiums for the year in respect of insurance on property situated in the province, and

(b) its net premiums for the year in respect of insurance, other than on property, from contracts with persons resident in the province, is of the total of such of its net premiums for the year as are included in computing its income for the purposes of Part I of the Act.

(2) In this section, "net premiums" of a corporation for a taxation year means the aggregate of the gross premiums received by the corporation in the year (other than consideration received for annuities), minus the aggregate for the year of

(a) premiums paid for reinsurance,

(b) dividends or rebates paid or credited to policyholders, and

(c) rebates or returned premiums paid in respect of the cancellation of policies, by the corporation.

(3) For the purposes of subsection (1), where an insurance corporation had no permanent establishment in a taxation year in a particular province,

(a) each net premium for that year in respect of insurance on property situated in the particular province shall be deemed to be a net premium in respect of insurance on property situated in the province in which the permanent establishment of the corporation to which the net premium is reasonably attributable is situated; and

(b) each net premium for that year in respect of insurance, other than on property, from contracts with persons resident in the particular province shall be deemed to be a net premium in respect of insurance, other than on property, from contracts with persons resident in the province in which the permanent establishment of the corporation to which the net premium is reasonably attributable is situated.

Proposed Addition — Reg. 403(4)

(4) For the purposes of subsection (1), if in a taxation year an insurance corporation has no permanent establishment in a particular country other than Canada, but provides insurance on property in the particular country or has a contract for insurance, other than on property, with a person resident in the particular country, each net premium for the taxation year in respect of the insurance is deemed to be a net premium in respect of insurance on property situated in, or from contracts with persons resident in, as the case may be, the province in Canada or country other than Canada in which is situated the permanent establishment of the corporation to which the net premium is reasonably attributable in the circumstances.

Application: Bill C-10 (First Reading Feb. 6, 2009), s. 94, will add subsec. 403(4), applicable to 2009 et seq.

Technical Notes (Dec. 2008): Section 403 provides special rules for the determination of an insurance corporation's taxable income earned in a year in a particular province. An insurance corporation's taxable income earned in a year in a particular province is deemed equal to that proportion of its taxable income that its net premiums for the year in respect of insurance on property situated in the province or from contracts with persons resident in the province is of the total of its net premiums for the year.

Subsection 403(3) generally provides that each net premium for a year in respect of insurance on property situated in a particular province or from contracts with persons resident in the particular province in which an insurance corporation had no permanent establishment in the year is deemed to be a net premium in respect of insurance on property situated in the province or from contracts with persons resident in the province in which the corporation's permanent establishment to which the net premium is reasonably attributed is located.

New subsection 403(4) provides that each net premium for a year in respect of insurance on property situated in a country other than Canada or from contracts with persons resident in the country in which an insurance corporation has no permanent establishment in the year is deemed to be a net premium in respect of insurance on property situated in the province or country or from contracts with persons resident in the province or country in which the corporation's permanent establishment to which the net premium is reasonably attributed in the circumstances is located.

Application: The February 13, 2003 draft regulations (foreign bank branches), ss. 2 and 3, (pre-published in the Canada Gazette, Part I, February 15, 2003), will amend the heading to s. 404, in force on the day on which these Regulations are registered, and the opening words of subsec. 404(1) to read as above, applicable after June 27, 1999.

Regulatory Impact Analysis Statement: Tax Abatement

A corporation that has taxable income earned in a province is eligible for a 10 percent federal tax abatement under section 124 of the Act, and Part IV prescribes the meaning of "taxable income earned in a province".

Former subsection 404(1) prescribes the taxable income earned in a province for chartered banks. This amendment changes the reference from "chartered bank" to "bank" to reflect the fact that for the purpose of the Act a "bank" now includes an authorized foreign bank or a bank within the meaning assigned by the Bank Act.

(a) that proportion of its taxable income for the year that the aggregate of the salaries and wages paid in the year by the bank to employees of its permanent establishment in the province is of the aggregate of all salaries and wages paid in the year by the bank, and

(b) twice that proportion of its taxable income for the year that the aggregate amount of loans and deposits of its permanent establishment in the province for the year is of the aggregate amount of all loans and deposits of the bank for the year.

Related Provisions: Reg. 413(3) — Application to authorized foreign bank.

(2) For the purposes of subsection (1), the amount of loans for a taxation year is 1/12 of the aggregate of the amounts outstanding, on the loans made by the bank, at the close of business on the last day of each month in the year.

(3) For the purposes of subsection (1), the amount of deposits for a taxation year is 1/12 of the aggregate of the amounts on deposit with the bank at the close of business on the last day of each month in the year.

(4) For the purposes of subsections (2) and (3), loans and deposits do not include bonds, stocks, debentures, items in transit and deposits in favour of Her Majesty in right of Canada.

History: Subsec. 404(1) substituted by P.C. 1980-3346, s. 2, December 11, 1980, Canada Gazette, Part II, December 24, 1980, effective in respect of taxation years of corporations commencing after 1980.

Definitions [Reg. 404]: "all loans and deposits of the bank for the year" — Reg. 413(3); "amount" — ITA 248(1); "bank" — ITA 248(1), Interpretation Act 35(1); "business" — ITA 248(1); "Canada" — ITA 255, Interpretation Act 35(1); "deposits" — Reg. 404(3), (4); "employee" — ITA 248(1); "Her Majesty" — Interpretation Act 35(1); "loans" — Reg. 404(2), (4); "month" — Interpretation Act 35(1); "permanent establishment" — Reg. 400(2); "province" — Interpretation Act 35(1); "salaries and wages paid in the year" — Reg. 413(1); "taxable income" — Reg. 413(1); "taxation year" — ITA 249.

405. Trust and loan corporations — (1) Notwithstanding subsections 402(3) and (4), the amount of taxable income that shall be deemed to have been earned in a taxation year by a trust and loan corporation, trust corporation or loan corporation in a province in which it had a permanent establishment is that proportion of its taxable income for the year that the gross revenue for the year of its permanent establishment in the province is of the total gross revenue for the year of the corporation.

(2) In subsection (1), "gross revenue for the year of its permanent establishment in the province" means the aggregate of the gross revenue of the corporation for the year arising from

(a) loans secured by lands situated in the province;

(b) loans, not secured by land, to persons residing in the province;

(c) loans

(i) to persons residing in a province or country other than Canada in which the corporation has no permanent establishment, and

(ii) administered by a permanent establishment in the province, except loans secured by land situated in a province or country other than Canada in which the corporation has a permanent establishment; and

(d) business conducted at the permanent establishment in the province, other than revenue in respect of loans.

History: S. 405 substituted by P.C. 1980-3346, s. 3, December 11, 1980, Canada Gazette, Part II, December 24, 1980, effective in respect of taxation years of corporations commencing after 1980.

Definitions [Reg. 405]: "amount", "business" — ITA 248(1); "Canada" — ITA 255, Interpretation Act 35(1); "corporation" — ITA 248(1), Interpretation Act 35(1); "gross revenue" — ITA 248(1); "gross revenue for the year of its permanent establishment in the province" — Reg. 405(2); "permanent establishment" — Reg. 400(2); "person" — ITA 248(1); "province" — Interpretation Act 35(1); "taxable income" — Reg. 413(1); "taxation year" — ITA 249; "trust" — ITA 104(1), 248(1), (3).

406. Railway corporations — (1) Notwithstanding subsections 402(3) and (4), the amount of taxable income that shall be deemed to have been earned by a railway corporation in a taxation year in a province in which it had a permanent establishment is, unless subsection (2) applies, ½ the aggregate of

(a) that proportion of the taxable income of the corporation for the year that the equated track miles of the corporation in the province is of the equated track miles of the corporation in Canada; and

(b) that proportion of the taxable income of the corporation for the year that the gross ton miles of the corporation for the year in the province is of the gross ton miles of the corporation for the year in Canada.

(2) Where a corporation to which subsection (1) would apply, if this subsection did not apply thereto, operates an airline service, ships or hotels or receives substantial revenues that are petroleum or natural gas royalties, or does a combination of two or more of those things, the amount of its taxable income that shall be deemed to have been earned in a taxation year in a province in which it had a permanent establishment is the aggregate of the amounts computed

(a) by applying the provisions of section 407 to that part of its taxable income for the year that may reasonably be considered to have arisen from the operation of the airline service;

(b) by applying the provisions of section 410 to that part of its taxable income for the year that may reasonably be considered to have arisen from the operation of the ships;

(c) by applying the provisions of section 402 to that part of its taxable income for the year that may reasonably be considered to have arisen from the operation of the hotels;

(d) by applying the provisions of section 402 to that part of its taxable income for the year that may reasonably be considered to have arisen from the ownership by the taxpayer of petroleum or natural gas rights or any interest therein; and

(e) by applying the provisions of subsection (1) to the remaining portion of its taxable income for the year.

(3) In this section, "equated track miles" in a specified place means the aggregate of

(a) the number of miles of first main track,

(b) 80 per cent of the number of miles of other main tracks, and

(c) 50 per cent of the number of miles of yard tracks and sidings, in that place.

(4) For the purpose of making an allocation under paragraph (2)(b), a reference in section 410 to "salaries and wages paid in the year by the corporation to employees" shall be read as a reference to salaries and wages paid by the corporation to employees employed in the operation of permanent establishments (other than ships) maintained for the shipping business.

(5) For the purpose of making an allocation under paragraph (2)(c),

(a) a reference in section 402 to "gross revenue for the year reasonably attributable to the permanent establishment in the province" shall be read as a reference to the gross revenue of the taxpayer from operating hotels therein;

(b) a reference in section 402 to "total gross revenue for the year" shall be read as a reference to the total gross revenue of the taxpayer for the year from operating hotels; and

(c) a reference in section 402 to "salaries and wages paid in the year by the corporation to employees" shall be read as a reference to salaries and wages paid to employees engaged in the operations of its hotels.

(6) Notwithstanding subsection 402(5), for the purpose of making an allocation under paragraph (2)(d),

(a) a reference in section 402 to "gross revenue for the year reasonably attributable to the permanent establishment in the province" shall be read as a reference to the gross revenue of the taxpayer from the ownership by the taxpayer of petroleum and natural gas rights in lands in the province and any interest therein;

(b) a reference in section 402 to "total gross revenue for the year" shall be read as a reference to the total gross revenue of the taxpayer from ownership by the taxpayer of petroleum and natural gas rights and any interest therein; and

(c) a reference in section 402 to "salaries and wages paid in the year by the corporation to employees" shall be read as a reference to salaries and wages paid to employees employed in connection with the corporation's petroleum and natural gas rights and interests therein.

407. Airline corporations — (1) Notwithstanding subsections 402(3) and (4), the amount of taxable income that shall be deemed to have been earned in a taxation year by an airline corporation in a province in which it had a permanent establishment is the amount that is equal to ¼ of the aggregate of

(a) that proportion of its taxable income for the year that the capital cost of all the corporation's fixed assets, except aircraft, in the province at the end of the year is of the capital cost of all its fixed assets, except aircraft, in Canada at the end of the year; and

(b) that proportion of its taxable income for the year that three times the number of revenue plane miles flown by its aircraft in the province during the year is of the total number of revenue plane miles flown by its aircraft in Canada during the year other than miles flown in a province in which the corporation had no permanent establishment.

(2) For the purposes of this section, "revenue plane miles flown" shall be weighted according to take-off weight of the aircraft operated.

(3) For the purposes of this section, "take-off weight" of an aircraft means

(a) for an aircraft in respect of which an application form for a Certificate of Airworthiness has been submitted to and accepted by the Department of Transport, the maximum permissible take-off weight, in pounds, shown on the form; and

(b) for any other aircraft, the weight, in pounds, that may reasonably be considered to be the equivalent of the weight referred to in paragraph (a).

408. Grain elevator operators — Notwithstanding subsections 402(3) and (4), the amount of taxable income of a corporation whose chief business is the operation of grain elevators that shall be deemed to have been earned by that corporation in a taxation year in a province in which it had a permanent establishment is ½ of the aggregate of

(a) that proportion of its taxable income for the year that the number of bushels of grain received in the year in the elevators operated by the corporation in the province is of the total number of bushels of grain received in the year in all the elevators operated by the corporation; and

(b) that proportion of its taxable income for the year that the aggregate of salaries and wages paid in the year by the corporation to employees of its permanent establishment in the province is of the aggregate of all salaries and wages paid in the year by the corporation.

History: S. 408 substituted by P.C. 1980-3346, s. 6, December 11, 1980, Canada Gazette, Part II, December 24, 1980, effective in respect of taxation years of corporations commencing after 1980.

409. Bus and truck operators — Notwithstanding subsections 402(3) and (4), the amount of taxable income of a corporation whose chief business is the transportation of goods or passengers (other than by the operation of a railway, ship or airline service) that shall be deemed to have been earned by that corporation in a taxation year in a province in which it had a permanent establishment is ½ of the aggregate of

(a) that proportion of its taxable income for the year that the number of kilometres driven by the corporation's vehicles, whether owned or leased, on roads in the province in the year is of the total number of kilometres driven by those vehicles in the year on roads other than roads in provinces or countries in which the corporation had no permanent establishment; and

(b) that proportion of its taxable income for the year that the aggregate of salaries and wages paid in the year by the corporation to employees of its permanent establishment in the province is of the aggregate of all salaries and wages paid in the year by the corporation.

History: Para. 409(a) substituted by P.C. 1986-1251, s. 1, May 29, 1986, Canada Gazette, Part II, June 11, 1986, applicable to 1985 et seq.

S. 409 substituted by P.C. 1980-3346, s. 7, December 11, 1980, Canada Gazette, Part II, December 24, 1980, effective in respect of taxation years of corporations commencing after 1980.

410. Ship operators — (1) Notwithstanding subsections 402(3) and (4), the amount of taxable income of a corporation whose chief business is the operation of ships that shall be deemed to have been earned by the corporation in a taxation year in a province in which it had a permanent establishment is the aggregate of,

(a) that portion of its allocable income for the year that its port-call-tonnage in the province is of its total port-call-tonnage in all the provinces in which it had a permanent establishment; and

(b) if its taxable income for the year exceeds its allocable income for the year, that proportion of the excess that the aggregate of the salaries and wages paid in the year by the corporation to employees of the permanent establishment (other than a ship) in the province is of the aggregate of salaries and wages paid in the year by the corporation to employees of its permanent establishments (other than ships) in Canada.

(2) In this section,

(a) "allocable income for the year" means that proportion of the taxable income of the corporation for the year that its total port-call-tonnage in Canada is of its total port-call-tonnage in all countries; and

(b) "port-call-tonnage" in a province or country means the aggregate of the products obtained by multiplying, for each ship operated by the corporation, the number of calls made in the year by that ship at ports in that province or country by the number of tons of the registered net tonnage of that ship.

History: S. 410 substituted by P.C. 1980-3346, s. 7, December 11, 1980, Canada Gazette, Part II, December 24, 1980, effective in respect of taxation years of corporations commencing after 1980.

411. Pipeline operators — Notwithstanding subsections 402(3) and (4), the amount of taxable income of a corporation whose chief business is the operation of a pipeline that shall be deemed to have been earned by that corporation in a taxation year in a province in which it had a permanent establishment is ½ of the aggregate of

(a) that proportion of its taxable income for the year that the number of miles of pipeline of the corporation in the province is of the number of miles of pipeline of the corporation in all the provinces in which it had a permanent establishment; and

(b) that proportion of its taxable income for the year that the aggregate of the salaries and wages paid in the year by the corporation to employees of its permanent establishment in the province is of the aggregate of salaries and wages paid in the year by the corporation to employees of its permanent establishments in Canada.

History: S. 411 substituted by P.C. 1980-3346, s. 7, December 11, 1980, Canada Gazette, Part II, December 24, 1980, effective in respect of taxation years of corporations commencing after 1980.

Definitions [Reg. 411]: "amount", "business" — ITA 248(1); "Canada" — ITA 255, Interpretation Act 35(1); "corporation" — ITA 248(1), Interpretation Act 35(1); "employee" — ITA 248(1); "permanent establishment" — Reg. 400(2); "province" — Interpretation Act 35(1); "salaries and wages paid in the year", "taxable income" — Reg. 413(1); "taxation year" — ITA 249.

412. Divided businesses — Where part of the business of a corporation for a taxation year, other than a corporation described in section 403, 404, 405, 406, 407, 408, 409, 410 or 411, consisted of operations normally conducted by a corporation described in one of those sections, the corporation and the Minister may agree to determine the amount of taxable income deemed to have been earned in the year in a particular province to be the aggregate of the amounts computed

(a) by applying the provisions of such of those sections as would have been applicable if it had been a corporation described therein to the portion of its taxable income for the year that might reasonably be considered to have arisen from that part of the business; and

(b) by applying the provisions of section 402 to the remaining portion of its taxable income for the year.

Definitions [Reg. 412]: "amount", "business" — ITA 248(1); "corporation" — ITA 248(1), Interpretation Act 35(1); "Minister" — ITA 248(1); "province" — Interpretation Act 35(1); "taxable income" — Reg. 413(1); "taxation year" — ITA 249.

413. Non-resident corporations — (1) For the purposes of this Part, where a corporation is not resident in Canada, "salaries and wages paid in the year" by the corporation does not include salaries and wages paid to employees of a permanent establishment outside Canada and "taxable income" shall be deemed to refer to taxable income earned in Canada as determined under section 115 of the Act.

Proposed Amendment — Reg. 413(1)

413. (1) Non-resident corporations — In this Part, if a corporation is not resident in Canada, "salaries and wages paid in the year" by the corporation does not include salaries and wages paid to employees of a permanent establishment outside Canada.

Application: Bill C-10 (First Reading Feb. 6, 2009), s. 95, will amend subsec. 413(1) to read as above, applicable to 2009 et seq.

Technical Notes (Dec. 2008): Subsection 413(1) deems "salaries and wages paid in a year" by a corporation that is not resident in Canada not to include salaries and wages paid to its employees of a permanent establishment outside Canada and "taxable income" to refer to taxable income earned in Canada as determined under section 115 of the Act.

Subsection 413(1) is amended consequential to the addition of paragraph 400(1.1)(a) that refers to a corporation's taxable income earned in Canada for a corporation that is not resident in Canada.

(2) For the purposes of paragraph 402(3)(a), where a corporation is not resident in Canada, "total gross revenue for the year" of the corporation does not include gross revenue reasonably attributable to a permanent establishment outside Canada.

Proposed Addition — Reg. 413(3)

(3) For the purpose of paragraph 404(1)(b), in the case of an authorized foreign bank, "all loans and deposits of the bank for the year" shall be read as a reference to "all loans and deposits of the bank for the year in respect of its Canadian banking business".

Application: The February 13, 2003 draft regulations (foreign bank branches), s. 4, (pre-published in the Canada Gazette, Part I, February 15, 2003), will add subsec. 413(3), applicable after June 27, 1999.

Regulatory Impact Analysis Statement: Section 413 defines certain terms, such as "salaries and wages paid in the year" and "total gross revenue for the year", for the purposes of Part IV of the Regulations. New subsection 413(3) of the Regulations prescribes the meaning of all loans and deposits of an authorized foreign bank for the purpose of paragraph 404(1)(b) of the Regulations, which as stated above determines the taxable income earned in a province by a corporation.

Definitions [Reg. 413]: "authorized foreign bank" — ITA 248(1); "Canada" — ITA 255, Interpretation Act 35(1); "Canadian banking business" — ITA 248(1); "corporation" — ITA 248(1), Interpretation Act 35(1); "employee", "gross revenue" — ITA 248(1); "permanent establishment" — Reg. 400(2); "resident in Canada" — ITA 250; "taxable income" — Reg. 413(1); "taxable income earned in Canada" — ITA 248(1).

Proposed Addition — Reg. 413.1

413.1 International banking centre exception — Despite any other provision in this Part, a corporation's taxable income earned in a taxation year in a particular province is equal to the total of

(a) the corporation's taxable income earned in the taxation year in the particular province (determined without reference to this section), and

(b) the positive or negative amount determined by the formula

where

A is the total of all amounts that are, because of the application of section 33.1 of the Act to a business carried on in a branch or office situated in the particular province, not allowed to be deducted in computing the corporation's income for the taxation year, and

B is the total of all amounts that are, because of the application of section 33.1 of the Act to a business carried on in a branch or office situated in the particular province, not required to be added in computing the corporation's income for the taxation year.

Application: Bill C-10 (First Reading Feb. 6, 2009), s. 96, will add s. 413.1, applicable to 2009 et seq.

Technical Notes (Dec. 2008): Under section 33.1 of the Act, special rules apply to the calculation of income from an "international banking centre" business. New section 413.1 ensures that these special rules are appropriately accommodated under Part IV. Specifically, section 413.1 provides that a corporation's taxable income earned in a year in a particular province is to be adjusted to reflect amounts that are either not deductible, or not required to be included, in computing international banking centre business income from a branch or office in the particular province.

Related Provisions: Reg. 400(1.1) — International banking centre — taxable income.

Definitions [Reg. 413.1]: "amount", "business" — ITA 248(1); "corporation" — ITA 248(1), Interpretation Act 35(1); "office" — ITA 248(1); "province" — Interpretation Act 35(1); "taxable income" — ITA 248(1); "taxation year" — ITA 249.

414. Nova Scotia offshore area — For the purpose of subsection 123(2) of the Act, the "amount taxable earned by the corporation in the year in the Nova Scotia offshore area", in respect of a corporation for a taxation year, means the amount of taxable income of the corporation earned in the year that would be allocated under this Part to the Nova Scotia offshore area if the reference to the word "province" in this Part were read as "Nova Scotia offshore area".

Proposed Amendment — Reg. 414

414. Provincial SIFT tax rate — (1) [Definitions] — The following definitions apply in this section.

"general corporate income tax rate", in a province for a taxation year, means

(a) for Quebec, 0%;

(b) for the Newfoundland offshore area, the highest percentage rate of tax imposed under the laws of Newfoundland and Labrador on the taxable income of a public corporation earned in the taxation year in Newfoundland and Labrador;

(c) for the Nova Scotia offshore area, the highest percentage rate of tax imposed under the laws of Nova Scotia on the taxable income of a public corporation earned in the taxation year in Nova Scotia; and

(d) for each other province, the highest percentage rate of tax imposed under the laws of the province on the taxable income of a public corporation earned in the taxation year in the province.

Technical Notes: Sections 414 and 415 set out the prescribed meaning of terms that were once defined in subsection 123(2) of the Act. With the repeal of subsection 123(2) of the Act (for taxation years that begin after December 22, 1989), sections 414 and 415 no longer have effect.

New section 414 sets out the manner for determining the prescribed amount that is the "provincial SIFT tax rate", defined in subsection 248(1) of the Act, in respect of a SIFT trust or SIFT partnership for a taxation year. The provincial SIFT tax rate is used in calculating the tax payable under Part I of the Act on the taxable SIFT trust distributions of a SIFT trust or the taxable nonportfolio earnings of a SIFT partnership.

New subsection 414(1) provides three definitions that apply for purposes of section 414. These new definitions apply to the 2007 and subsequent taxation years.

The definition "general corporate income tax rate" in subsection 414(1) is relevant to applying the allocation formula in subsection 414(3), in particular variable D of the formula in paragraph 414(3)(c).

Under the definition, for the province of Quebec the general corporate income tax rate is set at 0%. This will ensure that a SIFT trust or SIFT partnership that has a permanent establishment (as defined in Part IV) in Quebec and that is subject to Quebec's provincial SIFT tax in respect of amounts attributable to that permanent establishment will not be subject to the provincial component of the federal tax in respect of those amounts.

For each other province, the general corporate income tax rate for a taxation year means the highest corporate income tax rate applicable to public corporations in that province for that taxation year. (Note that for the Newfoundland offshore area, it is the laws of Newfoundland and Labrador that apply and that, for the Nova Scotia offshore area, it is the laws of Nova Scotia that apply.)

Related Provisions: Reg. 414(4) — Limitation on application of para. (a).

"province" includes the Newfoundland offshore area and the Nova Scotia offshore area.

Technical Notes (Dec. 2008): The definition "province" is added to ensure that that expression as used in section 414 has the same meaning that it has in applying Part IV of the regulations to corporations. (Part IV applies to corporations in the context of the provincial abatement under section 124 of the Act.) To this end, the definition "province" in subsection 414(1) provides that a reference to province has the meaning it has under section 124 of the Act.

Because of the definition "province" in the federal Interpretation Act the reference includes the Northwest Territories, Yukon and Nunavut, and because of the definition "province" in section 124 of the Act, the meaning assigned by the Interpretation Act is extended to include the Newfoundland and Nova Scotia offshore areas (as defined, in turn, by subsection 248(1) of the Act).

It should be noted that a similar definition is not needed in Part IV for the purposes of applying those regulations to a corporation because the definition "province" in section 124 of the Act — which is the provision that confers the power to make the regulations in Part IV that apply to corporations — applies automatically for those purposes by operation of the federal Interpretation Act.

Related Provisions: ITA 124(4) — Same definition applies to corporations.

"taxable SIFT distributions", for a taxation year, means

(a) in the case of a SIFT trust, its non-deductible distributions amount for the taxation year; and

(b) in the case of a SIFT partnership, its taxable non-portfolio earnings for the taxation year.

Technical Notes (Dec. 2008): The definition "taxable SIFT distributions" provides the allocable tax base for purposes of applying the allocation formula for SIFT trusts and SIFT partnerships in subsection 414(3).

For a SIFT partnership, taxable SIFT distributions for a taxation year means the partnership's taxable non-portfolio earnings (which is defined in section 197 of the Act) for the taxation year. This is the same amount that is the taxable base on which the SIFT tax is imposed upon the SIFT partnership under Part IX.1 of the Act.

For a SIFT trust, taxable SIFT distributions for a taxation year means its non-deductible distributions amount (which is defined in section 122 of the Act, by reference to subsection 104(16) of the Act) for the taxation year.

Related Provisions: ITA 104(16), 122(3) — Non-deductible distributions amount; ITA 197(1) — Taxable non-portfolio earnings.

(2) [Application to SIFT] — In determining the amount of a SIFT trust's or SIFT partnership's taxable SIFT distributions for a taxation year earned in a province

(a) except as provided in paragraph (b), this Part applies in respect of the SIFT trust or SIFT partnership as though

(i) each reference to "corporation" (other than in the expression "subsidiary controlled corporation") were read as a reference to "SIFT trust" or "SIFT partnership" as the case may be,

(ii) each reference to "taxable income" were read as a reference to "taxable SIFT distributions",

(iii) each reference to "its incorporating documents or bylaws" were read as a reference to "the agreement governing the SIFT trust" or "the agreement governing the SIFT partnership", as the case may be, and

(iv) "subsidiary controlled corporation" in respect of a SIFT trust or a SIFT partnership meant a corporation more than 50% of the issued share capital of which (having full voting rights under all circumstances) belongs to the SIFT trust or SIFT partnership, as the case may be; and

(b) subsection 400(1), section 401, subsections 402(1) and (2) and sections 403 to 413 do not apply.

Technical Notes (Dec. 2008): Subsection 414(2) provides a number of rules of application to ensure the proper integration of section 414 with the rest of Part IV in determining the amount of a SIFT trust's or SIFT partnership's taxable SIFT distributions for a taxation year earned in a province. These rules apply to the 2007 and subsequent taxation years.

Because a SIFT trust or SIFT partnership is intended to use, in applying the formula in paragraph 414(3)(c), only the general allocation rules in subsection 404(3), paragraph 414(2)(b) provides that subsection 400(1), section 401, subsections 402(1) and (2), and sections 403 to 413 do not apply in determining the amount of a SIFT trust's or SIFT partnership's taxable SIFT distributions for a taxation year earned in a province.

With the exception of the provisions identified in paragraph 414(2)(b), the rules in Part IV will otherwise apply, as modified by paragraph 414(2)(a), in determining the amount of a SIFT trust's or SIFT partnership's taxable SIFT distributions for a taxation year earned in a province. More particularly, in applying the relevant provisions of Part IV for that determination:

- a reference to "corporation" (other than in the expression "subsidiary controlled corporation") is to be read as a reference to "SIFT trust" or "SIFT partnership" as the case may be,
- a reference to "its incorporating documents or bylaws" is to be read as a reference to "the agreement governing the SIFT trust" or "the agreement governing the SIFT partnership", as the case may be,
- a reference to "taxable income" is to read as a reference to "taxable SIFT distributions", and
- a reference to "subsidiary controlled corporation" in respect of a SIFT trust or a SIFT partnership is to be read as meaning a corporation more than 50% of the issued share capital of which (having full voting rights under all circumstances) belongs to the SIFT trust or SIFT partnership.

These modifications will, among other things, ensure that the meaning of "permanent establishment" in subsection 400(2) applies to a SIFT trust or SIFT partnership, in applying subsection 414(3), as it applies for purposes of Part IV generally to a corporation carrying on similar activities.

(3) Subject to subsection (4), in applying the definition "provincial SIFT tax rate" in subsection 248(1) of the Act in respect of a SIFT trust or SIFT partnership for a taxation year, the prescribed amount determined in respect of the SIFT trust or SIFT partnership for the taxation year is

(a) if the SIFT trust or SIFT partnership has no permanent establishment in a province in the taxation year, 0.10;

(b) if the SIFT trust or SIFT partnership has a permanent establishment in a province in the taxation year and has no permanent establishment outside that province in the taxation year, the decimal fraction equivalent of the general corporate income tax rate in the province for the taxation year; and

(c) if the SIFT trust or SIFT partnership has a permanent establishment in the taxation year in a province, and has a permanent establishment outside that province in the taxation year, the amount, expressed as a decimal fraction, determined by the formula

where

A is the total of all amounts, if any, each of which is in respect of a province in which the SIFT trust or SIFT partnership has a permanent establishment in the taxation year and is determined by the formula

$$C/D \times E$$

where

C is its taxable SIFT distributions for the taxation year earned in the province,

D is its total taxable SIFT distributions for the taxation year, and

E is the decimal fraction equivalent of the general corporate income tax rate in the province for the taxation year, and

B is the amount determined by the formula

$$(1 - F/D) \times 0.1$$

where

F is the total of all amounts each of which is an amount determined under the description of C in the description of A in respect of a province in which the SIFT trust or SIFT partnership has a permanent establishment in the taxation year.

Technical Notes (Dec. 2008): Subsection 414(3) provides rules for determining the prescribed amount under the definition "provincial SIFT tax rate" in subsection 248(1) of the Act. This amendment applies to the 2007 and subsequent taxation years.

Subsection 414(3) contemplates three different rules for determining the prescribed amount. The first rule, contained in paragraph 414(3)(a), applies if the SIFT trust or SIFT partnership has no permanent establishment in a province in the taxation year. If this is the case, the prescribed amount that is the SIFT trust's or partnership's provincial SIFT tax rate for the taxation year is 10%.

The second rule, contained in paragraph 414(3)(b), applies if the SIFT trust or SIFT partnership has a permanent establishment in a single province, but no permanent establishment outside that province, in a taxation year. If this is the case, the prescribed amount that is the SIFT trust's or partnership's provincial SIFT tax rate for the taxation year is the general corporate income tax rate in the province for the taxation year.

The final rule, contained in paragraph 414(3)(b), applies if the SIFT trust or partnership has a permanent establishment in a province in a taxation year and a permanent establishment outside that province (whether inside or outside Canada) in that taxation year. In these circumstances, the prescribed amount that is the SIFT trust's or partnership's provincial SIFT tax rate for the taxation year is the positive amount determined by the formula A + B described in that paragraph. This formula, which applies in conjunction with the application rules in subsection 414(2), computes the prescribed amount using the factors from the general corporate allocation formula in subsection 402(3). The intended effect is to arrive at a rate for the provincial component of the federal SIFT tax that represents a weighted average of the corporate income tax rates of each province in which the SIFT trust or SIFT partnership has a permanent establishment in the relevant taxation year. Note that the formula applies a 10% rate to that portion of the SIFT trust or partnership's taxable SIFT distributions that is not allocated to a permanent establishment in a province in the relevant taxation year.

Variable A of the formula applies to determine the weighted average portion of the prescribed amount that is attributable to the SIFT trust's or partnership's taxable SIFT distributions earned in a year in a province in which it has a permanent establishment for the taxation year. The nested formula within variable A determines the proportion of the SIFT trust's or SIFT partnership's allocable base in the province, and multiplies that amount by the general corporate income tax rate in that province. More specifically, variable A is the total of all amounts each of which is in respect of a province in which the SIFT trust or partnership has a permanent establishment in the taxation year and is the positive amount determined by the formula

where

- C is the trust's or partnership's taxable SIFT distributions for the taxation year earned in the province; this is determined in respect of each relevant province by making an allocation of the trust's or partnership's taxable SIFT distributions for the year (as defined in subsection 414(1)) using the rules in subsections 402(3) to (8), as modified by subsection 414(2);
- D is its total taxable SIFT distributions for the taxation year, and
- E is the decimal fraction equivalent of the general corporate income tax rate (as defined in subsection 414(1)) in the province for the taxation year.

Variable B of the formula applies to determine the weighted average portion of the prescribed amount that is not attributable to the SIFT trust's or partnership's taxable SIFT distributions earned in a year in a province in which it has a permanent establishment for the taxation year. The nested formula in variable B calculates the proportion of the SIFT trust's or SIFT partnership's allocable base not attributable to a province, and multiplies that amount by 10%. More specifically, variable B is the amount determined by the formula (1 – F/D) × 0.1, where F is the total of all amounts each of which is an amount determined under the description of C in the description of A in respect of a province in which the SIFT trust or SIFT partnership has a permanent establishment in the taxation year.

The total of A + B provides the corresponding weighted average rate that, expressed as a decimal fraction, is the prescribed amount for a SIFT trust or partnership in circumstances in which paragraph 414(3)(c) applies.

The following examples illustrate the intended application of the formula in paragraph 414(3)(c).

Example 1

A SIFT trust has permanent establishments in Province A, Province B, and outside of Canada in the year. The SIFT trust's taxable SIFT trust distributions for the year are $100,000. Pursuant to section 402, as modified by subsection 414(2), the SIFT trust has $30,000 of taxable SIFT distributions earned in Province A in the year and $60,000 earned in Province B. The remaining $10,000 in taxable SIFT distributions are not attributable to any province in which the trust has a permanent establishment in the year. Province A has a general corporate income tax rate for the year of 16% and Province B, 12%.

Variable A is determined adding together the results of C/D × E for each province in which there is a permanent establishment.

Province A: $30,000 / $100,000 × 0.16 = 0.048

Province B: $60,000 / $100,000 × 0.12 = 0.072

Total 0.12

Variable B is determined by the formula (1 – F/D) × 0.1

Therefore, variable B is

$$(1 - $90,000 / $100,000) \times 0.1 = 0.01$$

The provincial SIFT tax rate, expressed as a decimal fraction, is the sum of A and B, which is 0.12 + 0.01 = 0.13, or 13%. Therefore, the SIFT trust will pay $13,000 in federal tax as its provincial component of the SIFT tax, and this will be distributed to the provinces as follows: $4,800 to Province A and $7,200 to Province B.

Example 2

A SIFT partnership has permanent establishments in Quebec and outside of Canada in the year. The SIFT partnership's taxable SIFT distributions earned in Quebec for the year are $30,000. The remaining $70,000 of taxable SIFT distributions are not attributable to any province in which the partnership has a permanent establishment in the year.

In determining variable A, Quebec's general corporate income tax rate for the year is 0%. Therefore, A will be $30,000 / $100,000 × 0 = 0.

Variable B is determined by the formula (1 – F/D) × 0.1, which is (1 – $30,000 / $100,000) × 0.1 = 0.07.

The provincial SIFT tax rate, expressed as a decimal fraction, is the sum of A and B, which provides the SIFT partnership with a rate of 0.07. Therefore, the SIFT Partnership will pay $7,000 in federal tax as its provincial component of the SIFT tax. None of this tax will be distributed to the provinces.

(4) If a SIFT trust or a SIFT partnership has a permanent establishment in Quebec in a taxation year, paragraph (a) of the definition "general corporate income tax rate" in subsection (1) does not apply in determining the prescribed amount under subsection (3) in respect of the SIFT trust or the SIFT partnership for the taxation year for the purposes of applying the definition "provincial SIFT tax rate" in determining:

(a) in the case of the SIFT partnership, the amount of a dividend deemed by paragraph 96(1.11)(b) of the Act to have been received by it in the taxation year; and

(b) in the case of the SIFT trust, the amount of its taxable SIFT trust distributions for the taxation year.

Application: Bill C-10 (First Reading Feb. 6, 2009), s. 97, will replace s. 414 with the above, applicable to 2007 et seq, except that para. 414(4)(b) shall not apply for the taxation years of a SIFT trust that end before February 3, 2009.

From: Grant Wilkinson, <Grant.Wilkinson@cra-arc.gc.ca>

To: David M. Sherman <ds@davidsherman.ca>

Sylvain Lavoie has asked me to reply to your message of yesterday concerning the inclusion of 56.4(3)(c) in reg 600. It is still our intention to add it to reg 600. However, as I know you can appreciate, I have no idea when that provision will be enacted [it is in Bill C-10, 2002-09 technical bill — ed.], so I cannot even guess when the amendment will be made.

I'm sorry that I cannot be more definite.

PART VII — LOGGING TAXES ON INCOME

History: Part VII was consolidated by the Consolidated Regulations of Canada, chapter 945, proclaimed in force August 15, 1979, by P.C. 1979-1934, July 19, 1979, Canada Gazette, Part II, August 8, 1979.

Heading preceding s. 700 substituted by P.C. 1978-1315, s. 1, April 20, 1978, Canada Gazette, Part II, May 10, 1978.

700. Logging — (1) Except as provided in subsection (2), for the purposes of paragraph 127(2)(a) [127(2)"income for the year from logging operations in the province"] of the Act "income for the year from logging operations in the province" means the aggregate of

(a) where standing timber is cut in the province by the taxpayer or logs cut from standing timber in the province are acquired by the taxpayer and the logs so obtained are sold by the taxpayer in the province before or on delivery to a sawmill, pulp or paper plant or other place for processing logs, the taxpayer's income for the year from the sale, other than any portion thereof that was included in computing the taxpayer's income from logging operations in the province for a previous year;

(b) where standing timber in the province or the right to cut standing timber in the province is sold by the taxpayer, the taxpayer's income for the year from the sale, other than any portion thereof that was included in computing the taxpayer's income from logging operations in the province for a previous year;

(c) where standing timber is cut in the province by the taxpayer or logs cut from standing timber in the province are acquired by the taxpayer, if the logs so obtained are

(i) exported from the province and are sold by him prior to or on delivery to a sawmill, pulp or paper plant or other place for processing logs, or

(ii) exported from Canada, the amount computed by deducting from the value, as determined by the province, of the logs so exported in the year, the aggregate of the costs of acquiring, cutting, transporting and selling the logs; and

(d) where standing timber is cut in the province by the taxpayer or logs cut from standing timber in the province are acquired by the taxpayer, if the logs are processed by the taxpayer or by a person on his behalf in a sawmill, pulp or paper plant or other place for processing logs in Canada, the income of the taxpayer for the year from all sources minus the aggregate of

(i) his income from sources other than logging operations carried on in Canada and other than the processing in Canada by him or on his behalf and sale by him of logs, timber and products produced therefrom,

(ii) each amount included in the aggregate determined under this subsection by virtue of paragraph (a), (b) or (c), and

(iii) an amount equal to eight per cent of the original cost to him of properties described in Schedule II used by him in the year in the processing of logs or products derived therefrom or, if the amount so determined is greater than 65 per cent of the income remaining after making the deductions under subparagraphs (i) and (ii), 65 per cent of the income so remaining or, if the amount so determined is less than 35 per cent of the income so remaining, 35 per cent of the income so remaining.

History: Paras. 700(1)(a), (b) substituted by P.C. 1992-1862, August 27, 1992, Canada Gazette, Part II, September 9, 1992, applicable in respect of taxation years beginning after 1990.

All that portion of para. 700(1)(d) preceding subpara. (ii) and all that portion of para. 700(2)(b) preceding subpara. (ii) substituted by P.C. 1987-2355, November 26, 1987, Canada Gazette, Part II, December 9, 1987, applicable to taxation years ending after December 9, 1987.

(2) Where the taxpayer cuts standing timber or acquires logs cut from standing timber in more than one province, for the purposes of paragraph 127(2)(a) [127(2)"income for the year from logging operations in the province"] of the Act "income for the year from logging operations in the province" means the aggregate of

(a) the amounts determined in respect of that province in accordance with paragraphs (1)(a), (b) and (c); and

(b) where the logs are processed by the taxpayer or by a person on his behalf in a sawmill, pulp or paper plant or other place for processing logs in Canada, an amount equal to the proportion of the income of the taxpayer for the year from all sources minus the aggregate of

(i) his income from sources other than logging operations carried on in Canada and other than the processing in Canada by him or on his behalf and sale by him of logs, timber and products produced therefrom,

(ii) the aggregate of amounts determined in respect of each province in accordance with paragraphs (1)(a), (b) and (c), and

(iii) an amount equal to eight per cent of the original cost to him of properties described in Schedule II used by him in the year in the processing of logs or products derived therefrom or, if the amount so determined is greater than 65 per cent of the income remaining after making the deductions under subparagraphs (i) and (ii), 65 per cent of the income so remaining or, if the amount so determined is less than 35 per cent of the income so remaining, 35 per cent of the income so remaining,

that

(iv) the quantity of standing timber cut in the province in the year by the taxpayer and logs cut from standing timber in the province acquired by the taxpayer in the year,

is of

(v) the total quantity of standing timber cut and logs acquired in the year by the taxpayer.

Forms: T2 SCH 21: Federal foreign income tax credits and federal logging tax credit.

(3) For the purposes of paragraph 127(2)(b) [127(2)"logging tax"] of the Act, the tax imposed by the legislature of

(a) the Province of British Columbia under the Logging Tax Act of that province, and

(b) [Revoked]

(c) the Province of Quebec under Part VII of the Taxation Act of that province, are each declared to be a tax of general application on income from logging operations.

History: Para. 700(3)(b) revoked, (c) substituted by P.C. 1982- 3879, December 16, 1982, Canada Gazette, Part II, January 12, 1983, applicable, as to para. 700(3)(b), in respect of taxation years ending after March 30, 1972, and, as to para. 700(3)(c), in respect of 1972 et seq.

Definitions [Reg. 700]: "amount" — ITA 248(1); "Canada" — ITA 255, Interpretation Act 35(1); "legislature" — Interpretation Act 35(1)"legislative assembly"; "person" — ITA 248(1); "province" — Interpretation Act 35(1); "taxpayer" — ITA 248(1).

701. [Revoked]

History: S. 701 revoked by P.C. 1978-1315, s. 2, April 20, 1978, Canada Gazette, Part II, May 10, 1978.

PART VIII — NON-RESIDENT TAXES

History: Part VIII was consolidated by the Consolidated Regulations of Canada, chapter 945, proclaimed in force August 15, 1979, by P.C. 1979-1934, July 19, 1979, Canada Gazette, Part II, August 8, 1979.

800. Registered non-resident insurers — For the purposes of subsection 215(4) of the Act, subsections 215(1), (2) and (3) of the Act do not apply to amounts paid or credited to a registered non-resident insurer.

Proposed Amendment — Reg. 800

800. Authorized foreign banks and non-resident insurers — Subsections 215(1), (2) and (3) of the Act do not apply to amounts paid or credited to an authorized foreign bank or to a registered non-resident insurer.

Application: The February 13, 2003 draft regulations (foreign bank branches), s. 5, (pre-published in the Canada Gazette, Part I, February 15, 2003), will amend s. 800 to read as above, applicable to taxation years that end after June 27, 1999.

Technical Notes, Dec. 20, 2002: Section 800 provides that amounts paid or credited to a registered non-resident insurer are not subject to the withholding obligations set out in subsections 215(1), (2) and (3) of the Act. The section is to be amended to apply as well to amounts paid or credited to an authorized foreign bank, and to update its structure.

Regulatory Impact Analysis Statement: Sections 800 to 803 currently exempt a resident payer from the withholding responsibility imposed under Part XIII of the Act on payments made to a registered non- resident insurer. Also, these sections outline the compliance rules applicable to a registered non-resident insurer. These sections are amended to apply to an authorized foreign bank as well.

Alternatives

These Regulations are necessary for the application of the taxation regime of foreign bank branches. Therefore, no alternatives were considered.

Benefits and Costs

These amending Regulations are essential for the application of the taxation regime of the foreign bank branches, and there should be no additional costs in the administration of these Regulations.

Consultation

These amendments were developed through extensive consultations with representatives of the banking sector, both Canadian and foreign, and the Canada Customs and Revenue Agency.

In addition, all stakeholders were given an opportunity to comment on the tax rules for authorized foreign banks when those rules were released in a draft form on August 8, 2000 [and December 20, 2002 — ed.].

Definitions [Reg. 800]: "amount", "authorized foreign bank" — ITA 248(1); "registered non-resident insurer" — Reg. 804.

801. Filing of returns by non-resident insurers — For the purposes of subsection 215(4) of the Act, where a taxpayer is a registered non-resident insurer in a taxation year, the taxpayer shall file a return in respect thereof in prescribed form with the Minister within the six month period immediately following the end of the year.

Proposed Amendment — Reg. 801

801. Filing of returns by non-resident insurers — A taxpayer that is an authorized foreign bank or a registered non-resident insurer at any time in a taxation year shall file a return in respect the year in prescribed form with the Minister on or before its filing-due date for the year.

Application: The February 13, 2003 draft regulations (foreign bank branches), s. 5, (pre-published in the Canada Gazette, Part I, February 15, 2003), will amend s. 801 to read as above, applicable to taxation years that end after June 27, 1999, except that the return required to be filed under section 801 by an authorized foreign bank is deemed to have been filed with the Minister of National Revenue in a timely manner if it is so filed on or before the later of

(a) the day on or before which it would, but for this subsec., be required to be filed; and

(b) the day that is 6 months after the day on which this Regulation is registered.

Technical Notes, Dec. 20, 2002: Section 801 requires a non-resident insurer to file a return in respect of tax payable by it under Part XIII of the Act. The section is to be amended to apply the same requirement to an authorized foreign bank.

This amendment is to apply to taxation years that end after June 27, 1999, except that the return required to be filed by an authorized foreign bank is deemed to have been filed with the Minister of National Revenue in a timely manner if it is filed on or before the later of

- the day on or before which it would otherwise be required to be filed (that is, the bank's filing-due date for the taxation year in question); and
- the day that is 6 months after the day on which this Regulation is registered.

Regulatory Impact Analysis Statement: See under Reg. 800 above.

History: S. 801 substituted by P.C. 1990-2002, s. 1, September 20, 1990, Canada Gazette, Part II, October 10, 1990, applicable in respect of taxation years beginning after June 17, 1987 and ending after 1987.

Definitions [Reg. 801]: "authorized foreign bank", "Minister" — ITA 248(1); "month" — Interpretation Act 35(1); "prescribed" — ITA 248(1); "registered non-resident insurer" — Reg. 804; "taxation year" — ITA 249; "taxpayer" — ITA 248(1).

Forms: T2016: Part XIII tax return — tax on income from Canada of approved non-resident insurers.

802. Amounts taxable — For the purposes of paragraph 214(13)(c) of the Act, the amounts taxable under Part XIII of the Act in a relevant taxation year of a taxpayer are amounts paid or credited to the taxpayer in the relevant taxation year other than amounts included pursuant to Part I of the Act in computing the taxpayer's income from a business carried on by it in Canada.

Proposed Amendment — Reg. 802

802. Amounts taxable — The amounts that are taxable under Part XIII of the Act in a taxation year of a taxpayer that is an authorized foreign bank or a registered non-resident insurer are amounts paid or credited to the taxpayer in the year other than amounts included under Part I of the Act in computing the taxpayer's income from a business carried on by it in Canada.

Application: The February 13, 2003 draft regulations (foreign bank branches), s. 5, (pre-published in the Canada Gazette, Part I, February 15, 2003), will amend s. 802 to read as above, applicable to taxation years that end after June 27, 1999.

Technical Notes, Dec. 20, 2002: Section 802 ensures that Parts I and XIII of the Act do not overlap in respect of a registered non-resident insurer's income from carrying on business in Canada. In general terms, the section provides that, to the extent such income is dealt with by Part I, it is not subject to taxation under Part XIII. In its current form, section 802 is not clearly confined to registered non-resident insurers. As a result, its relationship to section 805, which deals with the same subject in respect of other taxpayers, is also unclear.

Section 802 is to be amended to clarify its application, and to provide that it applies as well to authorized foreign banks. This amendment is to apply to taxation years that end after June 27, 1999.

Regulatory Impact Analysis Statement: See under Reg. 800 above.

803. Payment of tax by non-resident insurers — For the purposes of subsection 215(4) of the Act, a taxpayer shall pay to the Receiver General, on or before the last day on which the return in respect of a relevant taxation year is required to be filed pursuant to section 801, the tax payable by the taxpayer under Part XIII of the Act on amounts referred to in section 802 in respect of the relevant taxation year.

Proposed Amendment — Reg. 803

803. Payment of tax by non-resident insurers — Authorized foreign banks and registered non-resident insurers shall pay to the Receiver General, on or before their filing-due dates for a taxation year, the tax payable by them under Part XIII of the Act.

Application: The February 13, 2003 draft regulations (foreign bank branches), s. 5, (pre-published in the Canada Gazette, Part I, February 15, 2003), will amend s. 803 to read as above, applicable to taxation years that end after June 27, 1999.

Technical Notes, Dec. 20, 2002: Section 803 provides that a registered non-resident insurer must pay its Part XIII tax owing in respect of a taxation year on or before the day on which its return under Regulation 801 in respect of the year is due. The section is to be amended to clarify its scope and meaning, and to provide that it is to apply as well to authorized foreign banks. This amendment is to apply to taxation years that end after June 27, 1999.

Regulatory Impact Analysis Statement: See under Reg. 800 above.

Definitions [Reg. 803]: "authorized foreign bank", "amount" — ITA 248(1); "registered non-resident insurer" — Reg. 804; "taxation year" — ITA 249; "taxpayer" — ITA 248(1).

804. Interpretation — In this Part, "registered non-resident insurer" means a non-resident corporation approved to carry on business in Canada under the Insurance Companies Act.

History: S. 804 replaced by P.C. 2000-1714, November 30, 2000, Canada Gazette, Part II, December 20, 2000, s. 1, applicable after May 1992.

The heading preceding s. 800, and ss. 800 to 804, were substituted by P.C. 1979-1485, May 17, 1979, Canada Gazette, Part II, June 13, 1979, effective for 1978 et seq.

Definitions [Reg. 804]: "business" — ITA 248(1); "Canada" — ITA 255, Interpretation Act 35(1); "corporation" — ITA 248(1), Interpretation Act 35(1); "non-resident" — ITA 248(1).

805. Other non-resident persons — (1) Every non-resident person who carries on business in Canada shall be taxable under Part XIII of the Act on all amounts otherwise taxable under that Part except those amounts that

(a) may reasonably be attributed to the business carried on by him through a permanent establishment (within the meaning assigned by subsection 400(2) or that would be assigned by that subsection if he were a corporation) in Canada; or

(b) are required by subparagraph 115(1)(a)(iii.3) of the Act to be included in computing his taxable income earned in the year in Canada.

(2) Where the Minister is satisfied that under subsection (1) an amount is not taxable under Part XIII of the Act, he may permit payment to be made to the non-resident person without any deduction being made under section 215 of the Act.

(3) Subsections (1) and (2) do not apply in respect of amounts upon which tax under Part XIII of the Act is payable in a relevant taxation year by a taxpayer required by section 801 to file the return described in that section in respect of that year.

Proposed Amendment — Reg. 805 (repealing 805(2), (3))

805. Other non-resident persons — Subject to section 802, every non-resident person who carries on business in Canada is taxable under Part XIII of the Act on all amounts otherwise taxable under that Part except those amounts that

(a) may reasonably be attributed to the business carried on by the person through a permanent establishment (within the meaning assigned by subsection 400(2) or that would be assigned by that subsection if the person were a corporation) in Canada; or

(b) are required by subparagraph 115(1)(a)(iii.3) of the Act to be included in computing the person's taxable income earned in Canada for the year.

Application: The February 13, 2003 draft regulations (foreign bank branches), s. 6, will amend subsec. 805(1) to read as above and repeal subsecs. (2) and (3), applicable to taxation years that end after June 27, 1999.

Technical Notes, Dec. 20, 2002: Section 805 provides rules for determining whether an amount is taxable under Part XIII of the Act, in a case where the non-resident recipient of the amount carries on a business in Canada. In general terms, the section provides that an amount paid to a non-resident is taxable under Part XIII of the Act if that amount cannot reasonably be attributed to a business carried on by the non-resident through a permanent establishment in Canada.

Section 805 is to be amended to update its structure and language, and to clarify its relationship to section 802 — in effect, that section 805 is not applicable to authorized foreign banks and registered non-resident insurers.

806. International organizations and agencies — For the purposes of clause 212(1)(b)(ii)(B) of the Act, the following international organizations and agencies are hereby prescribed:

(a) Bank for International Settlements;

(b) European Fund;

(c) International Bank for Reconstruction and Development;

(d) International Development Association;

(e) International Finance Corporation; and

(f) International Monetary Fund.

806.1 For the purposes of subparagraph 212(1)(b)(x) of the Act, the Bank for International Settlements and the European Bank for Reconstruction and Development are prescribed international agencies.

History: S. 806.1 substituted by P.C. 1994-270, February 16, 1994, Canada Gazette, Part II, March 9, 1994, applicable after 1990.

806.2 Prescribed obligation — For the purpose of paragraph 212(1)(b) of the Act, an obligation is a prescribed obligation if it is an indexed debt obligation and no amount payable in respect of it is

(a) contingent or dependent upon the use of, or production from, property in Canada; or

(b) computed by reference to

(i) revenue, profit, cash flow, commodity price or any other similar criterion, other than a change in the purchasing power of money, or

(ii) dividends paid or payable to shareholders of any class of shares.

History: S. 806.2 amended by P.C. 1996-1419, s. 2, September 11, 1996, Canada Gazette, Part II, October 2, 1996, applicable to debt obligations issued after October 16, 1991.

S. 806.2 added by P.C. 1993-1331, June 16, 1993, Canada Gazette, Part II, June 30, 1993, applicable in respect of debt obligations issued after October 16, 1991.

Interpretation Bulletins: IT-361R3: Exemption from Part XIII tax on interest payments to non-residents.

807. Identification of obligations — For the purposes of subsection 240(2) of the Act, the letters "AX" or the letter "F" as the case may be, shall be clearly and indelibly printed in gothic or similar style capital letters of seven point or larger size either as a prefix to the coupon number or on the lower right hand corner of each coupon or other writing issued in evidence of a right to interest on an obligation referred to in that subsection.

Definitions [Reg. 807]: "writing" — Interpretation Act 35(1).

808. Allowances in respect of investment in property in Canada — (1) [Allowance] — For the purposes of paragraph 219(1)(h) of the Act, a corporation's allowance for a taxation year in respect of its investment in property in Canada is hereby prescribed to be the amount, if any, by which

Proposed Amendment — Reg. 808(1) opening words

808. (1) For the purposes of paragraph 219(1)(j) of the Act, the allowance of a corporation (other than an authorized foreign bank) for a taxation year in respect of its investment in property in Canada is prescribed to be the amount, if any, by which

Application: The February 13, 2003 draft regulations (foreign bank branches), subsec. 7(1), (pre-published in the Canada Gazette, Part I, February 15, 2003), will amend the opening words of subsec. 808(1) to read as above, applicable to taxation years that begin after 1995, except that in applying the amendment to taxation years ending before June 28, 1999, it is to be read without reference to "(other than an authorized foreign bank)".

Regulatory Impact Analysis Statement: See under Reg. 808(8) below.

(a) the corporation's qualified investment in property in Canada at the end of the year,

exceeds

(b) the aggregate of

(i) all allowances computed under this section as it read in its application to each of the taxation years of the corporation that ended before 1972 to the extent that for those taxation years such allowances reduced the amount on which the corporation was taxable under subsection 110B(1) of the Act as it read in its application to those taxation years, and

(ii) the capital investment of the corporation in property in Canada at the end of the corporation's 1960 taxation year, determined under this section as it read in its application to the 1961 taxation year.

Related Provisions: Reg. Reg. 808(1.1) — Where corporation becomes resident in Canada.

Interpretation Bulletins: IT-137R3: Additional tax on certain corporations carrying on business in Canada.

Proposed Addition — Reg. 808(1.1)

(1.1) [Where corporation becomes resident] — Notwithstanding subsection (1), if a corporation becomes resident in Canada at a particular time, the corporation's allowance in respect of its investment in property in Canada for its last taxation year that ended before the particular time is prescribed to be nil.

Application: The October 27, 1998 draft regulations, s. 1, will add 808(1.1), applicable to corporations that become resident in Canada after February 23, 1998.

Technical Notes: Subsection 808(1) specifies the amount of a corporation's allowance in respect of investment in property in Canada for the purposes of the "branch tax" imposed under Part XIV of the Act.

New subsection 808(1.1) provides that where a corporation becomes resident in Canada, the corporation's investment allowance for the taxation year that is deemed to end immediately before immigration is nil. Since the corporation will be unable to claim an investment allowance, it will be liable to pay branch tax on any unremitted profits of a Canadian branch arising in the year or deferred in respect of previous years. Effectively, for an immigrating corporation, unremitted profits of a Canadian branch are treated similarly to the undistributed surplus of a Canadian corporation in which the immigrating corporation holds shares, which is deemed to be distributed as a dividend by paragraph 128.1(1)(c.1) of the Act.

New subsection 808(1.1) applies to corporations that become resident in Canada after February 23, 1998.

(2) ["Qualified investment in . . ."] — For the purposes of subsection (1), where, at the end of a taxation year, a corporation is not a member of a partnership that was carrying on business in Canada at any time in the year, the corporation's "qualified investment in property in Canada at the end of the year" is the amount, if any, by which the aggregate of

(a) the cost amount to the corporation, at the end of the year, of land in Canada owned by it at that time for the purpose of gaining or producing income from a business carried on by it in Canada, other than land that is

(i) described in the corporation's inventory,

(ii) depreciable property,

(iii) a Canadian resource property, or

(iv) land the cost of which is or was deductible in computing the corporation's income,

(b) an amount equal to the aggregate of the cost amount to the corporation, immediately after the end of the year, of each depreciable property in Canada owned by it for the purpose of gaining or producing income from a business carried on by it in Canada,

(c) an amount equal to 4/3 of the cumulative eligible capital of the corporation immediately after the end of the year in respect of each business carried on by it in Canada,

(d) where the corporation is not a principal-business corporation, within the meaning assigned by paragraph 66(15)(h) [66(15)"principal-business corporation"] of the Act, an amount equal to the aggregate of the corporation's

(i) Canadian exploration and development expenses, within the meaning assigned by paragraph 66(15)(b) [66(15)"Canadian exploration and development expenses"] of the Act, incurred by the corporation before the end of the year except to the extent that such expenses were deducted by the corporation in computing its income for the year or for a previous taxation year, and

(ii) cumulative Canadian exploration expense, within the meaning assigned by paragraph 66.1(6)(b) [66.1(6)"cumulative Canadian exploration expense"] of the Act, at the end of the year minus any deduction under subsection 66.1(3) of the Act in computing the corporation's income for the year,

(d.1) an amount equal to the corporation's cumulative Canadian development expense, within the meaning assigned by paragraph 66.2(5)(b) [66.2(5)"cumulative Canadian development expense"] of the Act, at the end of the year minus any deduction under subsection 66.2(2) of the Act in computing the corporation's income for the year,

(d.2) an amount equal to the corporation's cumulative Canadian oil and gas property expense, within the meaning assigned by paragraph 66.4(5)(b) [66.4(5)"cumulative Canadian oil and gas property expense"] of the Act, at the end of the year minus any deduction under subsection 66.4(2) of the Act in computing the corporation's income for the year,

Proposed Amendment — Reg. 808(2)(d)–(d.2)

(d) where the corporation is not a principal-business corporation, within the meaning assigned by subsection 66(15) of the Act, an amount equal to the total of the corporation's

(i) Canadian exploration and development expenses incurred by the corporation before the end of the year, except to the extent that those expenses were deducted in computing the corporation's income for the year or for a previous taxation year, and

(ii) cumulative Canadian exploration expense, within the meaning assigned by subsection 66.1(6) of the Act, at the end of the year minus any deduction under subsection 66.1(3) of the Act in computing the corporation's income for the year,

(d.1) an amount equal to the corporation's cumulative Canadian development expense, within the meaning assigned by subsection 66.2(5) of the Act, at the end of the year minus any deduction under subsection 66.2(2) of the Act in computing the corporation's income for the year,

(d.2) an amount equal to the corporation's cumulative Canadian oil and gas property expense, within the meaning assigned by subsection 66.4(5) of the Act, at the end of the year minus any deduction under subsection 66.4(2) of the Act in computing the corporation's income for the year,

Application: The February 13, 2003 draft regulations (foreign bank branches), subsec. 7(2), (pre-published in the Canada Gazette, Part I, February 15, 2003), will amend paras. 808(2)(d) to (d.2) to read as above, in force on the day on which this Regulation is registered.

Regulatory Impact Analysis Statement: Branch Tax

Part XIV of the Act imposes a tax on non-resident corporations carrying on a business in Canada through a branch. The purpose of this tax is to put those non-resident corporations in a similar position for Canadian tax purposes as non-residents who carry on business in Canada through a Canadian subsidiary.

Branch tax is levied at a flat rate of 25% on a non-resident corporation's taxable income from Canadian sources, with certain adjustments, including an allowance for its investment in property in Canada. A corporation's allowance for investment in property in Canada is computed under section 808 of the Regulations.

Paragraphs 808(2)(h) and (p), subparagraphs 808(2)(l)(i), (n)(ii) and (iii), and (o)(ii) and (iii) are amended to reflect earlier amendments to Part XIV of the Act.

Paragraphs 808(2)(d) to (d.2), subparagraphs 808(2)(l)(ii) and 808(5)(j)(ii) generally refer to rules applicable to resource property in the computation of the "qualified investment in property in Canada". These paragraphs are revised as the miscellaneous program amendments of the Department of Finance.

(e) an amount equal to the aggregate of the cost amount to the corporation at the end of the year of each debt owing to it, or any other right of the corporation to receive an amount, that was outstanding as a result of the disposition by it of property in respect of which an amount would be included, by virtue of paragraph (a), (b), (c) or (h), in its qualified investment in property in Canada at the end of the year if the property had not been disposed of by it before the end of that year,

(f) an amount equal to the aggregate of the cost amount to the corporation at the end of the year of each property, other than a Canadian resource property, that was described in the corporation's inventory in respect of a business carried on by it in Canada,

(g) an amount equal to the aggregate of the cost amount to the corporation at the end of the year of each debt (other than a debt referred to in paragraph (e) or a debt the amount of which was deducted under paragraph 20(1)(p) of the Act in computing the corporation's income for the year) owing to it

(i) in respect of any transaction by virtue of which an amount has been included in computing its income for the year or for a previous year from a business carried on by it in Canada, or

(ii) where any part of its ordinary business carried on in Canada was the lending of money, in respect of a loan made by the corporation in the ordinary course of that part of its business,

(h) where the corporation was resident in Canada at any time in the year, an amount equal to the aggregate of the cost amount to the corporation at the end of the year of any property in Canada owned by it

(i) the cost amount of which is not included in its qualified investment in property in Canada at the end of the year by virtue of paragraph (a) or (b) or subparagraph (g)(i), but would be so included if those provisions were read without the phrase "from a business carried on by it in Canada",

(ii) that is a share of the capital stock of a corporation that was not described in the corporation's inventory in respect of a business carried on by it in Canada, or

(iii) that is a bond, debenture, bill, note, mortgage or similar obligation that was not described in the corporation's inventory in respect of a business carried on by it in Canada (other than an obligation referred to in subparagraph (3)(a)(iii), a debt referred to in paragraph (e) or (g) or a debt the amount of which was deducted under paragraph 20(1)(p) of the Act in computing the corporation's income for the year), and

Proposed Repeal — Reg. 808(2)(h)

Application: The February 13, 2003 draft regulations (foreign bank branches), subsec. 7(3), (pre-published in the Canada Gazette, Part I, February 15, 2003), will repeal para. 808(2)(h), applicable to taxation years that begin after 1995.

Regulatory Impact Analysis Statement: See under Reg. 808(2)(d)–(d.2) above.

(i) an amount equal to the allowable liquid assets of the corporation at the end of the year,

exceeds the aggregate of

(j) an amount equal to the aggregate of each amount deducted by the corporation under paragraph 20(1)(l), (l.1) or (n) or subsection 64(1), (1.1) or (1.2) of the Act in computing its income for the year from a business carried on by it in Canada;

(k) an amount equal to the aggregate of all amounts each of which is an amount deducted by the corporation in the year under subparagraph 40(1)(a)(iii) or 44(1)(e)(iii) of the Act in respect of a debt referred to in paragraph (e);

(l) an amount equal to the aggregate of each amount owing by the corporation at the end of the year on account of

(i) the purchase price of property that is referred to in paragraph (a), (b), (f) or (h) or that would be so referred to but for the fact that it has been disposed of before the end of the year,

Proposed Amendment — Reg. 808(2)(l)(i)

(i) the purchase price of property that is referred to in paragraph (a), (b) or (f) or that would be so referred to but for the fact that it has been disposed of before the end of the year,

Application: The February 13, 2003 draft regulations (foreign bank branches), subsec. 7(4), (pre-published in the Canada Gazette, Part I, February 15, 2003), will amend subpara. 808(2)(l)(i) to read as above, applicable to taxation years that begin after 1995.

Proposed Amendment — Reg. 808(2)(l)(ii)

(ii) Canadian exploration and development expenses, Canadian exploration expense, Canadian development expense or Canadian oil and gas property expense,

Application: The February 13, 2003 draft regulations (foreign bank branches), subsec. 7(5), (pre-published in the Canada Gazette, Part I, February 15, 2003), will amend subpara. 808(2)(l)(ii) to read as above, in force on the day on which this Regulation is registered.

Regulatory Impact Analysis Statement: See under Reg. 808(2)(d)–(d.2) above.

(iii) an eligible capital expenditure made or incurred by the corporation before the end of the year in respect of a business carried on by it in Canada, or

(iv) any other outlay or expense made or incurred by the corporation to the extent that it was deducted in computing its income for the year or for a previous taxation year from a business carried on by it in Canada;

(m) an amount equal to the aggregate of all amounts each of which is an amount equal to that proportion of the amount owing (other than an amount owing on account of an outlay or expense referred to in paragraph (l)) by the corporation at the end of the year on account of an obligation outstanding at any time in the year in respect of which interest is stipulated to be payable by it that

(i) the interest paid or payable on the obligation by the corporation in respect of the year that is deductible, or would be deductible but for subsection 18(2), (3.1) or (4) or section 21 of the Act, in computing its income for the year from a business carried on by it in Canada,

is of

(ii) the interest paid or payable on the obligation by the corporation in respect of the year;

(n) the amount, if any, by which

(i) the amount (referred to in this paragraph as "Part I liability"), if any, by which the tax payable for the year by the corporation under Part I of the Act exceeds the amount, if any, paid by the corporation before the end of the year on account thereof,

exceeds

(ii) where the corporation was, throughout the year, not resident in Canada, that proportion of the Part I liability that the amount, if any, determined under paragraph 219(1)(d) of the Act in respect of the corporation for the year is of the corporation's amount taxable (within the meaning given to that expression in section 123 of the Act) for the year, or

(iii) in any other case, nil;

Proposed Amendment — Reg. 808(2)(n)(ii), (iii)

(ii) that proportion of the Part I liability that the amount, if any, in respect of the corporation for the year that is the lesser of

(A) the amount, if any, by which the total of all amounts each of which is a taxable capital gain of the corporation for the year from a disposition of a taxable Canadian property that was not used or held by it in the year in the course of carrying on business in Canada exceeds the total of all amounts each of which is an allowable capital loss of the corporation for the year from a disposition of such a property, and

(B) the amount that would be determined under clause (A) for the year if it were read without reference to the expression "that was not used or held by it in the year in the course of carrying on business in Canada", is of the corporation's taxable income earned in Canada for the year; and

Application: The February 13, 2003 draft regulations (foreign bank branches), subsec. 7(6), (pre-published in the Canada Gazette, Part I, February 15, 2003), will amend subpara. 808(2)(n)(ii) to read as above, and repeal subpara. (iii), applicable to taxation years that begin after 1995.

Regulatory Impact Analysis Statement: See under Reg. 808(2)(d)–(d.2) above.

(o) the amount, if any, by which

(i) the amount (referred to in this paragraph as "provincial tax liability"), if any, by which any income taxes payable for the year by the corporation to the government of a province (to the extent that such taxes were not deductible under Part I of the Act in computing the corporation's income for the year from a business carried on by it in Canada) exceeds the amount, if any, paid by the corporation before the end of the year on account thereof,

exceeds

(ii) where the corporation was, throughout the year, not resident in Canada, that proportion of the provincial tax liability that the amount, if any, determined under paragraph 219(1)(d) of the Act in respect of the corporation for the year is of the corporation's amount taxable (within the meaning given to that expression in section 123 of the Act) for the year, or

(iii) in any other case, nil; and,

Proposed Amendment — Reg. 808(2)(o)(ii), (iii)

(ii) that proportion of the provincial tax liability that the amount, if any, in respect of the corporation for the year that is the lesser of

(A) the amount, if any, by which the total of all amounts each of which is a taxable capital gain of the corporation for the year from a disposition of a taxable Canadian property that was not used or held by it in the year in the course of carrying on business in Canada exceeds the total of all amounts each of which is an allowable capital loss of the corporation for the year from a disposition of such a property, and

(B) the amount that would be determined under clause (A) for the year if it were read without reference to the expression "that was not used or held by it in the year in the course of carrying on business in Canada" is of the corporation's taxable income earned in Canada for the year.

Application: The February 13, 2003 draft regulations (foreign bank branches), subsec. 7(7), (pre-published in the Canada Gazette, Part I, February 15, 2003), will amend subpara. 808(2)(o)(ii) to read as above, and repeal subpara. (iii), applicable to taxation years that begin after 1995.

Regulatory Impact Analysis Statement: See under Reg. 808(2)(d)–(d.2) above.

(p) where the corporation was resident in Canada at any time in the year, an amount equal to the aggregate of

(i) an amount equal to the aggregate of each amount deducted by the corporation in the year under paragraph 20(1)(l) or (l.1) or subsection 64(1), (1.1) or (1.2) of the Act in computing its income for the year from a source other than

(A) a business carried on by it in Canada, or

(B) a property situated outside Canada,

(ii) an amount equal to the aggregate of each amount owing by the corporation at the end of the year on account of any outlay or expense made or incurred by the corporation to the extent that it was deducted in computing its income for the year or for a previous taxation year from a source other than

(A) a business carried on by it in Canada, or

(B) a property situated outside Canada, and

(iii) an amount equal to the aggregate of all amounts each of which is an amount equal to that proportion of the amount owing (other than an amount owing on account of an outlay or expense referred to in subparagraph (ii) or paragraph (l)) by the corporation at the end of the year on account of an obligation outstanding at any time in the year in respect of which interest is stipulated to be payable by it that

(A) the interest paid or payable on the obligation by the corporation in respect of the year that is deductible, or would be deductible but for subsection 18(2), (3.1) or (4) or section 21 of the Act, in computing its income for the year from a source other than

(I) a business carried on by it in Canada, or

(II) a property situated outside Canada,

is of

(B) the interest paid or payable on the obligation by the corporation in respect of the year.

Proposed Repeal — Reg. 808(2)(p)

Application: The February 13, 2003 draft regulations (foreign bank branches), subsec. 7(8), (pre-published in the Canada Gazette, Part I, February 15, 2003), will repeal para. 808(2)(p), applicable to taxation years that begin after 1995.

Regulatory Impact Analysis Statement: See under Reg. 808(2)(d)–(d.2) above.

History: Subpara. 808(2)(h)(iii) amended by P.C. 1994-1817, para. 62(a), November 1, 1994, Canada Gazette, Part II, November 30, 1994.

Paras. 808(2)(j), (p) substituted by P.C. 1990-2779, subsecs. 2(1), (2), December 20, 1990, Canada Gazette, Part II, January 16, 1991, applicable to taxation years commencing after June 17, 1987 that end after 1987.

Para. 808(2)(c) amended by P.C. 1990-754, subsec. 1(1), April 26, 1990, Canada Gazette, Part II, May 9, 1990, applicable in respect of taxation years commencing after June 1988.

Para. 808(2)(k), subpara. (m)(i) and cl. (p)(iii)(A) preceding subcl. (I) substituted by P.C. 1984-3789, subsecs. 4(1)–(3), November 29, 1984, Canada Gazette, Part II, December 12, 1984, effective as to subpara. (m)(i) and cl. (p)(iii)(A) commencing January 1, 1982.

Paras. 808(2)(d.2) added, (j) substituted, subpara. 808(2)(l)(ii), all that portion of subpara. 808(2)(p)(i) preceding cl. (A) substituted by P.C. 1981-2208, subsecs. 2(1)–(4), August 19, 1981, Canada Gazette, Part II, September 9, 1981, applicable to taxation years ending after December 11, 1979.

(3) ["Allowable liquid assets . . ."] — For the purposes of paragraph (2)(i), the "allowable liquid assets of the corporation at the end of the year" is an amount equal to the lesser of

(a) the aggregate of

(i) the amount of Canadian currency owned by the corporation at the end of that year,

(ii) the balance standing to the credit of the corporation at the end of that year as or on account of amounts deposited with a branch or other office in Canada of

(A) a bank,

(B) a corporation licensed or otherwise authorized under the laws of Canada or a province to carry on in Canada the business of offering to the public its services as trustee, or

(C) a credit union, and

(iii) an amount equal to the aggregate of the cost amount to the corporation at the end of that year of each bond, debenture, bill, note, mortgage or similar obligation that was not described in the corporation's inventory in respect of a business carried on by it in Canada (other than a debt referred to in paragraph (2)(e) or (g) or a debt the amount of which was deducted under paragraph 20(1)(p) of the Act in computing the corporation's income for the year), that was issued by a person resident in Canada with whom the corporation was dealing at arm's length and that matures within one year after the date on which it was acquired by the corporation, to the extent that such amounts are attributable to the profits of the corporation from carrying on a business in Canada, or are used or held by the corporation in the year in the course of carrying on a business in Canada; and

(b) an amount equal to 4/3 of the quotient obtained by dividing

(i) the aggregate of all amounts that would otherwise be determined under subparagraphs (a)(i), (ii) and (iii) if the references therein to "at the end of that year" were read as references to "at the end of each month in that year",

by

(ii) the number of months in that year.

History: Cl. 808(3)(a)(ii)(A) amended by P.C. 1994-1817, para. 47(a), November 1, 1994, Canada Gazette, Part II, November 30, 1994.

Subpara. 808(3)(a)(iii) amended, and that portion of para. (a) following subpara. (iii) added, by P.C. 1993-1548, July 21, 1993, Canada Gazette, Part II, August 11, 1993, applicable to taxation years ending after August 11, 1993.

(4) ["Qualified investment in . . ."] — For the purposes of subsection (1), where, at the end of a taxation year, a corporation is a member of a partnership that was carrying on business in Canada at any time in that year, the corporation's qualified investment in property in Canada at the end of the year is an amount equal to the aggregate of

(a) the amount, if any, that would be determined under subsection (2) if the corporation were not, at the end of the year, a member of a partnership that was carrying on business in Canada at any time in the year; and

(b) an amount equal to the portion of the amount of the partnership's qualified investment in property in Canada at the end of the last fiscal period of the partnership ending in the taxation year of the corporation that may reasonably be attributed to the corporation, having regard to all the circumstances including the rights the corporation would have, if the partnership ceased to exist, to share in the distribution of the property owned by the partnership for the purpose of gaining or producing income from a business carried on by it in Canada.

(5) ["Qualified investment . . ." of partnership] — For the purposes of subsection (4), a partnership's "qualified investment in property in Canada" at the end of a fiscal period is the amount, if any, by which the aggregate of

(a) the cost amount to the partnership, at the end of the fiscal period, of land in Canada owned by it at that time for the purpose of gaining or producing income from a business carried on by it in Canada, other than land that is

(i) described in the inventory of the partnership,

(ii) depreciable property,

(iii) a Canadian resource property, or

(iv) land the cost of which is or was deductible in computing the income of the partnership or the income of a member of the partnership,

(b) an amount equal to the aggregate of the cost amount to the partnership immediately after the end of the fiscal period, of each depreciable property in Canada owned by it for the purpose of gaining or producing income from a business carried on by it in Canada,

(c) an amount equal to 4/3 of the cumulative eligible capital of the partnership immediately after the end of the fiscal period in respect of each business carried on by it in Canada,

(d) an amount equal to the aggregate of the cost amount to the partnership at the end of the fiscal period of each debt owing to it, or any other right of the partnership to receive an amount, that was outstanding as a result of the disposition by it of property in respect of which an amount would be included, by virtue of paragraph (a), (b) or (c), in its qualified investment in property in Canada at the end of the fiscal period if the property had not been disposed of by it before the end of that fiscal period,

(e) an amount equal to the aggregate of the cost amount to the partnership at the end of the fiscal period of each property, other than a Canadian resource property, that was described in the partnership's inventory in respect of a business carried on by it in Canada,

(f) an amount equal to the aggregate of the cost amount to the partnership at the end of the fiscal period of each debt (other than a debt referred to in paragraph (d) or a debt the amount of which was deducted under paragraph 20(1)(p) of the Act in computing the partnership's income for the fiscal period) owing to it

(i) in respect of any transaction by virtue of which an amount has been included in computing its income for the fiscal period or for a previous fiscal period or in computing the income of a member of the partnership for a previous taxation year from a business carried on in Canada by the partnership, or

(ii) where any part of its ordinary business carried on in Canada was the lending of money, in respect of a loan made by the partnership in the ordinary course of that part of its business, and

(g) an amount equal to the allowable liquid assets of the partnership at the end of the fiscal period,

exceeds the aggregate of

(h) an amount equal to the aggregate of each amount deducted by the partnership under paragraph 20(1)(l), (l.1) or (n) or subsection 64(1), (1.1) or (1.2) of the Act in computing its income for the fiscal period from a business carried on by it in Canada;

(i) an amount equal to the aggregate of all amounts each of which is an amount deducted by the partnership in the fiscal period under subparagraph 40(1)(a)(iii) or 44(1)(e)(iii) of the Act in respect of a debt referred to in paragraph (d);

(j) an amount equal to the aggregate of each amount owing by the partnership at the end of the fiscal period on account of

(i) the purchase price of property that is referred to in paragraph (a), (b) or (e) or that would be so referred to but for the fact that it has been disposed of before the end of the fiscal period,

(ii) Canadian exploration and development expenses, Canadian exploration expense, Canadian development expense or Canadian oil and gas property expense, within the meanings assigned by paragraphs 66(15)(b) [66(15)"Canadian exploration and development expenses"], 66.1(6)(a) [66.1(6)"Canadian exploration expense"] and 66.2(5)(a) [66.2(5)"Canadian development expense"] and 66.4(5)(a) [66.4(5)"Canadian oil and gas property expense"] of the Act, respectively,

Proposed Amendment — Reg. 808(5)(j)(ii)

(ii) Canadian exploration and development expenses, Canadian exploration expense, Canadian development expense or Canadian oil and gas property expense,

Application: The February 13, 2003 draft regulations (foreign bank branches), subsec. 7(9), (pre-published in the Canada Gazette, Part I, February 15, 2003), will amend subpara. 808(5)(j)(ii) to read as above, in force on the day on which this Regulation is registered.

Regulatory Impact Analysis Statement: See under Reg. 808(2)(d)–(d.2) above.

(iii) an eligible capital expenditure made or incurred by the partnership before the end of the fiscal period in respect of a business carried on by it in Canada, or

(iv) any other outlay or expense made or incurred by the partnership to the extent that it was deducted in computing its income for the fiscal period or for a previous fiscal period, or in computing the income of a member of the partnership for a previous taxation year, from a business carried on in Canada by the partnership; and

(k) an amount equal to the aggregate of all amounts each of which is an amount equal to that proportion of the amount owing (other than an amount owing on account of an outlay or expense referred to in paragraph (j)) by the partnership at the end of the fiscal period on account of an obligation outstanding at any time in the period in respect of which interest is stipulated to be payable by it that

(i) the interest paid or payable on the obligation by the partnership in respect of the fiscal period that is deductible, or would be deductible but for subsection 18(2) or (3.1) or section 21 of the Act, in computing its income for the fiscal period from a business carried on by it in Canada,

is of

(ii) the interest paid or payable on the obligation by the partnership in respect of the fiscal period.

History: Para. 808(5)(h) substituted by P.C. 1990-2779, subsec. 2(3), December 20, 1990, Canada Gazette, Part II, January 16, 1991, applicable to taxation years commencing after June 17, 1987 that end after 1987.

Para. 808(5)(c) amended by P.C. 1990-754, subsec. 1(2), April 26, 1990, Canada Gazette, Part II, May 9, 1990, applicable in respect of fiscal periods commencing after 1987.

Para. 808(5)(i) and subpara. 808(5)(k)(i), substituted by P.C. 1984-3789, subsecs. 4(4), (5), November 29, 1984, Canada Gazette, Part II, December 12, 1984, effective as to subpara. (k)(i) commencing January 1, 1982.

Para. 808(5)(h), subpara. 808(5)(j)(ii) substituted by P.C. 1981-2208, subsecs. 2(5), (6), August 19, 1981, Canada Gazette, Part II, September 9, 1981, applicable to taxation years ending after December 11, 1979.

(6) ["Allowable liquid assets . . ." of partnership] — For the purposes of paragraph (5)(g), the "allowable liquid assets of the partnership at the end of the fiscal period" is an amount equal to the lesser of

(a) the aggregate of

(i) the amount of Canadian currency owned by the partnership at the end of that fiscal period,

(ii) the balance standing to the credit of the partnership at the end of that fiscal period as or on account of amounts deposited with a branch or other office in Canada of

(A) a bank,

(B) a corporation licensed or otherwise authorized under the laws of Canada or a province to carry on in Canada the business of offering to the public its services as trustee, or

(C) a credit union, and

(iii) an amount equal to the aggregate of the cost amount to the partnership at the end of that fiscal period of each bond, debenture, bill, note, mortgage, hypothec or similar obligation that was not described in the partnership's inventory in respect of a business carried on by it in Canada (other than a debt referred to in paragraph (5)(d) or (f) or a debt the amount of which was deducted under paragraph 20(1)(p) of the Act in computing the partnership's income for the fiscal period), that was issued by a person resident in Canada with whom all the members of the partnership were dealing at arm's length and that matures within one year after the date on which it was acquired by the partnership; and

Proposed Addition — Reg. 808(6)(a) closing words to the extent that those amounts are attributable to the profits of the partnership from carrying on a business in Canada, or are used or held by the partnership in the year in the course of carrying on a business in Canada; and

Application: The February 13, 2003 draft regulations (foreign bank branches), subsec. 7(10), (pre-published in the Canada Gazette, Part I, February 15, 2003), will add the above new closing words to para. 808(6)(a), deemed to have come into force on August 8, 2000.

Regulatory Impact Analysis Statement: A non-resident corporation's allowance for investment in property in Canada is computed on the basis of its "qualified investment in property in Canada". "Qualified investment in property in Canada" includes a corporation's "allowable liquid assets" and its share of the "allowable liquid assets" of a partnership of which the corporation is a member. The amendment to paragraph 808(6)(a) clarifies that the allowable liquid assets of a partnership do not include amounts that were not either generated by or intended for the use of its business carried on in Canada.

(b) an amount equal to 4/3 of the quotient obtained by dividing

(i) the aggregate of all amounts that would otherwise be determined under subparagraphs (a)(i), (ii) and (iii) if the references therein to "at the end of that fiscal period" were read as references to "at the end of each month in that fiscal period",

by

(ii) the number of months in that fiscal period.

History: Cl. 808(6)(a)(ii)(A) amended by P.C. 1994-1817, para. 47(b), November 1, 1994, Canada Gazette, Part II, November 30, 1994.

(7) [Partnerships] — Subsections (4) to (6) shall be read and construed as if each of the assumptions in paragraphs 96(1)(a) to (g) of the Act were made.

Proposed Addition — Reg. 808(8)

(8) [Allowance of authorized foreign bank] — For the purpose of paragraph 219(1)(j) of the Act, the allowance of an authorized foreign bank for a taxation year in respect of its investment in property in Canada is prescribed to be the amount, if any, by which

(a) the average of all amounts, each of which is the amount for a calculation period (within the meaning assigned by subsection 20.2(1) of the Act) of the bank for the year that is the greater of

(i) the amount determined by the formula

$$0.05 \times A$$

where

A is the amount of the element A in the formulae in subsection 20.2(3) of the Act for the period, and

(ii) the amount by which

(A) the total of the cost amount to the bank, at the end of the period (or, in the case of depreciable property or eligible capital property, immediately after the end of the year), of each asset in respect of the bank's Canadian banking business that is an asset recorded in the books of account of the business in a manner consistent with the manner in which it is required to be treated for the purpose of the branch financial statements (within the meaning assigned by subsection 20.2(1) of the Act) for the year

exceeds

(B) the amount equal to the total of

(I) the amount determined by the formula

$$L + BA$$

where

L is the amount of the element L in the formulae in subsection 20.2(3) of the Act for the period, and

BA is the amount of the element BA in the formulae in subsection 20.2(3) of the Act for the period, and

(II) the amount claimed by the bank under clause 20.2(3)(b)(ii)(A) of the Act

exceeds

(b) the total of all amounts each of which is an amount that would be determined under paragraph (2)(j), (k), (n) or (o) if that provision applied to the bank for the year, except to the extent that the amount reflects a liability of the bank that has been included in the element L in the formulae in subsection 20.2(3) of the Act for the bank's last calculation period for the year.

Application: The February 13, 2003 draft regulations (foreign bank branches), subsec. 7(11), (pre-published in the Canada Gazette, Part I, February 15, 2003), will add subsec. 808(8), applicable after June 27, 1999.

Regulatory Impact Analysis Statement: Subsection 808(1) computes the allowance for investment in property for all non-resident corporations. This subsection is amended to specifically exclude authorized foreign bank from these computational rules, and new subsection 808(8) is added to compute the allowance for investment in property in Canada for an authorized foreign bank.

Reduction of certain amounts to be deducted or withheld — (1) Subject to subsection (2), where a non-resident person (in this section referred to as the "payee") has filed with the Minister the payee's required statement for the year, the amount otherwise required by subsections 215(1) to (3) of the Act to be deducted or withheld from any qualifying payment paid or credited by a person resident in Canada (in this section referred to as the "payer") to the payee in the year and after the required statement for the year was so filed is hereby reduced by the amount determined in accordance with the following rules:

(a) determine the amount by which

(i) the amount that would, if the payee does not make an election in respect of the year under section 217 of the Act, be the tax payable by the payee under Part XIII of the Act on the aggregate of the amounts estimated by him in his required statement for the year pursuant to paragraph (a) of the definition "required statement" in subsection (4),

exceeds

(ii) the amount that would, if the payee makes the election referred to in subparagraph (i), be the tax payable (on the assumption that no portion of the payee's income for the year was income earned in the year in a province) by the payee under Part I of the Act on his estimated taxable income calculated by him in his required statement for the year pursuant to paragraph (b) of the definition "required statement" in subsection (4),

(b) determine the percentage that the amount determined under paragraph (a) is of the aggregate of the amounts estimated by him in his required statement for the year pursuant to paragraph (a) of the definition "required statement" in subsection (4),

(c) where the determination of a percentage under paragraph (b) results in a fraction, disregard the fraction for the purposes of paragraph (d),

(d) multiply the percentage determined under paragraph (b) by the amount of the qualifying payment, and the product obtained under paragraph (d) is the amount by which the amount required to be deducted or withheld is reduced.

Forms: NR5: Application by a non-resident of Canada for a reduction in the amount of non-resident tax required to be withheld; NR7-R: Application for refund of non-resident tax withheld.

(2) Subsection (1) does not apply to reduce the amount to be deducted or withheld from a qualifying payment if, after the qualifying payment has been paid or credited by the payer, the aggregate of all qualifying payments that the payer has paid or credited to the payee in the year would exceed the amount estimated, in respect of that payer, by the payee in his required statement for the year pursuant to paragraph (a) of the definition "required statement" in subsection (4).

(3) Where a payee has filed with the Minister a written notice indicating that certain information or estimates in the payee's required statement for the year are incorrect and setting out the correct information or estimates that should be substituted therefor or where the Minister is satisfied that certain information or estimates in a payee's required statement for the year are incorrect and that the Minister has the correct information or estimates that should be substituted therefor, for the purposes of making the calculations in subsection (1) with respect to any qualifying payment paid or credited to the payee after the time when he has filed that notice or after the time when the Minister is so satisfied, as the case may be, the incorrect information or estimates shall be disregarded and the required statement for the year shall be deemed to contain only the correct information or estimates.

(4) In this section,

"qualifying payment" in relation to a non-resident person means any amount

(a) paid or credited, or to be paid or credited, to him as, on account or in lieu of payment of, or in satisfaction of, any amount described in paragraph 212(1)(f) or (h) or in any of paragraphs 212(1)(j), (k), (l), (m) or (q) of the Act, and

(b) on which tax under Part XIII of the Act is, or would be, but for an election by him under section 217 of the Act, payable by him;

"required statement" of a payee for a taxation year means a written statement signed by him that contains, in respect of the payee,

(a) the name and address of each payer of a qualifying payment in the year and, in respect of each such payer, an estimate by the payee of the aggregate of such qualifying payments, and

(b) a calculation by him of his estimated taxable income earned in Canada for the year, on the assumption that he makes the election in respect of the year under section 217 of the Act, and such information as may be necessary for the purpose of estimating such income.

History: Para. (a) of "qualifying payment" substituted by P.C. 1981-2208, s. 3, August 19, 1981, Canada Gazette, Part II, September 9, 1981, applicable with respect to payments made after 1979.

810. Excluded property of non-resident persons — (1) For the purposes of paragraph 116(6)(e) of the Act, any property that is

(a) property of a non-resident insurer that is a qualified insurance corporation,

(b) an option in respect of property referred to in any of paragraphs 116(6)(a) to (d) of the Act and paragraph (a) whether or not such property is in existence, or

(c) an interest in property referred to in paragraph 116(6)(a), (c) or (d) of the Act or paragraph (a) or (b), is prescribed to be excluded property.

(2) For the purposes of this section, a non-resident insurer is a "qualified insurance corporation" throughout the period during which it

(a) was licensed or otherwise authorized under the laws of Canada or a province to carry on an insurance business in Canada; and

(b) carried on an insurance business, within the meaning of subsection 138(1) of the Act, in Canada.

Proposed Repeal — Reg. 810

Application: The February 13, 2003 draft regulations (foreign bank branches), s. 8, (pre-published in the Canada Gazette, Part I, February 15, 2003), will repeal s. 810, applicable after June 27, 1999.

Regulatory Impact Analysis Statement: Section 810 prescribes the meaning of excluded property of certain non-resident insurers for the purposes of paragraph 116(6)(e) of the Act. This section is repealed, as the substance of this section has been included in paragraph 116(6)(e) of the Act.

PART X — ELECTION IN RESPECT OF DECEASED TAXPAYERS

History: Part X was consolidated by the Consolidated Regulations of Canada, chapter 945, proclaimed in force August 14, 1979, by P.C. 1979-1934, July 19, 1979, Canada Gazette, Part II, August 8, 1979.

1000. Property dispositions — (1) Any election under subsection 164(6) of the Act shall be made by the legal representative of a deceased taxpayer by filing with the Minister the following documents:

(a) a letter from the legal representative specifying

(i) the part of the one or more capital losses from the disposition of properties, if any, under paragraph 164(6)(c) of the Act, and

(ii) the part of the amount, if any, under paragraph 164(6)(d) of the Act in respect of which the election is made;

(b) where an amount is specified under subparagraph (a)(i), a schedule of the capital losses and capital gains referred to in paragraph 164(6)(a) of the Act;

(c) where an amount is specified under subparagraph (a)(ii),

(i) a schedule of the amounts of undepreciated capital cost described in paragraph 164(6)(b) of the Act,

(ii) a statement of the amount that, but for subsection 164(6) of the Act, would be the non-capital loss of the estate for its first taxation year, and

(iii) a statement of the amount that, but for subsection 164(6) of the Act, would be the farm loss of the estate for its first taxation year.

History: That portion of subsec. 1000(1) preceding para. (b) substituted, and paras. (d), (e) revoked, by P.C. 1988-390, s. 5, March 3, 1988, Canada Gazette, Part II, March 16, 1988, applicable with respect to deaths occurring after December 31, 1984, except that the documents referred to in subsec. 1000(1) may be filed before September 14, 1988.

Subpara. 1000(1)(c)(iii) added by P.C. 1985-2277, s. 1, July 24, 1985, Canada Gazette, Part II, August 7, 1985, applicable to 1983 et seq. except that, for the purposes of subsec. 1000(2), the statement referred to in subpara. 1000(1)(c)(iii) may be filed at any time before November 6, 1985.

(2) The documents referred to in subsection (1) shall be filed not later than the day that is the later of

(a) the last day provided by the Act for the filing of a return that the legal representative of a deceased taxpayer is required or has elected to file under the Act in respect of the income of that deceased taxpayer for the taxation year in which he died; and

(b) the day the return of the income for the first taxation year of the deceased taxpayer's estate is required to be filed under paragraph 150(1)(c) of the Act.

DIVISION I — DEDUCTIONS ALLOWED

1100. (1) For the purposes of paragraphs 8(1)(j) and (p) and 20(1)(a) of the Act, the following deductions are allowed in computing a taxpayer's income for each taxation year:

History: That portion of subsec. 1100(1) preceding para. (a) substituted by P.C. 1991-2272, subsec. 1(1), November 21, 1991, Canada Gazette, Part II, December 4, 1991, applicable to 1988 et seq.

(a) rates — subject to subsection (2), such amount as he may claim in respect of property of each of the following classes in Schedule II not exceeding in respect of property

Proposed Amendment — Reg. 1100(1)(a) opening words

Application: The February 26, 2008 draft regulations (2007 Budget amendments — capital cost allowance), subsec. 1(1), will amend the opening words of para. 1100(1)(a) to substitute "the taxpayer" for "he", deemed to have come into force on March 19, 2007.

Technical Notes: Paragraph 1100(1)(a) is amended in two respects. First, the words "he" and "him" in the English version of the paragraph's pre-amble and post-amble, respectively, are replaced with "the taxpayer". Second, new subparagraphs 1100(1)(a)(xxxvi) and (xxxvii) are introduced.

(a.1) Class 1 — where a separate class is prescribed by subsection 1101(5b.1) for a property of a taxpayer that is a building and at least 90 per cent of the floor space of the building is used at the end of the taxation year for the manufacturing or processing in Canada of goods for sale or lease, such amount as the taxpayer may claim not exceeding six per cent of the undepreciated capital cost to the taxpayer of the property of that class as of the end of the taxation year (before making any deduction under this subsection for the taxation year);

Related Provisions [Reg. 1100(1)(a.1)]: Reg. 1100(1)(a.2) — Other non-residential buildings; Reg. 1102(23), (24) — Additions and alterations to buildings; Reg. 1102(25) — Building under construction on March 19, 2007; Reg. 1104(2)"eligible non-residential building" — Definition; Reg. 1104(9) — Meaning of "manufacturing or processing".

(a.2) where a separate class is prescribed by subsection 1101(5b.1) for a property of a taxpayer that is a building, at least 90 per cent of the floor space of the building is used at the end of the taxation year for a non-residential use in Canada and an additional allowance is not allowed for the year under paragraph (a.1) in respect of the property, such amount as the taxpayer may claim not exceeding two per cent of the undepreciated capital cost to the taxpayer of the property of that class as of the end of the taxation year (before making any deduction under this subsection for the taxation year);

Application: The February 26, 2008 draft regulations (2007 Budget amendments — capital cost allowance), subsec. 1(4), will add paras. 1100(1)(a.1) and (a.2), applicable to property acquired after March 18, 2007.

Technical Notes: New paragraphs 1100(1)(a.1) and (a.2) provide for two new additional allowances in respect of certain buildings included in Class 1 in Schedule II to the Regulations.

New paragraph 1100(1)(a.1) provides a six per cent additional allowance in respect of an "eligible non-residential building" at least 90 per cent of the floor space of which is used at the end of a taxation year for the purpose of manufacturing or processing in Canada goods for sale or lease.

New paragraph 1100(1)(a.2) provides for a two per cent additional allowance in respect of an "eligible non-residential building" at least 90 per cent of which is used at the end of a taxation year for a non-residential use in Canada.

The note accompanying amended subsection 1104(2) provides commentary in respect of the new definition "eligible non-residential building." The additional allowance applies only if the taxpayer who acquired the building elects under new subsection 1101(5b.1) to include the building in a separate prescribed class.

If the taxpayer has elected under subsection 1101(5b.1) to include a Class 1 building that meets the definition of "eligible non-residential building" in a separate prescribed class and the building meets one of the two use requirements mentioned in paragraphs 1100(1)(a.1) or (a.2) at the end of the taxpayer's taxation year, the taxpayer is eligible to claim an additional allowance of either six per cent (where the non-residential building use is manufacturing or processing) or two per cent (where the non-residential use is not manufacturing or processing) in respect of the Class 1 building.

These amendments apply to property acquired after March 18, 2007.

Federal Budget, Supplementary Information, March 19, 2007: Aligning Capital Cost Allowance Rates with Useful Life

A portion of the capital cost of a depreciable property is deductible as capital cost allowance (CCA) each year, with the CCA rate for each type of property set out in the Income Tax Regulations. Alignment of CCA rates with the useful life of assets ensures that the tax system accurately allocates the cost of capital assets over their useful lives. This can enhance productivity and standards of living through a more efficient allocation of investment across classes of assets.

Capital Cost Allowance

Capital cost allowance (CCA) is a deduction for tax purposes that recognizes the depreciation of capital property. The CCA rate for an asset determines the portion of the cost of the asset that can be deducted each year (generally on a declining-balance basis).

CCA rates are generally intended to reflect the useful life of capital property. The deduction for CCA is based on the principle that depreciable capital assets are not consumed in the period in which they are acquired, but instead contribute to earnings over several years. Therefore, the cost of depreciable assets should be allocated over the entire period that the asset contributes to earnings — that is, the asset's useful life.

Many factors affect the useful life of an asset, including changing technology and market conditions. As part of the Government's ongoing review of CCA rates, Budget 2007 proposes several adjustments to improve the CCA system, as shown in the table below.

Table A5.6

Proposed Increases to CCA Rates

Asset	Current Rate	New Rate
Buildings used for manufacturing or processing [Reg. 1100(1)(a.1) — ed.]	4%	10%
Other non-residential buildings [Reg. 1100(1)(a.2) — ed.]	4%	6%
Computer equipment [Cl. 50 — ed.]	45%	55%
Natural gas distribution lines [Cl. 51 — ed.]	4%	6%
Liquefied natural gas facilities [Cl. 47(b) — ed.]	4%	8%

The Government will continue to assess the appropriateness of CCA rates to ensure that they reflect, as closely as possible, the useful life of assets.

Non-Residential Buildings [existing Class 1(q) — ed.]

Currently, most buildings are eligible for a CCA rate of 4 per cent under Class 1 of Schedule II to the Income Tax Regulations.

Available evidence on the useful lives of buildings suggests that the current provisions do not reflect the useful life of manufacturing or processing buildings and other non-residential buildings. Budget 2007 proposes that the CCA rate for buildings used for manufacturing or processing in Canada of goods for sale or lease be increased to 10%, and that the CCA rate for other non-residential buildings be increased to 6%. These rates will be provided through an additional allowance of 6% for buildings used for manufacturing or processing [Reg. 1100(1)(a.1) — ed.] and 2% for non-residential buildings [Reg. 1100(1)(a.2) — ed.]. The half-year rule [Reg. 1100(2) — ed.], which limits the CCA claim in the year an asset is acquired to one-half of the normal CCA deduction, will apply to these additional allowances.

In order to be eligible for one of the additional allowances, a building will be required to be placed into a separate class [Reg. 1101(5b.1) election — ed.]. If the taxpayer forgoes the separate class, the current treatment will apply (i.e. a CCA rate of 4%). Further, at least 90% of the building (measured by square footage) must be used for the designated purpose at the end of the taxation year. Buildings used for manufacturing or processing that do not qualify for the additional 6% allowance (i.e. because they do not meet the minimum eligible-use requirement) will be eligible for the additional 2% allowance if at least 90% of the building is used for non-residential purposes at the end of the taxation year.

The additional allowances for manufacturing or processing buildings and other non-residential buildings will be available for buildings acquired by a taxpayer on or after March 19, 2007 (including new buildings any portion of which is acquired by a taxpayer on or after March 19, 2007, where the building was under construction on March 19, 2007) that have neither been used, nor acquired for use, before March 19, 2007.

Proposed Amendment — Repeal of accelerated CCA for oil sands

Federal Budget, Supplementary Information, March 19, 2007: Accelerated Capital Cost Allowance for Oil Sands

Currently, most machinery, equipment and structures used to produce income from a mine or an oil sands project, including buildings and community infrastructure related to worker accommodations, are eligible for a capital cost allowance (CCA) rate of 25% under Class 41 of Schedule II to the Income Tax Regulations. This rate also applies to assets owned by a mineral resource owner that are used in the initial processing of ore from the mineral resource or in upgrading of bitumen (the oil sands product) from that mineral resource into synthetic crude oil.

In addition to the regular CCA deduction, an accelerated CCA [Reg. 1100(1)(y) — ed.] has been provided since 1972 for assets acquired for use in new mines, including oil sands mines, as well as assets acquired for major mine expansions (i.e. those that increase the capacity of a mine by at least 25%). In 1996, this accelerated CCA was extended to in-situ oil sands projects (which use oil wells rather than mining techniques to extract bitumen) by deeming them to be mines. This change ensured that both types of oil sands projects are accorded the same CCA treatment. The 1996 changes also extended the accelerated CCA to expenditures on eligible assets acquired in a taxation year for use in a mine or oil sands project, to the extent that the cost of those assets exceeds 5% of the gross revenue for the year from the mine or project.

The accelerated CCA takes the form of an additional allowance that supplements the regular CCA claim. Once an asset is available for use, the taxpayer is entitled to deduct CCA at the regular rate. The additional allowance allows the taxpayer to deduct in computing income for a taxation year up to 100% of the remaining cost of the eligible assets, not exceeding the taxpayer's income for the year from the project (calculated after deducting the regular CCA). This accelerated CCA provides a financial benefit by effectively deferring taxation until the cost of capital assets has been recovered out of project earnings.

This incentive helped to offset some of the risk associated with early investments in the oil sands and contributed to the development of this strategic resource. Over time, however, technological developments and changing economic conditions have led to major investments that have moved the sector to a point where the majority of Canada's oil production will soon come from oil sands. As a result, this preferential treatment is no longer required.

As outlined below under "Accelerated Capital Cost Allowance for Clean Energy Generation" [see under Reg. Sch. II:Cl. 43.2 — ed.], the existing provision that encourages industries including the oil sands to invest in equipment that generates energy more efficiently or by using renewable energy sources will be extended to equipment acquired before 2020 and expanded to cover additional applications. Going forward, the Government commits to identify additional areas where accelerated CCA and other measures can be used to help industries like the oil sands invest in promising new clean energy technologies like carbon capture and storage.

Budget 2007 proposes to phase out the accelerated CCA for oil sands projects — both mining and in-situ. The regular 25% CCA rate will remain in place.

To the extent that the accelerated CCA for oil sands projects induces incremental oil sands development that could contribute to environmental impacts, such as greenhouse gas emissions, air and water contaminants, water usage, and disturbance of natural habitats and wildlife, these changes could help reduce such incremental impacts.

To provide stability, and in recognition of the long time lines involved in some oil sands projects, the following transitional relief will be provided:

- the accelerated CCA will continue to be available in full for:
  - — assets acquired before March 19, 2007, and
  - — assets acquired before 2012 that are part of a project phase on which major construction began before March 19, 2007; and
- for other assets, the additional accelerated allowance will be gradually phased down over the period from 2011 to 2015 (when it will be eliminated), according to the schedule set out below.

Full Accelerated CCA

As noted, the accelerated CCA will continue to be available in full for assets acquired by the taxpayer before March 19, 2007. It will also be available for assets acquired by the taxpayer before 2012 that are required to complete a project phase on which major construction by or on behalf of the taxpayer began before March 19, 2007.

A project phase is either the initial phase of a new project or a discrete expansion of an existing project. A phase refers to the installation of a group of assets which, when brought into use, results in a distinct increase in average daily output. A phase will generally be considered to be complete when the first incremental production related to that phase (other than test operations) comes on stream for a sustained period.

Major construction on a phase will be considered to have begun when physical fabrication or installation has begun on, or the taxpayer has acquired, buildings, structures or machinery and equipment in at least one of the major facilities required to complete that phase of the project. Construction must have been started by either the taxpayer or by a party with whom the taxpayer has a contract in writing (entered into before March 19, 2007) to construct the asset for the taxpayer.

Work preliminary to construction such as obtaining permits or regulatory approvals, conducting feasibility studies or environmental assessments, performing design or engineering work, clearing or excavating land, building roads, or entering into construction contracts will not be considered major construction.

Phase-Out Schedule

For assets that do not qualify for the full retention of the accelerated CCA as outlined above, the availability of the additional allowance will be gradually phased out in respect of claims made over the period from 2011 to 2015. In each year, a taxpayer will be permitted to claim a percentage of the amount of the additional allowance otherwise calculated under the existing rules. The percentage allowed will decline each calendar year, as follows (prorated for off-calendar taxation years):

Year	Allowable Percentage of Additional Allowance
2010	100
2011	90
2012	80
2013	60
2014	30
2015	0

This schedule will generally preserve a higher proportion of the accelerated CCA for projects that are relatively advanced on March 19, 2007.

The amount of the additional allowance will be reduced each year, regardless of whether the binding constraint is the level of project income or the amount of the undepreciated capital cost (UCC). However, any portion of the capital cost that is no longer deductible in a year under the additional allowance as a result of this limitation will result in a higher UCC at the end of the year, which is carried forward to the following year for calculation of both the regular CCA claim and the additional allowance for the following year.

The following is a simplified example illustrating operation of the phase-out.

Example: Accelerated CCA Phase-Out

In 2011, a company has an undepreciated capital cost (UCC) of $100 million for Class 41 assets related to an oil sands project which began major construction after March 19, 2007 and has come into production. The income from the project after regular CCA in each of 2011 and 2012 is $40 million. All figures are rounded.

Existing Rules

Under the existing rules, the company would be able to deduct each year the entire additional allowance, which is the lesser of the undepreciated capital cost of the assets and the income from the project in the year.

($ million)	2011	2012
(1) UCC — opening balance	100	35
(2) Regular Class 41 CCA claim — 25%	25	9
(3) UCC remaining [(1) – (2)]	75	26
(4) Income from the project after regular CCA	40	40
(5) Additional allowance [lesser of (3) and (4)]	40	26
(6) Total CCA claim [(2) + (5)]	65	35
(7) UCC — closing balance [(1) – (6)]	35	0

Phase-Out Rules

Under the phase-out rules, the company is able to deduct a declining percentage of the additional allowance calculated under the existing rules.

($ million)	2011	2012
(1) UCC — opening balance	100	39
(2) Regular Class 41 CCA claim — 25%	25	10
(3) UCC remaining [(1) – (2)]	75	29
(4) Income from the project after regular CCA	40	40
(5) Additional allowance calculated under existing rules [lesser of (3) and (4)]	40	29
(6) Percentage of allowance allowed under phase-out	90%	80%
(7) Additional allowance under phase-out [(5) × (6)]	36	23
(8) Total CCA claim [(2) + (7)]	61	33
(9) UCC — closing balance [(1) – (8)]	39	6

Proposed Addition — Reg. 1100(1)(zi)

(zi) additional allowance — Class 43 [manufacturing and processing machinery and equipment] — such additional amount as the taxpayer claims in respect of property for which a separate class is prescribed by subsection 1101(5s.1) or (5s.3), not exceeding

(i) if subsection 1101(5s.1) or (5s.2) applies to the property, for the first taxation year of the taxpayer in which the property is available for use for the purposes of subsection 13(26) of the Act 20 per cent, and for the next taxation year 10 per cent, of the undepreciated capital cost to the taxpayer of the property of that class as of the end of that taxation year (before making any deduction under this subsection for that taxation year), and

(ii) if subsection 1101(5s. 3) or (5s.4) applies to the property, for the first taxation year of the taxpayer in which the property is available for use for the purposes of subsection 13(26) of the Act, 10 per cent of the undepreciated capital cost to the taxpayer of the property of that class as of the end of that taxation year (before making any deduction under this subsection for that taxation year);

Application: The February 26, 2008 draft regulations (2008 Budget amendments — capital cost allowance), s. 1, will add para. 1100(1)(zi), deemed to have come into force on February 26, 2008.

Technical Notes: New paragraph 1100(1)(zi) provides for additional allowances in respect of certain machinery and equipment used in qualifying Canadian manufacturing or processing activity.

Subparagraph 1100(1)(zi)(i) applies to manufacturing or processing equipment

- that is described in paragraph (a) of Class 43 in Schedule II to the Regulations,
- that is acquired by a taxpayer in the calendar year 2010, and
- that is included in a separate prescribed Class 43 pursuant to new subsection 1101(5s.1) or an election filed under new subsection (5s.2) of the Regulations.

In such cases, and subject to the half-year rule in subsection 1100(2), a taxpayer may deduct an additional CCA amount of 20 per cent and 10 per cent, respectively, of the undepreciated capital cost of the class at the end of the first and second taxation years of the taxpayer in which the equipment included in the separate Class 43 is available for use for the purposes of subsection 13(26) of the Income Tax Act.

Subparagraph 1100(zi)(ii) applies to manufacturing or processing equipment

- that is described in paragraph (a) of Class 43 in Schedule II to the Regulations,
- that is acquired by a taxpayer in the calendar year 2011, and
- that is included in a separate prescribed Class 43 pursuant to new subsection 1101(5s.3) or an election filed under new subsection (5s.4) of the Regulations.

In such cases, and subject to the half-year rule in subsection 1100(2), a taxpayer may deduct an additional CCA amount of 10 per cent of the undepreciated capital cost of the class in the first taxation year of the taxpayer in which the equipment included in the separate Class 43 is available for use for the purposes of subsection 13(26) of the Income Tax Act.

Equipment that is eligible for one of these two additional allowance mechanisms is to be transferred back into the general Class 43 after the expiry of the period provided for in new subsection 1103(2g.1) or (2g.2). For further details, see the explanatory note accompanying new subsections 1103(2g.1) and (2g.2).

These amendments apply to property acquired after February 25, 2008.

Federal Budget, Supplementary Information, Feb. 26, 2008: See under Reg. Sch. II:Cl. 29.

Related Provisions [Reg. 1100(1)]: Reg. 1100(1.1) — Specified leasing property; Reg. 1100(3) — Taxation year less than 12 months; Reg. 1100(11) — Rental properties; Reg. 1100(15) — Leasing properties; ITA 20(1.1) — Definitions in ITA 13(21) apply to regulations.

Interpretation Bulletins [Reg. 1100(1)]: See at start of Reg. Part XI.

Forms [Reg. 1100(1)]: See at start of Reg. Part XI.

(1.1) [Specified leasing property — limitation] — Notwithstanding subsections (1) and (3), the amount deductible by a taxpayer for a taxation year in respect of a property that is a specified leasing property at the end of the year is the lesser of

(a) the amount, if any, by which the aggregate of

(i) all amounts that would be considered to be repayments in the year or a preceding year on account of the principal amount of a loan made by the taxpayer if

(A) the taxpayer had made the loan at the time that the property last became a specified leasing property and in a principal amount equal to the fair market value of the property at that time,

(B) interest had been charged on the principal amount of the loan outstanding from time to time at the rate, determined in accordance with section 4302, in effect at the earlier of

(I) the time, if any, before the time referred to in subclause (II), at which the taxpayer last entered into an agreement to lease the property, and

(II) the time that the property last became a specified leasing property

(or, where a particular lease provides that the amount paid or payable by the lessee of the property for the use of, or the right to use, the property varies according to prevailing interest rates in effect from time to time, and the taxpayer so elects, in respect of all of the property that is the subject of the particular lease, in the taxpayer's return of income under Part I of the Act for the taxation year of the taxpayer in which the particular lease was entered into, the rate determined in accordance with section 4302 that is in effect at the beginning of the period for which the interest is being calculated), compounded semi-annually not in advance, and

(C) the amounts that were received or receivable by the taxpayer before the end of the year for the use of, or the right to use, the property before the end of the year and after the time it last became a specified leasing property were blended payments of principal and interest, calculated in accordance with clause (B), on the loan applied firstly on account of interest on principal, secondly on account of interest on unpaid interest, and thirdly on account of principal, and

(ii) the amount that would have been deductible under this section for the taxation year (in this subparagraph referred to as the "particular year") that includes the time (in this subparagraph referred to as the "particular time") at which the property last became a specified leasing property of the taxpayer, if

(A) the property had been transferred to a separate prescribed class at the later of

(I) the beginning of the particular year, and

(II) the time at which the property was acquired by the taxpayer,

(B) the particular year had ended immediately before the particular time, and

(C) where the property was not a specified leasing property immediately before the particular time, subsection (3) had applied,

exceeds

(iii) the aggregate of all amounts deducted by the taxpayer in respect of the property by reason of this subsection before the commencement of the year and after the time at which it last became a specified leasing property; and

(b) the amount, if any, by which,

(i) the aggregate of all amounts that would have been deducted by the taxpayer under this Part in respect of the property under paragraph 20(1)(a) of the Act in computing the income of the taxpayer for the year and all preceding taxation years had this subsection and subsections (11) and (15) not applied, and had the taxpayer, in each such year deducted under paragraph 20(1)(a) of the Act the maximum amount allowed under this Part, read without reference to this subsection and subsection (11) and (15), in respect of the property,

exceeds

(ii) the total depreciation allowed to the taxpayer before the commencement of the year in respect of the property.

Related Provisions: ITA 16.1 — Election to treat lease as a sale; Reg. 1100(1.11) — Meaning of "specified leasing property"; Reg. 1100(1.12); Reg. 4302 — Prescribed rate of interest.

I.T. Technical Notes: No. 21 (cancellation of Interpretation Bulletin IT-233R).

(1.11) ["Specified leasing property"] — In this section and subsection 1101(5n), "specified leasing property" of a taxpayer at any time means depreciable property (other than exempt property) that is

(a) used at that time by the taxpayer or a person with whom the taxpayer does not deal at arm's length principally for the purpose of gaining or producing gross revenue that is rent or leasing revenue,

(b) the subject of a lease at that time to a person with whom the taxpayer deals at arm's length and that, at the time the lease was entered into, was a lease for a term of more than one year, and

(c) the subject of a lease of property where the tangible property, other than exempt property, that was the subject of the lease had, at the time the lease was entered into, an aggregate fair market value in excess of $25,000, but, for greater certainty, does not include intangible property (including systems software and property referred to in paragraph (w) of Class 10 or paragraph (n) or (o) of Class 12 in Schedule II).

Related Provisions: Reg. 1100(1.12)–(1.3), (17.2) — Interpretation; Reg. 1101(5n) — Separate class.

(1.12) [Specified leasing property — new property] — Notwithstanding subsections (1) and (1.1), where, in a taxation year, a taxpayer has acquired a property that was not used by the taxpayer for any purpose in that year and the first use of the property by the taxpayer is a lease of the property in respect of which subsection (1.1) applies, the amount allowed to the taxpayer under subsection (1) in respect of the property for the year shall be deemed to be nil.

(1.13) [Specified leasing property — interpretation] — For the purposes of this section,

(a) "exempt property" means

(i) general purpose office furniture or office equipment included in Class 8 in Schedule II (including, for greater certainty, mobile office equipment such as cellular telephones and pagers) or general purpose electronic data processing equipment and ancillary data processing equipment, included in paragraph (f) of Class 10 in Schedule II, other than any individual piece thereof having a capital cost to the taxpayer in excess of $1,000,000,

(i.1) general-purpose electronic data processing equipment and ancillary data processing equipment, included in Class 45 in Schedule II, other than any individual item of that type of equipment having a capital cost to the taxpayer in excess of $1,000,000,

Proposed Amendment — Reg. 1100(1.13)(a)(i.1)

Application: The February 26, 2008 draft regulations (2007 Budget amendments — capital cost allowance), subsec. 1(5), will amend subpara. 1100(1.13)(a)(i.1) to substitute "Class 45 or 50" for "Class 45", applicable to property acquired after March 18, 2007.

Technical Notes: Paragraph 1100(1.13)(a) defines property that is "exempt property" for the purposes of the specified leasing property rules, which may apply to restrict a taxpayer's deduction of CCA in respect of specified leasing property.

Subparagraph 1100(1.13)(a)(i.1) currently provides that certain computer equipment included in Class 45 (other than an individual piece of such property that has a capital cost in excess of $1 million) is exempt property for the purposes of the specified leasing property rules. This treatment is extended to apply to computer equipment included in new Class 50.

This amendment applies to property acquired after March 18, 2007.

(ii) furniture, appliances, television receivers, radio receivers, telephones, furnaces, hot-water heaters and other similar properties, designed for residential use,

(iii) a property that is a motor vehicle that is designed or adapted primarily to carry individuals on highways and streets and that has a seating capacity for not more than the driver and eight passengers, or a motor vehicle of a type commonly called a van or pick-up truck, or a similar vehicle,

(iv) a truck or tractor that is designed for hauling freight on highways,

(v) a trailer that is designed for hauling freight and to be hauled under normal operating conditions by a truck or tractor described in subparagraph (iv),

(vi) a building or part thereof included in Class 1, 3, 6, 20, 31 or 32 in Schedule II (including component parts such as electric wiring, plumbing, sprinkler systems, air-conditioning equipment, heating equipment, lighting fixtures, elevators and escalators) other than a building or part thereof leased primarily to a lessee that is

(A) a person who is exempt from tax by reason of section 149 of the Act,

(B) a person who uses the building in the course of carrying on a business the income from which is exempt from tax under Part I of the Act by reason of any provision of the Act, or

(C) a Canadian government, municipality or other Canadian public authority, who owned the building or part thereof at any time before the commencement of the lease (other than at any time during a period ending not later than one year after the later of the date the construction of the building or part thereof was completed and the date the building or part thereof was acquired by the lessee),

(vii) vessel mooring space, and

(viii) property that is included in Class 35 in Schedule II, and for the purposes of subparagraph (i), where a property is owned by two or more persons or partnerships, or any combination thereof, the capital cost of the property to each such person or partnership shall be deemed to be the total of all amounts each of which is the capital cost of the property to such a person or partnership;

(b) property shall be deemed to be the subject of a lease for a term of more than one year at any time where, at that time

(i) the property had been leased by the lessee thereunder, a person with whom the lessee does not deal at arm's length, or any combination thereof, for a period of more than one year ending at that time, or

(ii) it is reasonable, having regard to all the circumstances, to conclude that the lessor thereunder knew or ought to have known that the lessee thereunder, a person with whom the lessee does not deal at arm's length, or any combination thereof, would lease the property for more than one year; and

(c) for the purposes of paragraph (1.11)(c), where it is reasonable, having regard to all the circumstances, to conclude that one of the main reasons for the existence of two or more leases was to avoid the application of subsection (1.1) by reason of each such lease being a lease of property where the tangible property, other than exempt property, that was the subject of the lease had an aggregate fair market value, at the time the lease was entered into, not in excess of $25,000, each such lease shall be deemed to be a lease of tangible property that had, at the time the lease was entered into, an aggregate fair market value in excess of $25,000.

Related Provisions: Reg. 1100(1.14); Reg. 8200 — Prescribed property for leasing rules.

History: Subpara. 1100(1.13)(a)(i.1) added by P.C. 2005-2286, subsec. 1(2), December 6, 2005, Canada Gazette, Part II, December 28, 2005, deemed in force on March 23, 2004.

Subpara. 1100(1.13)(a)(iii) amended by P.C. 1994-139, subsec. 2(7), January 27, 1994, Canada Gazette, Part II, February 9, 1994, deemed applicable (by P.C. 2001-1378, s. 11, August 1, 2001, Canada Gazette, Part II, August 15, 2001), notwithstanding P.C. 1991-465 dated March 14, 1991 and subsec. 35(6) of the Schedule to P.C. 1994-139 dated January 27, 1994, in respect of leases entered into after 10:00 p.m. EDST, April 26, 1989, other than leases entered into pursuant to an agreement in writing entered into before that time under which the lessee thereunder has the right to require the lease of the property, and for these purposes a lease in respect of which a material change has been agreed to by the parties to it effective at any particular time that is after 10:00 p.m. EDST, April 26, 1989, is deemed to have been entered into at that particular time.

Subpara. 1100(1.13)(a)(viii) amended by the said P.C. 1994-139, subsec. 2(8), applicable to property acquired after December 23, 1991, other than property acquired by the taxpayer before 1993

(a) pursuant to an agreement in writing entered into before December 24, 1991, or

(b) that was under construction by or on behalf of the taxpayer on December 23, 1991.

(1.14) [Specified leasing property — election] — For the purposes of subsection (1.11) and notwithstanding subsection (1.13), where a taxpayer referred to in subsection (16) so elects in the taxpayer's return of income under Part I of the Act for a taxation year in respect of the year and all subsequent taxation years, all of the property of the taxpayer that is the subject of leases entered into in those years shall be deemed not to be exempt property for those years and the aggregate fair market value of all of the tangible property that is the subject of each such lease shall be deemed to have been, at the time the lease was entered into, in excess of $25,000.

(1.15) [Specified leasing property — term of more than one year] — Subject to subsection (1.16) and for the purposes of subsection (1.11), where at any time a taxpayer acquires property that is the subject of a lease with a remaining term at that time of more than one year from a person with whom the taxpayer was dealing at arm's length, the taxpayer shall be deemed to have entered into a lease of the property at that time for a term of more than one year.

(1.16) [Specified leasing property — amalgamation] — Where, at any time, a taxpayer acquires from a person with whom the taxpayer is not dealing at arm's length, or by virtue of an amalgamation (within the meaning assigned by subsection 87(1) of the Act), property that was specified leasing property of the person from whom the taxpayer acquired it, the taxpayer shall, for the purposes of paragraph (1.1)(a) and for the purpose of computing the income of the taxpayer in respect of the lease for any period after the particular time, be deemed to be the same person as, and a continuation of, that person.

(1.17) [Specified leasing property — replacement property] — For the purposes of subsections (1.1) and (1.11), where at any particular time a property (in this subsection referred to as a "replacement property") is provided by a taxpayer to a lessee for the remaining term of a lease as a replacement for a similar property of the taxpayer (in this subsection referred to as the "original property") that was leased by the taxpayer to the lessee, and the amount payable by the lessee for the use of, or the right to use, the replacement property is the same as the amount that was so payable in respect of the original property, the following rules apply:

(a) the replacement property shall be deemed to have been leased by the taxpayer to the lessee at the same time and for the same term as the original property;

(b) the amount of the loan referred to in clause (1.1)(a)(i)(A) shall be deemed to be equal to the amount of that loan determined in respect of the original property;

(c) the amount determined under subparagraph (1.1)(a)(ii) in respect of the replacement property shall be deemed to be equal to the amount so determined in respect of the original property;

(d) all amounts received or receivable by the taxpayer for the use of, or the right to use, the original property before the particular time shall be deemed to have been received or receivable, as the case may be, by the taxpayer for the use of, or the right to use, the replacement property; and

(e) the original property shall be deemed to have ceased to be subject to the lease at the particular time.

History: Para. 1100(1.17)(b) amended by P.C. 1992-2335, Sch. II, subsec. 1(3), November 19, 1992, Canada Gazette Part II, December 2, 1992, applicable ab initio.

(1.18) [Specified leasing property — breakdown of property] — For the purposes of subsection (1.1), where for any period of time any amount that would have been received or receivable by a taxpayer during that period in respect of the use of, or the right to use, a property of the taxpayer during that period is not received or receivable by the taxpayer as a consequence of a breakdown of the property during that period and before the lease of that property is terminated, that amount shall be deemed to have been received or receivable, as the case may be, by the taxpayer.

(1.19) [Specified leasing property — addition or alteration] — For the purposes of subsections (1.1) and (1.11), where at any particular time

(a) an addition or alteration (in this subsection referred to as "additional property") is made by a taxpayer to a property (in this subsection referred to as the "original property") of the taxpayer that is a specified leasing property at the particular time, and

(b) as a consequence of the addition or alteration, the aggregate amount receivable by the taxpayer after the particular time for the use of, or the right to use, the original property and the additional property exceeds the amount so receivable in respect of the original property,

the following rules apply:

(c) the taxpayer shall be deemed to have leased the additional property to the lessee at the particular time,

(d) the term of the lease of the additional property shall be deemed to be greater than one year,

(e) the prescribed rate in effect at the particular time in respect of the additional property shall be deemed to be equal to the prescribed rate in effect in respect of the lease of the original property at the particular time,

(f) subsection (1.11) shall be read without reference to paragraph (c) thereof in respect of the additional property, and

(g) the excess described in paragraph (b) shall be deemed to be an amount receivable by the taxpayer for the use of, or the right to use, the additional property.

(1.2) [Specified leasing property — renegotiation of lease] — For the purposes of subsections (1.1) and (1.11), where at any time

(a) a lease (in this subsection referred to as the "original lease") of property is in the course of a bona fide renegotiation, and

(b) as a result of the renegotiation, the amount paid or payable by the lessee of the property for the use of, or the right to use, the property is altered in respect of a period after that time (otherwise than by reason of an addition or alteration to which subsection (1.19) applies),

the following rules apply:

(c) the original lease shall be deemed to have expired and the renegotiated lease shall be deemed to be a new lease of the property entered into at that time, and

(d) paragraph (1.13)(b) shall not apply in respect of any period before that time during which the property was leased by the lessee or a person with whom the lessee did not deal at arm's length.

(1.3) [Specified leasing property — lease of building] — For the purposes of subsections (1.1) and (1.11), where a taxpayer leases to another person a building or part thereof that is not exempt property, the references to "one year" in paragraphs (1.11)(b) and (1.13)(b), subsection (1.15) and paragraph (1.19)(d) shall in respect of that building or part thereof be read as references to "three years".

Related Provisions: Reg. 1100(1.13) — Meaning of "exempt property".

History: Subsec. 1100(1.1) to (1.3) added by P.C. 1991-465, subsec. 1(6), March 14, 1991, Canada Gazette, Part II, March 27, 1991, applicable in respect of leases entered into after 10:00 p.m. EDST, April 26, 1989, other than leases entered into pursuant to an agreement in writing entered into before that time under which the lessee thereunder has the right to require the lease of the property (and for these purposes a lease in respect of which a material change has been agreed to by the parties thereto effective at any particular time that is after 10:00 p.m. EDST, April 26, 1989 shall be deemed to have been entered into at that particular time), except that

(a) subsec. 1100(1.12) is applicable in respect of property acquired after April 26, 1989;

(b) in its application to leases entered into before February 3, 1990 or after February 2, 1990 pursuant to an agreement in writing entered into before February 3, 1990 under which the lessee thereunder has the right to require the lease of the property,

(i) subsec. 1100(1.3) shall not apply,

(ii) subpara. 1100(1.13)(a)(vi) shall be read as follows:

"(vi) a building or part thereof (including component parts such as electric wiring, plumbing, sprinkler systems, air-conditioning equipment, heating equipment, lighting fixtures, elevators and escalators),", and

(iii) cl. 1100(1.1)(a)(i)(B) shall be read without reference to subcl. (I) and to the words "the earlier of";

(c) in their application to leases entered into on or before March 14, 1991 or after that day pursuant to an agreement in writing entered into on or before that day under which the lessee thereunder has the right to require the lease of the property, subpara. 1100(1.13)(a)(iv) and (v), shall be read as follows:

"(iv) a truck or tractor that is designed for use on highways,

(v) a trailer that is designed to be hauled under normal operating conditions by a truck or tractor described in subparagraph (iv),"; and

(d) any election made under cl. 1100(1.1)(a)(i)(B) or subsec. 1100(1.14) that is made on or before September 24, 1991 shall be deemed to be a valid election under that clause or subsec. 1100(1.14), as the case may be.

(2) Property acquired in the year [Half-year rule] — Where at the end of a taxation year of a taxpayer

(a) the aggregate of all amounts, each of which is an amount added

(i) by reason of subparagraph 13(21)(f)(i) [13(21)"undepreciated capital cost"A] of the Act in respect of a property acquired in the year or that became available for use by the taxpayer in the year, or

(ii) by reason of subparagraph 13(21)(f)(ii.1) [13(21)"undepreciated capital cost"C] or (ii.2) [D] of the Act in respect of an amount repaid in the year to the undepreciated capital cost to the taxpayer of property of a class in Schedule II, other than

(iii) property included in paragraph (1)(v), paragraph (w) of Class 10 or any of paragraphs (a) to (c), (e) to (i), (k), (l) and (p) to (s) of Class 12,

(iv) property included in any of Classes 13, 14, 15, 23, 24, 27, 29 and 34,

(v) where the taxpayer was a corporation described in subsection (16) throughout the year, property that was specified leasing property of the taxpayer at that time,

(vi) property that was deemed to have been acquired by the taxpayer in a preceding taxation year by reason of the application of paragraph 16.1(1)(b) of the Act in respect of a lease to which the property was subject immediately before the time at which the taxpayer last acquired the property, and

(vii) property considered to have become available for use by the taxpayer in the year by reason of paragraph 13(27)(b) or (28)(c) of the Act

exceeds

(b) the aggregate of all amounts, each of which is an amount deducted

(i) by virtue of subparagraph 13(21)(f)(iv) [13(21)"undepreciated capital cost"F] or (v) [G] of the Act in respect of property disposed of in the year, or

(ii) by virtue of subparagraph 13(21)(f)(viii) [13(21)"undepreciated capital cost"J] of the Act in respect of an amount the taxpayer received or was entitled to receive in the year from the undepreciated capital cost to him of property of the class, the amount that the taxpayer may deduct for the year under subsection (1) in respect of property of the class shall be determined as if the undepreciated capital cost to him as of the end of the year (before making any deduction under subsection (1) for the year) of property of the class were reduced by an amount equal to 50 per cent of the amount by which the aggregate determined under paragraph (a) exceeds the aggregate determined under paragraph (b).

(2.1) [Grandfathering — acquisition before 1983] — Where a taxpayer has, after November 12, 1981 and before 1983, acquired or incurred a capital cost in respect of a property of a class in Schedule II and

(a) he was obligated to acquire the property under the terms of an agreement in writing entered into before November 13, 1981 (or, where the property is a property described in Class 31 in Schedule II, before 1982),

(b) he or a person with whom he was not dealing at arm's length commenced the construction, manufacture or production of the property before November 13, 1981 (or, where the property is a property described in Class 31 in Schedule II, before 1982),

(c) he or a person with whom he was not dealing at arm's length had made arrangements, evidenced in writing for the construction, manufacture or production of the property that were substantially advanced before November 13, 1981 and the construction, manufacture or production commenced before June 1, 1982, or

(d) he was obligated to acquire the property under the terms of an agreement in writing entered into before June 1, 1982 where arrangements, evidenced in writing, for the acquisition or leasing of the property were substantially advanced before November 13, 1981,

the following rules apply:

(e) no amount shall be included under paragraph (2)(a) in respect of the property;

(f) where the property is a property to which paragraph (1)(b) applies, that paragraph shall be read, in respect of the property, as "such amount, not exceeding the amount for the year calculated in accordance with Schedule III, as he may claim in respect of the capital cost to him of property of Class 13 in Schedule II";

(g) where the property is a property of a class to which paragraph (1)(t) or (ta) applies, the property shall be deemed to be designated property of the class; and

(h) where the property is a property described in paragraph (1)(v), subparagraph (iv) thereof shall be read, in respect of the property, as "33⅓ per cent of the capital cost thereof to him, and".

(2.2) [Exception to half-year rule] — Where a property of a class in Schedule II is acquired by a taxpayer

(a) in the course of a reorganization in respect of which, if a dividend were received by a corporation in the course of the reorganization, subsection 55(2) of the Act would not be applicable to the dividend by reason of the application of paragraph 55(3)(b) of the Act, or

(b), (c), (d) [Revoked]

(e) from a person with whom the taxpayer was not dealing at arm's length (otherwise than by virtue of a right referred to in paragraph 251(5)(b) of the Act) at the time the property was acquired,

and where

(f) the property was depreciable property of the person from whom it was acquired and was owned continuously by that person for the period from

(i) a day that was at least 364 days before the end of the taxation year of the taxpayer during which he acquired the property, or

(ii) November 12, 1981

to the day it was acquired by the taxpayer, or

(g) the rules provided in subsection (2.1) or this subsection applied in respect of the property for the purpose of determining the allowance under subsection (1) to which the person from whom the taxpayer acquired the property was entitled,

the following rules apply:

(h) no amount shall be included under paragraph (2)(a) in respect of the property;

(i) where the property is a property to which paragraph (1)(b) applies, that paragraph shall be read, in respect of the property, as "such amount, not exceeding the amount for the year calculated in accordance with Schedule III, as he may claim in respect of the capital cost to him of property of Class 13 in Schedule II";

(j) where the property is a property of a class to which paragraph (1)(ta) applies,

(i) the property shall be deemed to be designated property of the class,

(ii) for the purposes of computing the amount determined under paragraph (1)(ta) for any taxation year of the taxpayer ending after the time the property was actually acquired by the taxpayer, the property shall be deemed, other than for the purposes of paragraph (f), to have been acquired by the taxpayer immediately after the commencement of the taxpayer's first taxation year that commenced after the time that is the earlier of

(A) the time the property was last acquired by the transferor of the property, and

(B) where the property was transferred in a series of transfers to which this subsection applies, the time the property was last acquired by the first transferor in that series, unless

(C) where clause (A) applies, the property was acquired by the taxpayer before the end of the taxation year of the transferor of the property that includes the time at which that transferor acquired the property, or

(D) where clause (B) applies, the property was acquired by the taxpayer before the end of the taxation year of the first transferor that includes the time at which that transferor acquired the property;

(iii) where the taxpayer is a corporation that was incorporated or otherwise formed after the end of the transferor's, or where applicable, the first transferor's, taxation year in which the transferor last acquired the property, the taxpayer shall be deemed, for the purposes of subparagraph (ii),

(A) to have been in existence throughout the period commencing immediately before the end of that year and ending immediately after the taxpayer was incorporated or otherwise formed, and

(B) to have had, throughout the period referred to in clause (A), fiscal periods ending on the day of the year on which the taxpayer's first fiscal period ended; and

(iv) the property shall be deemed to have become available for use by the taxpayer at the earlier of

(A) the time it became available for use by the taxpayer, and

(B) if applicable,

(I) the time it became available for use by the person from whom the taxpayer acquired the property, determined without reference to paragraphs 13(27)(c) and (28)(d) of the Act, or

(II) the time it became available for use by the first transferor in a series of transfers of the same property to which this subsection applies, determined without reference to paragraphs 13(27)(c) and (28)(d) of the Act; and

(k) where the property is a property described in paragraph (1)(v), subparagraph (iv) thereof shall be read, in respect of the property, as "33 1/3 per cent of the capital cost thereof to him, and".

(8) Railway sidings — Where a taxpayer, other than an operator of a railway system, has made a capital expenditure pursuant to a contract or arrangement with an operator of a railway system under which a railway siding that does not become the taxpayer's property is constructed to provide service to the taxpayer's place of business or to a property acquired by the taxpayer for the purpose of gaining or producing income, there is hereby allowed to the taxpayer, in computing income for the taxation year from the business or property, as the case may be, a deduction equal to such amount as he may claim not exceeding four per cent of the amount remaining, if any, after deducting from the capital expenditure the aggregate of all amounts previously allowed as deductions in respect of the expenditure.

(9) Patents — Where a part or all of the cost of a patent is determined by reference to the use of the patent, in lieu of the deduction allowed under paragraph (1)(c), a taxpayer, in computing his income for a taxation year from a business or property, as the case may be, may deduct such amount as he may claim in respect of property of Class 14 in Schedule II not exceeding the lesser of

(a) the aggregate of

(i) that part of the capital cost determined by reference to the use of the patent in the year, and

(ii) the amount that would be computed under subparagraph (1)(c)(i) if the capital cost of the patent did not include the amounts determined by reference to the use of the patent in that year and previous years; and

(b) the undepreciated capital cost to him as of the end of the taxation year (before making any deduction under this subsection for the taxation year) of property of the class.

Interpretation Bulletins: IT-477: CCA — Patents, franchises, concessions and licences.

(9.1) [Class 44] — Where a part or all of the capital cost to a taxpayer of property that is a patent, or a right to use patented information, is determined by reference to the use of the property and that property is included in Class 44 in Schedule II, in lieu of the deduction allowed under paragraph (1)(a), there may be deducted in computing the taxpayer's income for a taxation year from a business or property such amount as the taxpayer may claim in respect of property of the class not exceeding the lesser of

(a) the total of

(i) that part of the capital cost that is determined by reference to the use of the property in the year, and

(ii) the amount that would be deductible for the year by reason of paragraph (1)(a) in respect of property of the class if the capital cost of the property of the class did not include the amounts determined under subparagraph (i) for the year and preceding taxation years; and

(b) the undepreciated capital cost to the taxpayer as of the end of the taxation year (before making any deduction under this subsection for the taxation year) of property of the class.

(10) [Reserved]

(11) Rental properties — Notwithstanding subsection (1), in no case shall the aggregate of deductions, each of which is a deduction in respect of property of a prescribed class owned by a taxpayer that includes rental property owned by him, otherwise allowed to the taxpayer by virtue of subsection (1) in computing his income for a taxation year, exceed the amount, if any, by which

(a) the aggregate of amounts each of which is

(i) his income for the year from renting or leasing a rental property owned by him, computed without regard to paragraph 20(1)(a) of the Act, or

(ii) the income of a partnership for the year from renting or leasing a rental property of the partnership, to the extent of the taxpayer's share of such income,

exceeds

(b) the aggregate of amounts each of which is

(i) his loss for the year from renting or leasing a rental property owned by him, computed without regard to paragraph 20(1)(a) of the Act, or

(ii) the loss of a partnership for the year from renting or leasing a rental property of the partnership, to the extent of the taxpayer's share of such loss.

Proposed Amendment — Reg. 1100(17)(b)

Application: The February 26, 2008 draft regulations (2007 Budget amendments — capital cost allowance), subsec. 1(6), will amend para. 1100(1.17)(b) to substitute "computer tax" for "computer software tax", applicable to property acquired after March 18, 2007.

Technical Notes: Subsection 1100(17) defines property that is "leasing property" for the purposes of the specified leasing property rules, which may apply to restrict a taxpayer's deduction of capital cost allowance in respect of specified leasing property.

A reference to "computer software tax shelter property" in paragraph 1100(17)(b) is replaced, consequential to the changes to the computer software tax shelter property rules in subsection 1100(20.1) of the Regulations, with a reference to "computer tax shelter property".

This amendment applies to property acquired after March 18, 2007.

(c) property referred to in paragraph (w) of Class 10 or in paragraph (n) of Class 12 in Schedule II, where such property is owned by the taxpayer or the partnership, whether jointly with another person or otherwise, if, in the taxation year in respect of which the expression is being applied, the property was used by the taxpayer or the partnership principally for the purpose of gaining or producing gross revenue that is rent, royalty or leasing revenue, but for greater certainty, does not include a property leased by the taxpayer or the partnership to a lessee, in the ordinary course of the taxpayer's or partnership's business of selling goods or rendering services, under an agreement by which the lessee undertakes to use the property to carry on the business of selling, or promoting the sale of, the taxpayer's or partnership's goods or services.

(17.1) [Deemed use of property] — For the purposes of subsection (17), where, in a taxation year, a taxpayer or a partnership has acquired a property

(a) that was not used for any purpose in that year, and

(b) the first use of the property by the taxpayer or the partnership was principally for the purpose of gaining or producing gross revenue that is rent, royalty or leasing revenue, the property shall be deemed to have been used in the taxation year in which it was acquired principally for the purpose of gaining or producing gross revenue that is rent, royalty or leasing revenue.

History: Subsec. 1100(17.1) added by P.C. 1982-599, subsec. 1(5), February 25, 1982, Canada Gazette, Part II, March 10, 1982.

(17.2) [Deemed rent] — For the purposes of subsections (1.11) and (17), gross revenue derived in a taxation year from

(a) the right of a person or partnership, other than the owner of a property, to use or occupy the property or a part thereof, and

(b) services offered to a person or partnership that are ancillary to the use or occupation by the person or partnership of the property or the part thereof shall be considered to be rent derived in the year from the property.

(18) [Leasing property — exclusions] — Leasing property of a taxpayer or a partnership referred to in subsection (17) does not include

(a) property that the taxpayer or the partnership acquired before May 26, 1976 or was obligated to acquire under the terms of an agreement in writing entered into before May 26, 1976;

(b) property the construction, manufacture or production of which was commenced by the taxpayer or the partnership before May 26, 1976 or was commenced under an agreement in writing entered into by the taxpayer or the partnership before May 26, 1976; or

(c) property that the taxpayer or the partnership acquired on or before December 31, 1976 or was obligated to acquire under the terms of an agreement in writing entered into on or before December 31, 1976, if

(i) arrangements, evidenced by writing, respecting the acquisition, construction, manufacture or production of the property had been substantially advanced before May 26, 1976, and

(ii) the taxpayer or the partnership had before May 26, 1976 demonstrated a bona fide intention to acquire the property for the purpose of gaining or producing gross revenue that is rent, royalty or leasing revenue.

(19) [Leasing property — exclusions] — Notwithstanding subsection (17), a property acquired by a taxpayer

(a) in the course of a reorganization in respect of which, if a dividend were received by a corporation in the course of the reorganization, subsection 55(2) of the Act would not be applicable to the dividend by reason of the application of paragraph 55(3)(b) of the Act, or

(b) from a person with whom the taxpayer was not dealing at arm's length (otherwise than by virtue of a right referred to in paragraph 251(5)(b) of the Act) at the time the property was acquired,

that would otherwise be leasing property of the taxpayer, shall be deemed not to be leasing property of the taxpayer if immediately before it was so acquired by the taxpayer, it was, by virtue of subsection (18) or (20) or this subsection, not a leasing property of the person from whom the property was so acquired.

(20.1) Computer software tax shelter property — The total of all amounts each of which is a deduction in respect of computer software tax shelter property allowed to the taxpayer under subsection (1) in computing a taxpayer's income for a taxation year shall not exceed the amount, if any, by which

(a) the total of all amounts each of which is

(i) the taxpayer's income for the year from a business in which computer software tax shelter property owned by the taxpayer is used, computed without reference to any deduction under subsection (1) in respect of such property, or

(ii) the income of a partnership from a business in which computer software tax shelter property owned by the partnership is used, to the extent of the taxpayer's share of such income that is included in computing the taxpayer's income for the year,

exceeds

(b) the total of all amounts each of which is

(i) a loss of the taxpayer from a business in which computer software tax shelter property is used, computed without reference to any deduction under subsection (1) in respect of such property, or

(ii) a loss of a partnership from a business in which computer software tax shelter property is used, to the extent of the taxpayer's share of such loss that is included in computing the taxpayer's income for the year.

Proposed Amendment — Reg. 1100(20.1)

(20.1) Computer tax shelter property — The total of all amounts each of which is a deduction in respect of computer tax shelter property allowed to the taxpayer under subsection (1) in computing a taxpayer's income for a taxation year shall not exceed the amount, if any, by which

(a) the total of all amounts each of which is

(i) the taxpayer's income for the year from a business in which computer tax shelter property owned by the taxpayer is used, computed without reference to any deduction under subsection (1) in respect of such property, or

(ii) the income of a partnership from a business in which computer tax shelter property of the partnership is used, to the extent of the share of such income that is included in computing the taxpayer's income for the year,

exceeds

(b) the total of all amounts each of which is

(i) a loss of the taxpayer from a business in which computer tax shelter property owned by the taxpayer is used, computed without reference to any deduction under subsection (1) in respect of such property, or

(ii) a loss of a partnership from a business in which computer tax shelter property of the partnership is used, to the extent of the share of such loss that is included in computing the taxpayer's income for the year.

Application: The February 26, 2008 draft regulations (2007 Budget amendments — capital cost allowance), subsec. 1(7), will amend subsec. 1100(20.1) to read as above, applicable to property acquired after March 18, 2007.

Technical Notes: Subsection 1100(20.1) precludes the deduction of capital cost allowance in respect of computer software tax shelter property to the extent the deductions otherwise would result in a loss.

The references to "computer software tax shelter property" in the heading before subsection 1100(20.1) and in the subsection itself are replaced with a reference to "computer tax shelter property." This change is consequential to the extension of the tax shelter property rules to "general-purpose electronic data processing equipment", including ancillary equipment, which terminology is defined in subsection 1104(2) — although colloquially it is called computer hardware.

This amendment applies to property acquired after March 18, 2007.

Proposed Amendment — 1100(20.2) opening words

(20.2) ["Computer software tax shelter property"] — For the purpose of this Part, computer tax shelter property is computer software, and property described in Class 50 in Schedule II, that is depreciable property of a prescribed class of a person or partnership where

Application: The February 26, 2008 draft regulations (2007 Budget amendments — capital cost allowance), subsec. 1(8), will amend the opening words of subsec. 1100(20.2) to read as above, applicable to property acquired after March 18, 2007.

Technical Notes: Subsection 1100(20.2) describes the computer tax shelter property for the purposes of the application of the specified leasing property rules.

The preamble in the subsection is amended in two respects. First, a reference to "computer software tax shelter property" is changed to a reference to "computer tax shelter property". Second, a reference to the property described in Class 50 in Schedule II is added, consequential to the introduction of Class 50 for certain computer equipment.

This amendment applies to property acquired after March 18, 2007.

(a) the person's or partnership's interest in the property is a tax shelter investment (as defined by subsection 143.2(1) of the Act) determined without reference to subsection (20.1); or

(b) an interest in the person or partnership is a tax shelter investment (as defined by subsection 143.2(1) of the Act) determined without reference to subsection (20.1).

Proposed Amendment — Computers and software eligible for new 100% CCA rate

Federal Budget, Supplementary Information, Jan. 27, 2009: The computer tax shelter property rules, which prevent CCA deductions from being used by investors to shelter other sources of income, will also apply to computer equipment that is eligible for the 100% CCA rate.

History: Subsecs. 1100(20.1) and (20.2) added by P.C. 2000-1000, subsec. 2(4), June 21, 2000, Canada Gazette, Part II, July 5, 2000, applicable to taxation years and fiscal periods that end after August 5, 1997, except that those subsecs. do not apply in respect of computer software for taxation years and fiscal periods of a taxpayer or partnership that end in 1997 or 1998 where

(a) the taxpayer's or partnership's interest in the computer software

(i) is acquired before August 6, 1997,

(ii) is acquired before 1998 pursuant to an agreement in writing made by the taxpayer or partnership before August 6, 1997, or

(iii) is, or is associated with, a tax shelter investment (as defined by subsec. 143.2(1) of the Act) that is acquired by a taxpayer or partnership before 1998 pursuant to

(A) the terms of a document that is a prospectus, preliminary prospectus or registration statement where

(I) the document was filed before August 6, 1997 with a public authority in Canada pursuant to and in accordance with the securities legislation of Canada or of any province and, where required by law, accepted for filing by the public authority before August 6, 1997,

(II) the particular computer software is

1. identified in the document, or

2. acquired before November 29, 1997 from a person that is resident in Canada and that developed the software, and

(III) all the funds raised pursuant to the document are raised before 1998 and all or substantially all of the tax shelter investments that can reasonably be considered to be associated with the computer software are acquired before 1998 by a person who is not

1. a promoter, or an agent of a promoter, of the securities,

2. a vendor of the property,

3. a broker or dealer in securities, or

4. a person who does not deal at arm's length with a person referred to in sub-subclause 1 or 2, or

(B) the terms of an offering memorandum distributed as part of an offering of securities where

(I) the memorandum contained a complete or substantially complete description of the securities contemplated in the offering as well as the terms and conditions of the offering,

(II) the memorandum was distributed before August 6, 1997,

(III) solicitations in respect of the sale of the securities contemplated by the memorandum were made before August 6, 1997,

(IV) the sale of the securities was substantially in accordance with the memorandum,

(V) the particular computer software is

1. identified in the memorandum, or

2. acquired before November 29, 1997 from a person that is resident in Canada and that developed the software, and

(VI) all the funds raised pursuant to the memorandum were raised before 1998 and all or substantially all of the tax shelter investments that can reasonably be considered to be associated with the computer software are acquired before 1998 by a person who is not

1. a promoter, or an agent of a promoter, of the securities,

2. a vendor of the property,

3. a broker or dealer in securities, or

4. a person who does not deal at arm's length with a person referred to in sub-subclause 1 or 2;

(b) there is no agreement or other arrangement under which any of the following obligations can be changed, reduced or waived if there is a change to the Act or if there is an adverse assessment under the Act:

(i) the obligation of the taxpayer or the partnership, with respect to the computer software, or

(ii) the obligation of another taxpayer or partnership that acquires a tax shelter investment (as defined by subsec. 143.2(1) of the Act) that is associated with computer software, with respect to the tax shelter investment;

(c) the computer software is, or is associated with, one or more tax shelters sold or offered for sale at a time and in circumstances in which s. 237.1 of the Act requires an identification number to have been obtained and the identification number was obtained before that time; and

(d) the computer software (including computer software to which subparagraph (a)(i) or (ii) applies) is, or is associated with, a tax shelter investment (as defined by subsec. 143.2(1) of the Act) sold or offered for sale pursuant to a document or offering memorandum described in subparagraph (a)(iii) and either

(i) the total amount of securities sold in 1997 pursuant to the document or offering memorandum does not exceed $100,000,000, or

(ii) at least 10% of the securities authorized to be sold in 1997 pursuant to the document or offering memorandum were in 1997 and before August 6, 1997 sold to, or subscribed for by, a person who is not

(A) a promoter, or an agent of a promoter, of the securities,

(B) a vendor of the computer software,

(C) a broker or dealer in securities, or

(D) a person who does not deal at arm's length with any person referred to in clause (A) or (B).

For the purpose of this application, computer software is deemed to be acquired by a taxpayer or partnership no earlier than the time and only to the extent that its cost is considered to be an expenditure made or incurred by the taxpayer or partnership for the purposes of the Income Tax Act, determined without reference to subsec. 1100(20.1) of the Regulations.

(21) Certified films and video tapes — Notwithstanding subsection (1), where a taxpayer (in this subsection and subsection (22) referred to as the "investor") has acquired property of Class 10 or 12 in Schedule II that is a certified feature film or certified production (in this subsection and subsection (22) referred to as the "film or tape"), in no case shall the deduction in respect of property of that class otherwise allowed to the investor by virtue of subsection (1) in computing the investor's income for a particular taxation year exceed the amount that it would be if the capital cost to the investor of the film or tape were reduced by the aggregate of amounts, each of which is

(a) where the principal photography or taping of the film or tape is not completed before the end of the particular taxation year, the amount, if any, by which

(i) the capital cost to the investor of the film or tape as of the end of the year

exceeds the aggregate of

(ii) where the principal photography or taping of the film or tape is completed within 60 days after the end of the year, the amount that may reasonably be considered to be the investor's proportionate share of the production costs incurred in respect of the film or tape before the end of the year,

(iii) where the principal photography or taping of the film or tape is not completed within 60 days after the end of the year, the amount that may reasonably be considered to be the investor's proportionate share of the lesser of

(A) the production costs incurred in respect of the film or tape before the end of the year, and

(B) the proportion of the production costs incurred to the date the principal photography or taping is completed that the percentage of the principal photography or taping completed as of the end of the year, as certified by the Minister of Communications, is of 100 per cent, and

(iv) the total of amounts determined under paragraphs (b) to (e) in respect of the film or tape as of the end of the year;

(b) where, at any time before the later of

(i) the date the principal photography or taping of the film or tape is completed, and

(ii) the date the investor acquired the film or tape, a revenue guarantee (other than a revenue guarantee that is certified by the Minister of Communications to be a guarantee under which the person who agrees to provide the revenue is a licensed broadcaster or bona fide film or tape distributor) is entered into in respect of the film or tape whereby it may reasonably be considered certain, having regard to all the circumstances, that the investor will receive revenue under the terms of the revenue guarantee, the amount, if any, that may reasonably be considered to be the portion of the revenue that has not been included in the investor's income in the particular taxation year or a previous taxation year;

(c) where, at any time, a revenue guarantee, other than

(i) a revenue guarantee in respect of which paragraph (b) applies, or

(ii) a revenue guarantee under which the person (in this subsection referred to as the "guarantor") who agrees to provide the revenue under the terms of the guarantee is a person who does not deal at arm's length with either the investor or the person from whom the investor acquired the film or tape (in this subsection referred to as the "vendor") and in respect of which the Minister of Communications certifies that

(A) the guarantor is a licensed broadcaster or bona fide film or tape distributor, and

(B) the cost of the film or tape does not include any amount for or in respect of the guarantee, is entered into in respect of the film or tape, the amount, if any, that may reasonably be considered to be the portion of the revenue that is to be received by the investor under the terms of the revenue guarantee that has not been included in the investor's income in the particular taxation year or a preceding taxation year, if

(iii) the guarantor and the investor are not dealing at arm's length,

(iv) the vendor and the guarantor are not dealing at arm's length, or

(v) the vendor or a person not dealing at arm's length with the vendor undertakes in any way, directly or indirectly, to fulfil all or any part of the guarantor's obligations under the terms of the revenue guarantee;

(d) where, at any time, a revenue guarantee, other than a revenue guarantee in respect of which paragraph (b) or (c) applies, is entered into in respect of the film or tape, the amount, if any, that may reasonably be considered to be the portion of the revenue that is to be received by the investor under the terms of the revenue guarantee that

(i) is not due to the investor until a time that is more than four years after the first day on which the guarantor has the right to the use of the film or tape, and

(ii) has not been included in the investor's income in the particular taxation year or a previous taxation year; and

(e) the portion of any debt obligation of the investor outstanding at the end of the particular year that is convertible into an interest in the film or tape or in the investor.

(24) Specified energy property — Notwithstanding subsection (1), in no case shall the total of deductions, each of which is a deduction in respect of property of Class 34, 43.1, 43.2, 47 or 48 in Schedule II that is specified energy property owned by a taxpayer, otherwise allowed to the taxpayer under subsection (1) in computing the taxpayer's income for a taxation year, exceed the amount, if any, by which

(a) the total of all amounts each of which is

(i) the total of

(A) the amount that would be the income of the taxpayer for the year from property described in Class 34, 43.1, 43.2, 47 or 48 in Schedule II (other than specified energy property), or from the business of selling the product of that property, if that income were calculated after deducting the maximum amount allowable in respect of the property for the year under paragraph 20(1)(a) of the Act, and

(B) the taxpayer's income for the year from specified energy property or from the business of selling the product of that property, computed without regard to paragraph 20(1)(a) of the Act, or

(ii) the total of

(A) the taxpayer's share of the amount that would be the income of a partnership for the year from property described in Class 34, 43.1, 43.2, 47 or 48 in Schedule II (other than specified energy property), or from the business of selling the product of that property, if that income were calculated after deducting the maximum amount allowable in respect of the property for the year under paragraph 20(1)(a) of the Act, and

(B) the income of a partnership for the year from specified energy property or from the business of selling the product of that property of the partnership, to the extent of the taxpayer's share of that income,

exceeds

(b) the total of all amounts each of which is

(i) the taxpayer's loss for the year from specified energy property or from the business of selling the product of that property, computed without regard to paragraph 20(1)(a) of the Act, or

The opening words of subsec. 1100(25) and cl. 1100(25)(b)(iii)(C) amended by P.C. 1997-1033, subsecs. 1(3) and (4), July 25, 1997, Canada Gazette, Part II, August 20, 1997, applicable after February 21, 1994.

(26) [Specified energy property — exception] — Subsection (24) does not apply to a taxation year of a taxpayer that was, throughout the year,

(a) a corporation whose principal business throughout the year was

(i) manufacturing or processing,

(ii) mining operations, or

(iii) the sale, distribution or production of electricity, natural gas, oil, steam, heat or any other form of energy or potential energy; or

(b) a partnership each member of which was a corporation described in paragraph (a).

Related Provisions: Reg. 1104(9) — Meaning of "manufacturing and processing".

History: Para. 1100(26)(a) amended by P.C. 1997-1033, subsec. 1(5), July 25, 1997, Canada Gazette, Part II, August 20, 1997, applicable to taxation years ending after March 6, 1996.

(27) [Specified energy property — acquisition before 1990] — Specified energy property of a person or partnership does not include property acquired by the person or partnership after February 9, 1988 and before 1990

(a) pursuant to an obligation in writing entered into by the person or partnership before February 10, 1988;

(b) pursuant to the terms of a prospectus, preliminary prospectus, registration statement or offering memorandum filed before February 10, 1988 with a public authority in Canada pursuant to and in accordance with the securities legislation of any province;

(c) pursuant to the terms of an offering memorandum distributed as part of an offering of securities where

(i) the offering memorandum contained a complete or substantially complete description of the securities contemplated in the offering as well as the terms and conditions of the offering of the securities,

(ii) the offering memorandum was distributed before February 10, 1988,

(iii) solicitations in respect of the sale of the securities contemplated by the offering memorandum were made before February 10, 1988, and,

(iv) the sale of the securities was substantially in accordance with the offering memorandum; or

(d) as part of a project where, before February 10, 1988,

(i) some of the machinery or equipment to be used in the project had been acquired, or agreements in writing for the acquisition of that machinery or equipment had been entered into, by or on behalf of the person or partnership, and

(ii) an approval had been received by or on behalf of the person or partnership from a government environmental authority in respect of the location of the project.

Related Provisions: Reg. 1100(17) — Meaning of "leasing property".

(28) [Specified energy property — exclusion] — A property acquired by a taxpayer

(a) in the course of a reorganization in respect of which, if a dividend were received by a corporation in the course of the reorganization, subsection 55(2) of the Act would not be applicable to the dividend by reason of the application of paragraph 55(3)(b) of the Act, or

(b) from a person with whom the taxpayer was not dealing at arm's length (otherwise than by virtue of a right referred to in paragraph 251(5)(b) of the Act) at the time the property was acquired

that would otherwise be specified energy property of the taxpayer shall be deemed not to be specified energy property of the taxpayer if, immediately before it was so acquired by the taxpayer, it was not, by virtue of subsection (27), this subsection or subsection (29), specified energy property of the person from whom the property was so acquired.

(29) [Specified energy property — replacement property] — A property acquired by a taxpayer or partnership that is a replacement property (within the meaning assigned by subsection 13(4) of the Act), that would otherwise be specified energy property of the taxpayer or partnership, shall be deemed not to be specified energy property of the taxpayer or partnership if the property replaced, referred to in paragraph 13(4)(a) or (b) of the Act, was, by virtue of subsection (27), (28) or this subsection, not specified energy property of the taxpayer or partnership immediately before it was disposed of by the taxpayer or partnership.

Division II — Separate Classes

1101. (1) Businesses and properties — Where more than one property of a taxpayer is described in the same class in Schedule II and where

(a) one of the properties was acquired for the purpose of gaining or producing income from a business, and

(b) one of the properties was acquired for the purpose of gaining or producing income from another business or from the property,

a separate class is hereby prescribed for the properties that

(c) were acquired for the purpose of gaining or producing income from each business, and

(d) would otherwise be included in the class.

Related Provisions: Reg. 1101(1a) — Insurance businesses.

History: Paras. 1101(1)(c), (d) renumbered by P.C. 1980-2081, s. 1, July 31, 1980, Canada Gazette, Part II, August 13, 1980.

Selected Cases [Reg. 1101(1)]: Dupont Canada Inc. v. R., [2001] 2 C.T.C. 315 (FCA) (Sale of certain assets not sale of separate business).

Interpretation Bulletins: IT-206R: Separate businesses; IT-218R: Profit, capital gains and losses from the sale of real estate, including farmland and inherited land and conversion of real estate from capital property to inventory and vice versa.

(1a) [Life insurance business deemed corporate business] — For the purposes of subsection (1),

(a) a life insurance business, and

(b) an insurance business other than a life insurance business, shall each be regarded as a separate business.

(1ab) [Partnership property separate] — Where, at the end of 1971, more than one property of a taxpayer who was a member of a partnership at that time is described in the same class in Schedule II and where

(a) one of the properties can reasonably be regarded to be the interest of the taxpayer in a depreciable property that is partnership property of the partnership, and

(b) one of the properties is property other than property referred to in paragraph (a), a separate class is hereby prescribed for all properties each of which

(c) is a property referred to in paragraph (a); and

(d) would otherwise be included in the class.

(1ac) [Rental property over $50,000] — Subject to subsection (5h), where more than one property of a taxpayer is described in the same class in Schedule II, and one or more of the properties is a rental property of the taxpayer the capital cost of which to the taxpayer was not less than $50,000[1], a separate class is hereby prescribed for each such rental property of the taxpayer that would otherwise be included in the same class, other than a rental property that was acquired by the taxpayer before 1972 or that is

(a) a building or an interest therein, or

(b) a leasehold interest acquired by the taxpayer by reason of the fact that the taxpayer erected a building on leased land, erection of which building was commenced by the taxpayer before 1972 or pursuant to an agreement in writing entered into by the taxpayer before 1972.

Related Provisions: Reg. 1100(14) — Meaning of "rental property"; Reg. 1101(1ad) — Exceptions; Reg. 1101(1ae) — Rental property separate.

Interpretation Bulletins: IT-274R: Rental property — Capital cost of $50,000 or more; IT-304R2: Condominiums.

(1ad) [Rental property over $50,000 — exception] — Notwithstanding subsection (1ac), a rental property acquired by a taxpayer

(a) in the course of a reorganization in respect of which, if a dividend were received by a corporation in the course of the reorganization, subsection 55(2) of the Act would not be applicable to the dividend by reason of the application of paragraph 55(3)(b) of the Act, or

(b) from a person with whom the taxpayer was not dealing at arm's length (otherwise than by virtue of a right referred to in paragraph 251(5)(b) of the Act) at the time the property was acquired,

that would otherwise be rental property of the taxpayer of a separate class prescribed under subsection (1ac), shall be deemed not to be property of a separate class prescribed under that subsection if, immediately before it was so acquired by the taxpayer, it was a rental property of the person from whom the property was so acquired of a prescribed class other than a separate class prescribed under that subsection.

Related Provisions: Reg. 1100(2.21)(a); Reg. 1100(14) — Meaning of "rental property"; Reg. 1102(20) — Non-arm's length exception.

History: Paras. 1101(1ad)(a), (b) substituted for (a) to (c) by P.C. 1989-2464, subsec. 2(1), December 14, 1989, Canada Gazette, Part II, January 3, 1990, applicable in respect of property acquired by a taxpayer after June 17, 1987 other than property acquired after that date and before 1990 pursuant to an agreement in writing entered into by the taxpayer before June 18, 1987.

Para. 1101(1ad)(a.1) added by P.C. 1984-3789, s. 6, November 29, 1984, Canada Gazette, Part II, December 12, 1984, applicable with respect to property acquired after November 12, 1981.

Interpretation Bulletins: IT-274R: Rental properties — Capital cost of $50,000 or more.

(1ae) [Rental property separate] — Except in the case of a corporation or partnership described in subsection 1100(12), where more than one property of a taxpayer is described in the same class in Schedule II and where

(a) one of the properties is a rental property other than a property of a separate class prescribed under subsection (1ac), and

(b) one of the properties is a property other than rental property,

a separate class is hereby prescribed for properties that

(c) are described in paragraph (a); and

(d) would otherwise be included in the class.

Related Provisions: Reg. 1100(14) — Meaning of "rental property".

Interpretation Bulletins: IT-195R4: Rental property — CCA restrictions; IT-304R2: Condominiums.

(1af) [Expensive automobiles] — A separate class is hereby prescribed for each property included in Class 10.1 in Schedule II.

Subsecs. 1101(1b), (1c) revoked by P.C. 1979-2483, September 13, 1979, Canada Gazette, Part II, September 26, 1979, effective in respect of 1978 et seq.

Interpretation Bulletins: IT-521R: Motor vehicle expenses claimed by self-employed individuals; IT-522R: Vehicle, travel and sales expenses of employees.

Proposed Addition — Reg. 1101(1ag)

(1ag) [Franchise, concession or license] — If more than one property of a taxpayer is described in the same class in Schedule II, and one or more of the properties is a property in respect of which the taxpayer is a transferee that has elected under subsection 13(4.2) of the Act, a separate class is prescribed for each such property of the taxpayer that would otherwise be included in the same class.

Application: The July 18, 2005 Technical Notes to ITA 13(4.2), (4.3) propose to add Reg. 1101(1ag), applicable after December 20, 2002.

Technical Notes: See proposed ITA 13(4.2), (4.3).

(2) Fishing vessels — Where a property of a taxpayer that would otherwise be included in Class 7 in Schedule II is a property in respect of which a depreciation allowance could have been taken under Order in Council

(a) P.C. 2798 of April 10, 1942,

(b) P.C. 7580 of August 26, 1942, as amended by P.C. 3297 of April 22, 1943, or

(c) P.C. 3979 of June 1, 1944, if those Orders in Council were applicable to the taxation year, a separate class is hereby prescribed for each property, including the furniture, fittings and equipment attached thereto.

Related Provisions: Reg. 1100(1)(i).

(2a) Canadian vessels — A separate class is hereby prescribed for each vessel of a taxpayer, including the furniture, fittings, radiocommunication equipment and other equipment attached thereto, that

(a) was constructed in Canada;

(b) is registered in Canada; and

(c) had not been used for any purpose whatever before it was acquired by the taxpayer.

Related Provisions: Reg. 1100(1)(v) — additional allowance; Reg. 1101(2c) — No application if structured financing facility in place; Reg. 4601(e)(iii) — Investment tax credit — qualified transportation equipment.

History: Subsec. 1101(2a) substituted by P.C. 1994-139, subsecs. 3(1) and (2), January 27, 1994, Canada Gazette, Part II, February 9, 1994, applicable to property acquired after July 13, 1990.

Interpretation Bulletins: IT-267R2: CCA — vessels.

Advance Tax Rulings: ATR-52: Accelerated rate of CCA for vessels.

(2b) Offshore drilling vessels — A separate class is hereby prescribed for all vessels described in Class 7 in Schedule II, including the furniture, fittings, radiocommunication equipment and other equipment attached thereto, acquired by a taxpayer

(a) after May 25, 1976 and designed principally for the purpose of

(i) determining the existence, location, extent or quality of accumulations of petroleum or natural gas (other than mineral resources); or

(ii) drilling oil or gas wells; or

(b) after May 22, 1979 and designed principally for the purpose of determining the existence, location, extent or quality of mineral resources.

Related Provisions: Reg. 1100(1)(va) — Additional allowance; Reg. 1101(2c) — No application if structured financing facility in place.

History: Subsec. 1101(2b) substituted by P.C. 1979-1487, s. 52, May 17, 1979, Canada Gazette, Part II, June 13, 1979.

Interpretation Bulletins: IT-267R2: CCA — Vessels; IT-317R: Radio and television equipment (archived).

(2c) Vessels and a structured financing facility — Subsections (2a) and (2b) do not apply to a vessel, nor to the furniture, fittings, radio communications equipment and other equipment attached to the vessel, if a structured financing facility relating to any such property has been agreed to by the Minister of Industry under the Department of Industry Act.

Related Provisions: Reg. Sch. II:Cl. 41(b) — Exclusion from Class 41.

History: Subsec. 1101(2c) added by P.C. 2005-2186, subsec. 2(1), November 22, 2005, Canada Gazette, Part II, December 14, 2005, deemed to have come into force on November 7, 2001.

(3) Timber limits and cutting rights — For the purposes of this Part and Schedules IV and VI, each property of a taxpayer that is

(a) a timber limit other than a timber resource property, or

(b) a right to cut timber from a limit other than a right that is a timber resource property, is hereby prescribed to be a separate class of property.

Related Provisions: Reg. 1100(1)(e) — Capital cost allowance.

Interpretation Bulletins: IT-469R: CCA — Earth-moving equipment; IT-481: Timber resource property and timber limits.

(4) Industrial mineral mines — For the purposes of this Part and Schedule V, where a taxpayer has

(a) more than one industrial mineral mine in respect of which he may claim an allowance under paragraph 1100(1)(g),

(b) more than one right to remove industrial minerals from an industrial mineral mine in respect of which he may claim an allowance under that paragraph, or

(c) both such a mine and a right, each such industrial mineral mine and each such right to remove industrial minerals from an industrial mineral mine is hereby prescribed to be a separate class of property.

Related Provisions: Reg. 1104(3) — Meaning of "industrial mineral mine".

(4a) New or expanded mines properties — Where more than one property of a taxpayer is described in Class 28 in Schedule II and

(a) one of the properties was acquired for the purpose of gaining or producing income from only one mine, and

(b) one of the properties was acquired for the purpose of gaining or producing income from another mine,

a separate class is hereby prescribed for the properties that

(c) were acquired for the purpose of gaining or producing income from each mine;

(d) would otherwise be included in the class; and

(e) are not included in a separate class by virtue of subsection (4b).

Related Provisions: Reg. 1100(1)(w), 1104(5), 1104(7); Reg. 1104(5), (6.1) — Income from a mine; Reg. 1104(7) — Interpretation.

(4b) New or expanded mines properties — Where more than one property of a taxpayer is described in Class 28 in Schedule II and

(a) one of the properties was acquired for the purpose of gaining or producing income from particular mines, and

(b) one of the properties was acquired for the purpose of gaining or producing income from only one mine or more than one mine other than any of the particular mines,

a separate class is hereby prescribed for the properties that

(c) were acquired for the purpose of gaining or producing income from the particular mines; and

(d) would otherwise be included in the class.

Related Provisions: Reg. 1100(1)(x), 1104(5), 1104(7); Reg. 1104(5), (6.1) — Income from a mine; Reg. 1104(7) — Interpretation.

(4c) New or expanded mines properties — Where one or more properties of a taxpayer are described in paragraph (a), (a.1), or (a.2) of Class 41 of Schedule II and

(a) where all of the properties were acquired for the purposes of gaining or producing income from only one mine, or

(b) where

(i) one or more of the properties were acquired for the purpose of gaining or producing income from a particular mine, and

(ii) one or more of the properties were acquired for the purpose of gaining or producing income from another mine,

a separate class is hereby prescribed for the properties that

(c) were acquired for the purpose of gaining or producing income from each mine,

(d) would otherwise be included in the class, and

(e) are not included in a separate class by reason of subsection (4d).

Related Provisions: Reg. 1100(1)(y), 1104(5), 1104(7); Reg. 1104(5), (6.1) — Income from a mine; Reg. 1104(7) — Interpretation.

Interpretation Bulletins: IT-476R: CCA — Equipment used in petroleum and natural gas activities.

(4d) New or expanded mines properties — Where more than one property of a taxpayer is described in paragraph (a), (a.1), or (a.2) of Class 41 of Schedule II and

(a) one of the properties was acquired for the purpose of gaining or producing income from particular mines, and

(b) one of the properties was acquired for the purpose of gaining or producing income from only one mine or more than one mine other than any of the particular mines,

a separate class is hereby prescribed for the properties that

(c) were acquired for the purpose of gaining or producing income from the particular mines, and

(d) would otherwise be included in the class.

Related Provisions: Reg. 1100(1)(ya), 1104(5), 1104(7); Reg. 1104(5), (6.1) — Income from a mine; Reg. 1104(7) — Interpretation.

Interpretation Bulletins: IT-476R: CCA — Equipment used in petroleum and natural gas activities.

(5) Lease option agreements — Where, by virtue of an agreement, contract or arrangement entered into on or after May 31, 1954, a taxpayer is deemed by section 18 of the Income Tax Act, as enacted by the Statutes of Canada, 1958, Chapter 32, subsection 8(1), to have acquired a property, a separate class is hereby prescribed for each such property and if the taxpayer subsequently actually acquires the property it shall be included in the same class.

(5a) Telecommunication spacecraft — For the purposes of this Part, each property of a taxpayer that is an unmanned telecommunication spacecraft described in paragraph (f.2) of Class 10 or in Class 30 in Schedule II is hereby prescribed to be a separate class of property.

History: Subsec. 1101(5a) substituted by P.C. 1989-2464, subsec. 2(3), December 14, 1989, Canada Gazette, Part II, January 3, 1990, applicable in respect of property acquired after 1987.

(5b) Multiple-unit residential buildings — For the purposes of this Part, when any property of a taxpayer is a property of Class 31 or 32 in Schedule II and the capital cost of that property to the taxpayer was not less than $50,000, a separate class is hereby prescribed for each such property of the taxpayer that would otherwise be included in the same class.

Interpretation Bulletins: IT-274R: Rental properties — Capital cost of $50,000 or more; IT-367R3: Capital cost allowance — multiple-unit residential buildings (archived).

Forms: TX87: Application for a copy of a MURB certificate.

Proposed Addition — 1101(5b.1)

(5b.1) Eligible non-residential building — For the purposes of this Part, a separate class is prescribed for each eligible non-residential building of a taxpayer in respect of which the taxpayer has (by letter attached to the return of income of the taxpayer filed with the Minister in accordance with section 150 of the Act for the taxation year in which the building is acquired) elected that this subsection apply.

Application: The February 26, 2008 draft regulations (2007 Budget amendments — capital cost allowance), subsec. 2(1), will add subsec. 1101(5b.1), applicable to property acquired after March 18, 2007.

If a taxpayer files in writing an election referred to in subsec. 1101(5b.1), the election is deemed to have been filed in the manner and by the time required if the election is received by the Minister of National Revenue no later than 90 days after the day on which the amending regulations are published in the Canada Gazette, Part II.

Technical Notes: New subsection 1101(5b.1) provides that taxpayers may elect to include a building in a separate prescribed class if the building satisfies the definition "eligible non-residential building", as defined in subsection 1104(2). A taxpayer who acquires such a building may be eligible to claim an additional capital cost allowance under new paragraphs 1100(1)(a.1) or (a.2) in respect of the building if a separate class election has been filed with the Minister of National Revenue in [the return for — ed.] the taxation year in which the building is acquired.

This amendment applies to property acquired after March 18, 2007.

Federal Budget, Supplementary Information, March 19, 2007: See under Reg. Sch. II:Cl. 50.

Related Provisions: Reg. 1100(1)(a.1), (a.2) — Additional allowances for property in separate class; Reg. 1102(23), (24) — Additions and alterations to buildings; Reg. 1102(25) — Building under construction on March 19, 2007; Reg. 1104(2)"eligible non-residential building" — Definition.

(5c) Leasing properties — For the purposes of this Part, except in the case of a corporation or partnership described in subsection 1100(16), where more than one property of a taxpayer is described in the same class in Schedule II and where

(a) one of the properties is a leasing property, and

(b) one of the properties is a property other than a leasing property,

a separate class is hereby prescribed for properties that

(c) are described in paragraph (a); and

(d) would otherwise be included in the class.

Related Provisions: Reg. 1100(17), (18) — Meaning of "leasing property".

Interpretation Bulletins: IT-443: Leasing property — CCA restrictions.

(5d) Railway cars — Where more than one property of a taxpayer is a railway car included in Class 35 in Schedule II that was rented, leased or used by the taxpayer in Canada in the taxation year, other than a railway car owned by a corporation, or a partnership any member of which is a corporation, that

(a) was at any time in that taxation year a common carrier that owned or operated a railway, or

(b) rented or leased the railway cars at any time in that taxation year, by one or more transactions between persons not dealing at arm's length, to an associated corporation that was, at that time, a common carrier that owned or operated a railway,

a separate class is prescribed

(c) for all such properties acquired by the taxpayer before February 3, 1990 (other than such properties acquired for rent or lease to another person),

(d) for all such properties acquired by the taxpayer after February 2, 1990 (other than such properties acquired for rent or lease to another person),

(e) for all such properties acquired by the taxpayer before April 27, 1989 for rent or lease to another person, and

(f) for all such properties acquired by the taxpayer after April 26, 1989 for rent or lease to another person.

Related Provisions: Reg. 1100(1)(z), (z.1a); Reg. 1103(2i) — Election to include Class 7(h) property in Class 35.

History: Subsec. 1101(5d) substituted by P.C. 1991-465, subsec. 2(1), March 14, 1991, Canada Gazette, Part II, March 27, 1991, applicable after April 26, 1989 except that in respect of property of a taxpayer

(a) acquired by the taxpayer after April 26, 1989 and before February 3, 1990,

(b) acquired by the taxpayer after February 2, 1990 pursuant to an agreement in writing entered into by the taxpayer before February 3, 1990, or

(c) under construction by or on behalf of the taxpayer before February 3, 1990, the subsec. shall be read without reference to para. (d) thereof and to the words "before February 3, 1990" in para. (c) thereof.

(5d.1) [Railway property] — A separate class is hereby prescribed for all property included in Class 35 in Schedule II acquired at a time after December 6, 1991 and before February 28, 2000 by a taxpayer that was at that time a common carrier that owned and operated a railway.

Related Provisions: Reg. 1100(1)(z.1b) — Additional allowance.

(5r) Computer software tax shelter property — For the purpose of this Part, where

Proposed Amendment — Reg. 1101(5r) title

Application: The February 26, 2008 draft regulations (2007 Budget amendments — capital cost allowance), subsec. 2(2), will amend the title of subsec. 1101(5r) to substitute "tax" for "software tax", applicable to property acquired after March 18, 2007.

Technical Notes: Subsection 1101(5r) provides that a separate class is prescribed for computer software tax shelter property. Subsection 1101(5r) is amended to replace references to "software" in the heading before the subsection and in its paragraphs (b) and (c) with "computer tax shelter property". These changes are consequential to the extension of the computer software tax shelter property rules to "general-purpose electronic data processing equipment", including ancillary equipment, which is defined in subsection 1104(2).

These amendments apply to property acquired after March 18, 2007.

Related Provisions: Reg. 1100(20.1) — Limitation on CCA claim; Reg. 1100(20.2) — Definition of "computer tax shelter property".

(a) more than one property of a taxpayer is described in the same class in Schedule II,

(b) one of the properties is computer software tax shelter property, and

(c) one of the properties is a property other than computer software tax shelter property,

Proposed Amendment — Reg. 1101(5r)(b), (c)

(b) one of the properties is a computer tax shelter property, and

(c) one of the properties is not a computer tax shelter property,

Application: The February 26, 2008 draft regulations (2007 Budget amendments — capital cost allowance), subsec. 2(4), will amend paras. 1101(5r)(b) and (c) to read as above, applicable to property acquired after March 18, 2007.

Technical Notes: See under proposed amendment to title above.

for properties that are described in paragraph (b) and that would otherwise be included in the class, a separate class is prescribed.

Related Provisions: Reg. 1100(20.1) — Limitation on CCA claim for computer software tax shelter property; Reg. 1100(20.2) — Definition of "computer software tax shelter property".

History: Subsec. 1101(5r) added by P.C. 2000-1000, s. 3, June 21, 2000, Canada Gazette, Part II, July 5, 2000, applicable generally to fiscal periods and taxation years of a taxpayer or partnership that end after August 5, 1997, but see the full application reproduced in the History to new subsecs. 1100(20.1) and (20.2).

(5s) Manufacturing or processing property [optional] — Subject to subsection (5q), a separate class is prescribed for one or more properties of a taxpayer

(a) that were acquired in a taxation year and included in the year in Class 43 in Schedule II because of paragraph (a) of that Class; and

(b) that had a capital cost to the taxpayer of at least $1,000.

Related Provisions: Reg. 1101(5q) — Election required for Reg. 1101(5s) to apply; Reg. 1103(2g) — Property transferred back to pool if still owned after 5 years.

History: Subsec. 1101(5s) added by P.C. 2005-2186, subsec. 2(4), November 22, 2005, Canada Gazette, Part II, December 14, 2005, applicable to property acquired after February 27, 2000, except that it [also] applies in respect of property

(a) acquired by a taxpayer after February 27, 2000 and in a taxation year ending on or before December 14, 2005; and

(b) in respect of which the taxpayer has elected, in a letter filed with the Minister of National Revenue, before the end of June 2006.

Proposed Addition — Reg. 1101(5s.1)–(5s.5)

(5s.1) [M&P property acquired in 2010] — Subject to subsection (5s.2), for the purposes of this Part and Schedule II, a separate Class 43 is prescribed for all of the property of a taxpayer

(a) that is acquired by the taxpayer in 2010 and in a particular taxation year of the taxpayer;

(b) that is included in Class 43 for the particular taxation year because of paragraph (a) of that class; and

(c) to which neither subsection (5p) nor (5s) applies.

Related Provisions: Reg. 1100(1)(zi) — Additional allowance of 20% or 10%; Reg. 1101(5s.2) — Election for separate class for specific properties; Reg. 1101(5s.5) — Election to have properties pooled; Reg. 1103(2g.1)(a) — Properties transferred back after 2 years.

(5s.2) [Separate class for each M&P property under (5s.1)] — For the purposes of this Part and Schedule II, if a taxpayer elects (by letter attached to the return of income of the taxpayer filed with the Minister in accordance with section 150 of the Act for the particular taxation year) to apply this subsection to one or more properties of the taxpayer to which subsection (5s.1) would otherwise apply, a separate Class 43 is prescribed for the property or properties included in that election.

Related Provisions: Reg. 1100(1)(zi) — Additional allowance of 20% or 10%; Reg. 1101(5s.5) — Election to have properties pooled; Reg. 1103(2g.2) — Properties transferred back after 5 years.

(5s.3) [M&P property acquired in 2011] — Subject to subsection (5s.4), for the purposes of this Part and Schedule II, a separate Class 43 is prescribed for all of the property of a taxpayer

(a) that is acquired by the taxpayer in 2011 and in a particular taxation year of the taxpayer;

(b) that is included in Class 43 for the particular taxation year because of paragraph (a) of that class; and

(c) to which neither subsection (5p) nor (5s) applies.

Related Provisions: Reg. 1100(1)(zi) — Additional allowance of 10%; Reg. 1101(5s.4) — Election for separate class for specific properties; Reg. 1101(5s.5) — Election to have properties pooled; Reg. 1103(2g.1)(b) — Properties transferred back after year-end.

(5s.4) [Separate class for each M&P property under (5s.3)] — For the purposes of this Part and Schedule II, if a taxpayer elects (by letter attached to the return of income of the taxpayer filed with the Minister in accordance with section 150 of the Act for the particular taxation year) to apply this subsection to one or more properties of the taxpayer to which subsection (5s.3) would otherwise apply, a separate Class 43 is prescribed for the property or properties included in that election.

Related Provisions: Reg. 1100(1)(zi) — Additional allowance of 10%; Reg. 1101(5s.5) — Election to have properties pooled; Reg. 1103(2g.2) — Properties transferred back after 5 years.

(5s.5) [Pooling of M&P properties acquired in 2010 or 2011] — For the purposes of this Part and Schedule II, if a taxpayer elects (by letter attached to the return of income of the taxpayer filed with the Minister in accordance with section 150 of the Act for the particular taxation year) to apply this subsection to one or more properties of the taxpayer to which subsection (5s.1) or (5s.3) would otherwise apply, those subsections and subsections (5s.2) and (5s.4) do not apply to those properties.

Application: The February 26, 2008 draft regulations (2008 Budget amendments — capital cost allowance), s. 2, will add subsecs. 1101(5s.1) to (5s.5), deemed to have come into force on February 26, 2008.

Technical Notes: New subsection 1101(5s.1) provides that a separate Class 43 is prescribed for all of the manufacturing or processing equipment acquired by a taxpayer in 2010; that would be included in the taxpayer's Class 43 because of paragraph (a) of that class and to which neither subsection 1101(5p) nor (5s) applies. However, if the taxpayer elects to apply new subsection 1101(5s.2), a separate Class 43 is prescribed for the property or properties included in that election. A taxpayer is to file this election by letter attached to the taxpayer's return of income for the taxation year in which the property is acquired.

New subsection 1101(5s.3) provides that a separate Class 43 is prescribed for all of the manufacturing or processing equipment acquired by a taxpayer in 2011, that is included in the taxpayer's Class 43 because of paragraph (a) of that class and to which neither subsection 1101(5p) nor (5s) applies. However, if the taxpayer elects to apply new subsection 1101(5s.4), a separate Class 43 is prescribed for the property or properties included in that election. A taxpayer is to file this election by letter attached to the taxpayer's return of income for the taxation year in which the property is acquired.

If subsections 1101(5s.1) to (5s.4) apply to manufacturing or processing equipment of a taxpayer, the taxpayer is eligible to claim additional CCA amounts in respect of the equipment as allowed under new paragraph 1100(1)(zi).

New subsection 1101(5s.5) provides that a taxpayer may elect not to have a separate prescribed class that would otherwise arise under subsection 1101(5s.1) or (5s.3). If this election is made, subsections 1101(5s.1) to (5s.4) do not apply to the taxpayer's property.

These amendments apply to property acquired after February 25, 2008.

Federal Budget, Supplementary Information, Feb. 26, 2008: See under Reg. Sch. II:Cl. 29.

(5t) [Repealed]

(1a) Partnership property — Where the taxpayer is a member of a partnership, the classes of property described in this Part and in Schedule II shall be deemed not to include any property that is an interest of the taxpayer in depreciable property that is partnership property of the partnership.

(2) Land — The classes of property described in Schedule II shall be deemed not to include the land upon which a property described therein was constructed or is situated.

(3) Non-residents — Where the taxpayer is a non-resident person, the classes of property described in this Part and in Schedule II shall, except for the purpose of determining the foreign accrual property income of the taxpayer for the purposes of subdivision i of Division B of Part I of the Act, be deemed not to include property that is situated outside Canada.

(4) Improvements or alterations to leased properties — Subject to subsection (5), "capital cost" for the purposes of paragraph 1100(1)(b) includes any amount expended by a taxpayer for or in respect of an improvement or alteration to a leased property.

Selected Cases [Reg. 1102(4)]: Hickman Motors Ltd. v. R., [1998] 1 C.T.C. 213 (SCC) (Property retains depreciable character in hands of transferee on winding-up, if not used for other purposes).

(5) Buildings on leased properties — Where the taxpayer has a leasehold interest in a property, a reference in Schedule II to a property that is a building or other structure shall include a reference to that leasehold interest to the extent that that interest

(a) was acquired by reason of the fact that the taxpayer

(i) erected a building or structure on leased land,

(ii) made an addition to a leased building or structure, or

(iii) made alterations to a leased building or structure that substantially changed the nature of the property; or

(b) was acquired after 1975 or, in the case of any property of Class 31 or 32, after November 18, 1974, from a former lessee who had acquired it by reason of the fact that he or a lessee before him

(i) erected a building or structure on leased land,

(ii) made an addition to a leased building or structure, or

(iii) made alterations to a leased building or structure that substantially changed the nature of the property.

(5.1) [Buildings on leased properties] — Where a taxpayer has acquired a property that would, if the property had been acquired by a person with whom the taxpayer was not dealing at arm's length at the time the property was acquired by the taxpayer, be described in paragraph (5)(a) or (b) in respect of that person, a reference in Schedule II to a property that is a building or other structure shall, in respect of the taxpayer, include a reference to that property.

History: Subsec. 1102(5.1) added by P.C. 1994-139, subsec. 4(2), January 27, 1994, Canada Gazette, Part II, February 9, 1994, applicable to property acquired after December 23, 1991, other than property acquired by a taxpayer before 1993

(a) pursuant to an agreement in writing entered into by the taxpayer before December 24, 1991, or

(b) that was under construction by or on behalf of the taxpayer on December 23, 1991.

(6) Leasehold interests acquired before 1949 — For the purposes of paragraphs 2(a) and (b) of Schedule III, where an item of capital cost has been incurred before the commencement of the taxpayer's 1949 taxation year, there shall be added to the capital cost of each item the amount that has been allowed in respect thereof as depreciation under the Income War Tax Act and has been deducted from the original cost to arrive at the capital cost of the item.

(7) River improvements — For the purposes of paragraph 1100(1)(f), capital cost includes an amount expended on river improvements by the taxpayer for the purpose of facilitating the removal of timber from a timber limit.

(8) Electrical plant used for mining — Where the generating or distributing equipment and plant (including structures) of a producer or distributor of electrical energy were acquired for the purpose of providing power to a consumer for use by the consumer in the operation in Canada of a mine, ore mill, smelter, metal refinery or any combination thereof and at least 80 per cent of the producer's or distributor's output of electrical energy

(a) for his 1948 and 1949 taxation years, or

(b) for his first two taxation years in which he sold power, whichever period is later, was sold to the consumer for that purpose, the property shall be included in

(c) Class 10 in Schedule II if it is property acquired

(i) before 1988, or

(ii) before 1990

(A) pursuant to an obligation in writing entered into by the taxpayer before June 18, 1987,

(B) that was under construction by or on behalf of the taxpayer on June 18, 1987, or

(C) that is machinery or equipment that is a fixed and integral part of the building, structure, plant facility or other property that was under construction by or on behalf of the taxpayer on June 18, 1987, or

(d) Class 41 in Schedule II in any other case, except where the property would otherwise be included in Class 43.1 or Class 43.2 in Schedule II and the taxpayer has, by a letter filed with the return of income of the taxpayer filed with the Minister in accordance with section 150 of the Act for the taxation year in which the property was acquired, elected to include the property in Class 43.1 or Class 43.2, as the case may be.

Related Provisions: Reg. 1102(9.1) — Acquisition before November 8, 1969; Reg. 1102(9.2) — Acquisition not at arm's length; Reg. 1103(4) — When election under para. (d) effective; Reg. 1104(7) — Interpretation.

That portion of subsec. 1102(8) following para. (b) and para. (d) amended by P.C. 1997-1033, subsecs. 2(1) and (2), July 25, 1997, Canada Gazette, Part II, August 20, 1997, applicable to property acquired after February 21, 1994 except that, where a taxpayer acquires the property after February 21, 1994 and before August 21, 1997, the taxpayer may file the election referred to in para. (d) by notifying the Minister of National Revenue in writing as required in those paragraphs or before February 1998.

That portion of subsec. 1102(8) following para. (b) substituted by P.C. 1989-2464, subsec. 3(1), December 14, 1989, Canada Gazette, Part II, January 3, 1990, applicable in respect of property acquired after 1987.

(9) [Generating or distributing equipment] — Where a taxpayer has acquired generating or distributing equipment and plant (including structures) for the purpose of providing power for his own consumption in operating a mine, ore mill, smelter, metal refinery or any combination thereof and at least 80 per cent of the output of electrical energy was so used

(a) in his 1948 and 1949 taxation years, or

(b) in the first two taxation years in which he so produced power, whichever period is the later, the property shall be included in

(c) Class 10 in Schedule II if it is property acquired

(i) before 1988, or

(ii) before 1990

(A) pursuant to an obligation in writing entered into by the taxpayer before June 18, 1987,

(B) that was under construction by or on behalf of the taxpayer on June 18, 1987, or

(C) that is machinery or equipment that is a fixed and integral part of a building, structure, plant facility or other property that was under construction by or on behalf of the taxpayer on June 18, 1987, or

(d) Class 41 in Schedule II in any other case, except where the property would otherwise be included in Class 43.1 or Class 43.2 in Schedule II and the taxpayer has, by a letter filed with the return of income of the taxpayer filed with the Minister in accordance with section 150 of the Act for the taxation year in which the property was acquired, elected to include the property in Class 43.1 or 43.2, as the case may be.

History: Para. 1102(9)(d) amended by P.C. 2006-439, subsec. 3(2), June 1, 2006, Canada Gazette, Part II, June 14, 2006, deemed in force on February 23, 2005, except that if a taxpayer acquires the property after that day and before June 14, 2006, the taxpayer may file the election referred to in the para. to have the property included in Cl. 43.2 in Schedule II by notifying the Minister of National Revenue in writing as required in the para. or before the end of December 2006.

Para. 1102(9)(d) amended by P.C. 1997-1033, subsec. 2(3), July 25, 1997, Canada Gazette, Part II, August 20, 1997, applicable to property acquired after February 21, 1994 except that, where a taxpayer acquires the property after February 21, 1994 and before August 21, 1997, the taxpayer may file the election referred to in para. (d) by notifying the Minister of National Revenue in writing as required in those paragraphs or before February 1998.

That portion of subsec. 1102(9) following para. (b) substituted by P.C. 1989, subsec. 3(2), December 14, 1989, Canada Gazette, Part II, January 3, 1990, applicable in respect of property acquired after 1987.

(9.1) [pre-1970 acquisition] — In their application to generating or distributing equipment and plant (including structures) that were acquired by the taxpayer before November 8, 1969, subsections (8) and (9) shall be read without reference to a "metal refinery".

(9.2) [Property under Reg. 1102(8) or (9)] — Where a taxpayer acquires property after November 7, 1969 from a person with whom he was not dealing at arm's length that is property referred to in subsection (8) or (9), notwithstanding those subsections, that property shall not be included in Class 10 in Schedule II by the taxpayer unless the property had been included in that class by the person from whom it was acquired, by virtue of subsection (8) or (9) as it read in its application before November 8, 1969.

(10) Railway companies — For the purposes of section 36 of the Act, where a taxpayer is deemed to have acquired depreciable property of a prescribed class at the time a repair, replacement, alteration or renovation expenditure described therein was incurred,

(a) if the expenditure was incurred by the taxpayer before May 26, 1976, the class hereby prescribed is Class 4 in Schedule II; and

(b) if the expenditure was incurred by the taxpayer after May 25, 1976, the class hereby prescribed is the class in Schedule II in which the depreciable property that was repaired, replaced, altered or renovated would be included if such property had been acquired at the time the expenditure was incurred.

(11) Passenger automobiles — In paragraph (1)(h),

"cost to the taxpayer" of an automobile means, except as provided in subsections (12) and (13),

(a) except in any case coming under paragraph (b) or (c), the capital cost to the taxpayer of the automobile,

(b) except in any case coming under paragraph (c), where the automobile was acquired by a person (in this section referred to as the "original owner") after June 13, 1963, and has, by one or more transactions between persons not dealing at arm's length, become vested in the taxpayer, the greater of

(i) the actual cost to the taxpayer, and

(ii) the actual cost to the original owner, and

(c) where the automobile was acquired by the taxpayer outside Canada for use in connection with a permanent establishment, as defined for the purposes of Part IV or Part XXVI, outside Canada, the lesser of

(i) the actual cost to the taxpayer, and

(ii) the amount that such an automobile would ordinarily cost the taxpayer if he purchased it from a dealer in automobiles in Canada for use in Canada;

"initial transportation charges" in respect of an automobile means the costs incurred by a dealer in automobiles for transporting the automobile (before it had been used for any purpose whatever) from,

(a) in the case of an automobile manufactured in Canada, the manufacturer's plant, and

(b) in any other case, to the place in Canada, if any, at which the automobile was received or stored by a wholesale distributor, to the dealer's place of business;

"passenger automobile" means a vehicle, other than an ambulance or hearse, that was designed to carry not more than nine persons, and that is

(a) an automobile designed primarily for carrying persons on highways and streets except an automobile that

(i) is designed to accommodate and is equipped with auxiliary folding seats installed between the front and the rear seats,

(ii) was acquired by a person carrying on the business of operating a taxi or automobile rental service, or arranging and managing funerals, for use in such business, and

(iii) is not a vehicle described in paragraph (b), or

(b) a station wagon or substantially similar vehicle;

"retail sales tax" in respect of an automobile means the aggregate of municipal and provincial retail sales taxes payable in respect of the purchase of the automobile by the taxpayer.

(12) [Pre-1966 automobile] — For the purposes of paragraph (1)(h), where an automobile is owned by two or more persons or by partners, a reference to "cost to the taxpayer" shall be deemed to be a reference to the aggregate of the cost, as defined in subsection (11), to each such person or partner.

(13) [Pre-1966 automobile] — In determining cost to a taxpayer for the purposes of paragraph (1)(h), subsection 13(7) of the Act shall not apply unless the automobile was acquired by gift.

(14) Property acquired by transfer, amalgamation or winding-up — For the purposes of this Part and Schedule II, where a property is acquired by a taxpayer

(a) in the course of a reorganization in respect of which, if a dividend were received by a corporation in the course of the reorganization, subsection 55(2) of the Act would not be applicable to the dividend by reason of the application of paragraph 55(3)(b) of the Act, or

(b), (c) [Revoked]

(d) from a person with whom the taxpayer was not dealing at arm's length (otherwise than by virtue of a right referred to in paragraph 251(5)(b) of the Act) at the time the property was acquired, and the property, immediately before it was so acquired by the taxpayer, was property of a prescribed class or a separate prescribed class of the person from whom it was so acquired, the property shall be deemed to be property of that same prescribed class or separate prescribed class, as the case may be, of the taxpayer.

(e) [Revoked]

Related Provisions: Reg. 1100(2.21)(a); Reg. 1102(20) — Non-arm's length exception.

History: Para. 1102(14)(a) substituted for paras. (a) to (c) by P.C. 1989-2464, subsec. 3(3), December 14, 1989, Canada Gazette, Part II, January 3, 1990, applicable in respect of property acquired by a taxpayer after June 17, 1987 other than property acquired after that date and before 1990 pursuant to an agreement in writing entered into by the taxpayer before June 18, 1987.

Para. 1102(14)(d) substituted by subsec. 3(4) of the said P.C. 1989-2464, applicable in respect of property acquired by a taxpayer after December 15, 1987 other than property acquired after that date and before 1990 pursuant to an obligation in writing entered into by the taxpayer before December 16, 1987.

Para. 1102(14)(e) revoked by subsec. 3(5) of the said P.C. 1989-2464, applicable in respect of property acquired by a taxpayer after August 31, 1987 other than property acquired after that date and before 1990 pursuant to an obligation in writing entered into by the taxpayer before September 1, 1987.

Para. 1102(14)(a) substituted by P.C. 1988-1473, s. 3, July 21, 1988, Canada Gazette, Part II, August 3, 1988, applicable to taxation years commencing after 1984.

Para. 1102(14)(a.1) added by P.C. 1984-3789, s. 7, November 29, 1984, Canada Gazette, Part II, December 12, 1984, applicable with respect to property acquired after November 12, 1981.

(14.1) [Change in class] — For the purposes of this Part and Schedule II, where a taxpayer has acquired, after May 25, 1976, property of a class in Schedule II (in this subsection referred to as the "present class") that had been previously owned before May 26, 1976 by the taxpayer or by a person with whom the taxpayer was not dealing at arm's length (otherwise than by virtue of a right referred to in paragraph 251(5)(b) of the Act) at the time the property was acquired, and at the time the property was previously so owned it was a property of a different class in Schedule II (in this subsection referred to as the "former class"), the property shall be deemed to be property of the former class and not property of the present class.

Related Provisions: Reg. 1100(2.21)(a).

History: Subsec. 1102(14.1) substituted by P.C. 1989-2464, subsec. 3(6), December 14, 1989, Canada Gazette, Part II, January 3, 1990, applicable in respect of property acquired by a taxpayer after December 15, 1987 other than property acquired after that date and before 1990 pursuant to an obligation in writing entered into by the taxpayer before December 16, 1987.

Interpretation Bulletins: IT-147R3: CCA — Accelerated write-off of manufacturing and processing machinery and equipment; IT-267R2: CCA — vessels.

(14.2) Townsite costs — For the purpose of paragraph 13(7.5)(a) of the Act, a property is prescribed in respect of a taxpayer where the property would, if it had been acquired by the taxpayer, be property included in Class 10 in Schedule II because of paragraph (l) of that Class.

History: Subsec. 1102(14.2) added by P.C. 1999-629, subsec. 2(2), April 15, 1999, Canada Gazette, Part II, April 28, 1999, applicable after March 6, 1996.

Interpretation Bulletins: IT-476R: CCA — Equipment used in petroleum and natural gas activities.

(14.3) Surface construction and bridges — For the purpose of paragraph 13(7.5)(b) of the Act, prescribed property is any of

(a) a road (other than a specified temporary access road), sidewalk, airplane runway, parking area, storage area or similar surface construction;

(b) a bridge; and

(c) a property that is ancillary to any property described in paragraph (a) or (b).

Related Provisions: Reg. 1104(2) — Definition of "specified temporary access road".

History: Subsec. 1102(14.3) added by P.C. 1999-629, subsec. 2(2), April 15, 1999, Canada Gazette, Part II, April 28, 1999, applicable after March 6, 1996.

(15) Manufacturing and processing enterprises — For the purposes of subsection 13(10) of the Act,

(a) property is hereby prescribed that is

(i) a building included in Class 3 or 6 in Schedule II, or

(ii) machinery or equipment included in Class 8 in Schedule II, except

(iii) property that may reasonably be regarded as having been acquired for the purpose of producing coal from a coal mine or oil, gas, metals or industrial minerals from a resource referred to in section 1201 as it read immediately before it was repealed by section 2 of Order in Council P.C. 1975-1323 of June 12, 1975, or

(iv) property acquired for use outside Canada; and

(b) a business carried on by the taxpayer is hereby prescribed as a manufacturing or processing business if,

(i) for the fiscal period in which the property was acquired, or

(ii) for the fiscal period in which a reasonable volume of business was first carried on, whichever was later, the revenue received by the taxpayer, in the course of carrying on the business from

(iii) the sale of goods processed or manufactured by the taxpayer in Canada,

(iv) the leasing or renting of goods that were processed or manufactured by the taxpayer in Canada,

(v) advertisements in a newspaper or magazine that was produced by the taxpayer in Canada, and

(vi) construction carried on by the taxpayer in Canada, was not less than ⅔ of the revenue of the business for the period.

Related Provisions: Reg. 1102(16) — Meaning of "revenue".

(16) ["Revenue"] — For the purposes of paragraph (15)(b), "revenue" means gross revenue minus the aggregate of

(a) amounts that were paid or credited in the period, to customers of the business, in relation to such revenue as a bonus, rebate or discount or for returned or damaged goods; and

(b) amounts included therein by virtue of section 13 or subsection 23(1) of the Act.

Proposed Addition — Reg. 1102(16.1) [temporary]

(16.1) Election for certain manufacturing or processing equipments [Election to include Class 43.1 or 43.2 property in Class 29] — A taxpayer that acquires a property after March 18, 2007 and before 2009 that is manufacturing or processing machinery or equipment may (by letter attached to the return of income for the taxation year in which the property is acquired) elect to include the property in Class 29 in Schedule II if

(a) Class 43.1 or 43.2 in Schedule II would otherwise apply to the property; and

(b) Class 29 would apply to the property if Schedule II were read without reference to Classes 43.1 and 43.2.

Application: The February 26, 2008 draft regulations (2007 Budget amendments — capital cost allowance), subsec. 3(1), will add subsec. 1102(16.1), deemed to have come into force on March 19, 2007.

If a taxpayer files in writing an election referred to in subsec. 1102(16.1), the election is deemed to have been filed in the manner and by the time required if the election is received by the Minister of National Revenue no later than 90 days after the day on which the amending regulations are published in the Canada Gazette, Part II.

Technical Notes: New subsection 1102(16.1) provides that a taxpayer, who acquires manufacturing or processing machinery or equipment that otherwise would be included in Class 43.1 or 43.2 in Schedule II to the Regulations, may elect to include the property in Class 29 if the property is acquired after March 18, 2007 and before 2009 and Class 29 applies to the property. The election is to be made by letter attached to the taxpayer's return of income for the taxation year in which the property is acquired.

Proposed Amendment — Reg. 1102(16.1)

(16.1) [Election to include Class 43.1 or 43.2 property in Class 29 or 43] — A taxpayer that acquires a property that is manufacturing or processing machinery or equipment to which Class 43.1 or 43.2 in Schedule II would otherwise apply may (by letter attached to the return of income of the taxpayer filed with the Minister in accordance with section 150 of the Act for the taxation year in which the property is acquired) elect to include the property in

(a) Class 29 in Schedule II if the property was acquired after March 18, 2007 and before 2010 and that class would apply to the property if Schedule II were read without reference to Classes 43.1 and 43.2; or

(b) Class 43 in Schedule II if the property was acquired after 2009 and before 2012 and that class would apply to the property if Schedule II were read without reference to Classes 43.1 and 43.2.

Application: The February 26, 2008 draft regulations (2008 Budget amendments — capital cost allowance), subsec. 3(1), will add subsec. 1102(16.1), deemed to have come into force on February 26, 2008.

If a taxpayer files in writing an election referred to in subsec. 1102(16.1), the election is deemed to have been filed in the manner and by the time required if the election is received by the Minister of National Revenue no later than 90 days after the day on which the amending regulations are published in the Canada Gazette, Part II.

Technical Notes: Subsection 1102(16.1) provides that a taxpayer, who acquires manufacturing or processing machinery and equipment that otherwise would be included in Class 43.1 or 43.2 in Schedule II to the Regulations, may elect to include the property in Class 29 if the property is acquired after March 18, 2007 and before 2009 and Class 29 applies to the property. The election is to be made by letter attached to the taxpayer's return of income for the taxation year in which the property is acquired.

Subsection 1102(16.1) is amended in two respects. The first amendment extends the subsection's application to manufacturing or processing equipment acquired before 2010, instead of before 2009. The second amendment provides an analogous election in respect of manufacturing or processing machinery and equipment that is acquired in 2010 and 2011 to allow a taxpayer to claim Class 43 treatment.

(17) Recreational property — Property referred to in paragraph (1)(f) does not include

(a) any property that the taxpayer was obligated to acquire under the terms of an agreement in writing entered into before November 13, 1974; or

(b) any property the construction of which was

(i) commenced by the taxpayer before November 13, 1974 or commenced under an agreement in writing entered into by the taxpayer before November 13, 1974, and

(ii) completed substantially according to plans and specifications agreed to by the taxpayer before November 13, 1974.

Interpretation Bulletins: IT-148R3: Recreational properties and club dues.

(18) [Repealed]

History: Subsec. 1102(18) repealed by P.C. 1999-629, subsec. 2(3), April 15, 1999, Canada Gazette, Part II, April 28, 1999, applicable to payments required to be made under the terms of contracts made after March 6, 1996.

Subsec. 1102(18) added by P.C. 1978-1849, s. 1, June 8, 1978, Canada Gazette, Part II, June 28, 1978, applicable in respect of amounts paid after 1976 to Her Majesty in right of Canada, to a province or to a Canadian municipality.

(19) Additions and alterations — For the purposes of this Part and Schedule II, where

(a) a taxpayer acquired a property that is included in a class in Schedule II (in this subsection referred to as the "actual class"),

(b) the taxpayer acquires property that is an addition or alteration to the property referred to in paragraph (a),

(c) the property that is the addition or alteration referred to in paragraph (b) would have been property of the actual class if it had been acquired by the taxpayer at the time he acquired the property referred to in paragraph (a), and

(d) the property referred to in paragraph (a) would have been property of a class in Schedule II (in this subsection referred to as the "present class") that is different from the actual class if it had been acquired by the taxpayer at the time he acquired the addition or alteration referred to in paragraph (b), the addition or alteration referred to in paragraph (b) shall, except as otherwise provided in this Part or in Schedule II, be deemed to be an acquisition by the taxpayer of property of the present class.

History: Subsec. 1102(19) added by P.C. 1978-3768, s. 1, December 14, 1978, Canada Gazette, Part II, December 27, 1978.

Interpretation Bulletins: IT-79R3: CCA — Buildings or other structures.

Proposed Addition — Reg. 1102(19.1), (19.2)

(19.1) For the purposes of this Part and Schedule II, if subsection (19.2) applies to the refurbishment or reconditioning of a railway locomotive of a taxpayer, any property acquired by the taxpayer after February 25, 2008 that is incorporated into the locomotive in the course of the refurbishment or reconditioning is, except as otherwise provided in this Part or in Schedule II, deemed to be included in paragraph (y) of Class 10.

(19.2) This subsection applies to the refurbishment or reconditioning of a railway locomotive, of a taxpayer, that

(a) is included in a class in Schedule II other than Class 10; and

(b) would be included in Class 10 in Schedule II if it had not been used or acquired for use for any purpose by any taxpayer before February 26, 2008.

Related Provisions: Reg. 1102(19.1) — Effect of subsection applying.

Application: The February 26, 2008 draft regulations (2008 Budget amendments — capital cost allowance), subsec. 3(2), will add subsecs. 1102(19.1) and (19.2), deemed to have come into force on February 26, 2008.

Technical Notes: In general, new subsections 1102(19.1) and (19.2) provide that any property acquired by a taxpayer after February 25, 2008 that is incorporated into a railway locomotive (other than a locomotive included in Class 10) of the taxpayer, is included in Class 10.

(20) Non-arm's length exception — For the purposes of subsections 1100(2.2) and (19), 1101(1ad) and 1102(14) (in this subsection referred to as the "relevant subsections"), where, but for this subsection, a taxpayer would be considered to be dealing not at arm's length with another person as a result of a transaction or series of transactions the principal purpose of which may reasonably be considered to have been to cause one or more of the relevant subsections to apply in respect of the acquisition of a property, the taxpayer shall be considered to be dealing at arm's length with the other person in respect of the acquisition of that property.

Related Provisions: ITA 248(10) — Series of transactions.

History: Subsec. 1102(20) added by P.C. 1989-2464, subsec. 3(7), December 14, 1989, Canada Gazette, Part II, January 3, 1990, applicable in respect of property acquired by a taxpayer after December 15, 1987 other than property acquired after that date and before 1990 pursuant to an obligation in writing entered into by the taxpayer before December 16, 1987.

Interpretation Bulletins: IT-267R2: CCA — vessels; IT-474R2: Amalgamations of Canadian corporations; IT-488R2: Winding-up of 90%-owned taxable Canadian corporations (archived).

(21) [Class 43.1 property] — Where a taxpayer has acquired a property described in Class 43.1 of Schedule II in circumstances in which clauses (b)(iii)(A) and (B) or (e)(iii)(A) and (B) of that class apply,

(a) the portion of the property, determined by reference to capital cost, that is equal to or less than the capital cost of the property to the person from whom the property was acquired, is included in that class; and

(b) the portion of the property, if any, determined by reference to capital cost, that is in excess of the capital cost of the property to the person from whom it was acquired, shall not be included in that class.

History: Subsec. 1102(21) added by P.C. 2000-1331, subsec. 1(2), August 23, 2000, Canada Gazette, Part II, September 13, 2000, applicable to property acquired after June 26, 1996.

(22) [Class 43.2 property] — Where a taxpayer has acquired a property that is described in Class 43.2 in Schedule II in circumstances in which clauses (b)(iii)(A) and (B) or (e)(iii)(A) and (B) of Class 43.1 in Schedule II apply and the property was included in Class 43.2 in Schedule II of the person from whom the taxpayer acquired the property,

(a) the portion of the property, determined by reference to capital cost, that is equal to or less than the capital cost of the property to the person from whom the property was acquired is included in Class 43.2 in Schedule II; and

(b) the portion of the property, if any, determined by reference to capital cost, that is in excess of the capital cost of the property to the person from whom it was acquired shall not be included in Class 43.1 or 43.2 in Schedule II.

History: Subsec. 1102(22) added by P.C. 2006-439, subsec. 3(3), June 1, 2006, Canada Gazette, Part II, June 14, 2006, effective June 14, 2006.

Proposed Addition — Reg. 1102(23)–(25)

(23) Rules for additions to and alterations of certain buildings — For the purposes of applying paragraphs 1100(1)(a.1) and (a.2) and subsection 1101(5b.1), the capital cost of an addition to or an alteration of a taxpayer's building is deemed to be the capital cost to the taxpayer of a separate building if the building to which the addition or alteration was made is not included in a separate class under subsection 1101(5b.1).

Technical Notes: New subsection 1102(23) provides a special rule that applies to additions to, or alterations of, a taxpayer's building that is not an "eligible non-residential building" (as that term is defined in subsection 1104(2)) and that is not included in a separate class under subsection 1101(5b.1).

The rule provides that the capital cost of an addition to, or alternation of, a building is deemed to be a separate building for the purpose of applying the additional allowances available under paragraph 1100(1)(a.1) or (a.2), including the separate class election found in subsection 1101(5b.1). Consequently, a taxpayer who acquires an addition to, or alteration of, a building that itself is not an eligible non-residential building (e.g., the building was acquired before March 19, 2007) may qualify for an additional allowance in respect of the capital cost of the addition or alteration to that building if other conditions relating to claiming an additional allowance under those provisions are met.

This amendment applies to additions and alterations made after March 18, 2007.

Related Provisions: Reg. 1104(2)"eligible non-residential building" — Definition.

(24) If an addition or an alteration is deemed to be a separate building under subsection (23), the references in paragraphs 1100(1)(a.1) and (a.2) to "the floor space of the building" shall be read as references to "the total floor space of the separate building and the building to which the addition or alteration was made".

Technical Notes: New subsection 1102(24) provides a special rule for determining whether an addition to, or alteration of, a building to which the deemed building rule in subsection 1102(23) applies is used in the manner required by the additional allowance provisions in paragraphs 1100(1)(a.1) and (a.2). In general terms, the use of an addition or alteration that is included as a building in a separate prescribed class (because of an election under subsection 1101(5b.1)) is deemed to be determined on the basis of the use of the total floor space of the building after taking the addition or alteration into account.

This amendment applies to additions and alterations made after March 18, 2007.

Related Provisions: Reg. 1104(2)"eligible non-residential building" — Definition.

(25) Acquisition costs of certain buildings — For the purposes of this Part and Schedule II, if an eligible non-residential building of a taxpayer was under construction on March 19, 2007, the portion, if any, of the capital cost of the building that was incurred by the taxpayer before March 19, 2007 is deemed to have been incurred by the taxpayer on March 19, 2007 unless the taxpayer elects (by letter attached to the taxpayer's return of income filed with the Minister in accordance with section 150 of the Act for the taxation year in which the building was acquired) that this subsection not apply to that cost.

Technical Notes: New subsection 1102(25) ensures that the capital cost of the "eligible non-residential building" that was under construction on March 19, 2007, and that is eligible for a separate class election under subsection 1101(5b.1), includes the capital cost of the building that was incurred before March 19, 2007. If the election under subsection 1101(5b.1) applies in respect of such capital costs of a taxpayer, the taxpayer may be eligible for an additional allowance in respect of those costs under paragraph 1100(1)(a.1) or (a.2).

In addition, the new subsection provides for an election that allows a taxpayer to not include capital costs incurred before March 19, 2007 for the construction of an eligible non-residential building in the cost of the building.

Related Provisions: Reg. 1104(2)"eligible non-residential building" — Definition.

Application: The February 26, 2008 draft regulations (2007 Budget amendments — capital cost allowance), subsec. 3(2), will add subsecs. 1102(23) to (25), applicable to additions and alterations made after March 18, 2007.

(2a) Elections to include properties in Class 8 — In respect of properties otherwise included in Class 19 or 21 in Schedule II, a taxpayer may, by letter attached to the return of his income for a taxation year filed with the Minister in accordance with section 150 of the Act, elect to include in Class 8 in Schedule II all properties of the said Class 19 or all properties of the said Class 21, as the case may be, owned by him at the commencement of the year.

Related Provisions: Reg. 1103(3)–(5) — How election made and when effective.

(2b) Elections to include properties in Class 37 — In respect of properties that would have been included in Class 37 in Schedule II had they been acquired after the date on which Class 37 became effective, a taxpayer may, by letter attached to the return of his income for a taxation year filed with the Minister in accordance with section 150 of the Act, elect to include in Class 37 all such properties acquired by the taxpayer before that date.

Related Provisions: Reg. 1103(3)–(5) — How election made and when effective.

History: Subsec. 1103(2b) added by P.C. 1982-599, s. 3, February 25, 1982, Canada Gazette, Part II, March 10, 1982.

(2c) Elections to make certain transfers — Where a taxpayer has acquired, after May 25, 1976, all or any part of a property of a class in Schedule II (in this subsection referred to as the "present class") and the property or part thereof, if it had been acquired before May 26, 1976, would have been property of a different class in Schedule II (in this subsection referred to as the "former class") and

(a) he was obligated to acquire the property under the terms of an agreement in writing entered into before May 26, 1976,

(b) he commenced the construction, manufacture or production of the property before May 26, 1976 or the construction, manufacture or production of the property was commenced under an agreement in writing entered into by him before May 26, 1976, or

(c) he acquired the property on or before December 31, 1976 or he was obligated to acquire the property under the terms of an agreement in writing entered into on or before December 31, 1976, if

(i) arrangements, evidenced by writing, respecting the acquisition, construction, manufacture or production of the property had been substantially advanced before May 26, 1976, and

(ii) he had, before May 26, 1976, demonstrated a bona fide intention to acquire the property, the taxpayer may, by letter attached to the return of his income filed with the Minister in accordance with section 150 of the Act, for the taxation year in which the property was acquired or for the immediately following taxation year, elect to transfer in the year of acquisition

(d) the property or the part thereof, acquired after May 25, 1976, from the present class to the former class; or

(e) the part of the property acquired before May 26, 1976, from the former class to the present class.

Related Provisions: ITA 13(5) — Effect of transfer; Reg. 1103(3)–(5) — How election made and when effective.

(2d) Where a taxpayer has

(a) disposed of a property (in this subsection referred to as the "former property") of a class in Schedule II (in this subsection referred to as the "former class"), and

(b) before the end of the taxation year in which the former property was disposed of, acquired property (in this subsection referred to as the "new property") of a class in Schedule II (in this subsection referred to as the "present class") and the present class is neither

(i) the former class, nor

(ii) a separate class described in section 1101, other than subsection 1101(5d), such that

(c) if the former property had been acquired at the time that the new property was acquired and from the person from whom the new property was acquired, the former property would have been included in the present class, and

(d) if the new property had been acquired at the time that the former property was acquired and from the person from whom the former property was acquired, the new property would have been included in the former class, the taxpayer may, by letter attached to the return of income of the taxpayer filed with the Minister in accordance with section 150 of the Act in respect of the taxation year in which the former property was disposed of, elect to transfer the former property from the former class to the present class in the year of its disposition and, for greater certainty, the transfer shall be considered to have been made before the disposition of the property.

(2f) Elections to include properties in Class 1, 3 or 6 — In respect of properties otherwise included in Class 20 in Schedule II, a taxpayer may, by letter attached to the return of income of the taxpayer for a taxation year filed with the Minister in accordance with section 150 of the Act, elect to include in Class 1, 3 or 6 in Schedule II, as specified in the letter, all properties of Class 20 in Schedule II owned by the taxpayer at the commencement of the year.

Related Provisions: Reg. 1103(3)–(5) — How election made and when effective.

(2g) Transfers to Class 8, Class 10 or Class 43 — For the purposes of this Part and Schedule II, where one or more properties of a taxpayer are included in a separate class pursuant to an election filed by the taxpayer in accordance with subsection 1101(5q), all the properties included in that class immediately after the beginning of the taxpayer's fifth taxation year beginning after the end of the first taxation year in which a property of the class became available for use by the taxpayer for the purposes of subsection 13(26) of the Act shall be transferred immediately after the beginning of that fifth taxation year from the separate class to the class in which the property would, but for the election, have been included.

Related Provisions: ITA 13(5) — Effect of transfer; Reg. 1103(3)–(5) — How election made and when effective.

Proposed Addition — Reg. 1103(2g.1), (2g.2)

(2g.1) Subject to subsection (2g.2), for the purposes of this Part and Schedule II,

(a) all of the properties that are, pursuant to subsection 1101(5s.1), included in a separate class at the time that is immediately after the end of the taxpayer's second taxation year referred to in subparagraph 1100(1)(zi)(i) shall be transferred at that time from the separate class to the class in which the property would, but for subsection (5s.1), have been included; and

(b) all of the properties that are, pursuant to subsection 1101(5s.3), included in a separate class at the time that is immediately after the end of the taxpayer's taxation year referred to in subparagraph 1100(1)(zi)(ii) shall be transferred at that time from the separate class to the class in which the property would, but for subsection (5s.3), have been included.

Related Provisions: ITA 13(5) — Effect of transfer.

(2g.2) For the purposes of this Part and Schedule II, where one or more properties of a taxpayer are included in a separate Class 43 pursuant to an election filed by the taxpayer in accordance with subsection 1101(5s.2) or (5s.4), all of the properties that are in that separate class at the particular time that is immediately after the beginning of the taxpayer's fifth taxation year that begins after the end of the first taxation year in which an additional allowance is deductible by the taxpayer under paragraph 1100(1)(zi) shall be transferred at the particular time from the separate Class 43 to the class in which the property would, but for the election, have been included.

Related Provisions: ITA 13(5) — Effect of transfer.

Application: The February 26, 2008 draft regulations (2008 Budget amendments — capital cost allowance), s. 4, will add subsecs. 1103(2g.1) and (2g.2), deemed to have come into force on February 26, 2008.

Technical Notes: New subsection 1103(2g.1) provides a special transfer rule where new subsection 1101(5s.1) or (5s.3) applies to include property in a separate prescribed Class 43. The property is to be transferred to the general Class 43 immediately after the end of the period during which the additional allowances may be claimed.

New subsection 1103(2g.2) provides a special transfer rule where new subsection 1101(5s.2) or (5s.4) applies to include one or more properties of a taxpayer in a separate prescribed Class 43. The property is to be transferred to the general Class 43 immediately after the end of the period during which the additional allowance may be claimed. In general, such a transfer occurs immediately after the beginning of the taxpayer's fifth taxation year of being eligible to deduct an additional allowance if subsection 1101(5s.2) or (5s.4) applies.

Subsection 13(5) of the Income Tax Act provides special rules that apply to depreciable property that is included in one prescribed class of a taxpayer and becomes included in another prescribed class of the taxpayer.

Federal Budget, Supplementary Information, Feb. 26, 2008: See under Reg. Sch. II:Cl. 29.

(2h) Elections not to include properties in Class 44 — A taxpayer may, by letter attached to the taxpayer's return of income filed with the Minister in accordance with section 150 of the Act for the taxation year in which a property was acquired, elect not to include the property in Class 44 in Schedule II.

Related Provisions: Reg. 1103(3)–(5) — How election made and when effective.

History: A reference to Class 43 was added to the heading before subsec. 1103(2g), by P.C. 2005-2186, subsec. 3(1), November 22, 2005, Canada Gazette, Part II, December 14, 2005, applicable to property acquired after February 27, 2000.

S. 14 of the said P.C. 2005-2186 states that for the purpose of subsec. 1103(2g), an election that is in respect of property described in subsec. 1101(5s) and that is made under subsec. 13(1) of the said P.C. 2005-2186 is deemed to have been made in accordance with subsec. 1101(5q).

Subsecs. 1103(2g), (2h) added by P.C. 1994-231, s. 3, February 10, 1994, Canada Gazette, Part II, February 23, 1994, applicable to property acquired after April 26, 1993; an election referred to in subsec. 1103(2h) is deemed to have been made in accordance with the subsec. if it is made by notifying the Minister of National Revenue in writing before the end of August 1994.

Subpara. 1103(2d)(b)(ii) amended by P.C. 1991-465, s. 3, March 14, 1991, Canada Gazette, Part II, March 27, 1991, applicable after April 26, 1989.

Subsec. 1103(2d) substituted, (2e), (2f) added, by P.C. 1989-2464, s. 4, December 14, 1989, Canada Gazette, Part II, January 3, 1990, (2d) applicable in respect of dispositions of property occurring after 1987, except that any election under the subsec. made before July 3, 1990, shall be deemed to be a valid election; (2e) applicable to 1990 et seq.; (2f) applicable to 1988 et seq.

Paras. 1103(2d)(b), (c) and (d) substituted by P.C. 1983-1083, s. 3, April 14, 1983, Canada Gazette, Part II, April 27, 1983, applicable in respect of property (other than property described in Class 31 of Schedule II or paragraph (n) of Class 12 of that schedule) acquired or disposed of after November 12, 1981, property described in the said Class 31 acquired or disposed of after 1981 and property described in paragraph (n) of the said Class 12 acquired or disposed of after 1982.

(2i) Election to include properties in Class 35 — In respect of any property otherwise included in Class 7 in Schedule II because of paragraph (h) of that Class and to which paragraph 1100(1)(z.1a) and subsection 1101(5d), or paragraph 1100(1)(z.1c) and subsection 1101(5d.2), would apply if Class 35 of that Schedule applied to the property, the taxpayer may (by letter attached to the taxpayer's return of income filed with the Minister in accordance with section 150 of the Act for the taxation year in which the property was acquired) elect to include the property in Class 35 rather than in Class 7.

History: Subsec. 1103(2i) added by P.C. 2005-2186, subsec. 3(2), November 22, 2005, Canada Gazette, Part II, December 14, 2005, applicable to property acquired after February 27, 2000.

(3) Election rules — To be effective in respect of a taxation year, an election under this section must be made not later than the last day on which the taxpayer may file a return of his income for the taxation year in accordance with section 150 of the Act.

(4) [Timing of election] — An election under paragraph 1102(8)(d) or (9)(d) or this section shall be effective from the first day of the taxation year in respect of which the election is made and shall continue to be effective for all subsequent taxation years.

History: Subsec. 1103(4) amended by P.C. 1997-1033, s. 3, July 25, 1997, Canada Gazette, Part II, August 20, 1997, applicable after February 21, 1994.

(5) [How election made] — An election under subsection (1) or (2) shall be made by sending a letter to that effect by registered mail to the Tax Centre at which the taxpayer customarily files the returns required by section 150 of the Act.

History: Subsec. 1103(5) amended by P.C. 2007-849, s. 2, May 31, 2007, Canada Gazette, Part II, June 13, 2007, in force June 13, 2007.

DIVISION V — INTERPRETATION

1104. (1) Definitions — Where the taxpayer is an individual and his income for the taxation year includes income from a business the fiscal period of which does not coincide with the calendar year, in respect of the depreciable properties acquired for the purpose of gaining or producing income from the business, a reference in this Part to

"end of the taxation year" shall be deemed to be a reference to the end of the fiscal period of the business; and

"taxation year" shall be deemed to be a reference to the fiscal period of the business.

(2) In this Part and Schedule II,

"certified feature film" means a motion picture film certified by the Minister of Communications to be a film of not less than 75 minutes running time in respect of which all photography or art work specifically required for the production thereof and all film editing therefor were commenced after November 18, 1974, and either the film was completed before May 26, 1976, or the photography or art work was commenced before May 26, 1976, and certified by him to be

(a) a film the production of which is contemplated in a coproduction agreement entered into between Canada and another country, or

(b) a film in respect of which

(i) the person who performed the duties of producer was a Canadian,

(ii) no fewer than ⅔ in number of all the persons each of whom

(A) was a person who performed the duties of director, screenwriter, music composer, art director, picture editor or director of photography, or

(B) was the individual in respect of whose services as an actor or actress in respect of the film the highest remuneration or the second highest remuneration was paid or payable,

were Canadians,

(iii) not less than 75 per cent of the aggregate of the remuneration paid or payable to persons for services provided in respect of the film (other than remuneration paid or payable to or in respect of the persons referred to in subparagraphs (i) and (ii) or remuneration paid or payable for processing and final preparation of the film) was paid or payable to Canadians,

(iv) not less than 75 per cent of the aggregate of costs incurred for processing and final preparation of the film including laboratory work, sound recording, sound editing and picture editing (other than remuneration paid or payable to or in respect of persons referred to in subparagraphs (i), (ii) and (iii)), was incurred in respect of services rendered in Canada, and

(v) the copyright protecting its use in Canada is beneficially owned

(A) by a person who is either a Canadian or a corporation incorporated under the laws of Canada or a province, or

(B) jointly or otherwise by two or more persons described in clause (A),

other than a film

(c) acquired after the day that is the earlier of

(i) the day of its first commercial use, and

(ii) 12 months after the day the principal photography thereof is completed, or

(d) in respect of which certification under this definition has been revoked by the Minister of Communications as provided in paragraph (10)(b);

Related Provisions: ITA 127.52(1)(c) — Add-back of CCA on film properties for minimum tax purposes; Reg. 1104(10) — Interpretation.

History: All that portion of the definition of "certified feature film" in subsec. 1104(2) preceding para. (a), and para. (d) substituted by P.C. 1980-3374, s. 2, December 11, 1980, Canada Gazette, Part II, December 24, 1980.

All that portion of the definition of "certified feature film" in subsec. 1104(2) following cl. (v)(B) substituted by P.C. 1978-3731, subsec. 2(1), December 14, 1978, Canada Gazette, Part II, December 27, 1978, applicable in respect of property acquired after 1978.

Minister of Communications: S. 46 of 1995, c. 11, in force July 12, 1996, provides as follows:

> 46. Other references — Every reference made to the Minister of Communications, the Minister of Multiculturalism and Citizenship and the Secretary of State of Canada in relation to any matter to which the powers, duties and functions of the Minister of Canadian Heritage extend by virtue of this Act, in any other Act of Parliament or in any order, regulation or other instrument made under any Act of Parliament shall, unless the context otherwise requires, be read as a reference to the Minister of Canadian Heritage.

"certified production", in respect of a particular taxation year, means a motion picture film or video tape certified by the Minister of Communications to be a film or tape in respect of which all photography, taping or art work required specifically for the production thereof and all film or tape editing therefor were commenced after May 25, 1976, certified by him to be a film or tape in respect of which the principal photography or taping thereof was commenced before the end of the particular taxation year or was completed no later than 60 days after the end of that year and certified by him to be

(a) a film or tape the production of which is contemplated in a coproduction agreement entered into between Canada and another country, or

(b) a film or tape in respect of which

(i) the individual who performed the duties of producer was a Canadian,

(ii) the Minister of Communications has allotted not less than an aggregate of six units of production, not less than two of which were allotted by virtue of clause (A) or (B) and not less than one of which was allotted by virtue of clause (C) or (D), for individuals who provided services in respect of the film or tape, in the following manner:

(A) for the director, two units of production,

(B) for the screenwriter, two units of production,

(C) for the actor or actress in respect of whose services for the film or tape the highest remuneration was paid or payable (unless in the opinion of the Minister of Communications the individual did not perform a major role in the film or tape), one unit of production,

(D) for the actor or actress in respect of whose services for the film or tape the second highest remuneration was paid or payable (unless in the opinion of the Minister of Communications the individual did not perform a major role in the film or tape), one unit of production,

(E) for the art director, one unit of production,

(F) for the director of photography, one unit of production,

(G) for the music composer, one unit of production, and

(H) for the picture editor, one unit of production, shall be allotted, provided the individual in respect of such allotment was a Canadian,

(iii) not less than 75 per cent of the aggregate of all costs (other than costs determined by reference to the amount of income from the film or tape) paid or payable to persons for services provided in respect of producing the film or tape (other than remuneration paid or payable to, or in respect of, individuals referred to in subparagraph (i) or (ii), costs referred to in subparagraph (iv) incurred for processing and final preparation of the film or tape, and amounts paid or payable in respect of insurance, financing, brokerage, legal and accounting fees and similar amounts) was paid or payable to, or in respect of services provided by, Canadians, and
